Three ships can be accommodated at one time along the 1,850-foot dock on the east bank of the river about a mile from the mouth. It takes about a day to handle one vessel.

FAST LOADING

A bank of 22 grain spouts feed the holds from the 1,460-foot gallery. Four conveyor belts can carry 60,000 bushels an hour from the storage bins.

At low tide the water stands 30 feet at the dockside. Tides up to 34 feet sweep three miles along the broad river.

Ships in the 8,000-ton class make the 2,936-mile voyage from Liverpool, England, up the North Atlantic and through the ice-cluttered Hudson straits to Churchill.

Capt. E. G. Horne of Dublin, skipper of the Irish Lines' 8,900-ton Irish Elm, said the trip normally takes 10 or 11 days. However the Elm's second trip of the season, in late September, took 14 days.

"We ran into hurricanes and then were hove to in the Bay for 24 hours because of bad weather," said Capt. Horne.

During the voyage the Elm passed icebergs off the coast of Greenland and in the straits at the entrance. The bergs are plotted on the ship's radar and recorded for the department of transport.

"A gyro compass and a radio directional finder are compulsory on the Churchill run," said Capt. Horne. "But strongly enough radar is not. Personally I wouldn't want to make the run without it."

COLLIDED WITH BERG

On Aug. 3, 1954, the motor vessel New Liberian, bound for London with wheat, collided with a berg off the Labrador coast. The ship had broken down and could not be mended at Churchill. It was the first accident on the route in years. The hazards of ice were reduced this season with the introduction of an ice patrol. The department of transport icebreaker N. B. McLean patrolled the straits and a Dakota aircraft, flying out of Frobisher bay, at the mouth of the bay, made daily flights during July and August, plotting the direction of the ice field movements.

Improved radio stations at Churchill, Nottingham island, Cape Hopes Advance and Resolution island relayed information to and from ships en route.

The increasing safety precautions were reflected this season when Lond o n insurance underwriters agreed to grant insurance coverage at the minimum rates for an extra 10 five days, thus extending the season to Oct. 15 when vessels could leave without insurers paying a premium surcharge.

The 25-per-cent surcharge applies to vessels leaving the port between Oct. 15 and 20.

Churchill, the Hudson Bay seaport, has a history that goes back to the days centuries to the days of the early fur traders. A new era dawned for the town, which now has 850 people, when the Hudson Bay Railway was begun in 1911. The railway, operated by Canadian National Railways, runs from The Pas, Man., to the seaport and carries the grain from the Prairies to ocean vessels which operate in and out of Churchill during the short shipping season. From Churchill, ocean shipping passes through Hudson Bay and Hudson Strait to the Atlantic. The port is just finishing the greatest shipping season in history. (CP Photo).

Plowing Officials Lose Money On Match This Year

BLYTHESWOOD, Ont. (CP)—International plowing match officials report that they lost money on this year's match.

Attendance figures showed only 62,000 of the expected 100,000 spectators turned up this year to make it one of the poorest in the 47-year history of competitive plowing in the province.

Only 10,000 persons turned up Friday, the final day of the four-day competition.

Many of the eating establishments started to fold up at noon. Most of them hadn't made much of a profit, operators said.

Match officials blamed it on lack of local interest.

These people are only interested in making money from farming," one official said. "They don't care about straight furrows, trips to England, or golden plows. They just want to make money out of farming."

In the competitions, York county won the inter-county match with its team of Canadian champion Carl Timbers and John Pugh of Stouffville. Huron county was second and Bruce was third.

False Teeth Often Have a Certain Odor!
Soak your plates in Polident daily to avoid "Denture Breath"

Polident is the specially designed cleanser that keeps false teeth sweet-breath—clean and fresh always. Follow these simple rules.

1. Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down gritting ridges so they get loose.
2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave a film and cause particles and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath."
3. Use a sparkling-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident fit the denture cleanser recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates that can chip and break. Polident kills 9 out of 10 denture-breath odor-causing bacteria in mouth odors. Debate on Algeria Opens; Government's Fate in Doubt

Were Thinking So Four Men Push Car Home

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (Reuters)—A German policeman spotted four men laboriously pushing a big car down the street here early in the morning. He asked what the trouble was.

"Nothing wrong with the car," came the answer. "But we've all had too much to drink and don't want to take a chance on driving it."

The policeman pondered the problem, then waved them on their way.

Playboy's Plane Hits Hollywood Building, 3 Die

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A plane believed piloted by wealthy playboy Joel W. Thorne crashed into a two-story apartment house Monday night, bringing flaming death to the pilot and two others.

Nine persons were injured, at least two of them critically.

The plane, registered in the name of the 30-year-old Thorne, plunged out of the overcast about 12 minutes after it took off from Lockheed Air Terminal in nearby Burbank.

Police and fire rescuers said the pilot was burned beyond recognition, but gave his name as Thorne on radio calls from the airport.

The other known dead were identified as Mrs. Jean Reed Neff, 18, resident in the upstairs apartment where the plane hit, and Gerald Camille Preston, two months old, who had been baptized just two hours earlier.

WERE HOLDING PARTY

The baby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Preston, who lived in the downstairs apartment, were holding a christening party. They and three guests were injured as they burned seriously. Critically injured were two children of the guests.

Treated for lesser burns were William Bates, 31, and another neighbor, unidentified, who helped pull the Preston party from the blazing apartment.

Thorne, heir to a New York banking fortune, had been known as a fast pilot of planes, cars and motorcycles. The Thorne engineering special he built in 1946 was driven to victory in the Indianapolis speedway classic by George Robson.

MADE HEADLINES

Before moving to Las Vegas, Nev., about seven years ago he was a frequent headline - maker around Hollywood. He was twice injured severely in motorcycle accidents, and was fined for failing to pay alimony. A judge at the time warned him to stop "wasting your life and fooling around with race cars and light aloha."

Preston, 31, is manager of the Gay Nineties nightclub in Hollywood. His wife is television singer known as Shirley Powell.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: The complex storm over Ontario, that has persisted over the lower lakes and the St. Lawrence valley for several days, is continuing to weaken. As a result, although some precipitation is still expected throughout the province today, it will be mostly and generally light. An area of high pressure presently moving towards the Great Lakes from western Canada will slowly dissipate the clouds over Ontario tonight and Wednesday.

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — About half of the 627 deputies of the French National Assembly were in their seats today as the debate opened on the fate of Premier Edgar Faure's government and his policy for rebel-ridden Algeria.

Just before the session began the powerful Socialist group announced it would vote against the government. There were many Socialist deputies present. This was important because in today's balloting on a confidence vote deputies must be present to personally drop their ballots in the urns.

More than 30 members of the National Assembly are in bed with influenza. Under a new rule they cannot vote by proxy, but must be present in person for a vote of confidence.

The Socialist decision darkened the premier's already doubtful prospects. He had hoped to get the Socialists at least to abstain. The fate of his government was far from decided. The Socialist issue was expected to be decided by a small number of votes.

SPEECH AWAITED

Much would depend on how the assembly was moved by the speech by Faure. Twelve deputies were on the speaker's list.

The atmosphere in the chamber was tense.

Faure is advocating a policy of integrating Algeria more closely with France. His opposition insists on more or much less than that, and his ability to carry it out.

Differences among the pro-government parties on a policy for Algeria—politically a part of metropolitan France where the French resent any outside interference—are not so great that they cannot be reconciled. The question is whether Faure's government is strong enough to put his reform program into effect.

AIDS FREEMEN

The possibility that the overnment's downfall would bring an immediate general election—the pleasant thought to French politicians—also is a factor in the premier. The French constitution provides that if two premiers are defeated by a constitutional majority within 18 months, the cabinet and the president of the republic together can dissolve the assembly and call an election. French Premier Mendes-France was overthrown by such a majority—319 of the 625 assembly members voted against him ago.

The independent deputies in the assembly seem to be drifting back into Faure's camp. If the drift is strong enough, the government might squeak through.

NEW DESTROYER ESCORT MAY HAVE GUIDED MISSILES

Matter Is Now Under Discussion

MONTREAL (CP)—The $15,000,000 St. Laurent, first of 14 new destroyer escorts being delivered to the navy, may be equipped with guided missiles.

A naval spokesman said Monday the matter now is under consideration. He made the remark as the 4,000-ton St. Laurent, the first commissioned here Oct. 29, made a brief visit up the St. Lawrence.

The Canadian navy's first missile age warship, built in less than three years by Montreal Vickers Ltd., already carries a guided missile of the anti-submarine type.

But she may be fitted out later with surface-to-air and surface-to-surface guided missiles.

MOST UP-TO-DATE

Rear-Admiral J. C. G. Knowlton, chief of naval technical services, told reporters the St. Laurent is the most up-to-date anti-submarine vessel in the world." It should remain up-to-date "a fair number of years."

There are some pretty revolutionary things about the St. Laurent. One is her design. She has a rounded hull and is there are no sharp edges—and she rides lower in the water than the ordinary destroyer.

And the captain no longer fights his ship from a bridge. His operates instead from a room behind and below the bridge and from which he can't see a square inch of sea.

All his room are packed tables and gear which give the captain a complete picture of everything going on around, above and below his ship.

The other captain who used to use his eyes and voice on the bridges now plays a chess game down here," an officer said.

HOSE SELF DOWN

Because there are few portholes, and none on the fighting decks, the ship can be completely sealed against any radiation or chemical attack. She can hose herself down with about a score of jets to appear on deck.

Besides the torpedo, which can chase an enemy target despite any evasive action it might take, the St. Laurent has another potent anti-sub weapon, three-barrelled mortars which fire 300 bombs in a salvo. The bombs are detonated at the sub's depth, this information being fed to them by the ship's sonar.

The fire control systems for the mortars and three-inch anti-aircraft guns are automatic. Information on the target's range, bearing and speed is supplied by the sonar or radar equipment to the guns.

The next five St. Laurent-class escorts are expected to be completed over the next five more in 1957 and the last three in 1958. The destroyer program will cost some $210,000,000.

Brewery Dispute Threatens To Tie Up Retail Beer Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators are expected to hold last-minute meetings this week in an attempt to settle a contract dispute that threatens to stop production at several major Ontario breweries and also tie up retail sales of beer.

The United Brewery Workers Union (CIO-CLC) threatens to call out 2,500 of its Ontario members unless the companies involved grant them substantial pay increases and other concessions.

Involved are Brewers' Warehousing Co. Ltd., and subsidiary companies of Canadian Breweries Ltd. The subsidiaries are Bradine's O'Keefe's, Carling's, Dow Kingsmill and Canadian Breweries Transport.

Approximately 1,200 beer warehousemen, drivers and retail store clerks throughout Ontario voted overwhelmingly in favor of strike action against Brewers' Warehousing, it was learned Monday.

Strike ballots cast last week by various locals of the union were counted in Toronto by the provincial board representing the workers.

Royal Commission Launches Economic Prospects Probe

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The royal commission on Canada's economic prospects moved ahead today with the mighty task of moulding generalizations into a crystal ball showing the next quarter-century of the country's future.

The chairman of the five-man commission, W. L. Gordon of Toronto, launched with a brief address into the year-long job that will take the group from coast to coast.

He said he and his colleagues had read Newfoundland's brief during the last several days. The brief was presented formally to the commission later by H. Carl Goldenberg of Montreal, legal counsel for Newfoundland.

Mr. Gordon said "the scene of today's very hazy. The many facts to be studied vary immensely. He said the commission is not to study "specific contentious issues" but is to "give considerations to what Canada's future during the next 25 years.

WANT NO HANDOUTS

Premier Smallwood addressed the commission before the brief was tabled. He said Newfoundland's needs—education, health, roads, electricity, water, schools and hospitals in the next 25 years would be $1,250,000,000 or $50,000,000 a year.

Newfoundland would raise the money from her natural resources and needed federal help only for developing them.

He said Newfoundland didn't have to "go whining to Ottawa for handouts."

"Before we'd allow this to happen we'd leave Confederation."

He said constitutional difficulties about leaving could be overcome and Newfoundland would pull out "before we'd allow anyone to make second class Canadians of us."

Union representative Harry Marley, of Toronto, said no strike date can be set until Thursday, expiry date for the compulsory seven-day waiting period before any action can be taken following receipt of the conciliation board report by the minister of labor.

It was learned reliably, however, that the strike will probably be called for October 27 if no settlement is reached.

Brewers' Warehousing, owned by all the breweries in Ontario, is the chief outlet for retailed and home-delivered beer, and the sole supplier of bottled beer to licensed stores. Several breweries have their own retail stores and home-delivery service as well.

The dispute involves separate contract negotiations but the issues are substantially the same.

The union threatens to call the strike at Canadian Breweries workers Wednesday midnight unless the company meets its demands. For the first time in the negotiations, the union team will be led in talks today by the Brewery Workers International president, Karl Feller of Cincinnati.

Coffin Granted Stay of Execution Until December 2

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Superior Court has granted conviction murderer Wilbert Coffin a fourth stay of execution until December 2, the Supreme Court of Canada to study his case and make a recommendation to the federal cabinet.

Intervention by the cabinet is Coffin's last hope of escaping the gallows. He was convicted a year ago of murdering three U.S. American hunters whose bear-torn remains were found in the Gaspe wilderness in 1953, but claims he was not given a fair trial.

The cabinet, in what is believed to be an unprecedented move, Friday asked Canada's highest court to review the 44-year-old prospector's case and make a recommendation.

Then, presumably on the basis of the court's opinion, the cabinet will decide whether Coffin's conviction should be quashed and another trial ordered, or his conviction upheld.

Coffin was convicted at Perce, Que., of murdering Richard Lindsey, 17, whose body was found near those of his 41-year-old father, Eugene, and a friend, Albert Johnson, in the summer of 1953. The victims were from Hollidaysburg, Pa.

NO ARMS CUTS WITHOUT 'RADICAL' CHANGE IN WORLD

Eisenhower Approves Maintaining Defence

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower today took a 24-hour recess from cabinet-level conferences after approving new assurances that there will be no "further United States military cuts without a "radical change" in the world situation.

The latest assurances, from Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, followed similar forecasts from State Secretary Dulles and Treasury Secretary George Humphreys after their earlier talks with Eisenhower at Fitzsimons army hospital.

Dulles is flying here from Washington today for a final conference with Eisenhower Wednesday before he and Wilson leave for their foreign ministers' conference opening at Geneva Oct. 27

Meanwhile, the 65-year-old heart patient is showing every indication that his gradual return to active direction of the government is proving a good tonic to the family-style convalescence.

Wilson told a press conference after a round of golfing that Monday day that present-planning on the budget for the year starting next July 1 is one of the most difficult military manpower at the present level of about 2,850,000. He added that his present thinking is that military expenditures for next year will be a little higher" than the $34,500,000,000 expected for the current year.

Jurymen Defamed By Story Says Court of Appeal

VICTORIA (CP)—The B.C. Court of Appeal said today that it is of the opinion an article on capital punishment by Vancouver Province columnist Eric Nicol defamed jurymen.

The announcement was made in the appeal of eight members of a Vancouver Assize Court jury from the judgment of Mr. Justice H. W. McInnis, who dismissed their libel action against Nicol, the Southam Co. Ltd., publisher of The Province and Nicol. J. H. C. Anderson.

The court said it will hear arguments Nov. 1 at Victoria on the question of damages. The eight men were members of a jury convicted 19-year-old William W. Gash of murder two years ago.

The action arose from an article on capital punishment written by Nicol on March 20, 1953. At the time the article was written Gash was awaiting sentence to be hanged. His sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment. The eight jurymen said the article reflected on them and asked unstated damages.

The eight appellants are William MacKay, John Lipp, Percy Hughes, J. C. McVicar, Len Blissett, Maurice Cowan, Thomas B. Mortimer and Don Matheson.

Residents of French Village Still Resort to Witchcraft for Healing

PARIS (Reuters)—Residents of a French village near the Bay of Biscay still resort to witchcraft to bring cure human and farm animal ailments, a French novelist said Monday.

Novelist Beatrix Beck, writing in the new daily newspaper L'Express in Paris, said remedies are kept by the 1,140 villagers of Champdeniers to supplement or even replace the work of a doctor or veterinarian.

The hold of one case in which, a child died of meningitis while its parents were praying to holst a cow upstairs into the child's room to "take over its illness."

Among the remedies in common use are: for weak eyes—200 woodlice eaten daily; for impotence—a toad kept in an earthenware pot under the bed.

A local priest told the writer: "Heavens, if you knew how many barrels of holy water they ask me for and use for all kinds of purposes. They even ask me to bless the cows with it to make them pregnant.

"So I tell my servant: 'Give them ordinary water.' They think it is holy water and they are happy."

A village doctor told Miss Beck: "I was treating a little boy for bronchitis and he called the mother if she had carried out the treatment. She answered:

"She said: 'It is not worthwhile. I made him drink after the cat.'"

This treatment is common in the region, consists of finishing off with milk in a bowl by the cat.

"There is a famous woman healer here," the doctor said. "People come from all around by taxi to consult her. One taxi driver has even devoted himself exclusively to this service.

"She puts her bare feet on your kidneys and charges you 1,000 francs ($2.80). That is more than we charge."

Last of Mysterious Field Family Released from Labor Camp by Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—The long-missing foster-daughter of the mysterious American Field family, Miss Erika Glaser Wallach, has been released from Vorkuta labor camp and is in Moscow awaiting final documents permitting her to leave the Soviet Union.

Chain-smoking as she talked to reporters, the 25-year-old brunette, born western told reporters today that she was picked up by East Berlin police in 1950 while searching for her foster-parents.

She said she was held in solitary confinement for 2½ years, then was sentenced to death in January, 1953, as a spy by a Russian military court in East Berlin.

Mrs. Wallach's case was the last of the family to be freed by Communists. Her foster-father, Noel Field, a graduate United States state department employee, his wife Herta and his brother Hermann, all of Cleveland architect, were arrested in eastern Europe at intervals in 1949 as spies.

The Polish government released Hermann in October, 1954, saying he had been cleared of the espionage charge, and he went to Switzerland. It un g a r y released Noel and Herta a month later, and they subsequently announced in Budapest that they would remain there.

"I never thought I'd live to sight-see in Moscow," Mrs. Wallach said, glancing about her hotel room.

Mrs. Wallach's husband, Robert, is an American living near Washington with their two small children. Now five and seven years old, they were six months and two years old when she saw them last.

Mrs. Wallach said she expects to leave soon by train—"to Paris I suppose." Although she insisted she is an American citizen, she was reluctant to discuss her passport situation, and it was not clear here whether she would be admitted to the U. S.

Queen Is Home, Family Parley Promptly Called

Margaret 'Sad and Sombre', Townsend Serious Business

LONDON (CP) — Group Capt. Peter Townsend made a tearful call on Princess Margaret at Clarence House today.

It was one of many moves by persons who figure in the future of the reported romance between the pretty princess and the divorced 40-year-old air ace.

Townsend, making his second visit to Clarence House since he arrived in Britain last week on leave from Brussels air station, got lost, reached Margaret's home just after a cabinet meeting called by Prime Minister Eden at 10 Downing street had ended. The meeting may have discussed the implications of the romance.

Five minutes after Townsend arrived at Clarence House, Queen Mother Elizabeth left by car. The Queen passed through the small Clarence Buckingham Palace, leading to speculation that she was headed for a visit with Queen Elizabeth, who returned today by her vacation in Scotland.

RECORD INTACT

The Townsend call kept intact his record of seeing the princess at least once a day for the last six days. He called on her at Clarence House Friday, Saturday and again during a weekend in the country and were present at a dinner party Monday night.

Townsend seemed to be in good spirits when he left the newspaper men as he approached Clarence House.

The Queen spent much of the day clearing a backlog of visitors which included diplomats presenting their credentials.

The royal train bringing the monarch and her two children arrived at Euston station in mid-morning after an overnight trip from Balmoral Castle.

The Queen remained in the station a few minutes and then drove off with Prince Charles and Princess Anne to Buckingham Palace, only a short walk away from Clarence House where Princess Margaret lives with Queen Mother Elizabeth.

FAMILY CONFERENCE

It was understood that a family conference will be held tonight at the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh—who arrived back Monday after spending several weeks in Canadian troops in Germany—the princess and the Queen Mother attending.

This would be the first face-to-face meeting between the two royal sisters since the princess and Townsend met briefly after a royal separation and then spent a weekend at the country home of the Queen Mother.

The Duke of Edinburgh today visited Clarence House, then met the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret. A crowd of 400 clustered outside the mansion as the duke drove back to Buckingham Palace before 10 a.m.

Queen Elizabeth was welcomed by only a small group of officials when she arrived this morning from Balmoral.

Minister Eden, out of town during most of the recent Townsend-Margaret affair, called an afternoon meeting of the cabinet at 10 Downing St., and attendance was due for an audience with the Queen at the palace.

Vice-President Thinks Chances Of Peace Better

NEW YORK (AP)—Vice-President Richard Nixon Monday night expressed the hope and the belief that the chances for peace today are better than at any time since World War II."

But he told the Communist world "the time for deeds has come."

He urged Soviet Russia to accept "a formula for peace" President Eisenhower's proposal to exchange military blueprints, and to permit inspection of military installations. "No greater step toward peace could be taken at this time."

Nixon voiced his views in speeches to the International Air Transport Association, and the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

MAKE OFFER

Speaking to the air transport group, with delegations here from 57 countries, Nixon hailed Eisenhower's sickbed offer to the Russians last week to accept reciprocal inspection of ground team inspections if they would accept his plan for aerial surveys.

"This should remove the last vestige of justifiable opposition to the president's proposal," he said, surely no nation concerned only w i t its own security and the w orld at peace can object to a full display of its own defensive forces. No nation whose military program is free from plots for conquest can object to such an impartial and international aerial inspection of its interior."

French Socialist Group Will Vote Against Faure

Debate on Algeria Opens; Government's Fate in Doubt

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — About half of the 627 deputies of the French National Assembly were in their seats today as the debate opened on the fate of Premier Edgar Faure's government and his policy for rebel-ridden Algeria.

Just before the session began the powerful Socialist group announced it would vote against the government. There were many Socialist deputies present. This was important because in today's debate joining on a confidence vote deputies must be present to personally drop their ballots in the urns.

More than 30 members of the National Assembly are in bed with influenza. Under a new rule they cannot vote by proxy, but must be present in person for a vote of confidence.

The Socialist decision darkened the premier's already doubtful prospects. He had hoped to get the Socialists at least to abstain. The fate of his government was far from decided, however. The issue was expected to be decided by a small number of votes.

SPEECH AWAITED

Much would depend on how the assembly was moved by a speech by Faure, twelve deputies were on the speaker's list.

The atmosphere in the chamber was tense.

Faure is advocating a policy of integrating Algeria more closely with France. His opposition criticizes not so much his program and his ability to carry it out.

Differences among the pro-Communist parties on a policy for Algeria—politically a part of metropolitan France where the French recent any outside interference—have developed so that they cannot be reconciled. The question is whether Faure's government has strong enough backing for his reform program into effect.

AIDS FRENCHMEN

The possibility that the government's downfall would bring an immediate general election was a pleasant thought to French politicians, anxious for finishing premierships. The French constitution provides that if two premiers are defeated by a constitutional majority within 18 months, the cabinet and the president of the National Assembly may dissolve the assembly and call an election. Premier Pierre Mendes-France was overthrown by such a majority—219 of the 625 assembly votes—eight months to ago.

The independent deputies in the assembly seem to be drifting back into Faure's camp. If the drift is strong enough, the government might squeak through.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: The complex low pressure area that has persisted over the lower lakes and the New England states for several days, is continuing to weaken. As a result, although some precipitation is still expected throughout the province today, it will be spotty and generally light. An area of high pressure presently moving towards the Great Lakes from Canada will spread slowly dissipate the clouds over Ontario tonight and Wednesday.

NEW DESTROYER ESCORT MAY HAVE GUIDED MISSILES

Matter Is Now Under Discussion

MONTREAL (CP)—The $15,000,000 St. Laurent, first of 14 new destroyer escorts being delivered to the navy, may be equipped with guided missiles.

A naval spokesman said Monday the matter now is under consideration. He made the remark as the $15,000,000 St. Laurent, to be commissioned here Oct. 29, made a brief run on the St. Lawrence.

The Canadian navy's first atomic age warship, built in less than five years from up-to-date anti-submarine vessel in the world." It should remain up-to-date "a fair number of years."

There are some pretty revolutionary things about the St. Laurent. One is her design. She has a rounded hull—that is, there is no sharp underbody and she rides lower in the water than the ordinary destroyer.

And the captain no longer fights at his ship from the bridge. He operates instead from a room behind and below the bridge and from which guns, radar and sonar are controlled.

All this room are packed tables and gear which give the captain a complete picture of everything going on above and below below his ship.

The captain who used to use his eyes and voice on the bridges now plays a distant game down here," an officer said.

HOSE SELF DOWN

Because there are few portholes, and none on the fighting decks, the ship can be completely sealed against gas and bacteriological or chemical attack. She can hose herself down without a man ever having to appear on deck.

Besides the torpedo, which can chase an enemy target despite any evasive action it might take, the St. Laurent carries another special anti-sub weapon, three-barrelled mortars which do bombs in pattern. The bombs are detonated at the sub's depth, this information having been fed into the ship's fire control.

The fire control systems for the mortars and depth-charge anti-aircraft guns are automatic. Information on the target's range, bearing and depth-is supplied by the ship's sonar or radar equipment to the guns.

The next five St. Laurent-class escorts are expected to be completed next year, two in 1957 and the last three in 1958. The program will cost some $212,000,000.

Brewery Dispute Threatens To Tie Up Retail Beer Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators are expected to hold last-ditch meetings this week in an attempt to settle a contract dispute that threatens to stop production at several major Ontario breweries and also tie up retail sales of beer.

The United Brewery Workers Union (CIO-CCL) threatens to call out 2,500 of its Ontario members unless the companies involved grant them substantial pay increases and other concessions.

Involved are Brewers' Warehousing Co. Ltd., and subsidiary companies of Canadian Breweries Ltd. The subsidiaries are Brading's O'Keefe's, Carling's, Dow Kingsbeer and Canada Breweries Transport.

Approximately 1,200 beer warehousemen, drivers and retail store clerks throughout Ontario voted overwhelmingly in favor of strike action against Brewers' Warehousing, it was learned Monday. Strike ballots cast last week by the various locals of the union were counted in Toronto by the provincial board representing the workers.

Union representative Harry Marley, of Toronto, said no strike date can be set until Thursday, expiry date for the compulsory seven-day waiting period before any action can be taken following receipt of the conciliation board report by the minister of labor.

It was learned reliably, however, that the strike will probably be called for October 27 if no settlement is reached.

Brewers' Warehousing, owned by all the breweries in Ontario, is the chief outlet for retailed and home-delivered beer and the sole purchaser of bulk beer. Small breweries have their own retail stores and home-delivery service as well.

The dispute involves separate contract negotiations but the issues are substantially the same.

The union threatens to call the strike if the Canadian Breweries workers Wednesday midnight unless the company meets its demands. For the first time in the negotiations, the union team will be led by Harry Gray for the Brewery Workers International president, Karl Feller of Cincinnati.

Royal Commission Launches Economic Prospects Probe

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The royal commission on Canada's economic prospects moved ahead today with the mighty task of moulding presentations into a crystal ball showing the next quarter-century of the country's future.

The chairman of the five-man commission, W. L. Gordon of Toronto, presided at the start and address into the year-long job that will take the group from coast to coast.

He said he and his colleagues had read Newfoundland's brief during the last several days. The brief was presented formally by the commission later by H. Cari Goldenburg of Montreal, legal counsel for Newfoundland.

Mr. Gordon said "the scope of our work is very broad. The matters to be studied vary immensely." He said the commission is not to study "specific contentious issues" but is to "give considerable thought to Canada's future during the next 25 years.

WANT NO HANDOUTS

Premier Smallwood addressed the commission before the brief was tabled. He said Newfoundland's expenditures on housing, roads, electricity, water, schools and hospitals in the next 25 years would be $1,250,000,000 or $50,000,000 a year.

Newfoundland would raise the money from her natural resources and needed federal help only for developing them.

He said Newfoundland didn't have to "go whining to Ottawa for handouts."

"Before we'd allow this to happen we'd leave Confederation."

He said constitutional difficulties about leaving could be overcome and Newfoundland would pull out "before we'd allow anyone to make second class Canadians of us."

Coffin Granted Stay of Execution Until December 2

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Superior Court has granted extension to murderer Wilbert Coffin a fourth stay of execution—to the Supreme Court of Canada to Court of Canada to study his case and make a recommendation to the federal cabinet.

Intervention by the cabinet is Coffin's last hope of escaping the gallows. He was convicted a year ago of murdering three American hunters whose bear-torn remains were found in the Gaspe wilderness in 1953, but claims he was not given a fair trial.

The cabinet, it is believed to be an unprecedented move, Friday asked Canada's highest court to review the 44-year-old prospector's case and make a recommendation to them.

Then, presumably on the basis of the court's decision, the cabinet will decide whether Coffin's conviction should be quashed and another trial ordered, or his conviction upheld.

Coffin was convicted at Perce, Que., of murdering Richard Lindsey, 21, whose body was found near his of 47-year-old father, Eugene, and a friend, Albert Clear, 20, in the summer of 1953. The victims were from Hollidaysburg, Pa.

NO ARMS CUTS WITHOUT 'RADICAL' CHANGE IN WORLD

Eisenhower Approves Maintaining Defence

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower today took a 24-hour recess from cabinet-level conferences after approving new assurances that there will be no further United States military cuts without a 'radical change' in the world situation.

The latest assurances, from Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, followed similar forecasts from State Secretary Dulles and Treasury Secretary George Humphreys after their earlier talks with Eisenhower at Fitzsimons army hospital.

Dulles is flying here from Washington today for a cabinet conference with Eisenhower Wednesday before he and Wilson leave for the foreign ministers' conference opening at Geneva Oct. 27

Meanwhile, the 65-year-old heart patient is showing every indication that his gradual return to active direction of the government is proving a good tonic to the President's health.

Wilson told a press conference at the Denver White House Monday that in present planning on the budget for the year starting next June 1 is the matter of retaining military manpower at the present level of about 2,850,000. He added that his present thinking is that military expenditures for next year will be "about" the same as those in the $34,500,000,000 expected for the current year.

Jurymen Defeated By Story Says Court of Appeal

VICTORIA (CP)—The B.C. Court of Appeal said Tuesday it is of the opinion an article on capital punishment by Vancouver Province columnist Eric Nicol defamed jurymen.

The announcement was made in the appeal of eight members of a Vancouver Assize Court jury from the judgment of Mr. Justice H. W. McInnis, who dismissed their libel action against Nicol, the Southam Co. Ltd., publisher A. W. Moscrafter and editor J. L. Anderson.

The court said it will hear arguments Dec. 5 on questions of law in question of damages. The eight men were members of a jury which convicted 19-year-old William W. Gash of murder two years ago.

The action arose from an article on capital punishment written by Nicol on March 30, 1954. At the time the article was written Gash was under sentence to be hanged. His sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment. The jurymen said the article reflected on them and asked unstated damages.

The eight appellants are William Mosdell, John Lipp, Percy Lee Cass, J. C. McVicar, Len Blissett, Maurice Cassidy and E. H. Mortimer and Don Matheson.

Residents of French Village Still Resort to Witchcraft for Healing

PARIS (Reuters)—Residents of a French village near the Bay of Biscay still resort to witchcraft rather than medical science to cure their ailments, a French novelist said Monday.

Novelist Beatrice Beck, writing in the new daily newspaper L'Express said "magical" remedies are used by the 1,140 villagers of Champdeniers to supplement or even replace the visit of a doctor or veterinarian.

She told of one case in which a child died of meningitis while its parents were trying to bolster a superstition into the child's room to "take over its illness."

Among the remedies in common use are: for weak eyes—200 woodlice eaten daily; for impotence—a toad buried in the earthenware pot under the bed.

A local priest told the writer: "Heavens, if you knew how many barrels of holy water they ask me to

Queen Is Home, Family Parley Promptly Called

Margaret 'Sad and Sombre', Townsend Serious, Brusque

LONDON (CP) — Group Capt. Peter Townsend made a tearline call on Princess Margaret at Clarence House today.

It was one of many moves by persons who figure in the future of her reported romance between the pretty princess and the divorced 40-year-old air ace.

Townsend, making his second visit to Clarence House since he arrived in Britain last week on leave from his Brussels air attache post, reached Margaret's home just after a cabinet meeting called by Prime Minister Eden at 10 Downing street had ended. The meeting may have discussed the complications of the romance.

Five minutes after Townsend arrived at Clarence House, Queen Mother Elizabeth left by car. The auto departed through the east nearest Buckingham Palace, leading to speculation that she was headed for a visit with Queen Elizabeth, who returned today by plane from vacation in Scotland.

RECORD INTACT

The Townsend call kept intact his record of seeing the princess at least once a day for the last six days. He called on her at Clarence House Friday, Saturday, Sunday, then gather during a weekend in the country and were guests at a dinner party Monday night.

Townsend seemed to be in good spirits and waved to newsmen as he approached Clarence House.

The Queen spent much of the day clearing a backlog of visitors which included diplomats presenting their credentials.

The royal train bringing the monarch and her two children arrived at Euston station in mid-morning after an overnight trip from Balmoral Castle.

The Queen remained in the station a few minutes and then drove off with Prince Charles and Princess Anne to Buckingham Palace, only a short walk away from Clarence House where Margaret lives with Queen Mother Elizabeth.

FAMILY CONFERENCE

It was understood that a family conference will be held tonight with the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh—who arrived back Monday night after a tour of Canada and Canadian troops in Germany—the princess and the Queen Mother attending.

This would be the first face-to-face meeting between the Queen and sisters since the princess and Townsend met last week after a two-year separation and then spent a weekend at the country home of the Queen Mother's sister.

The Duke of Edinburgh today visited Clarence House, where he met the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret. A crowd of 400 clustered outside the house to cheer the Duke back to Buckingham Palace before noon.

Queen Elizabeth was welcomed by only a small group of officials when she arrived this morning from Balmoral.

Commons Minister Eden, out of town during most of the period the record Townsend-Margaret talks, called an afternoon meeting of the cabinet at 10 Downing St., and afterward was due for an audience with the Queen at the palace.

Vice-President Thinks Chances Of Peace Better

NEW YORK (AP)—Vice-President Richard Nixon Monday night expressed the hope and the faith that the "chances for peace...today are better than at any time since World War II."

But he told the Communist world that "the time for words alone has passed" in efforts to achieve it —"the time for deeds has come."

He urged Soviet Russia to accept "a real chance for peace" President Eisenhower's proposal to exchange military blueprints and aerial inspection of military installations. "No greater step toward peace could be taken at this time."

Nixon voiced his views in speeches of the International Air Transport Association, and the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

Canada's Plane Hits Hollywood Building, 3 Die

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A chartered piloted by a wealthy playboy Joel W. Thorne crashed into a two-story apartment house Monday night, bringing flaming death to the pilot and two others.

Nine persons were injured, at least two of them critically.

The plane, registered in the name of the 40-year-old Thorne, plunged out of the overcast about 12 minutes after it took off from Lockheed air terminal in nearby Burbank.

Police and fire rescuers said the pilot was burned beyond recognition, but gave his name as Thorne on taking off from the airport.

The other known dead were identified as Mrs. Jean Shaw, about 28, resident in the upstairs apartment where the plane crashed, and Merrell Cain, 31, of Preston, Minnesota old, who had been baptized just two hours earlier.

WERE HOLDING PARTY

The baby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Preston, who lived in the downstairs apartment, were holding a christening party. They and three guests were injured as burned seriously. Critically injured were two children of the guests.

Trailed at lesser burns were William Stites, 31, and another neighbor, unidentified, who helped pull the Preston party from their blazing apartment.

Thorne, heir to a New York banking fortune, had been known also as a fast pilot of planes, cars and motorcycles. The Thorne engineering special he built in 1946 was driven to victory in the Indianapolis speedway classic by George Robson.

Last of Mysterious Field Family Released from Labor Camp by Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—The long-missing foster-daughter of the mysterious American Field family was Paula Grasser Wallach, has been released from Vorkuta labor camp and is in Moscow awaiting travel documents permitting her to leave the Soviet Union.

Chain-smoking as she talked to reporters, the 33-year-old German-born woman said Monday night that she was picked up by East Berlin police in 1950 while visiting her foster-parents.

She said she was held in solitary confinement for 2½ years, then was sentenced to death in January, 1953, at a trial by a Russian military court in East Berlin.

Mrs. Wallach is the last of the family to be freed by Communists. Her foster-father, Noel Field, a former United States state department employee, his wife Herta and his brother Hermann, a chemical architect, were arrested in eastern Europe at intervals in 1949 as spies.

The Polish government released Hermann in October, 1954, saying he had been cleared of the espionage charge, and he went to Switzerland. He is a guest's released Noel and Herta a month later, and they subsequently announced in Budapest that they would remain there.

"I never thought I'd live to see Hermann in Moscow," Mrs. Wallach said, glancing about her hotel room.

After her death sentence was passed on her, she said she was brought to Moscow and again kept in solitary confinement until July, 1953. At that time, she said, she was told her sentence had been commuted to 15 years imprisonment, and she was sent to the labor camp in the Soviet Arctic.

The date of commutation of her sentence coincided with the arrest of the Soviet secret police chief Lavrenty P. Beria, who subsequently was executed. Her release was announced in the general amnesty program now under way.

Mrs. Wallach's husband, who is an American living near Washington with their two small children, was five and seven years old, they were six months and two years old when she saw them last.

Mrs. Wallach said she expects to leave soon by train—"to Berlin I suppose." Although she insisted she is an American citizen, she was reluctant to discuss her passport situation, and it was not clear here whether she would be admitted to the U. S.

Ontario Manager Of C. of C. Heard At Rotary Club

Any business must be well organized to be successful. It is not surprising then that the voice of business, in most instances represented by the Chamber of Commerce, also is a highly organized affair.

This was to be seen yesterday when Trevor Hamill, Ontario Manager of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, explained the set-up of the Chamber of Commerce, both on the municipal, provincial and federal level. He spoke at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club.

TREVOR HAMILL

Founded nearly 30 years ago, the Chamber of Commerce movement now has a membership of some 750 bodies in the ten provinces, formed with a purpose to further their cities and the economic communities that surround them. Of recent years the movement has seen a tremendous growth across Canada, particularly in Ontario where there are now 234 Chambers organized. The movement, said Mr. Hamill, stands for the leadership and experience of businessmen, individual working for good citizenship, good government and good business. The local objectives of the movement was due to the realization of businessmen that organization was necessary over the local level to speak for businesses.

The activities of a Chamber are manifold, he said.

Not only is it working daily to attract business to the wholesaler and retailer; it also has its eye on the tourist industry, and the procuring of new industries, being the personnel and many services for existing industries.

The movement not only has grown greatly in stature during the past five years but it also is growing greatly in influence, said of the Queen's Park cabinet and legislators.

HELD IN HIGH REGARD

The provincial government regards the Chamber of Commerce as a soundly organized body with good opinions well based on surveys and deep thought, Mr. Hamill said.

Speaking as it does for the good of business, Mr. Hamill said "it is most reassuring to feel today, that what the C. of C. are in that position, where the government does call on them."

The top organization in the Chamber of Commerce itself, is the guiding light for the business community of the entire country, polishing up activity on the local level. Each year a resolution of provincial Chamber represents informed public opinion, so does the national Chamber at the federal level. Each year a resolution of top businessmen, as a committee, meets to draft a resolution for the cabinet to discuss business problems.

Over the years, many proposals of the Chamber have been adopted into legislation by the government, Mr. Hamill stated.

Outside of these three spheres the Chamber also channels its activities onto the international level, working for simplification of trade restrictions and improvement of business with other countries.

Taking a cursory glance at the national situation today Mr. Hamill noted that the gross national product for the "second quarter of 1955 was at the rate of 28.2 billion annually.

"From this I think I can safely say if we continue at this same pace, 1955 will be an all time record year for Canada."

He was introduced by Gus Parmenter and thanked by Perce McGuire.

Filing Cabinet Stolen from 'Y' Found on Farm

The large steel filing cabinet taken October 6th from the Belleville YMCA was recovered yesterday by provincial police in a field on Don Carruthers farm north of Corbyville.

The filing cabinet, its doors wrenched off apparently with a pry bar was found some distance from a laneway and apparently had been carried the length of a city block from a car and dumped in the bush. It was discovered yesterday by Mr. Carruthers and provincial police were called.

City police said that about $20 in cash was in the safe section of the cabinet when it was carried from the office at the "Y". The big steel box was taken out through the back door of the premises.

Man Reporting Seeing Olmstead Is Found Dead

NORTH BAY (CP)—Henri Lavoie, 60, of Crystal Falls, the man who first reported seeing escaped murderer Percy Olmstead walking along a road last Friday, was found dead in his home late this morning.

It was reported to police that the body was found when locked doors of the home were forced open and provincial police were summoned.

Lavoie, who drives a school bus, drove the vehicle as usual this morning, then returned to his farm home.

It was Lavoie who on Friday reported seeing Percy Olmstead walking along the road with a rifle in the crook of his arm. Olmstead was the object of a widespread search following a fire which destroyed his home near Sturgeon Falls Thursday night, killing his wife and two children.

Olmstead was finally tracked down in a shack near Crystal Falls, and was forced into the open by a tear-gas bomb. He is now in jail at North Bay awaiting trial Oct. 25 on a charge of murdering his wife.

Christmas Toy Repair Program Being Prepared

Have the children grown up, left home and saddled you with a mountain of toys that you can't play with because of rheumatism?

Do you have a broken, bent, unpainted or painted toys of any kind, suitable for either a boy or girl? Do you want these toys?

If you do not, why not call Eric Cooper at WO 8-7676?

Mr. Cooper will take these toys which are of no use to you, rebuild and repaint them in his basement workshop and distribute them free at Christ time to recognizations supplying toys to children who otherwise might not get a toy at Christmas.

If you cannot take toys to Mr. Cooper's home at 238 Bridge Street East, just leave your name and address and he will call around and pick them up.

Last year Mr. Cooper and some of his neighbors started a Christmas toy repair program, and wound up giving away 450 well-made, brightly painted gifts. This year Santa's helpers would like to get an early start on the job of reconditioning all the old toys in town.

Organizations wishing to distribute the completed toys should contact Mr. Cooper. The toys go on a first-come-first-served basis. Wagons, bicycles, doll carriages, building blocks, dolls, children's games—anything—that can be classed as a toy —is being sought for Mr. Cooper's workshop. He has saws, drills, paints, patience and time to turn even hopelessly jumbled toys into things of beauty for the small fry.

Hiring of City Manager Tabled For Two Weeks by Council

After a two-hour session highlighted by a flare-up between Mayor John Both and Alderman Enos David, city council at a special meeting Monday evening failed to reach any agreement in the matter of hiring a city manager and the matter was tabled for two weeks.

Council met to consider a recommendation from a committee of the whole that Mr. Anthony Bos, 48, of Larder Lake, in Northern Ontario, be hired as city manager.

Earlier in the year council had voted to hire a city manager and a special committee of Mayor Both and Aldermen Effie McCabe, Enos David, Bruce Smith, William Argue and Frank Greene was appointed to consider applications for the post.

This committee considered some 60 applications and had whittled the list down to seven men, who were called to a closed meeting of council last Friday evening. At this meeting 10 councillors favored Mr. Bos' appointment as city manager, two came in favor of Douglas Porter now of Belleville, while one councillor voted for Charles H. Swartz of Port Credit.

But at last night's meeting called to ratify the recommendation calling for Mr. Bos' appointment, it was quickly seen that a number of aldermen had changed their minds since Friday night.

AMENDMENT MADE

No sooner had the committee recommendation been read than Alderman Gerald Hyde brought in an amendment calling for the appointment of Mr. Swartz as city manager.

But Alderman Ben Safe indicated he had no intention of voting on the matter until he had heard from all members of the special committee.

In reply Alderman William Argue told how the committee had taken the close to 60 applications for the position and had sifted them out with the hope of reducing the applicants to five men who would be considered by the entire council.

For his own part Alderman Argue said he preferred a man with business and engineering training. Applications from present staff members at city hall had been considered but the alderman said it was the thought of the committee that the man hired must be someone with no local interests.

Alderman Gerald Hyde was critical in the action of the special committee, which had asked council members at Friday night's meeting to pick out a man in 15 minutes. He said he favored Mr. Swartz, describing him as a man who stood "head and shoulders" above the others.

He pointed out that apparently members of the special committee had failed to agree on which applicant should be hired. He said only three members of the committee had favored Mr. Bos.

Alderman Moxam said it was news to him that local men had applied for the position. He said he was not in favor of a city manager and as far as he could see all the city needed was a good city clerk. He was sorry that the committee had not seen fit to place a local man among the seven to be interviewed by the full council.

POSITION NOT DEFINED CLAIM

Alderman Jane Forrester wanted to know what council expected of a city manager when the position had not been defined. She said council should decide whether an administrative officer or a man with engineering experience was required. She said also that the salary had not been stated.

She was critical of the special committee's action in asking council to make a "snap" decision on Friday night and noted that only tonight had council learned who members of the special committee were.

"I don't want to have anything more to do with that sort of thing," she said.

Alderman Tice said he was opposed to hiring a city manager. "If such a man was needed, the city should hire an experienced city manager," he said. He wanted to know in what publications the city's advertisement for a manager had appeared, and where duties of the position had been outlined.

"There is no hurry for this appointment," he stressed. "If a city manager is hired we will have to scrap all our present procedure and set up a new set of by-laws."

Alderman David said he was not surprised that the special committee had been criticized. He charged the mayor had domineered the committee and had not consulted it as to the type of advertisement which was to appear, neither had it been asked to decide on a chairman. He said the job of city manager should have been classified so that applicants would know what type of a job was open.

He didn't like the "juggling" that went on in the committee. To illustrate he said that a man with ten years' municipal experience had not been called in for an interview, yet another man with no experience had been brought to the city.

ANOTHER AMENDMENT

"I am not too happy about the whole thing and I would not be unhappy if we started all over again," he said.

Alderman Keegan introduced a further amendment asking that the matter be laid over for further consideration. He asked that no one be hired until a bylaw was drafted defining the duties of a city manager and also suggested the electors should be asked to decide whether they wanted city manager form of government.

He said that in Ontario a city manager would have limited powers because of restrictions in financing placed by the municipal board.

He emphasized that the whole thing should be defined, otherwise the city would be merely hiring a city clerk and telling the assistant knew of the difference.

Alderman Frank Grandaone said he had asked the mayor what the position had not been defined and had been told it would be better to have the applicants tell the committee what the duties of a city manager were. He quoted the mayor as saying that this way the committee could tell what the applicant knew of the job.

The alderman expressed the opinion that council had men in their own city hall as good as Mr. Bos, whom he termed as a "good public relations man. Personally he had favored Mr. Peeter, who had engineering experience.

Mayor Both said that he had expected greater intelligence from aldermen than had been indicated by their remarks. He said the committee had spent a lot of time in interviewing applicants and pointed out that council as a whole Friday night had favored the appointment of Mr. Bos. "It's a democratic country and we'd like to keep it that way," he said.

SUPPORTS COMMITTEE

Supporting the action of the committee in not defining the job of city manager in the city advertisement, Mayor Both noted that if he were applying for a job he would expect to know something of that job. "I would not expect my employer to educate me," he said.

Referring to remarks made by Alderman David, the mayor said that Alderman David should be the last man to criticize and said the alderman did not have the legal right to sit in council.

Quoting the municipal act, Mayor Both inferred that Alderman David last autumn failed to have his resignation to the secretary of the high school board in time to qualify as aldermanic candidate.

Alderman David jumped to his feet in protest, but the mayor ordered him to sit down. "I have been insulted as an alderman David," he claimed.

With the exchange temporarily at an end the mayor continued by saying that Mr. Bos was the only applicant who could explain the duties of a city manager. He was the man who should be chosen "unless we want to make a monkey out of council and the appointment of committees."

Alderman David challenged the mayor to say where he was alleging illegally in council. "I resigned from the school board," he said. "I had no intention of holding two seats."

Alderman McCabe rose to the support of the mayor, asserting that the committee was not dominated by Mayor Both.

Alderman Clarke noted that the committee had sifted 60 applicants down to seven. "I support the committee recommendation," he said.

WANTS MORE TIME

Alderman Argue said he was expecting considerably more from a city manager and that apart from a city clerk but said council should have more time to decide. He said he favored the motion that if his choice were eliminated then he thought council should start all over again. He introduced an amendment asking that the matter be deferred for two weeks.

Alderman Safe said the whole matter was confused and suggested that a committee be appointed to investigate the committee.

He also claimed it was difficult for council to make a decision after seeing applicants only for a few minutes. He felt the committee should have defined the duties of a city manager and also stated the salary to be paid. He said Belleville citizens would not be too happy about starting a man as city manager at a salary of $11,000 a year.

Above all the man eventually chosen should be the unanimous choice of council. He also urged the matter be considered further.

Aldermen Humphreys and McCabe said they had been impressed with Mr. Bos, the former noting that this man had the ability to sell himself to 10 aldermen on Friday night. Mrs. McCabe said Mr. Bos was a man with a great deal of municipal experience. "Belleville needs a city manager," she said.

On the advice of city solicitor R. A. Pringle, Alderman Bruce Smith as chairman of the committee of the whole ruled out the amendments of Aldermen Keegan and Argue, claiming motions to defer the matter were not pertaining to the business for which the meeting was called.

Alderman Argue appealed the ruling of the chairman and council voted 8-5 to defer the matter for two weeks.

CAUSE FOR CONGRATULATIONS OR ALARM?

The Canadian Congress of Labor has approved a merger with the Trades and Labor Congress, which had earlier endorsed the move.

Claude Jodoin, the president of the Trades and Labor Congress who will be the first president of the new merged congress, told CCL members that no major differences on principle exist between the two bodies.

It is evident that Mr. Jodoin regards this as a most satisfactory situation, and from the standpoint of the prospects of amicable fusion of the member unions of the two congresses into one united organization this absence of any difference on principles is certainly encouraging.

It is not so certain, however, that this identical similarity of viewpoints is without the possibility of certain complications.

The Trades and Labor Congress is closely connected with the American Federation of Labor, the Canadian Congress of Labor with the Congress of Industrial Organizations. These two labor groups have agreed to merge and it is as the result of this merger in the U.S. that a similar move has been arranged by the Canadian groups.

Back in 1935 though, when the Committee for Industrial Organization was formed, there were certainly major differences on principle between the leaders of the eight unions concerned and the American Federation of Labor. These differences widened, rather than diminished when, in 1936, the convention of the AFL supported the executive council's suspension of the ten unions then forming the CIO.

At that time the AFL believed in craft unions, or "horizontal" organization, the CIO in industrial unions, or "vertical" organization.

The AFL maintained that craft unions promoted a pride in workmanship and protected the employer from incompetent workers. The interests of workers in each trade in a plant were, it was argued, best guarded by a union specifically interested in that trade.

The CIO favored industrial organization, charging that craft unionism failed to provide protection for those workers who needed it most, the unskilled. It led, it was maintained, to jurisdictional disputes, harmful to the interests of employers as well as of employees. Craft unionism, it was maintained, fostered "feather-bedding," the practice of refusing to utilize modern machinery to do jobs which it was at one time impossible for a skilled tradesmen to accomplish, or, where modern machinery was installed, requiring that the tradesmen replaced by the machines would still be paid for remaining idle.

The main argument of the CIO supporters, though, was that the old craft unions were doing nothing to organize the unorganized, those millions of workers whose skills did not fall into any of the categories covered by craft unions covered. Included were many unskilled workers who, in those depression years, found that not only was work extremely difficult to obtain but that, when they did find a job, the pay was sometimes little more than relief payments.

If Mr. Jodoin is right, if there are today no major differences on principle between the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor, what has happened to the vast differences in viewpoint which existed between the two schools twenty years ago? Who has converted whom?

LOOKS LIKE A GOOD BET

A British scientist studying the effect of atomic radiation on heredity has suggested that "One mutation which results in an Aristotle, a Leonardo, a Newton or an Einstein might well outweigh 99 that led to mental defectives."

Such caution is hardly to be expected from a scientist, let alone an atomic scientist.

This is like betting a toothpick against a timber limit, a biscuit against the annual output of the flour-milling industry or a cup of water against Lake Superior.

Anything that could turn human beings into Leonardos, Aristotles, Newtons or Einsteins at the rate of one to a hundred is seriously to be desired. After all, in the history of the human race there has been only one genius with such all-encompassing ability as that of Leonardo. Nature, supposedly distilling all the abilities of mankind in a process dubbed "survival of the fittest" took several million years to come up with Leonardo. A second Leonardo has yet to be produced.

Genius such as Newton's and mathematical aptitude such as that possessed by Einstein is manifestation of a particular ability. Undoubtedly the human race profited as much from the genius of the inventor of the wheel as it has from Newton's discovery of the law of gravitation.

In a town in which there were 20,000,000 people and one Einstein, it would seem only reasonable that any process that could reduce the ratio between intellectual giants and mental defectives to anything as remotely utopian as one to a hundred, would be the greatest improvement in the calibre of the race since one of Adam's ribs was turned into Eve.

RETIREMENT

There's a weary sort of look on the face of the tired.
Some already have retired as of men it's often said.
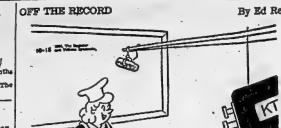
But a few are struggling on with the strength they still can spare.
They refuse to drop to sleep while a blossom they can bear.



The others seem to say: "We've worked hard the summer long.
We are old and we are tired and I don't want to go to rest just a no longer we are strong.

We have bloomed from June to now and we've surely done
our best.
We've served as soses must and we've earned the right to rest."

As the brave and rugged rose,
I would like to labor on.
Still to struggle to achieve 'til my strength is wholly gone.
While there still is time to serve, though it's long past afternoon.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TRAPPED BY YESTERDAYS

Do the day's work today, and don't be trapped by yesterday. You can't carry everything and carry on efficiently if you do. Dr. William Osler, who was Walt Whitman's physician, tells of sitting at his little home in Camden, when Whitman suddenly noted a group of workmen passing and exclaimed—"Oh, the glory of the day's work, whether with hand or brain!"

Yesterdays never trapped Whitman. He lived for the day's offerings and reviewed his yesterdays as mere memories and as backgrounds to his Todays. Have no regrets. Live simply. One step at a time. Talk all that every day holds out. Each experience and each yesterday yourself to become trapped by yesterdays. Look for beauty where others see only meanness, and recognize truth in spite of lies, faith in spite of fear and despair, and nobility in everyone, in spite of human blundering. I owe these thoughts and words to my friend Elsie Robinson, who has demonstrated them in her glorious life.

It is easier to be happy than one suspects. Our first step must be to learn the valuable lesson of getting along with oneself. Be your own best friend and others will flock about you. Here is how to the secret! E. W. Howe, the noted Kansas editor and philosopher, an 464, Anderson 661: Bowlers, Wray 502, Arnott 537, Meagher 432, Lidsey 573, McLean 580.

50 YEARS AGO

October 18, 1905

The Rev. W. A. Gustin, formerly curate at St. Thomas' Church here and later of Port Hope, is now the rector of St. Andrew's Church, Peoria, Ill.

There is some opposition to the forming of another citizens' band here. The proposed organization is off to a good start. It is feared, however, that should two citizens' bands the city will not have one good band as the new band will take some players from the present band.

A civil engineer has applied to do the job of superintending the construction of the Rock's Island sewerage system. In our opinion he must expect to live to a ripe old age.

The people who take good planks from the city's streets and sidewalks should be taken out and shot at sunrise. Why don't they take the poor planks some people ask? That's easy if they take planks they naturally want good planks and the penalty if caught would be the same in either case.

There is no complaint about the weather; the days are beautiful and the coloring of the inland sewerage system. In our it is Belleville the beautiful.

one wrote a little book in which he stated that it is easier to succeed than it is to fail.

People make their themselves to be trapped by their yesterdays like in a mass of fears, worries and disappointments. How wonderful it can be for us all if we enter each new day free of all excess baggage. With a mind apportioned to the Divine Plan duties at hand, and with a cheerful front to give light to the entire day.

My friend Fitzhugh Greene once told me of the surpassing beauty of Greenleaf Whittier and this beauty was set off by white ribbons of snow, reflecting the sunshine. How very wonderful it all could be if so reflect ourselves, brightening all about us, and others as well.

Cosmopolitan

The other day the courtroom of Magistrate E. Donald Smith, in Aylmer, became a mirror of existing conditions in Southwestern Ontario. Proceedings were momentarily delayed while the court sought and found a Portuguese interpreter. Neither complainant nor defendant could speak English. Not so long since accents in Elgin were Canadian with a Scottish tinge. Today, in all these southern counties and throughout the land, among our cosmopolitan population.

Braving Catastrophe

(New York Times)

Every now and then a man will sit down at his typewriter and write bravely, fearlessly, about something he feels strongly and deeply. He may or may not know, as he writes, that he will be assailed bitterly for his views. If he does know, perhaps he is more brave than he who writes without the slightest misgiving that he will be lauded unpleasant names, or even shunned by persons whom he once knew as friends. But any man who writes disparagingly about cats knows, in his heart, he is endangerous, explosive ground.

Such a man is Mr. Caskie Stinnett. Mr. Stinnett is about to hear from large numbers of very, very angry people who love cats and like, nay even love cats; Mr. Stinnett does not like cats at all. When he is not liking cats he is, among other things, turning out a pleasant little pamphlet entitled "Speaking of Holiday," which contains not only some well-written and engaging comment on the contemporary scene by Mr. Stinnett but also has a section about a certain magazine with which Mr. Stinnett is associated. It may be worth noting, at the outset, that the author of "A Dithyramb on Cats"—Theophile Gautier, a 19th nineteenth century Irish gentleman of the name—was very gentle in his thoughts on the cat, as compared to Mr. Stinnett. Gerfond Mr. Bobbin, "all cats—alway bad; all cats black, white, gray; by night a nuisance and by day—Confound the cats!"

Surely it takes a brave man to write—as does Mr. Stinnett in No. 11. No. 9 of his little publication —that "cats are the most fascinating creatures ever move across the face of this planet" or that cats are "the most merciless murderers of all time." Worse yet, he suggests that cats are really disloyal creatures, and he asserts blandly that "the existance of false grace is the greatest hoax ever put over on an unsuspecting public." He concludes by reporting that cats do not, as so often stated, always land on their feet: "We have found," he says, "in throwing this cat (the only household pet we own) down the cellar stairs, that if we give her, well, a certain spin, she will land on her head every time."

This is heady stuff indeed, and the author of those words would do well to take to the deepest woods he can find. For the world is divided in two factions: one, to which Mr. Stinnett clearly belongs, views cats as representatives of all that is evil. The other believes that cats are the most lovable, useful and intelligent animals extant. Usually the "anti's" of a controversy are more vocal than the "pro's," but this is not so when the controversy involves cats. The lovers of cats are even more fierce in their love than persons who fondly scratch behind the ears of dogs.

It would be interesting to know what touched off this little essay, which is captioned "The Cat Nuisance." Did the household cat endeavor to exercise its claws on the furniture? Is it becoming threats by the dozens? Did it, in a playful mood, sink its fangs into the elbow to wrist. Did it manage to have, for lunch, a cornfed and plump chicken, a rood robin or bluejay? Or had it just returned, in a starved rage, after one of those periodical feline absences, asking to be fed and petted? Enough nothing had happened! Author sayeth not. Mr. Stinnett has a cat—But he is to be reckoned with. It is an excellent thing for Mr. S. that cats cannot read. Not yet, that is.

Big Bang in Eighties

(New York Times)

Most New Yorkers can remember the shock and excitement of the terrific explosion that occurred in March, 1950, just two days apart. One of them went off in South Street, when 467 tons of miscellaneous ammunition was detonated on the Hell Gate. The other took place on the 21st, when a large quantity of phosphorus and floating munitions blew up in Jersey. October 10 was the anniversary of a much more powerful explosion in New York. Because of the circumstances under which it occurred, the detonation of 200,000 barrels of dynamite on October 10, 1891, caused no great worry and talk before than after. No accident, but a carefully planned and skillfully managed engineering operation, the great blast prevents great loss of life and improvement in the work of clearing the East River ship channel approaching Hell Gate.

For a good many days before October 10 people in the lower town, especially along the upper East Side and Harlem and Long Island City, had worked up to a high pitch of apprehension and excitement. Other explosions had been conducted over the years as part of the river project, but this one was going to be tempted on the grand scale of 200,000 barrels of dynamite. Also, more than 55,000 pounds of dynamite had been used to dislodge the rock and coral at the Hell Gate Point Reef, and other charges went off at intervals to get rid of the Gridiron, the Galiron, the Hog's Back, the Frying Pan and other familiar hazards to navigation.

To allay popular anxiety, Gen. John Newton, chief of the Army Engineer Corps, in charge of the work, gave out many publicity pictures to plans that he and his family would be close to the scene at the time the fuse was touched off. Considerable human interest was added to the story by reporting that things by the information that the charge would be pushed by none other than his own daughter, Miss Anne Newton, whose part in time was to clear the channel at Hell Gate Reef, or Flood Rock, where some nine acres of submerged obstructions still remained. Seismographic instruments recorded tremors as far away as 183 miles. Still another photograph was taken at the moment the water rose in lofty geysers above housetops. Mr. Kouwenhoven reproduced it in his "Historical Portfolio" of the city 50 years ago, issued for the Columbia University Bicentennial. It is now the museum of the City of New York with the collection of views absembled by the late J. Clarence Davies.

General Newton was one of the outstanding engineers of his time. He had been an instructor at West Point, from which he graduated in 1882 second in his class. He did work on numerous forts around the country, including Forts Porter, Niagara and Ontario in New York State, and was chief engineer of an expedition to Utah in 1885. Subsequently with him on East River operations was his West Point classmate, Mansfield Lovell, who had previously had charge of the removal of Hell Gate Hewitt in this city and also served street improvements for a short time. Lovell died the next year before the great Flood Rock explosion.

The question arises occasionally as to whether Hell Gate was really a navigation charm or a menace to rocks for sailors. Some hold that the Hell Gate Pilots Benevolent Association retained mariners as a convenient anglicizing of the Dutch "Helle-Gat" which was the original Dutch term applied in the earliest times to the narrow channel of the East River. Whether it got this name in admiration of pastoral and peaceful charm or in some sailor's kind of irony inspired by the treacherous rocks beneath the water is not clear. In any case, the last and foremost obstacle has been removed after seventy years ago with a resounding crash of exploding dynamite.

Premier Promoted

(Christian Science Monitor)

Ordinarily one might think that the Premier of a country in which his country had risen about as high as he could go in the ranks of his government. But Ghorghiu-Dej knows better. Until the other day the Rumanian Premier was known to English speaking readers suggests Georgie-Forgie with a flavor of h's was Premier of Romania.

Then he became a still more powerful figure. It was announced that he had been given full sway over the fully united Communist Party as its First Secretary. After that Mr. Georgie etc. resigned the latter post apparently to call more attention to the party secretaryship.

This indicates that the Rumanian leadership is a Communist system of government. He has noted the Russian precedent whereby when Premier Bulganin plays to Party Secretary Khrushchev's "second fiddle" Union and Premier Chou En-lai to Mao Tsetung in the "People's Government" is "old hat."

All this is very reminiscent of the public posing of many a leader of the brazen days of political bossism in American cities. However pompous the boss may be in his office he knew from whom to take his orders.

Now we are not learning the name of a new Premier in Romania. Whoever he is, he still will have to play second fiddle. He has as his prize some day to be First Secretary of the Party and to give orders instead of merely translating them.

Chess in College

We are puzzled whether to classify a new course at the University of Toronto as traditional or progressive certainly it is in progress in school; but when the game being taught is chess, bound about by hoary traditions, we are left wondering. College erudition applied to chess might do something for the game, of course.

Sanity Returns To The Baby Business

A movie star, planning to have her baby the natural way, said she wants to know exactly what is happening when her baby is born—"It should be the greatest thrill of a woman's lifetime."

Another movie star had her first baby in a hospital in the standard nineteenth century way. "Toward the end of the first stage of labor they gave me a shot of something—and the only thing I knew I had a baby. They told me I should have been present but I wasn't. They had put me out against my wishes."

The poor girl should have realized that the hospital "officials" have to make a big deal of childbirth and the "patient" must leave her wishes, dignity and other trifles at home. The great doctors and overspecialized nurses in the hospital can't bother with such things.

When this young mother had her second baby, it was at home by natural childbirth. This, she says, was the greatest experience. I'd even call it a religious experience." Her answer to a friend who asked why a movie star should prefer natural childbirth, with all its pain, "Pain, my eye. It's just a few contractions."

To prospective mothers who are in the terror of the old times, another observation made by this movie actress who has been a child the nineteenth century way and one this Read way (natural) should be of interest:

"Knowing that you can have the anesthetic at any time you want it—you don't want it! At least I didn't. But the fact that it's available is insurance against being tense. You can relax."

Now if I were to make such a statement as a doctor a la Ed, well, shall we say wisecre women would ask how many babies I've had, or something equally absurd. We can't blame the poor creatures—the only instruction they have had is what the old timers have deemed proper.

The poor girl should have realized that the "hospital officials" have to make a big deal of childbirth and the "patient" must leave her wishes, dignity and other trifles at home. The great doctors and overspecialized nurses in the hospital can't bother with such things.

When this young mother had her second baby, it was at home by natural childbirth. This, she says, was the greatest experience. "

Many Attend Dominion Stores' 'Fun With Food' Cooking School

"Jupiter Fluvius" took compassion on the Dominion Stores' cooking school and ceased his five-day deluge yesterday afternoon, permitting the housewives of the city a dry overhead passage to the Collegiate auditorium for the first day's demonstration of "Fun With Food", as demonstrated by Adele Hunt.

Miss Hunt, internationally known home economist, whose gentle humor and deft culinary art, as on a previous occasion two years ago, drew a considerable number of 'repeaters' from the near capacity audience of fairly conscious women.

Before beginning her demonstration, which bore emphasis on the new ides of 'heat and serve' already cooked foods, Miss Hunt introduced her two assistants, and told of some of her interesting experiences during her travels from city to city, dwelling on her hobby of bell collection, of which she has about 42 different types of bells, three of which she had collected in England, and which had three different tones. One bell of her collection was a Swiss bell, which she prizes greatly.

As there was no microphone installed, and some of the kitchen appliances were not set up for demonstration, Miss Hunt stated that the demonstration would take the nature of an impromptu one, not knowing just what might occur. But in spite of the handicap, her listeners were captivated every moment of the afternoon.

SHORT-CUT CANDY

The first demonstration was that of a short-cut candy made from instant icing and instant pudding of whatever flavor one desired either of cinnamon, vanilla, or chocolate. The recipe used, which differed slightly from that on the sheet of recipes which each guest had received, consisted of the following ingredients: 1 package of instant pudding; 1 package of instant icing; 1-2 cup of cocoanut; 1-4 cup melted margarine; almond flavoring, and enough pure pineapple juice or other juice, to make the mixture hold together.

Method: stir together the pudding and icing, adding the melted margarine and almond extract, and 2 tablespoons of pineapple juice; mold with hands into a fondant ball by kneading like bread; then break off small portions and roll in the palm of the hand. This may be rolled either in ground nuts, cinnamon, or chocolate, or by placing a whole nutmeat on top. Wrap in tinfoil, and place in the refrigerator until needed.

HEAT AND SERVE

"The 'heat and serve' foods are becoming more and more common," she stated, "when no cooking or baking is required, which is a great blessing in these days of hurry and rush."

Among the many such foods on the market are the fish sticks, which are all prepared and ready for eating, needing but the heating. These may be served with potato chips which also are ready for serving, taking but a few minutes to heat. One woman served hers after heating in deep fat and found them delicious.

Another short cut ready to serve food for dessert was the Graham pie-shell, and the instant pudding filling. This was prepared by crumbling the Graham crackers and mixing them with brown sugar and cinnamon, adding margarine. On this shell was spread a generous layer of whipped cream, then the instant butterscotch flavoring pudding mix, topped with more whipped cream and for color and interest dotted with red jam, jelly or maraschino cherries.

To round out a delicious supper, would be the stuffed lettuce salad, compiled slightly different to that given on the recipe sheet. This consisted of a head of lettuce, on baking foil, with the centre removed into which cream-ed Cheddar cheese (one jar); 1-4 cup salad dressing; 1-4 cup of pickle relish, and flavoring of either garlic or paprika is added. This is combined together and the whole topped with an artistically cut tomato in open sections like a waterlily, making a most delightful appearing and tasting salad. Other recipes demonstrated were the Kamble pie, and orange puffs, as shown on the recipe sheet.

The demonstration was highlighted by the distribution of prizes to those whose names were called from the tickets drawn, and the drawing of 15 tickets, bearing the lucky names. These were posted at the Dominion Store, with each winner receiving a bag of groceries.

Another interesting innovation was the "cake quiz" with eight women each answering the quiz bearing the name of a cake, as: "What cake is not found in the bathroom?" Its answer being "a sponge cake"; another was "What cake does a young man like best?" the answer "a date cake", with each contestant receiving some article of food stuff as a reward for her answer.

The demonstration will continue today and Wednesday with prizes being given each day and the grand prize on the last day.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, where the bride's mother received in navy blue with red rose corsage. Mrs. James Carr, sister of the bridegroom, assisted in blue, with corsage of pink roses, assisted.

For a wedding trip to the States, the bride chose a light blue suit with navy accessories and corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Meara are residing in Redneersville, Ont.

SULLIVAN—RAY

Bethel-Zion United church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, October 8, when Betty Mae Ray, age, and Robert Wallace Sullivan, exchanged vows. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. J. Kerrey of Toronto, assisted by Rev. R. W. T. Middleton. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ray of Halloway, and the bridegroom the son of Mrs. Raymond Sullivan of Plainfield, and the late Mr. Sullivan.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Merlin Ray, was radiant in her street-length gown of winter white bengaline, fashioned on long torso lines with a full skirt. She wore a matching headdress trimmed with seed pearls and matching gloves and shoes. Sweetheart roses and white baby 'mums were cleverly arranged in the bride's bouquet.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Marilyn Hodgen, was charming in her gown of copper beige taffeta with matching headdress and gloves. Her dress was made in princess style with mandarin neckline, and three-quarter-length sleeves. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Ray Sullivan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the guests were ushered to their seats by the bride's brothers, Messrs Lee and Ted Ray.

A small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The guests were received by Mrs. Ray, wearing a plum colored crepe gown trimmed with pearls and rhinestones, with black accessories. The bridegroom's mother assisted in receiving wearing a dusty rose crepe dress with black accessories.

For travelling, the bride chose a deep-red and navy tweed suit with navy accessories. Prior to leaving on their wedding trip to Montreal and Ottawa, the bride and bridegroom called on the bride's father, who is a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Upon their return they will reside on the bridegroom's farm at Plainfield.

Quinte Players Headed By G. Thompson

At the annual meeting of the Quinte Players held this week, the following new executive was elected:

Gordon Thompson, president; Vera Thompson, secretary; Rube Freeman, treasurer, and director, Elaine Jardine.

Past president is Don Thomas.

Floral Arrangements, Dental Health, Topics at H-S Assoc.

The recent October meeting of the Prince of Wales H.-S. Association, was held in the senior classroom with Mrs. W. Wilson, president, presiding.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Townsend. Mrs. O. Slack's room was the attendance banner. The pupils of the seventh grade gave a song recital led by Mrs. Burtt which was enjoyed by all.

Mr. William Jardine of "Flower Lane" was the guest speaker, presenting many wonderful ideas on how to arrange flowers and how to achieve beauty in many different forms.

He arranged flowers in various holders and showed what can be accomplished with just a single rose or three or five flowers up to a great many in beautiful displays for decorating either tables or walls.

Everyone enjoyed it thoroughly, and obtained many clever ideas to beautify their homes. Following this most interesting display each lady was presented with a rose, donated by Dale Nurseries, the meeting adjourned and refreshments were enjoyed by all.

The entertainment provided at these meetings by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sproule, social convenors, are of a high calibre.

DENTAL HEALTH

The September meeting was most interesting when Dr. G. H. Craig was the guest speaker and his subject was "The Child's Dental Health", a most humorous and interesting portion of his talk was on the subject of child psychology when he offered a suggestion to curb the child of thumb sucking which has since been tried and found to be most effective.

The child is told he or she may have $2 in nickels (40) which are placed in a bowl which is theirs to use to purchase a practical toy, providing the child does not suck its thumb for a period of two weeks, every time they forget a nickel is removed from the bowl.

It is surprising what a fascination the 40 nickels have on the child, in that they are reluctant to suck their thumb and have to see the nickels reduce before their eyes.

Madoc Section W.M.S. Rally Held in Eldorado Union Church

The theme for the annual rally of Madoc Section W. M. Service held in Union Church of Eldorado Circuit, on Thursday was "Discipleship, Our High Calling." The church was nicely decorated with a wealth of flowers.

Although skies were threatening, a goodly number of ladies from several auxiliaries had gathered in time for opening service.

Mrs. Claude Barnett, Tweed, vice-president was leader with Mrs. Albert Empey, Madoc, in charge of music.

The morning session opened with quiet music, followed by singing the Doxology and repeating the Lord's Prayer.

GREETINGS EXTENDED

Mrs. Robinson, of Eldorado, welcomed the gathering and hoped they would feel at home throughout the day.

Mrs. Barnett also extended greetings to all and was especially pleased to have so many Presbyterial secretaries present and these ladies, with the guest speaker, Miss Margaret Brown, to stand that all might know them.

A courtesy committee, Mrs. Will Rollins and Mrs. Frank Parks, was appointed.

The Madoc Auxiliary had charge of the Worship Service, which was on a red by Mrs. Frank Dafoe, president of former years, reading a delightful poem "October Days". She continued with many worthwhile thoughts and offered prayer. Mrs. Hallis, accompanied by Mrs. Ashley, rendered a lovely solo.

The literature secretary, Mrs. Pierce Jones, was next given time to tell of her books and pamphlets which she said were pleasant and helpful reading for the individual and auxiliary. Her corner was well patronized during the noon hour.

The roll call came next and was answered by an outstanding feature of the year. One reported a CGIT organized with 20 some girls and a camp at Quin-Mo-Lac; a member had reported on her stay at Five Oaks; a film had been shown, "Where None Shall Thirst."

Another study with a fascination for leaders with the theme "Reading Course," held an Easter service; taken a special offering at the meetings to send a delegate to School for Leaders, and the Bible Study used in the new programs for the year was also considered.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

The Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. Davidson, followed, making her part appear most important in the work of an auxiliary. It embraces "Temperance," "Social Welfare," "Racial Brotherhood" and "World Peace." Most important is temperance teaching would be to be shining examples to the young folk, rather than harping too much on the drink problem; present interesting programs; all buying or selling of tickets was gambling. She thought a W.A. and W.M.S. were quite necessary and could co-operate with fewer members to fill the offices. She mentioned using the "Missionary Monthly," knowing The Lord's Day Act and urged that all activities be reported that they could be sent on to appear in higher reports.

The audience was asked to rise and read two verses of Hymn 317, "Lord of Light, Whose Name Outshineth All the Stars and Suns of Space." Christian Stewardship secretary Mrs. Coulter and treasurer, Mrs. E. Jones reported together. Mrs. Coulter said that without Christian Stewardship there would be no Woman's Missionary Society. She also stressed systematic giving and tithing. In 1955 with an increase of $56,000 the amount was still $30,000 short of accomplishing all the plans the W.M.S. had made. Belleville Presbytery is allocated a raise of $700 for 1956. Mrs. Jones mentioned presenting life certificates and memoriam certificates as ways of raising funds; budgeting and quarterly surveys were helpful. She asked for more care in making out the reports.

Members of Hazzard's Auxiliary received the offering, which was dedicated by Mrs. Will Blair.

SUBSCRIPTION CHART

Mrs. Tice, secretary of "Missionary Monthly" and "World Friends," gave her report in a form of Adventure and Arithmetic. She used a chart showing the rise and fall in subscriptions to "World Friends" during their 25 years. In 1929 subscriptions started with 10,000 with increases and decreases during the years until in 1954 they numbered 54,000. To have one copy in each home with children would mean 55,000 in 1956.

The "Missionary Monthly" needs 4,000 more subscriptions, which would only mean two more in each Auxiliary. The perfect solution for Auxiliaries, Mission Circles and other groups would be 75,000. Every member a subscriber, every subscribed a reader and every reader a promoter. The chart was most interesting.

Mrs. Will Rollins reported as secretary of Associate Members, saying her reports had been satisfactory.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Elliott, president of Presbyterial in introducing the guest speaker, Miss Brown, who had spent 42 years in China, asked the Auxiliary presidents to come forward and they were given questions to ask Miss Brown concerning her work. It was a sort of "Question and Answer Conference." The questions asked were: What type of work were you doing in Hong Kong?; What has been the effect of the Communist revolution in China?; How much freedom has the Chinese Christian?; Is there any future in China for the Christian Church?

Is there a future for missionaries from Canada to other countries? Is what happened in China likely to happen in Africa?

Miss Brown answered each question giving a picture of what had happened in China with many heart aches and frustrated plans but still hopeful that conditions will be righted.

The remaining verses of Hymn 377 were read and meeting was dismissed for dinner prepared by the ladies in school room of church.

After a sumptuous meal, many visited the literature corner where a large number of books were on display with Mrs. Pierce Jones in charge.

AFTERNOON SERVICE

The afternoon service was opened by a sing-song of several requested hymns using "Lead On O King Eternal", as opening number. Mrs. Barnett led in prayer.

Mrs. Peel, of Ivanhoe, in telling of her highlights from the School of Leaders at Whitby, mentioned the sincere Christian fellowship that prevailed all through the week. She gave a wonderful word picture of the Old College which had been built as a private home and later taken over by the church and named the Ladies' College. She also mentioned the addresses of Dr. Thomas, stressing more earnest Bible study in the home, and Dr. Telford's talks on "Home Missions."

Mrs. Aukland, of Marmora, had also attended School for Leaders; also mentioned the Christian Fellowship and the pleasure she had meeting many who had attended other years with her. She gave some statistics given by Dr. Telford as follows: $125,000 goes each year from our Presbytery to help smaller churches unable to finance their own; $183,000 goes to church extension; 547 young people and women working, 18,000 Home Missions, 22,000 Indians are under our care.

Miss Brown, the guest speaker, spoke for an hour or more and held the attention of every one present as she told the story of conditions now in Hong Kong and her work among the people. It was so interesting that not too much is being reported.

HONG KONG

She had spent 42 years with these people and surely showed in her talk how dear to her heart they were. Hong Kong is a great shipping centre, but is filled with thousands of poor refugees as well as the better class of people. The poor class lives in small shacks, built of cans, paper, or what they can gather, some only a mat to lie on. Numbers came to the city after the Communists began ruling. There were 500,000 starving people in 1950 during the famine. These little shacks were a fire menace in the city and at Christmas 1952 a terrible fire came and 60,000 people were homeless. A special appeal was sent to headquarters at Toronto for $5,000, which was sent immediately and with it several houses were built; 10 in one part, known as "Canada Row."

The government allows the disabled, crippled, sick and blind to be cared for. A leper colony was moved to an island where five large buildings and a hospital were built for their use.

The government also encourages education, but there are no free schools.

While the government favored the work of the missionaries, or seemed to, they had Communist converts who did not allow them to do the work needed and finally they were not allowed to stay.

The missions in the East are united and are called "The Church of Christ." She advised that in sending relief to these countries, it was much better to send it in care of the several church funds. She closed her interesting address with:

"O Master of the waking world,
Who hast Thy nations in Thy heart,
The heart that bled and broke to send
God's love to earth's remotest part,
Show us anew in Calvary,
The wondrous power that makes men free."

Tweed Auxiliary received the afternoon offering, which was dedicated by Mrs. Connor.

Report of the Courtesy Committee, thanking all who had helped make the day so profitable by Mrs. Will Rollins of Cooper, closed the day's program. The Rev. J. F. Lane dismissed with prayer.

ADVICE the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ARE YOU SURE HOME IS A HAPPY PLACE TO COME TO?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My husband is in his early forties. He is my middle thirties. We have three small children, the oldest being barely six.

I have been a to a good wife, to care for the home and the children, and to love my husband. But I find this a very hard job when he lets me know in no uncertain terms that he will come home when he pleases.

Years ago, when the children were smaller, we used to wait dinner for him, but always ended up eating by ourselves. Then I got to where I fed them, and waited myself—still, finally, to eat alone. After I ate, I waited up, usually falling asleep until his arrival, then I fixed his dinner. Now we all eat our dinner at a time, and I just happen to be up when he comes home, if I'm not asleep. I go to bed and let him get his own dinner, and he doesn't care, because things have reached a point where, no matter how nice I try to be if I am up when he comes in, there is always an argument, with him jumping at me first, as though to protect himself or to be on the defensive.

On weekends, he does fine, even doing the shopping and helping me, but he stays home less the rest of the time with us. It is during the week we have trouble. Then he just won't come home, nor did he ever miss bold water.

As for going out—I can't. I have neither transportation nor money. He does give me a small allowance, but it goes for food and the three small children out after dark and there is little to no left for walking with them, even during the day. So you can see my husband has no responsibility at all my going out and spending money. He just doesn't care about it. He does not take the children or the yard.

I'm too bad I never better trained for a job, and could make ends meet alone. Sometimes that seems my only answer. But I hate to let each other know that if it were not for the three children, we would not continue as we are.

Do you have a solution? — Mrs. M.B

Dear Mrs. M. B.:

It would be nearly hard to remake any marital relationship that has deteriorated, as yours has, when both wife and husband are telling each other that if it were not for the children, they'd split up. Such a situation seems to me very much like two people who have been taking a walk together and come to a dead end road, and who then simply stand there at the dead end and tell each other there's no place to go.

Does that make sense? Wouldn't it make more sense if they stopped staring at the dead end and started looking for some other way of getting to the place they were heading for?

Granted that you've "tried everything"—as women with marital problems usually say—to make your husband see reason. But are you sure you've tried the right way?

What you tell me in your letter is ment" when your husband finally comes home. Well what I can tell you is that a argument there is "reason" in argument never yet brought a husband home or kept him there. In fact, it is one of the quickest and surest ways to make him stay away.

The only thing that will bring the average husband home, and keep him there, is his feeling that home is where he'd rather be than anywhere else in the world.

Don't misunderstand me, now. I'm not suggesting that it's all your fault that your husband is not at night I don't believe for a that it is.

I'm simply wondering if there might not be something you could do, by way of changing your own attitude, that would gradually change his. When a wife sees a marital problem exclusively in her husband docs, then, like it or not, she has to be the one to start doing about the adjustment.

I can think of several things you might do, but there isn't room here to set them all down. If you'd like them in a personal letter, write and tell me. But I'll give you one idea on which you can start your imagination and ingenuity working. That is, no matter how much a man may love his wife and family, life can get very monotonous if evening after evening there's nothing to do but sit in the house.

So stop staring at your "dead end" marriage. Get yourself busy looking for a road around the dead end that will lead you to the happiness you want.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

'NERVES" ARE BEAUTY'S WORST ENEMY

Luncheon dates made 'on the run" are not only ruinous to your own digestive system, but in your pals as well.

One hears so much about the emotional factors behind nervous tension these days that few of us stop to think that there are also many physical reasons for the modern woman's "edge nerves." Insufficient sleep is one, badly balanced diets make another, and lack of outdoor exercise and fresh air comprise a third. But it is the desire to cram too many activities into too few hours which is perhaps mostly responsible for the tensions which not only attack a woman's health, but also her looks.

Today's woman tries to be a homemaker, a career gal and a social butterfly at once and same time; She thinks she can get up at dawn, do her housework, take off for the office and put in a good eight hours and then go on to social engagements which may last far into the night—and not suffer by her program. But it just can't be done. As the jingle says about it, 'Somethin's Got to Give." And what usually "gives" is the nervous system.

It's quite true that there are many women who, seemingly indefatigable, accomplish much in both many fields and, despite this, maintain their health and their looks. But there's a reason for it. They not only have learned the art of complete relaxation, but they have learned to eliminate all non-essentials from their programs.

If you were to sit down quietly for one hour analyze your daily routine you would be surprised at the amount of energy you waste in useless activity. Let's say you're a working girl. Did you have to make five lunch dates last week? Five days in a row you dashed from the office to meet someone for lunch —and probably somebody you see quite frequently, anyway — and for what? To yakety-yak for a while, your eye constantly on your wristwatch, gulping your food and all the time aquiver lest you get back late. Is that really make sense, does it? How much better to take your time, eat in an atmosphere of peaceful relaxation and, if you have some spare moments, to walk around the block and get a breath of fresh air—and little exercise in the bargain. Mealtimes should never be hurry-curry times if one is to retain a good digestive system.

As a start in your relaxing program, make up your mind to do two things. The first, to get your full allotment of sleep, and second, to take plenty of time to eat. Whenever you have a chance, between household chores or office tasks, try to relax completely for ten or fifteen minutes. Don't use such odd moments to dash over to the next door neighbor's or to a co-worker's desk to exchange the latest gossip. Those moments are precious ones, and you should make the most of them.

If you have a heavy schedule at home or office—or both—don't make too many social engagements. Limit them to three or

Are You Cooking Under Pressure?

By Mary Moore

ITALIAN MEAT BALLS AND SPAGHETTI

(Pressure cooked—serves 4)

One lb. ground beer, salt and pepper, 1-4 cup butter or margarine or shortening, 1 finely chopped onion, 1 diced green pepper, 1 cup diced celery, 3 cups cooked or canned or chopped fresh tomatoes, 1 or 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 or 8 oz. fine spaghetti (amount of spaghetti or macaroni or noodles depends on the appetites of your family). Season the meat with salt and pepper and shape into 1-inch balls. Heat the fat in the cooker and brown the meat balls on all sides, then add the onions, celery and green pepper and sauté until limp but not brown. Add the tomatoes, bring to boiling, then add the spaghetti being sure it is submerged into tomatoes. Put on cover and adjust to pressure position, heat until steam flows freely, close petcock and bring to 15 lbs. pressure for 12 minutes. Serve with grated cheese.

CHOPPED STEAK AND SPANISH RICE

(Pressure cooked.)

Two tablespoons each butter, chopped green pepper, chopped onion, 1 can condensed tomato soup, 3-4 cup long grain rice, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups water, 1 lb. ground round steak or shin beef, salt and pepper. Melt butter in bottom of cooker and add peppers and onion and saute until golden. Form the ground steak into small patties, push vegetables aside, and brown the meat. Sprinkle raw rice over, cover with soup and water and seasonings, and cook at 15 lbs. pressure for 12 minutes. This is a great favorite.

If will send little more information re pressure cooking by mail.

If you get caught in the rain and your shoes are soaked, apply saddle soap to them and let them dry with the soap on. This prevents the salts from getting stiff.

four a week—and spread them out. If you have a party evening ahead, don't make a luncheon engagement for that day. And don't spend your lunch hour browsing the department stores. Use the time to relax, or only a little relaxation. Otherwise, it won't be long before even your dearest pals will start telling you, "I can't understand Millie lately. She's so tense and so irritable she makes me nervous, too." And it won't be long after that when they'll start noticing those lines around your eyes, tired droop of your mouth and the look of worry in your brow each step. After all, there are only 24 hours in a day. Use them wisely—for the sake of your health and your beauty.

Mother's Helper

SOME night-before preparations for the breakfast rush may make it easier for you to get everybody grumpily—and happily—off to school or work. Just before you go to bed, take butter and bacon out of the refrigerator for softening, cook the cereal in a double boiler, and set the table.

GROOM'S FRIEND SENDS WEDDING GIFT TO BRIDE-TO-BE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received a wedding invitation, and I have a special question concerning it. The prospective groom has been a close friend of mine for many years, although now we do not live in the same city. I have never met his bride-to-be. I am planning to send them a quite important present for their new home. Shouldn't I send this to the groom, whom .I know, instead of to the bride, whom I don't know? — Bachelor

No. Send your gift to the bride-to-be at her home . this is the correct thing to do.

FORMAL INVITATION TO WEDDING RECEPTION ONLY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The ceremony is to take place in the rectory, followed by a breakfast at a hotel for the immediate families. We would like to have a reception at our home from 3 to 5 o'clock, for approximately 200 guests. How should the invitations for the reception be worded?

Reader

Formal invitations sent to the wedding reception only, should be engraved on the first page of double-sheet paper of the same kind and size as used for a wedding invitation, and sent in the same way. The wording:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Allen requests the pleasure of your company at the wedding reception of their daughter
Elisabeth
Mr. Peter Worthington on Tuesday, the sixth of December from three to five o'clock
123 Park Street
Haven, New Jersey

R.s.v.p

(Notice that "and" should be used between the names of the bride and groom.)

WEDDING PLANS UNDER DIFFICULT CIRCUMSTANCES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have an extremely difficult problem about the invitations to my wedding. (In fact, under my circumstances, most of the plans for my wedding are certainly on the 'difficult' side.) The circumstances are: my mother and father are divorced, my mother has remarried, and I have very little contact with her and none with her new husband; and it is impossible for me ever to have any. I have no desire whatever to mention the fact of my parents in my wedding invitations, or is the engagement announcement I will send to the newspapers. Please advise me about possible wordings for both of these. — A troubled bride-to-be

I wish you had told me something about your wedding plans. If it is to be an informal wedding , as would seem to be appropriate under the circumstances , I suggest that it would be simpler and easier for you to invite the guests verbally or by telphone or by notes. On the other hand, if your plans are for a wedding of some size and more or less on the formal side, you may send out the invitations yourself. Like this.

The honor of your presence is requested at the marriage of Miss Katherine Ann Hill to Mr. Peter Alan Lane
etc.

The newspaper announcement of the engagement may be in this form: "The engagement is announced of Miss Katherine Ann Hill, of 79 Park Street, this city, to Mr. Peter Alan Lane, of Columbus, Ohio." (With any other details you wish to include.) Also, if it seems wise to you, you may omit your street-address and simply state 'of this city."

THESE EXPENSE - RESPONSIBILITIES . . .

TAUE ON FAMILIES?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. "A" says that it is the best man's financial responsibility to pay for the clergyman who performs the marriage ceremony. True or false?

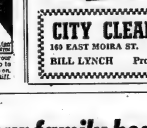
2. "A" says that at a christening the minister's fee is paid by the child's godfather. True or false?

3. I have also heard it said that the godmother and or the godfather is expected to pay for the christening outfit. True or false?

B.L.

1. False. It is the bridegroom's responsibility to give the money-gift to the clergyman, it doesn't make sense that the best man should give this fee. (Although I'll grant you that sometimes he is made to feel that he should take over this responsibility.)

2. False. It is the child's father . . . not the godfather . . . who gives the christening fee to the clergyman.



3. It is not customary for the godmother and or the godfather to give the christening costume. This is usually planned and provided by the child's parents . However, sometimes the godmother, particularly if she is "handy with a needle," asks for the privilege of making the child's dress, or even the entire costume.

27 Tech. Squadron Holds Social Get-Together

Last Wednesday evening, members of the 27 Technical Squadron Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers entertained their wives and friends in the form of a social evening at the Church Street Armouries.

Lt. K. Willcocks, officer commanding the unit, welcomed the visitors and gave a short talk on the history of the unit and the plans for the future. He noted that in the past very few get-togethers of this type had been held by the unit and stated that he hoped the evening would lead to more social events in the future.

Mr. Willcocks introduced Major T. Harvey of Eastern Ontario Area Headquarters at Kingston. Major Harvey expressed his pleasure in meeting the wives of members of the unit. He pointed out that the successful operation of a militia unit depended greatly upon the attitude of the wives, as training in such units had to be done in time which a man would normally spend at home. He stated that he felt that the wives would accept this time away more readily if they realized the valuable technical training the unit offers.

After going into short detail on the trades training offered, Major Harvey spent some time chatting individually with those present.

SLIDES SHOWN

A series of slides taken at rummer camp was shown after which a buffet luncheon was served.

Everyone present voted the evening a success and plans were laid for a regimental dance to be held later in the season.

The next meeting will be held in the evening on Monday, November 14, in the Orange Hall. Church street, when slides will be shown on the Moira Conservation.

Mrs. F. Bedell and Mrs. C. Wood were conveners, this being the "Agriculture and Canadian Industries meeting.

Mrs. Wood took the chair, and gave a fine reading entitled "October Days"

Mrs. Sharpe spoke on the motto "The happy people are those who are producing something; the bored people are those who are consuming much and producing nothing."

Mrs. Insley sang a lovely Thanksgiving hymn.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Clarence Holmes was called on as the guest speaker, who stated that "We should not only have a national thanksgiving day, but be thankful for our blessings every day."

Mrs. Holmes also spoke on 'Conservation' and dealt with forests, soil, wild life and water. This address was much appreciated.

Mrs. Bedell had a contest of much interest. Mrs. Insley favored with another song "Smiling Through."

The hostess and Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Parrott, Mrs. F. Mitchell, served refreshments.

Tabernacle W.A. Enjoys Travelogue

The October meeting of the Tabernacle United church Women's Association, was held in the Sunday school room with the president, Mrs. R. L. Johnston, presiding. Due to the weather the attendance was small.

The meeting was under the convenership of Mrs. E. S. Frost with the theme "Thanksgiving". Mrs. A. H. Fisher read several selections from the Bible, and Mrs. Frost gave a reading on "Thanksgiving" after which she introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. F. C. Adsett, who told by word and by picture, of a trip taken to the Yukon "The Land of the Midnight Sun".

After the meeting closed, a social half hour was spent.

Churchill's EARLY LIFE

by Sir Winston Churchill

He rode in the last cavalry charge. As a young lieutenant he played polo and criticized generals. He was a war correspondent . . . a prisoner of war. He was elected a member of the British House of Commons at twenty-six and became a political firebrand. Sir Winston Churchill tells the story of his early life in his book "A Roving Commission". The Star Weekly will publish a series of five stirring periods in the career of this amazing man. This exclusive Star Weekly feature is entitled "Adventurous Years." The first instalment appears in this week's issue.

A Star Weekly staff writer who went to New York to get advance information writes: "It looks as if this season's television is going to be as big, wide and wonderful as the press agents have been mentioning." In a feature entitled "TV: Big Things This Year," he tells what to look for.

Brampton Woman on Canada's Delegation to United Nations

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) A silver-haired grandmother who lives on a farm near Brampton, Ont., is the only woman on Canada's delegation at the United Nations General Assembly.

Mrs. Jack Houck, president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, represents Canada on the UN's Third committee, which deals with social, humanitarian and cultural matters.

"We help women and children," explained the matronly Mrs. Houck, whose previous public service included membership on the Ontario Hope education commission.

WORKS FOR PEACE

"Our committee also helps raise standards of living. I believe that is the end that sort of work will do more for peace than all the politics that can be brought to bear."

Mrs. Houck is the mother of five children and the grandmother of eight. She and her husband, who is 61, both were born in the United States. They met while students at Cornell University and moved to a farm near Niagara Falls, Ont., soon after their marriage in 1918.

They went to Brampton, about 30 miles northwest of Toronto, when Houck was named chairman of the Ontario milk control board in 1936. After 3½ years in Brampton, they settled on a farm about five miles away.

While in New York, Mrs. Houck keeps in touch with her family by letter and telephone. Her husband calls her every Sunday night.

"We talk over the week's happenings," she said in an interview at the UN building.

RUNNING COMMENTARY

"I have also begun to write a weekly family letter—a sort of running commentary on my activities at the UN. I have six copies made, and send one to each of the children and my husband."

She also writes a UN column for her weekly newspapers in her county—two in Brampton, one in Port Credit and one in Streetsville.

Since arriving in New York some three weeks ago she has limited her outside activities to visiting a few stores—"I'm not a great shopper"—and going to one movie.

"I have been pretty well absorbed in the UN work," she explained, "partly because I feel that being a newcomer I should learn all that I can as fast as I can.

"Besides, woman delegates have a full schedule of social affairs. I have attended three or four luncheons and perhaps half a dozen receptions . . . I'm strictly a ginger ale person. I'm beginning to feel quite at home and know a lot of people.

WOMEN HANDICAPPED

Mrs. Houck, daughter of a Methodist minister and active in politics for 25 years, says women are coming into their own in public affairs.

"The prejudice against them has largely disappeared," she remarked. "But they are still up against some handicaps. A woman is 40 to 45 before the children are old enough to be left alone. Unless she has unusual energy and ambition, she may not have developed the informed outlook and sense of community service that are essential to political success.

"Many women think that because they have been leaders in women's clubs they are entitled to special consideration when they enter politics."

Mrs. Houck was a candidate in Peel constituency in the last Ontario election. She lost—but polled 3,000 more votes than any previous Liberal candidate in the riding.

She'll be in New York until the UN General Assembly adjourns in December. Then what? "I think my husband would be quite happy if I stayed at home for a few months and just kept house."

WOMAN DELEGATE

Mrs. Jack Houck of Brampton, Ont., is the only woman on Canada's delegation to the United Nations general assembly in New York. The 61-year-old grandmother has been active in the Liberal party in Ontario for 25 years. At the UN, she represents Canada on a committee which deals with social, humanitarian and cultural matters. Hurricane Katie Swinging Out To Open Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane forecasters expected to bid goodbye to Katie today as the season's 11th tropical storm whirled northeastward in the open sea.

Katie, spinning along at 20 miles an hour some 700 miles east of Florida, this morning had winds of bare hurricane force (75 miles an hour) over a small area near the centre and gale winds extending only 50 miles out.

Katie was badly battered on her 180-mile trip across the big island of Hispaniola. Haiti and the Dominican Republic share the island where the storm thrashed ashore Monday with 115-mile winds. Two small towns were damaged but there were no immediate reports of casualties.

The mountains of Hispaniola, reaching to 7,000 feet, knocked down the power of Katie's winds.

Britain Signs New Agreement With Buganda

KAMAPALA, Uganda (AP) — Britain today signed a new constitutional agreement with Buganda — a province of her East African territory of Uganda — renewing recognition of the Kabaka (king), who returned from a two - year exile Monday to a tumultuous welcome from his people.

The governor of Uganda, Sir Andrew Cohen, signed the agreement for Britain, formally ending his breach with the young ruler whom he removed from his throne in November, 1953.

The kabaka, Mutesa II, has fewer powers under the agreement than he formerly had, but the powers and responsibilities of his parliament, the Lukiiko, are increased.

Under the new constitution ministers are responsible for policy and the kabaka is advised by them. The new agreement permits any dispute to be referred to the courts, including an appeal to the Privy Council in London.

It also provides for direct elections of Buganda legislative councillors by 1957.

Lawson Improving

TORONTO (CP) — Hospital officials said today Ray Lawson, Canadian consul-general in New York and former Ontario lieutenant-governor, spent a "comfortable night" after undergoing an abdominal operation Monday.

Mr. Lawson was admitted to hospital last week for a checkup after he complained of feeling ill. His doctor said he had been losing weight.

Says Separate Schools Encroach On Assessme

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto school assessment expert told the Public Sch tees Association of Onto that it is time to ensure that separate schools do not get assessment that belongs to the public schools.

Percy Topping, assistant revisor for the Toronto board of education, said "public school supporters, as a rule, have very little knowledge of the inroads into public school assessment that have been made since the inception of separate schools."

Supporters of separate schools were continually reminded of their obligations, the Roman Catholic Church, schools and school boards are working closely in support of the separate schools system, he said.

"It is time for the public school supporters to form a powerful organization to protect their rights or the cost of maintaining the public schools will go up still further."

SAYS ACT CHANGED

Mr. Topping said that in many cases assessors placed non-Catholic business firms on the tax roll as 50 per cent supporters of separate and 50 per cent supporters of public schools.

He said Roman Catholic have steadily manoeuvred changes in the School Assessment Act to improve their position.

Public school supporters were not insisting on their right to have their landlord pay his taxes to the public schools.

The question of school assessment is expected to be discussed at later business meetings during the association's 18th annual meeting here.

Given Award

CHICAGO (CP) — The St. Catharines (Ont.) Standard has won an award of merit for coverage of local government news, it was announced today at the annual meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association.

The Canadian paper was one of 25 getting awards in the field. It took second prize in the classification of papers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000.

Overhaul of Canada's Armed Forces May Be Dictated By New Policy on Strategy

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A big overhaul of Canada's armed forces may be approaching.

The overhaul would be dictated by a new policy on defence strategy and the advent of new weapons, especially guided missiles.

There is a body of opinion here that the western nations, including Canada, will have to make a vital decision before long on defence strategy.

CRUX OF PROBLEM

The crux of the problem is whether a country like Canada can afford, financially to try to prepare for two types of war—nuclear and conventional at the same time.

Up to now, Canada has tried to have it both ways. It has set up a small fighter air force which would be its chief weapon in an atomic war. At the same time. It has a small infantry army and an anti-submarine navy.

In the opinion of some here, this approach drops defence policy between two stools. They hold that as a result the country is prepared neither for an atomic war nor one of the conventional type.

And it is apparent that Canada, with a relatively small population, cannot prepare adequately for both types of war without going broke or at least reducing its standard of living.

The problem thus comes down to: If there is a war, would it be an all-out atomic conflict or would it be restricted as in Korea? Nobody, of course, knows the answer.

The subject is one of continual debate in the defence department. Good arguments can be made out of both sides.

RCAF VIEW

The RCAF, generally speaking, feels that a future war would be short and violent and fought, in the main, by fleets of bombers delivering destruction on each other's countries.

What, exponents of this view argue, is the point of building warships in anticipation of an infantry division when in all probability they would never reach Canada, they feel, should channel all its defence effort into a bigger fighter commitment.

On the other hand, others—chiefly army and navy officers—believe that the hydrogen bomb is recognized by both sides as such a terrible weapon that it will never be employed.

That leaves the possibility of comparatively small conventional wars like Korea. What use would a large fighter interceptor force be in such a case? Ground and sea forces would be needed.

Some believe that a decision on this problem, not only by Canada but by all NATO nations, is not far off.

If a decision were taken to prepare solely for atomic war and thus rely on the deterrent effect of atomic retaliation, big changes could come in the structure of Canada's armed forces.

EMPHASIS ON AIR FORCE

In recent years, increasing emphasis has been placed on the air force, but this emphasis could become even more pronounced. If the strength of the armed forces were maintained at the current level of 120,000, this could only mean a reduction in manpower for the army and navy in favor of the RCAF.

Another factor in this problem is the advent of new weapons.

It is felt that the age of the piloted warplane is nearing an end. For instance, the pilot may act only as a monitor in the CF-105, the supersonic jet interceptor planned as a successor to the prescott CF-100.

External Affairs Minister Pearson has said that the DEW (distant early warning) radar line in Canada's arctic will be ready in a "few years" and that by then its purpose might be superseded by new weapons development.

Authorities here already are looking ahead to structural changes in the armed forces. In the age of the ballistic missile, armed forces personnel will have to be trained in "missilry." Where it is wondered, does one draw the line between the services then?

Some army men, for instance, feel that the air force will be completely superseded by missiles in 20 years.

"It won't require a wing commander to push a button then," one army officer said.

KILLED OVER TV PROGRAM

LAPEER, Mich. (AP)—A six-year-old boy was shot and killed by his seven-year-old brother Monday in what sheriff's deputies said was an argument over changing television programs. Killed was Lawrence J. Mack. Deputy William J. Porter said the shot was fired by the boy's brother, Stanley.

Famed Spanish Philosopher Dies of Cancer

MADRID (AP) — Jose Ortega y Gasset, famed Spanish philosopher, died today of cancer at the age of 72.

He was born here May 9, 1883. After establishing a reputation as a writer and thinker, he became a professor of metaphysics at Madrid in 1911. He later lectured at various foreign universities and in 1949 went to the United States to speak at the Goethe celebration in Aspen, Colo.

Ortega was noted for outspoken criticism of Spanish regimes of various color. He was originally regarded as a leftist, strongly opposed monarchy, and contributed through his earlier works to the fall of the late King Alfonso XIII.

He served in the Constituent Assembly which drafted a new constitution, and later was civil governor of Madrid. However, he became a caustic critic of the republic which followed the monarchy.

DENOUNCED FRANCO

He also opposed Generalissimo Franco's regime after denouncing the Franco-led revolution of 1936 which overthrew the republic. Ortega lived out the final years of his life in a sort of armed truce with the Franco regime.

Ortega delved into many fields beside philosophy and government. In 1945, taking on modern painters and their critics simultaneously, he declared in a magazine article that both were wrong.

An atheist and first proposer of lay schools in Spain, he was reported to have returned to the church on his deathbed.

40 HURT, NINE CARS JUMP RAILS IN TRAIN-AUTO COLLISION

Unexpected lunch is enjoyed by passengers aboard Montreal-Toronto train which struck a stalled car at Riviere Beaudette, Que., injuring 40 persons. The train was travelling at 75 mph when it struck the car and the impact caused five coaches, a baggage car, a diner and two parlor cars to jump the rails. Most of the passengers found themselves on the floor after the collision.

Hees Critical Of Federal Policy On Appointments

TORONTO (CP)—George Hees, national president of the Progressive Conservative association, Monday night criticized the federal government for not giving cabinet representation to southern Ontario.

"It has always been accepted practice in Canada that important areas and groups of population are represented in the federl cabinet" he said in a by-election speech in the federal riding of Toronto Spadina.

"This is done so that the views and needs of the various parts of the country may be constantly kept before the cabinet and receive the consideration they deserve.

"Despite this fact, the heartland of Canadian industry, including approximately 3,000,000 people and containing the major part of Canada's manufacturing industry, has been denied cabinet representation."

INDUSTRY—UNEMPLOYMENT

Mr. Hees, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto-Broadview, said this lack of cabinet representation "perhaps explains why the government has no program to assist industry to expand and develop and why the only approach to unemployment is an agreement to share with the provinces the provision of the dole."

He said that David Croll, Liberal member of Parliament for the last 16 years and recently appointed to the Senate, had "certainly" had the qualifications for a cabinet minister.

To have denied southern Ontario cabinet representation when Mr. Croll was available, was an "insult to the people living in the area."

Mr. Hees spoke at an election rally for Charles E. Rae, Progressive Conservative candidate in the Oct. 31 by-election in Spadina, Mr. Croll's old riding.

WITHERS TO WED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jane Withers, 29, said Monday she and Ken Errair, 27, a member of the singing group, "The Four Freshmen," will be married on a yacht in Newport Beach. It will be the second marriage for the actress who received her final divorce decree last July from William P. Moss, Jr., 34, Texas oil and cattleman. They had three children.

Many of the passengers had to hack their way out of the windows of the tilted coaches. None is known to have suffered serious injury but many had deep cuts and bruises. Passengers in the car escaped injury, running to safety a few yards ahead of the train which thundered on for half a mile after the collision. (Central Press Canadian.)

30 River Pilots Will Continue Ship Boycott

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 30 St. Lawrence river pilots who operate as "free-lancers" between Montreal and Kingston, Ont., decided Monday night to continue a boycott on ships travelling to the Great Lakes.

Three Canadian lake ships—the Imperial London, the Imperial Sarnia and the Shelter Bay, are tied up in the Lachine canal by the boycott.

The pilots are seeking compulsory hiring of their services in the Kingston-Montreal service, as is the case between Father Point and Quebec, and Quebec and Montreal. They voted Sunday to stop work.

APPOINT DIRECTOR

LONDON (Reuters)—Guy Schofield, 52-year-old editor of The Daily Mail from 1950 to 1954, has been appointed director of publicity for the Conservative party, it was announced Monday.

B.C. Fishboat Torn to Pieces By Wild Sea

VANCOUVER (CP)—Search for the crew of a west coast fishboat was darkened today by the knowledge that a wild sea had torn the craft to pieces.

The RCAF reported Monday night the ribs and planking from the 36-foot A. E H had been sighted off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Those aboard—the searchers do not know how many—radioed Sunday that they were abandoning ship near a reef in a heavy fog. Tons of fishing vessels plying coastal waters range from one or two men to eight or more but the size of the A. E H made it unlikely that the number was high.

The A. E H sinking was one of four maritime accidents known to have taken the lives of at least two men in less than a week.

The RCAF said it would await new reports from surface craft before sending up its planes again.

Flood Waters Receding In Stricken States

NEW YORK (AP) — With flood waters draining back into river beds after a weekend rampage, stricken sections of six northeastern states are tackling a weary some cleanup job—in some areas for the second time in less than two months.

The floods, which left 42 dead and missing, hit hardest at Connecticut. The same state took the brunt of the Aug. 19 floods in the wake of hurricane Diane.

Rains that fed the latest floods stopped or changed to light showers Monday throughout the flood belt, which stretched through sections of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The receding waters left behind piles of slimy debris, wrecked homes and businesses, washed-out highways and railroads, broken bridges and anarled power lines.

GIVE FEDERAL AID

The federal government is providing a variety of aids for the stricken areas. The governors of Connecticut, New York and New Jersey were advised by Sherman Adams, assistant to the president, that the "major disaster" declaration of two months ago has been extended to cover the new floods. This enables "the Small Business Administration, the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Washington to take steps to help flood victims.

Val Peterson, director of civil defence, declared the area "hard hit" day so he could take a first-hand report to President Eisenhower.

The Red Cross estimates 8,000 families are homeless or have gone back to damaged dwellings.

Still, the destruction of last weekend came nowhere near the severity of the Aug. 19 floods. In Connecticut alone that disaster took 74 lives and caused more than $215,000,000 in damage, compared to 16 dead and missing in the second round of floods. The new damage total has not yet been estimated.

Army engineers, who did $12,000,000 worth of repairs after Diane, figured the new floods left them with $4,000,000 worth of work to do. Of the 7 Connecticut towns hit by the latest floods, 28 had suffered damage from Diane.

Hon. L.B. Pearson Promises Continued Canadian Support For Colombo Aid for Asia

By C. B BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SINGAPORE (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson today pledged the support of the Canadian government to the continued work of the Colombo plan for aiding the under-developed areas of Asia.

The record already achieved justifies strong and continuing support for the plan," the Canadian minister told the Colombo plan conference here, "and I can pledge such support from my government."

Today was the second day of the conference, called to discuss among its 18 member countries the achievements of the five years since its inception at a Commonwealth conference in Colombo. Pearson, and plans for its future.

The plan's annual report was discussed at a closed session, but Pearson later told a reporter that it confirmed the view that the plan should be continued, probably until about 1961.

The Indian delegation called for extension of the program, declaring that the next six years will be "most crucial" for the countries concerned.

During today's meeting a member of the Ceylon delegation said the United States has offered to set up a $130,000,000 atomic research station as part of the plan for Ceylon. A delegation member said the offer would be accepted "provided there are no strings attached."

Canada already has offered a $10,000,000 reactor as a gift to the Indian government, and negotiations for its acceptance are nearing completion.

In another development, Britain today announced an increase in technical assistance to southeast Asian countries under the plan. The total to be contributed amounts to £7,000,000 over the next seven years, beginning in 1956.

SETS RECORD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy said Monday its new attack-type Douglas A-3D Skywark has set a world speed record of 635.163 miles an hour. It now takes its place among the long - range 650-plus-mile-an-hour carrier based bombers capable of carrying atomic weapons.

Run-Around Given on Trip Says Counsel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy says he and Supreme Court Justice William C. Douglas were spied upon, lied to and on at least one occasion given "the runaround" on their trip behind the Iron Curtain.

Kennedy, counsel to the Senate investigations sub-committee, says he returned from the six-week tour very distrustful that we will get, anything other than smiles" from Soviet Russia in the forthcoming Big Four foreign ministers talks in Geneva.

"It can only be suicidal for us during this period on the basis of smiles, to strengthen Russia and weaken ourselves," Kennedy says in a copyrighted interview published by the magazine U.S News and World Report.

Kennedy says the "runaround"—on orders from Moscow—kept him and Douglas from visiting Karaganda, in Kazakhistan, which he described as "one of the great slave labor camps in the Soviet Union."

Aussie Presbyterians Do Not Want Graham

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—After a two-hour debate here today, the Presbyterian Assembly of Victoria decided by 98 votes to 68 that it does not want American evangelist Billy Graham to come to Australia.

The assembly agreed, however, to send a representative to an all churches Australian conference which will discuss a proposed invitation to Graham who has just held a crusade in Toronto.

Ministers opposing the invitation said Graham crusades are not the complete answer to the religious problems of the world.

Nixon Conceded Best Chance Of Republican Nomination

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—Vice-president Richard Nixon, if he can break a precedent dating back 119 years, generally is conceded in political circles here to be in the most favorable position to win the Republican presidential nomination next year.

For the moment, the Republican party's hands are tied. It can take no step toward building up a potential 1956 presidential candidate until ailing President Eisenhower indicates whether or not he will be in the running. However,there are increasing indications that Eisenhower will retire from the field.

While few political observers would be brash enough at this stage to predict the name of the eventual Republican candidate, most of them concede that the 42-year-old Nixon has a head-start on other party aspirants. For one thing, the very fact of the president's illness has served to protect the vice-president into the limelight.

Apart from being the president's liegal heir under the United States constitution, Nixon has been given preferential treatment by Eisenhower himself as an understudy for his job. This has put Nixon into a unique position to campaign without seeming to be doing anymore than performing his normal duties.

Eisenhower set a precedent by making Nixon a full participant in his cabinet and on the powerful national security council. He had Nixon preside over both bodies in his absences from Washington. He assigned to Nixon jobs on vice-president has handled before.

The precedent Nixon must overcome dates back to 1836. Not since that year, when Martin Van Buren won the Democratic nomination as the hand-picked candidate of retiring president Andrew Jackson, has a vice-president in office won the presidential nomination. Seven vice-presidents have succeeded to the presidency, but always through the death of the president.

Leading Republicans have said that next year's party convention will accede to Eisenhower's wishes if he chooses to express his personal preference. Eisenhower, who personally selected Nixon as his running mate in 1952, undoubtedly likes the one-time California congressman but has given no indication whether he would back him before the convention.

Johnstown celebrated Thanksgiving Sunday with Sunday School and Church in the afternoon with the Rev. A. Puttenham, as minister. His Scripture Lesson found in Deut. 6 and text found in Luke 12:21 "So is he that lays up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God."

(The Pilgrim fathers suffered hunger and hard times the first year in America, but when they had their first good harvest they appointed a day to give thanks to God which was the first Thanksgiving day in America."

"Jesus s trying in Luke to tell us what is true thanksgiving by showing what a man is not. This man was a rich farmer, and he should have given an offering to the Lord but he chose to eat, drink, and be merry. The Lord reproved him saying,' Thou fool this night thy soul shall be required of thee". No person can farm without God's help. One can plant the seed, but God makes it grow. God in nature uses more energy by what He does than all our work. This idea that we do not owe anything, we say we do it all ourselves, it is not true. God does not blame a man for looking ahead for old age but it is the thought of crowding the Lord out of our lives. We should give God what is rightfully His. We should not be satisfied with giving a little of our time and money, but we should give ourselves. Let us have thankful hearts and help those who are not so well off as ourselves.

The Johnstown W. A. will be held on Thursday afternoon the 20th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Mallery.

CBS Radio President Claims Medium Is on the Upswing

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — People in U.S. radio are cheerful about their medium these days. It's not just talk. Rather, it's the sort of indefinable optimism that comes when a commercial venture is making money.

Arthur Hull Hayes, president of CBS radio, cheerfully puts it this way: "We've started up with radio."

The situation, he said is rather like the depression of the 1930s. "Nobody ever did know exactly when the depression was over. But there came a time when people started saying, 'Wasn't the depression awful? That, I think, is something like what happened in radio. I think radio hit the bottom several months ago."

It is, says Hayes, a kind of historical situation. When radio came in, phonograph recordings hit an all-time low. Everyone said the recording business was finished. Then along came television and a lot of people said radio was finished. But now — despite both radio and television — the sale of phonograph recordings is at an all-time high.

"Whenever anything new comes along, the American people go all out for it," Hayes says. "But after awhile they become selective. They choose what they want. And a lot of people want radio again these days."

In support of his belief Hayes cites radio sales figures. U.S. factory sales of radio sets for the first 37 weeks of this year totalled 8,144,132 — an increase of 40.5 per cent over the figure for the corresponding period of last year when 6,461,262 sets were sold.

AT THE CAPITOL — Director Harry Dawes, played by Humphrey Bogart, and his script-girl girl friend, played by Elizabeth Sellars, realize that the Contessa, played by Ava Gardner, once again has left the world of sophistication to feel the peasant earth under her feet. Scene is from Joseph L. Mankiewicz' "The Barefoot Contessa," filmed in Technicolor and showing today and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre. Edmund O'Brien who won the Academy Award as best actor of the year, co-stars in the part that won him the award. On the same program "Danger Is My Beat", a murder mystery stars Paul Langton and Barbara Payton.

Robert Mitchum Comes Home With Tall Tales from Sweden

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Rover boy Robert Mitchum is back from filmmaking abroad with his usual supply of unusual tales, such as watching members of a film company in Sweden—male and female—strip down for a noontime swim.

Mitchum, a magnet for odd happenings, had plenty of filming locations for his European - made movie "Foreign Intrigue."

"We were at a summer resort, down the archipelago. It was during the summer, and pretty warm for Sweden. So when lunch time came, some of the people, including the wardrobe girl, took off their clothes and went swimming."

"Of course not. In Sweden, the summer season lasts only about two weeks. It doesn't pay to invest in a swimming suit."

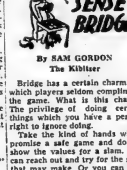
HE WANTED TO EAT

"Did he join them?

"No. I was hungry for lunch." Was he shocked?

"No, it seems perfectly natural and wholesome . . . ."

"As a matter of fact, when we were in Stockholm the mothers were campaigning for mixed nude bathing in the schools. The adults do it, so they argued it was traumatic for the children to be subjected to false prudery."



SOME BIKINIS DISGUSTING

He added that he was less impressed by the bathing habits on the French Riviera, where Bikini suits are rampant.

"Some of the French babes looked okay in them," he conceded. "But others merely exposed undiant rolls of fat."

You may recall that Mitchum became involved on the Riviera when an acting hopeful named Simone Silva posed for photos with him sans clothing from the waist upwards. Was he worried that such an incident might arise in Sweden?

Mitchum scoffed. "The Swedish press would have made nothing of it," he said. "They don't revel in vicarious thrills."

Bridge has a certain charm for which players seldom compliment the game. What is this charm? The privilege of doing certain things which you have a perfect right to ignore.

Take the kind of hands which promise a safe game and do not show the values for a slam. You can reach out and try for the slam that may make. Or you can stop short of slam and be right if you are wrong.

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 Heart	2 Diamonds
3 Hearts	4 No-Trump
4 No-Trump	5 Hearts
6 Hearts	Pass

Although south has a count of eight tricks, at no time did his north partner show more than three tricks. Never having learned of 12 tricks it would have been sound to stop at four hearts.

His next bid was a signal got a reply of five hearts. This is Gordon convention for showing one ace and one king. With an ace and a king missing, it would have been right to stop at five.

He could have stopped at five hearts or five no-trump, either of which would have been correct. Because by sound rules of bids and plays, five is the most he should reach and the most he should make.

However, the privilege of stretching was also his. So, he went to six hearts to exercise the right that was wrong. He got a club lead and made six because the cards were wrong and fell right.

If the right cards are wrong your wrong bids are right.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

MAJOR BASEBALL

Frank "Spec" Shea's touring major league All-Stars have been attracting big crowds in the Northern United States and in parts of Canada in which they have played. The big leaguers are producing, as they should, "big league" baseball and they have proven very popular wherever they have played.

Jack Carson, manager of the Belleville and district all-stars, who are showing fine co-operation in helping make some shekels for the TPT senior hockey exchequer, is rounding his club into shape and the district should be pretty well represented in the line-up that takes the field at the Exhibition Park at 2.30 Saturday afternoon.

Jack expects to get Tony Petilli and three other outstanding players from Kingston. From Picton he will field Keith MacDonald, Dick Fitzpatrick and Haydon, and from Wallington the sensational youngster Jack Portelle. He has rounded up Bob Turner, Colborne, and Jones of Cobourg, while many city stars will see action, including Vern Goyer, Peter and Davey Jones, Bob Bunton, Art Wright and other diamond luminaries of the former Belleville Bata squad.

As an added feature to the game Walter Dropo and Norm Zauchin will indulge in an exhibition of long-distance clouting —and these are the babies that can really pole out the long balls.

In a concerted effort to bring under its aegis as many Eastern and Central Ontario centres of 1,000-plus population as possible, the Ontario Hockey Association is holding a special meeting at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, Peterborough, on Thursday night.

The meeting will take the form of a buffet dinner starting at 6.30. OHA vice-president Lorne Cook, of Kingston, is in charge of the arrangements in Eastern Ontario, while OHA business manager Bill Hanley, Toronto, is aiding President Frank Buckland, Peterborough, in contacting and arranging for the Central Ontario clubs.

Invitations have been extended to all centres in this immediate district, including those of Prince Edward County and northern Hastings as well as Frontenac and Lennox and Addington. Centres of this population category and the larger communities east of Kingston have shown interest in the proposed move.

Mr. Cook said in a telephone conversation yesterday that it has been impossible for him to contact all centres in his district, but each and every one will be given a cordial welcome at the Peterborough get-together.

With the story still persisting that the Trent Valley Hockey League will not operate this year, teams under the banner of that loop are showing interest in the OHA move. Point Anne will definitely be represented as will TVL clubs of the northern section of the league. Peterborough is vitally interested in the move and the Lifluck City district league will likely be on the full force.

Mr. Cook said that every centre regardless of size from 1,000 population up to those centres sponsoring senior "B" clubs will be welcomed. The Belleville junior hockey club's ol.icials, as well as those of Picton and Wellington clubs have been extended an invitation to attend.

JUNIOR CANADIENS

Rated as one of the best junior "A" clubs in the eastern district, the Junior Canadiens hockey club of Montreal will cross hockey rapiers with the Belleville senior "B" TPT's in Memorial Arena come Thursday night. The Quebec youngsters, many of whom are beardless veterans of the ice lanes, have met with fine success in their early season efforts. Sunday night they tacked a 6-1 defeat on the Toronto St. Michaels team in a trophy competition game.

The Canadiens, which boasted the Pocket Rocket Richard on its roster the last few seasons, is a strong, fast skating bevy of husky youngsters who know a lot of the tricks of the hockey trade.

Meanwhile, Coach Danny Cox has been pulling the TPT's through heavy practice grinds. Several of the aspirants who did not have the required go-get-'em have been dropped from the club and the coach is concentrating on the power he has at hand.

SOFTBALL

President Cy Barriage of the Belleville and District Softball League announced that the executive will hold a meeting in the Sheira Street Firehall tonight at 8 p.m.

Planning for the annual banquet will be the main topic on the agenda with other business also scheduled. All members of the executive are urged to attend.

The banquet should be of greater significance this year, since the league has produced two prominent championship clubs. Then, too, there is the presentation of the various trophies, individual awards, etc. It is quite likely OASA president John Brady of Oshawa, will be here as guest speaker.

Nets Four Goals, Two Assists To Grab Point-Scoring Lead; Four Tied for Second Place

MONTREAL (CP)—The famine has ended and the feast has begun for Detroit Red Wings, who not only snapped out of a dismal start in the new National Hockey League race but are rolling along with Gordie Howe at the top of the scoring list.

After three setbacks to start the season, the Red Wings exploded for 10 goals in two victories last week. The big gun was Howe, who missed the NHL scoring championship last season after a four-year tenure of office.

Howe collected four goals and two assists, boosting his total points to nine, two ahead of the pack. At the same time the four points collected by the Wings for victories over Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs left Detroit in a solid position in the team-standings scramble.

CANADIENS LEAD

At the top of the heap are the still undefeated Montreal Canadiens, who grudgingly gave up a tie to Chicago Black Hawks in their fifth game and now have a four-point margin over the Hawks and Boston Bruins.

Behind Canadiens the scramble is as intense that only two points separate second place and sixth. Chicago rates second place in the infield standings because of a better goal production than Boston.

Canadiens have amassed nine points, the Hawks and Bruins five each. New York Rangers and the Red Wings have four each and the Leafs three.

The individual scoring race among those behind Howe is already shaping up as a strong battle. For instance, there's a four-way tie for second place.

TIED FOR SECOND

With seven points each, Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Jean Beliveau of Montreal, and Alex Delvecchio and Lindsay of the Red Wings are all locked in second spot.

Richard has the same number of goals—four—as Howe, but has two assists fewer. Delvecchio and Lindsay each have four goals and three assists while Beliveau has three assists last week boosted his total to five in that column.

Jacques Plante of Montreal still remains in a class by himself on the basis of goals-against average. Plante has been scored on only five times in five games for a goals-against average of one. Terry Sawchuk of Boston and Glen Hall of Detroit are closest with an average of two.

Maritime Loop Opens Season

HALIFAX (CP)—The revitalized Atlantic Coast Senior Hockey League swings into its 1955-56 season Thursday night and appears certain to be the Maritimes' top circuit this year.

Three New Brunswick teams and one from Nova Scotia are in the loop which turned out Moncton Hawks as an easy winner of the Maritime senior title last season.

Saint John Beavers are re-entering the hockey wars after a one-year absence forced by lack of an indoor ice surface.

The Beaver entry replaces Charlottetown Islanders, ousted from the league for failure of the club and players to pay fines assessed following a brawl in Moncton last year.

Only Fredericton enters the new season relatively free of financial worries and still operating under private auspices. Saint John, Amherst and Moncton are being sponsored by citizens' groups.

Sport, City and Provincial 'Brass' Open Winnipeg's $2,000,000 Arena

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's new $2,000,000 arena will be officially opened tonight by representatives of Canada's tenth province.

The arena in the city's west end, is the spark which touched off the re-entry of Winnipeg into professional hockey competition after 11 months to build and will open with Winnipeg Warriors' first home game of the Western Hockey League season against Calgary Stampeders.

Situated next to the combination football-baseball stadium, the new arena seats 9,116 persons with standing room for 2,100. For concerts, conventions, exhibitions and shows another 3,200 seats can be put on the ice surface.

CELEBRITIES ON HAND

Speakers at the opening will include Manitoba Premier Douglas Campbell, Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Frank Selke, managing director of the NHL Montreal Canadiens, Clarence Campbell, president of the Western Hockey League and Cliff Wilson, president of Winnipeg Enterprises Corporation, builders and operators of the arena.

Opening the arena will complete the reconstruction of Winnipeg's sport facilities in one locality, just four miles from the downtown shopping area.

John Petersen, manager of the new building, says it is "almost a doubt the best arena in Canada." He has seen just about every major sports auditorium in Canada and several in the United States.

BEAT HUNGARIANS

HULL, England (Reuters)—Hull City, at the bottom of the English Soccer League second division, scored a surprising 3-1 win over the Hungarian cup-holders, Vasas, here Monday night.

The crack Hungarian team previously had beaten Tottenham Hotspur of the English first division, 2-1, and second-division Sheffield Wednesday 7-1.

Pfeifer Leads Big Four Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP) — Al Pfeifer, pass-catching end from Fordham University who was fired and then hired by Toronto Argonauts, holds first place in the Big Four Football Union scoring race.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Pfeifer with 68 points, three more than Montreal Alouettes' Pat Abbruzzi from Rhode Island State who has held the No. 1 spot the last month. Pfeifer made the jump with an 18-point afternoon as Argonauts got 46-23 in the Ali last Saturday.

Abbruzzi was held to one touchdown, his 13th of the season. Pfeifer now has 11 touchdowns and 13 converts.

Bobby Simpson of Ottawa Rough Riders and Joey Pal of Montreal share third with 54 points each. Bud Korchak of the Als is fifth with 42 points on two field goals, 18 converts and one single.

Billy Graham of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen nudged into the top spot in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union with 63 points, one up on Glen Cappadutti of Sarnia Imperials.

Ron Stewart, speedy back with Queen's Golden Gaels, leads the Intercollegiate Union at the halfway mark with 21 points. Saint John, Amherst and Moncton are being sponsored by citizens' groups.

Public Demands Sunday Sport In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council voted unanimously Monday to refer back to its finance committee the question of a plebiscite on Sunday sport.

The finance committee last week rejected the plebiscite suggestion which gained strength last month when Vancouver acquired the Pacific Coast League baseball franchise of Los Angeles Angels.

Vancouver will enter the league next summer but Oakland owner Brick Laws has said he may be necessary to reconsider after that if the Sunday professional sport ban still is in effect.

AGREE TO COMMITTEE

Council agreed to appoint a special committee to work with Mayor Fred Hume in wording a proposed plebiscite. It will be considered by the finance committee Oct. 22.

A petition carrying the names of 16,823 persons favoring a vote was tabled at Monday's council meeting.

Alderman Earle Adams told the meeting: "I'm sure aldermen who opposed the plebiscite were not aware of the overwhelming demand by the public to be allowed to vote on Sunday sport."

He agreed with a suggestion by Mayor Hume that those opposed to Sunday sports should be given a similar chance to collect names for petitions.

ROYALS LOSE MANAGER

MONTREAL (CP) —Hector Racine, president of the Provincial Baseball Club of the International League, Monday announced the resignation of Guy Moreau as general manager. He is returning to the investment-brokerage business, a business in which he was engaged until 1935.

Hole 'in the Bag'

Aussie Twins Were Set to Go, Till Pressure Was Put On

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tennis promoter Jack Kramer said Monday that Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, Australia's 20-year-old Davis Cup twins, were "in the bag" to turn pro but somebody Down Under pressured them out of the decision.

"I feel like a bride left at the altar," said the tennis great after the Sydney announcement that Rosewall and Hoad decided to remain amateurs.

"I absolve the boys themselves" Kramer added. "They are real nice boys but unfortunately they must bow to others for decisions."

Kramer said the whole deal had been set while the two were in the United States.

"I had already given the green light to about 25 organizations which sponsor my matches in cities throughout the world, telling them to get ready for a tour with the Aussies, Tony Trabert and myself.

'FLEW THE COOP'

"Now, I have to get off an air mail special to the same 25 today and tell them: 'Well, I did have them but they flew the coop.'"

Kramer had offered the Aussie stars $50,000 each to join his touring troupe plus a percentage of the gate. Hoad last week, he signed U.S champion Tony Trabert for an estimated $75,000.

"Hoad and Rosewall were in the same boat with Trabert," Kramer said. "I was just holding off the final word to protect them with the Australian public."

He said it's okay with him if Trabert wants to revert to amateur status as the American star has not been paid a cent yet. However, Reuville McMann, vice-president of the U.S Lawn Tennis Association, said in New York there's no chance of Trabert getting his amateur status back.

NO LOOPHOLES

"I'm a member of the amateur rules committee and I am sure there are no loopholes in a situation like this," McMann said. "If the contract which makes Trabert a pro, not the receipt of money, Kramer said Trabert, though, has no desire to go back to the amateurs even if he could. Kramer said he probably would fill out the tour with pros Pancho Gonzales and Frank Sedgman, himself a former Aussie Davis Copper.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Unless the golden coach of sport discharges another and more glittering Cinderella, or some athletic waif wins a greater Frank Merriwell story, the man to win rating as the most compelling figure of 1955 will be Jack Fleck.

His finish in the United States Golf Open, and his play-off win over Ben Hogan constituted as once the greatest upset, and the most dramatic event of the year.

Fleck became great overnight, literally. A few hours before he met and conquered the mighty Hogan Fleck was completely unknown that when he tried to cash a cheque for $50 at the office of the tournament, he was turned down by a careful cashier.

Several pros offered to chip in to make up the $50 but Fleck thanked them and said he'd manage to get along without the money. And we'd say he managed very well.

The quiet 32-year-old unknown from Davenport, Iowa, was unheralded and unsung in the early rounds of the Open. He was just another golfer. Even when his third round 75 gave him a total of 220. Fleck didn't figure as a serious contender.

It was only on the 18th hole of the final round that word got out to Fleck that he could tie Hogan's par-setting score of 287 with two pars and a couple of birdies on the tough finishing holes. A par and three birdies for a win.

Fleck showed his courage and iron nerve on the final hole when he dropped a seven-foot putt for a birdie and a tie with Hogan. He proved himself a real champion when he went out the following day and shot a 69 to beat Hogan in the play-off by three strokes.

Fleck was an unknown when the tournament started but he won the title by playing great golf when it counted. His victory is the kind that provides a thrill even to the most jaded in sports. It is the sort of tremendous accomplishment that only happens in dreams.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Halifax Howard Decisions Zulueta Says 'Hometown Verdict Beat Us'

HALIFAX (CP)—A proud Cuban who claims wins over some of the world's top lightweight boxers says he doubts that he will tangle a fourth time with Canadian lightweight champion Dick Howard of Halifax.

Orlando Zulueta, loser of a 10-round split decision to Howard here Monday night, said it is unlikely he will meet the Halifax fighter as scheduled Oct. 31 because of "a bad decision" in the non-title bout.

"I don't think I'll come back," the slender Cuban said. "I got a bad decision last time and a worse one this time."

Zulueta outdistanced Howard in their first meeting three years ago but lost a decision in a second bout here a year ago.

"A HOMETOWN DECISION"

Freddie Fierro of New York, Zulueta's trainer, said Howard, a 5-to-4 underdog, won the bout "a hometown decision."

"I thought Billy Conn made a just decision," Fierro said. "He called it the way he saw it. The others were hometown judges."

Referee Conn, former world light-heavyweight champion and one-time challenger for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown, gave Zulueta the fight four rounds to two and called four even.

Judge Harold Johnston of Halifax had Howard the winner 6-3-1 and Judge John O'Sullivan scored it 4-3-3 in favor of Howard.

LOSER UNMARKED

The Cuban, who claims victories over such ring artists as welter champion Bud Smith and former titleholder Jimmy Carter, was unmarked at the end of the fight.

Howard had both eyes blacked and a small cut over the right one.

Both fighters slugged toe-to-toe through the first six rounds before the pace began to tell. They slowed down in the seventh and eighth stanzas but finished in a burst of speed.

Howard scored vital points in the infighting with short punches to the body.

Zulueta weighed 136 and Howard 140.

Marshall Leads American League Scoring Scramble

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Marshall, veteran of the defending champion Pittsburgh Hornets, leads American Hockey League scorers today as a result of one of the highest point production weeks in league history.

The 29-year-old centre scored 13 points in three games last week for an over-all total for four games of six goals and nine assists for 15 points. He leads the league in all offensive departments—goals, assists and points. He also scored the only hat trick registered so far this season.

In addition, Marshall tied a 10-year league record against Springfield last week with eight points in a single game on three goals and five assists. Two former Pittsburgh players, Bob Gracie and Bob Walton, set the record in 1945.

IN SECOND PLACE

Cleaners 4 to 3.

Back of Marshall in total points were Ken Wharram of Buffalo and Zellio Toppazzini of Providence with nine points each. Gordon Hannigan of Pittsburgh and Jackie Gordon of Cleveland follow with eight points.

A pair of Providence defencemen, Andy Branigan and Camille Bedard, shared the penalty lead with 22 minutes each. Branigan has more penalty minutes than any player in AHL history with a total of 687 games.

Hank Bassen of Buffalo led the goaltenders with an average of 2.00 on 14 goals allowed in five games.

Orioles Buy Sox Infielder

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles moved today to strengthen the left side of their infield, obtaining Bobby Adams from Chicago White Sox in a trade for outfielder Cal Abrams.

Adams, a 10-year veteran with Cincinnati Reds before being bought by White Sox late last season, is expected to be put on third next to shortstop Willie Miranda. Adams led the National League for assists by a third baseman in 1952 and 1953. Miranda led the American for shortstop assists last season.

The departure of Abrams left outfielder Chuck Diering the only survivor of the 1954 Orioles team.

Abrams led Orioles at the plate in 1954 with .292 but dropped to .215 last season. He came to the Orioles from Pittsburgh after playing previously from Cincinnati and Brooklyn.

Greenberg planned to inspect 22,000-seat Seals Stadium today.

Autographs Hard On Pitching Arm Says Podres

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Podres relaxed today for the first time since that afternoon just two weeks ago when he pitched the Dodgers to the world baseball championship overs.New York Yankees.

"And don't think I'm not begining to feel all worn out," said the 23-year-old hurler. "There's got to be a limit. If the pace doesn't slacken soon I'm going to start passing up money rather than take a chance of ruining my health."

Podres said he has made about $6,000 in personal appearances in the last two weeks. But, he said, being a world series hero has its drawbacks.

"I was in Chicago a couple of days ago autographing menus in a string of restaurants," he related. "Now that doesn't sound like much, but they met me at the airport early in the morning and I moved around so fast I didn't get a chance to lie down until after midnight. Right now, I'd like to sleep around the clock."

Johnny now plans some hunting.

Third 'Corrective Fight' for Carter In Title Bout With Bud Wallace

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jimmy Carter plans a "corrective fight" against Wallace (Bud) Smith when he tries here Wednesday night to win the world's lightweight boxing championship for a fourth time.

A look at the record would indicate, however, that the New York Negro has been fighting "corrective fights" each time he has gone into a remedial bout during the crown.

Three times he has lost the title and twice he has regained it.

He'll try to win it back again Wednesday night as he and Smith do battle over 15 rounds or less in the Cincinnati Garden. Smith won the championship from Carter in Boston last June 29.

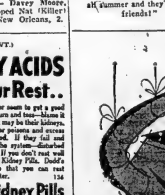
WILL CORRECT MISTAKES

"Naturally, I'm not going to tell you any of the things I noticed from looking at the movies of our last fight," Carter said Monday. "I make mistakes—and my plan is to correct them. And I will, too."

Smith said, however, "I know I can beat Carter, I did it in Boston and there's no reason why I can't repeat. I can punch harder and that's why I think I'll win."

If Carter wins, and he is a slight favorite, Sugib will join Paddy DeMarco and Carlos Chavez who have made a dime from extra-curricular fights as a result of being champion. DeMarco won the title from Carter March 5, 1954, and lost it from Chavez on his next time out, Nov. 17 of that year.

Voyles Thinks Riders Can Win



HAMILTON (CP) — There's one man in Hamilton who thinks Ottawa Rough Riders may have a win coming up in the Big Four.

He's coach Carl Voyles of the Tiger-Cats. Voyles agrees that the Tiger-Cats did a terrific job of defeating Riders 23-12, 40-0 and 28-1 in their last three games, but the next one Voyles thinks will be different.

Voyles said Monday night he figures now that Ottawa have a new assistant coach in Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts, and in spring a new offence against TiCats this Saturday in Ottawa.

"With Roberts helping to coach Ottawa," I expect to see the formation used by New York Giants. It's a variation of a single wing, run from a modified version of the unbalanced line."

Roberts, said Voyles, gained more than 300 yards in one game for the Giants off the formation.

"It's really a beautiful thing to see. They played golf together all summer and they're still friends!"

Doubts Vancouver 1957 Host City For Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP)—It is not likely Vancouver will be host to the Grey Cup football classic in 1957, G. Sydney Halter, commissioner of the Western interprovincial Football Union, said here Monday.

Halter said in an interview that the western city's lack of "adequate first-class accommodation . . . is a powerful argument against" the Grey Cup alternating yearly between the East and West.

"Many people I know in Winnipeg who have been constant Grey Cup attenders have simply thrown up their hands and quit at the lack of accommodation."

"There has been no real declaration, but if I can judge, the East is prepared to put up a tremendous fight against the game coming to the West every other year."

LIONS REPLY

Halter's statements drew an immediate answer from Dan Maclean, president of the B.C. Lions, who said the commissioner was "away out of line."

"We had a hard fight to bring the Grey Cup out here and now here is a western man—and the commissioner at that—running down the effort," Maclennie said.

He said members of the Lions who attended the Toronto Grey Cup last year stayed in motels "20 or 30 miles away."

V. Ben Williams, chairman of the housing committee, said he could not understand Halter's statement.

"We are still getting good accommodation for any people requesting it," he said.

Approve Winter Golf Schedule

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Representatives of sponsors of winter golf tournaments and the Professional Golfers Association Monday night approved a schedule for the winter tour and tentative plans for a fall tour down the Pacific coast.

The winter tour will open Jan. 6-9 with the $30,000 Los Angeles Open to be followed by the $15,000 Crosby Invitational Jan. 12-15.

The San Diego Open, normally held after the Crosby tourney, will be a given a date on the proposed fall tour.

Bob Lracox of Kansas City, schedule coordinator for the PGA, said the proposed fall tour probably will begin in Vancouver, B.C., early in September with Spokane, Seattle and Portland as possible sites of other tournaments. A tourney is planned at San Francisco with the tour winding up at San Diego early in October.

"All the tournaments presently on the schedule will be rescheduled," he said.

WINS CLOSE ONE

NEW YORK (AP)—Artie Towne of New York, who has been fighting in Europe for the last year, won a split decision in his ninth Savage Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena. Towne is one which neither showed any particular inclination to force the action. Towne weighed 161 pounds, Savage 152.

Chief Justice Will Set Date For Case Review

OTTAWA (CP) —Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin Thursday will set a date for a Supreme Court of Canada review of the bizarre case of convicted murderer Wilbert Coffin.

The attorney general of Canada Monday served notice on counsel for the 44-year-old prospector and the Quebec attorney general's department that a notice of motion seeking a date for the hearing would be placed before a judge of the court Saturday. However, Supreme Court officials said today all parties have agreed that the motion be heard Thursday.

The motion will be heard in chambers by Chief Justice Kerwin. Besides setting a date for the review, he also will make a ruling on the type of material to be placed before the court for review.

Coffin's scheduled Oct. 21 execution has been postponed until Dec. 2 to permit the Supreme Court hearing. He was convicted to death Aug. 5, 1954, for the murder of Richard Lindsay, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., one of three American bear hunters found dead in the Lake Mistassini area in 1953.

LIMITED REVIEW

The court's review of the case will be confined to questions of law, justice department officials said. No consideration will be given to new evidence claimed by the defence in a sworn statement, to Solicitor-General Macdonald.

In Quebec City Monday Solicitor-General Rivard described as "unheard of" the cabinet's directive ordering a review of the case by view of the case. The reference asks what the court would do if it have reached if a recent application by Coffin for leave to appeal had been granted by Mr. Justice Abbott, statement, justice department of-

Commenting on Mr. Rivard's ficials said Section 55 of the Supreme Court Act makes it possible for the cabinet to refer any matter to the Supreme Court.

Belleville West Section WMS Rally Held in Grace Church, Trenton

The autumn rally of Belleville West section of the Woman's Missionary Society of Belleville Presbyterial, United Church of Canada, was held in Grace Church, Trenton, last Friday, with both afternoon and evening sessions well attended, despite the inclement weather.

The program was planned and presided over by Mrs. G. J. Miniely of Trenton, 2nd. vice-president of Belleville Presbyterial with Mrs. G. A. Frost, acting as secretary.

WORSHIP SERVICES

"Our High Calling" was the theme throughout the worship services for both afternoon and evening sessions. Members of River Valley Auxiliary conducted the afternoon devotionals. Mrs. J. Bush and Mrs. Ross Bush gave the Bible lesson and prayer, while the solo list was Mrs. George Heasman, accompanied at the organ by her daughter, Grace.

Evening worship was in charge of Grace church women, Mrs. N. Ruckstuhl and Mrs. Elsie Fowler. Mrs. Ruckstuhl gave a talk "I'm in My Task," with Mrs. Lenna Baker as accompanist.

On behalf of Grace church W. M. S. Auxiliaries, Evening and Afternoon, Mrs. Martin Boone extended a hearty welcome to the visiting ladies.

PROGRAM

The work of three departments was stressed. Mrs. Clayton Tice, of Wellington, secretary of Mission program, Social Welfare, Racial Brotherhood, World Peace as well as Temperance.

Very often only the latter is stressed. She suggested that secretaries keep a diary of interesting events of the year's program and use it in the report at the end of the year. A new book from the Department of Evangelism and Social Service, "Fellowship or Friction" is recommended.

Literature was reviewed by the secretary, Mrs. Pierce Ayers, of Picton. The new study is on Home Mission work among the Scottish and Irish people in Canada, the Canadian Indians and Immigrants. These are of special interest to the church and a great responsibility.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Tilloth Elliott, president of the Belleville Presbyterial, and her address was the highlight of the afternoon session. Miss Brown was a WMS missionary in China for some 30 years, but since the Communists moved in she has been stationed at Hong Kong, where she had an exceedingly busy life, but her chief interest has been in Christian literature for Chinese people, as author, administrator, and translator, and her work has been outstanding.

In the form of a "Panel" discussion with several auxiliary members, Miss Brown answered questions concerning her work at Hong Kong. She served on the Council of Christian Literature for Overseas Chinese, to which she was loaned by the WMS of the United Church of Canada.

The church in China knew Communism was coming and needed herself to prevent extinction; but soon it became evident that the Communists did not want to destroy the churches but had a subtle plan to control and use them. The Christians were told, "Religion is free," but the government used so much pressure that there was absolutely no freedom, and within four months all her Communism took over, names of all missionary institutions were completely wiped out. No one can say what is in store for the Christian church in China, but certainly it will hold the church in good stead in their hearts and surroundings as they face a new revival. Meanwhile, there is great opportunity for work among Chinese outside of China.

"Since 1949, there have been 1200 young Chinese who came to Canada and today many non-Christian Chinese are entering. We must watch what we do. We speak better than what we say. How we treat Chinese people over here gets back to those over there. There is a future for Christian missionaries from Canada and the younger churches are asking for them and warmly welcoming them in Japan, Hong Kong, Formosa and Africa. A strong Christian faith is the strongest weapon to combat Communism."

Mrs. J. W. Spafford, past president of Bay of Quinte Branch, closed the afternoon with prayer.

The bountiful supper served by the women of Grace Church was greatly appreciated. Among those present were Mrs. and Mrs. P. Sprague, celebrating that day their 50th wedding anniversary, and best wishes were extended to them.

Mrs. P. Jones gave a short outline of interesting books for the coming year and urged all auxiliaries to purchase the "Book Shelf."

MORNING SESSION

Mrs. Miniely welcomed those in attendance, many of whom were members of the Evening Auxiliaries and following the worship service, Mrs. L. Elliott again presided over the business session, the guest speaker.

Mrs. R. C. Coulter of Belleville, Christian Stewardship secretary and Mrs. E. W. Jones, of Belleville, the literature secretary, sending pointers on Christian stewardship. The latter's worship was would have no WMS. Systematic giving is on the increase, and there is a practical tithing. The system of budgeting, explained and a quarterly survey shown. Let there be no spending of a dollar to others causes. Many cuts in the work have to be made each year because of lack of sufficient funds.

The treasurer, Mrs. Jones, urged all members to pay their life members. She also explained the plan of giving memorials. In Memorian certificates instead of flowers for WMS members deceased, the money to apply on the allocation of the auxiliary. "It is indeed of a steward that he be found faithful."

Mrs. [illegible], candidate secretary in the church and the call goes out to all church women to help in finding those who might fill these needs. There is a great shortage of teachers, social workers, nurses, doctors and evangelists in Angola, India, Korea, Japan and Northern Rhodesia. In Canada there are 50 requests for nurses in Home Missions. What can be done to help find those who will fill these needs?

CLOSING

"I am thrilled to return to Canada after an absence of six years," said Miss Brown, "I am proud of Canada. I am thankful for prayers and financial support which made my work of those years possible. I am somewhat bewildered at the many changes and all the new gadgets and new conveniences. After living in a small island as congested as Hong Kong, with its three million people, the wide open spaces and distances I have travelled here rather dazz me.

CANADA'S PLENTY

"In Canada how fitting are the words of the hymn, "He crowneth thee with goodness, with plenty and with peace." Abundance is seen on every side. Always when there guns only 22 miles away are pointed toward Hong Kong, and TB is rampant because so many are on the verge of starvation. Now I have the thrills of my country. I came when I received from the United Church some of the envelopes from their "Food for the Hungry" drive and because of that I was able to see

There was some be, but little expectation, that all is would result in an intelligible statement of some kind.

The Liberal nespaper, the Montreal Herald, commenting the members of Parliament "are frankly puzzled by the way the affair has been handled," says in an editorial:

"If a marriage ises, they ask, why not announce it quickly? If it doesn't, why not announce it, allow the couple continue to meet without a clot denial of the rumors?"

The Associated ress reported that the public appeared to be suffering from a slight case of nerves."

Things were widespread whispers that, under increasing pressure, she might decide after all to give up her RoyalAir Force hero, the 2 ft. soldier.

WERE AT DINNER

The couple spent five hours together Monday night at dinner in the apartment of wealthy prominent Mark Bonham Carter and Mrs. Bonham Carter, who is a niece of Winston Churchill and Nast, American magazine publisher.

Reporters hanging outside found Townsend much more serious and brusque than on his arrival around 7 p.m. The princess left, alone and unaccompanied, a few minutes after midnight and was driven to Clarence House.

Townsend came out half an hour later accompanied by Bonham Carter and a former escort of the princess—who drove the group to the apartment of his London hostess, Marquis of Abergavenny. Townsend has been staying with him.

"I am going home; I have no answers for you," was all Townsend would say to reporters.

London newspapers, previously convinced that the couple's marriage was in the works, now show signs of having second thoughts.

The Daily Mirror publishes four unsmiling photographs of her, under the headline "Is She Sad?"

The Daily Sketch asks: "Why did the princess look so sad?"

The Daily Herald describes her eyes as "sad and sombre."

DISEASE RUMORS

There have been rumors that the Rev. Townsend, Anglican spiritual head of the Church of England, would denounce publicly any plan for the princess to wed Townsend, because of the church's stand on divorce. However, a member of his staff told a reporter Monday night:

"There is no intention of the archbishop ever saying anything on this subject."

Physicians, along with other members of the Royal Family, will be at Clarence House all day at the archbishop's London residence, Lambeth Palace. The guest list also includes all bishops of the church.

Other Provinces Fail to Understand Says Treasurer

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Dana Porter of Ontario said Monday that it is boring to hear the recent federal-provincial talks at Ottawa a failure before "a final word is written."

Addressing a Progressive Conservative rally Mr. Porter said: "We are hopeful that when the final decisions are made, there will be an equitable distribution of tax resources for all of the provinces."

Mr. Porter said other provinces failed to "understand Ontario's growing financial problems.

"They think we're too rich," he said. "That's not entirely true."

Ontario pressed for a greater share of corporation, income and succession duties from the federal treasury because of fast-growing needs of rising municipalities, he said.

Mr. Porter said Ontario is aware that all provinces should receive benefits from the federal revenue but that Saskatchewan, for instance, does not use the great corporation taxes leaving its area for Ottawa as does Ontario.

Truce Supervision Spokesman Denies Paper Report

JERUSALEM (AP) — A United Nations truce supervision spokesman today denied a London report by Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations has asked to take diplomatic action with Egypt following an incident Sunday, in which Egyptian troops allegedly fired on two UN observers.

The spokesman report said Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian chief of the UN truce team, had asked Hammarskjold 'to bring the matter up with Egypt's UN delegation.

"That's not true," said the spokesman. "We expressed our feelings, amounting to a strong protest, but it is not the task of Gen. Burns to recommend to the UN secretary-general what specific action should be taken in such circumstances. It is up to Hammarskjold to decide on what seems to be appropriate."

It is, however, believed in other political circles here that the protest will be passed to Egyptian authorities via the Egyptian UN delegation.

HARTLAND CHARGE

TORONTO (CP)—Two Toronto brothers will know Monday whether they are to spend the rest of their lives in prison on charges of being habitual criminals. Max and Louis Beaver, who together have served 41 years in prison, face possible life sentences if convicted.

Boy, 10, Is Forger

COOKSVILLE (CP) — Police said a 10-year-old boy forged his grandfather's signature to a $30 pension cheque and went on a weekend spending binge here. The boy had written a letter to the storekeeper saying his grandfather was sick in bed. He was reminded to juvenile court.

WEIGH MOVING TRUCKS

TEAR GAS ROUTS ALLEGED MURDERER

Tear gas thrown in a shack in the bush country north of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., led to the surrender of Percy Olmstead, above, to provincial policeman Bob Metcalfe. Olmstead was wanted on a charge of murder following the discovery of the bodies of his wife and three children in their burned home near Sturgeon Falls. He said defiantly he would not be taken alive. To obtain food and ammunition for his rifle, he held up his-partner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jarrett, when they disappeared into the bush. In the manhunt that followed, citizens aided police as shack after shack was searched in the dense Ontario bush. (Central Press Canadian).

BREWERY

The chief points in dispute are union demands contained in a proposed agreement to be none of the union's business.

These are a demand that the brewery supply how many men shall work on each operation, and that there be no reduction in the number of employees unless the union is consulted.

The union wants the right to determine from whom the company may purchase its supplies and a demand that its permission be obtained before hiring contractors for maintenance work.

WANTS STANDARD HOURS

The union also demands of Brewers' Warehousing standard above hours of from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. for the whole province. At present The union wants Brewers' Warehousing to refuse to sell beer of any brewery whose workers are on strike and to refuse to deliver any beer to hotels whose workers are on strike.

In addition the union wants the

Did Not Know Woman Was Mother of 3

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today they would not have jailed Mrs. Gertrude Trillo, who hanged herself in her cell, if they had known she was the mother of three young children.

Mrs. Trillo, 35, and her husband, Rocco Trillo, were booked on a $10 shoplifting charge Monday after police charged they had stolen underwear from the counters of a downtown store. Police said they recently came to Canada from Italy.

Mrs. Trillo ripped up bed sheets to make a rope an hour later and hanged herself.

Police said Mrs. Trillo was unable to speak English. Her shouts and cries in Italian probably conveyed the plight of the children at home, detectives said. The youngest child is 15 months old.

After Mrs. Trillo hanged herself, an interpreter finally came to the station. The husband told police about the children through the interpreter after his wife's death and was released on his own bail on a week's remand.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A construction elevator plunged nine storeys Monday and although R. L. Reid came out of it a mess, he said he was lucky.

The companies said the main issue appears to be the union's demand to take over functions which they feel are none of the union's affair.

French Premier Again Is Victor In Assembly Vote

Approval Given His Plans For Reforms in Algeria

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—Twice victor in National Assembly votes on his North African policies, Premier Edgar Faure now appears able to look forward to a month's respite from parliamentary attack.

The premier won his latest victory Tuesday night with a 308-to-284 vote of confidence from the assembly on his plans for restoring order and promoting political reforms in Algeria. The 24-vote margin surprised even his most optimistic supporters.

Nine days earlier he had carried off an even more surprising 417-to-140 endorsement of his Moroccan policies.

Each time the premier came back from what looked like certain defeat. Each time he won a boost from special circumstances, but his own nimble parliamentary footwork also contributed to his successes.

WORK ON PLANS

With the two voting hurdles behind him, Faure now should be able to concentrate on applying the reform principles for Morocco and Algeria which the assembly approved.

The assembly's work schedule has not been set, but it is certainly unlikely that any debates dangerous for the government will be scheduled until after the Geneva meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers. The conference opens Oct. 27, and is expected to continue three or four weeks.

Faure's troubles are far from over, however. A big segment of his support has slipped away, and his enemies are waiting only for an opportune moment to give him the ax. He got a number of votes Tuesday from deputies who said they opposed his policies but hesitated to plunge France into another government crisis now.

SULTAN RETURNS

The government's Moroccan program already is launched, with ex-Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef Moulay Arafa in retirement in the international zone of Tangier and a pro-Western sultan in power under control exercising his powers. Still to be created are the offices of a representative Moroccan government and negotiation of a new Moroccan treaty agreement giving the protectorate a measure of self-rule.

The government has no such concrete program for Algeria, under the French constitution a part of European France despite the Mediterranean between. About 9,000,000 Moslems have not considered military action against terrorist bands which have been operating during the rest of the year with representatives of all factions in the government and the French Union. Faure's government pledged co-existence among the less than 1,000,000 European settlers and the Moslems living in the territory.

DRIVER CONVICTED

KITCHENER (CP) — Bruce Sweetzer, 28, of St. Marys was given a year of probation on a criminal negligence in connection with the death of a man who was a passenger in Sweetzer's convertible. Chief Justice J. C. McRuer committed Sweetzer to next Monday for sentence. Evidence was that Alfred Grady of London, Ont., died in hospital of injuries suffered when Sweetzer's car left the road on a sharp curve near New Hamburg on Sept. 5.

Annie McFarlane Instantly Killed Near Milltown

Mrs. Annie McFarlane, 81, of Shannonville, was instantly killed and James O'Ray, 65, also of Shannonville, was critically injured Tuesday night when they were struck by a car as they crossed No. 2 highway two miles east of Milltown.

The accident occurred after Mrs. McFarlane and Mr. O'Ray had got out of a car on the south side of the highway and were crossing the road to Mrs. McFarlane's home. They were struck by a westbound car driven by Lance Corporal Fergus James McKeigan of Kingston.

The driver of the oncoming car applied his brakes and the car skidded sideways, the left side of the auto striking the two persons knocking them to the highway.

Provincial Police Cpl. Roy Kowal and Constable Jacques investigated.

1,200 Brewery Workers Ready For Strike Action

TORONTO (CP) — Twelve-hundred employees of Canadian Breweries Ltd. in five Ontario cities are scheduled to go on strike at midnight Friday unless a settlement is reached in their contract dispute with the company.

Negotiations were scheduled to be resumed at 9 a.m. in an attempt to avert the walkout and hotels in the province were reported to be stocking up on beer as the strike deadline approached.

The strike will affect employees of O'Keefe's, Carling's Dow-Kingsbeer, Brading's and Canadian Breweries Limited in Toronto, Waterloo, Hamilton, Toronto and Ottawa.

Employees at the Carling's plant in Toronto and O'Keefe's, Brading's and Canadian Breweries Transport in Ottawa have signed a new contract giving them increased benefits which the company said totals 18 cents an hour for the first year and 23 cents an hour for the second year.

Basic pay at the other plants is $1.66 an hour.

The United Brewery Workers Union (CIO-CCL) is demanding a 15-cent - an - hour wage increase, a shorter work week, standard rates for certain managerial functions and other contract issues.

In a separate dispute with Brewers' Warehousing Ltd. it threatened to call out 1,000 drivers, clerks and warehousemen throughout the province by Oct. 31 unless their demands for a new contract are met. The demands are substantially the same as those made of Canadian Breweries Ltd.

It is understood negotiations on a Brewers' Warehousing contract will be held up until the outcome of the Canadian Breweries negotiations is known.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Continued slow improvement in the weather is the prompt for today and Thursday in Ontario. While some sun will break through the cloud today, it is expected that Thursday will be mostly sunny except in the northwest where cooler cloudy weather is jigsled for. Elsewhere temperatures will remain about the same, reaching about 60 in the afternoon.

FIND NUDE BODIES OF THREE BOYS IN CHICAGO DITCH

Trio on Way to Movies Strangled, Mutilated

CHICAGO (AP)—State, county and city police today pressed their widest investigation of its kind in the quarter of a century since the Loeb-Leopold case as they sought to solve the ghastly slaying of three young boys whose naked, mutilated bodies were found Tuesday piled in a forest ditch.

Authorities called the crime one of the most grisly acts in Chicago history, and blamed it on either a madman or a gang of vicious youths.

The boys—Robert Peterson, 14, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother Anton, Jr., 11—were strangled and beaten, apparently Sunday night, a few hours after they set out from their hoffits for a movie.

Their bodies, with legs intermingled, were discovered Tuesday in Robinson Woods, just outside Chicago's northwest limits.

SEEK CLUES

A hundred law officers scoured the woods for clues which might point to the murderer or murderers. Other police were tracing movements of the youngsters from the time they left their middle class neighborhood.

An autopsy indicated that the boys had been dead 36 to 40 hours before their bodies were discovered, but that they had not been molested sexually at the time.

However, Dr. Harry R. Hoff, man, an associate of the Cook County clinic, said: "The person who could commit such an act on this one to whom the act itself is a gratification of the sex urge."

Coroner Walter E. McCarron called it "the work of a madman" and a gang of older boys. He theorized from marks and dirt on the bodies that the boys were held captive in "some filthy place" bound, and gagged with strips of adhesive tape, and then dumped in the forest preserve.

The victims had been slashed across the head 14 times with what appeared to have been an axe or hatchet.

The coroner's office said the bodies indicated the boys were on their faces with what appeared to be the flat side of a knife. But Jerry Kearns, coroner's pathologist, who examined the bodies, said strangulation caused the death of all three.

SOS Brings Rescuing 'Copter

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A huge U.S. Air Force helicopter served rescued a rescuing helicopter, to five men in the snowy wilderness of northern British Columbia Tuesday.

The men, members of a seismographic crew, were in good condition today in hospital at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory. They are Glenn Hammerstrom of Regina, Jean Lesage of Montreal, George Race and Alex Steinbach, both of Hamilton, and John Copeland of Vancouver, whose home is unknown.

In another northern rescue Tuesday, pilot Howard Fowler of Stewart Mr. Ralph Lapp, a consultant to at Meziadin Lake, B.C., was flown to safety. He was found with his plane of this northern B.C. port. He said he was forced down in the lake, 40 miles from Stewart, to ride out bad weather.

U.S. Atomic Scientists Discover Particle Which Annihilates Matter

By RENNIE TAYLOR

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Atomic science has taken another big step forward with discovery of a particle which annihilates the basic unit of all matter.

The discovery was made in experiments during the 1955 operation of California's biggest atom smasher, the bevatron. It was announced publicly Monday night by Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence, famed atomic scientist, and the U.S. Atomic States Atomic Energy Commission, which finances the 89,500,000 machine.

The new particle, sought for a generation by researchers, is the anti-proton. Although it is a powerful annihilator of matter, it constitutes no threat as a superweapon, no new hazard to the world.

Instead, it opens up the way for exciting new discoveries about the nature of matter. Conceivably some of these may lead to great new sources of power—and to new cures for disease.

Its immediate value, said Lawrence, is that it clears up some of the uncertainties in the theory of the subatomic particles. The neutron, he added, it is comparable to the filling in a key word in a cross-word puzzle—it permits the operator to go ahead.

The anti-proton, a nuclear physicist said discovery of the anti-proton opens up prospects of releasing, in controlled fashion, vastly greater energy from the atom than now is possible by the fission process.

The physicist said the discovery improves the chances of tapping energy from the nuclear bread of the atom by an "annihilation process" rather than by fission or "atom-splitting."

Pearson Not Sure He Wants 'Risky Role of Interpreter'

By C. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SINGAPORE (CP) — Canada's external affairs minister said today that he is "not sure" he wants any desires to take on "the risky role of interpreter" in the tension between Russia and the United States.

L. B. Pearson, here for the Colombo plan conference after a visit to Russia, told the Singapore Rotary Club at a luncheon that one Russian official had suggested quite bluntly that the Soviet Union that Canada's geographic position should make it the "ham in the sandwich" between the U.S. and Russia. To that deputy premier V. M. Kaganovich had suggested that a "bridge" would be a better description of the Canadian position.

"I think we have some qualifications for explaining the American point of view to the Russians, I ward trek.

and I once or twice had the opportunity to attempt this during my visit.

"But I doubt of many Canadians —not I certainly—feel qualified to explain Soviet policies, motives, tactics and actions to our American friends."

Later, talking to reporters, he recalled that he told Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow that Canada would be glad to try to be such a bridge.

Pearson said he had had no change of feeling about the matter —just the recognition that it would be a tough assignment and one perhaps needing more experience with the Russians.

Pearson leaves Sunday for Kuala Lumpur, capital of the new Federated Malay States.

From Kuala Lumpur the party flies to Calcutta, visiting India, Pakistan and Egypt on the homeward trek.

Strengthening American Area Discussed at NATO Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Strengthening of the North American area within NATO was discussed by defence ministers of the 15 NATO countries at Paris, Defence Minister Campney said today.

He told reporters on his return from the conference that no serious suggestion was put forward at last week's meeting concerning any shift of armed forces within NATO.

Such a shift might come in the future, perhaps when the Germans many was rearmed, he said in an airport interview.

Mr. Campney said the smaller European members of NATO apparently didn't previously know what Canada and the United States were doing about North American development.

Butler Will Present Special Budget to Stop Inflation

LONDON (AP) — Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler will present a special budget next Wednesday in his drive to halt inflation, it was announced tonight.

The budget will be brought in a day after Parliament reconvenes for the summer recess. A statement from 10 Downing street, residence of Prime Minister Eden, said:

"It is proposed that the chancellor of the exchequer should make a statement to the House of Commons on Wednesday, Oct. 26 in the committee of ways and means on certain proposals for a supplementary budget."

It said Butler's statement will cover a series of economic measures, some of which will need to be given effect in legislation. This was taken as an indication that the changes would be included.

Ordinarily the chancellor presents one budget a year—usually in April. The last emergency autumn budget was presented by the late Sir Stafford Cripps in 1947.

Says Reds Will Be to Blame For Any Arab-Israeli War

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Israel's premier and foreign minister, Moshe Sharett, said today that responsibility for any possible war between Israel and the Arab states would lie at Russia's doorstep.

Sharett, winding up a foreign affairs debate in the Israeli parliament, said it was Premier Bulganin nor Czechoslovak militarist that the recent arms deal between the two countries was concluded.

He accused Russia of the first step in supplying arms to Egypt for Egypt Soviet-bloc arms. Only afterwards was this deal "dressed in the mantle of a commercial transaction."

Sharett demanded arms for Israel and a Western defence pact to counteract Czechoslovakia's sale of arms to Egypt.

10 Million Pounds Surplus Butter May Be Sold

EDMONTON (CP)—Possible export of 10,000,000 pounds of surplus Canadian butter to Britain, Commonwealth countries, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Tuesday in an interview.

However, he said on arrival here he is unable to disclose the price or to whom the butter will be sold. It was purchased at 64 cents a pound under the federal government's butter-stockpile policy.

In Ottawa it was recalled the federal government has been considering several offers to buy surplus Canadian butter for export. The offer developed some months ago, shortly after Canada sold 300,000 pounds to Communist Czechoslovakia at a loss of about 27 cents a pound.

None of the offers was accepted because prices involved were considered too low.

BRITAIN, RUSSIA BACK YUGOSLAVIA FOR COUNCIL SEAT

Philippines Given Little Hope of Victory

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Yugoslavia today sent a note to all members of the United Nations General assembly formally announcing it was running as a "compromise" candidate against the Philippines for a seat on the security council.

The note was the first active step the Yugoslav delegation had taken to win the seat, although it received 28 votes to 29 for the Philippines on the first ballot. The Soviet bloc dropped Poland as a candidate.

But the Soviet bloc and Commonwealth countries are supporting Yugoslavia, while the United States still stands firmly behind the Philippines in what appeared to be a "holding fight."

SHARES THE SPIRIT

The Yugoslav note said:

"The Yugoslav delegation have expressed the desire to elect a compromise candidature to the security council after the deadlock between the Philippines and Poland and have proposed Yugoslavia as such a candidate.

"Yugoslavia, sharing the spirit in which this proposal was made, has decided to accept it and consider itself a candidate for the security council."

The general assembly prepared for the compromise's second round in the deadlocked contest as emissaries from 60 countries met in UN corridors trying to muster enough voter for the required two thirds majority.

UN circles felt that the Philippine-American delegation's faded after British passed word she was openly supporting Yugoslavia. A British spokesman denied reports that his delegation was openly campaigning for Belgrade, but several diplomats said they had been approached.

U.S. ASK SUPPORT

Informed sources said the British delegation leaders acted despite repeated appeals by U.S. officials that they back the Philippines.

Australia, New Zealand, Canada also would line up with Britain and give its vote to Belgrade.

The British announced support to Yugoslavia last Friday when Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan failed to win the seat after four ballots.

The U.S. interpreted Poland's defeat as a rebuff to Russia. Now Yugoslavia, with a far better victory would rebuff the U.S., which went all out in its campaign for the Philippines.

The fight over the council seat, held by Turkey, hinged mainly on the question of geographical distribution of seats.

Russia argued from the beginning that the seat should not go to an Asian country. Beginning in 1946 London big-power agreement, Asia controls the Far East European power. The U.S. insisted that this commitment held only for the first year and not permanently.

Princess Parted From Townsend By Royal Duty

Fail to See Each Other First Day Since Return

By RANALD MacLURKIN

LONDON (Reuters)—Royal duty today separated Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend for the first day since his arrival here last Wednesday from his diplomatic post in Brussels.

The petite princess flew to Willshire this morning to present new colors to an infantry battalion of which she is honorary colonel.

Margaret told the troops the world is experiencing a peace "full of anxiety and uncertainty."

"At no time, I am sure, has there been greater need for resolute and unwavering service," she said.

Townsend, whom rumor says Margaret will wed, today gave newspaper men the slip for the first time since his arrival from Brussels. On leaving his temporary home in Lowndes square he told waiting cameramen he would "probably be out all day and don't off alone to pursue his favorite hobby, bird-watching."

REPORTS DIFFER

Meanwhile, the London Evening Standard published a copyright report that the princess' "real attitude toward a Townsend-Margaret marriage has changed" since she forced his first wife.

The article says there is a difference of opinion in bishops themselves as to whether an "innocent party" to a divorce, the princess herself, should be allowed to remarry in church.

Written by Rev. C. O. Rhodes, editor of the Church of England newspaper, the article says that about half the clergy showed in a sample poll of opinion that it disagreed with the rule against remarriage.

A footnote to the article stresses that the newspaper is not an official church publication and its editor spoke for himself alone.

DINE WITH BISHOPS

The archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, primate of the Anglican Church and outspoken foe of remarrying divorced persons in church, will preside over Princess Margaret and other members of the royal family tonight.

Queen Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh, Queen Mother Elizabeth and Margaret will be the guests of the Anglican archbishops and bishops for a dinner party at Lambeth Palace, London home of the primate.

With the Queen's return to London Tuesday from her Scottish holiday at Balmoral, and the return of the Duke of Edinburgh from a tour of Canada, the immediate members of the Royal Family—those most directly concerned with Margaret's future—now are back in the capital.

Earlier today, in a pronouncement on the subject of divorce and remarriage, Archbishop Fisher said that although many second marriages were "appalling disasters" they could not take place in an Anglican Church.

WIFE IS LUNCH

Under church law the 25-year-old princess cannot marry the 40-year-old Townsend in church because, although the innocent party, he has been divorced and his first wife is still living.

U.S. Super-Bomb Could Destroy All Civilization

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Nuclear physicist Dr. Ralph Lapp yesterday asked the Atomic Energy Commission to lift its "pretence of secrecy," and allow free exchange of atomic information between scientists on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Dr. Lapp, a consultant to industry on atomic fission, said the United States has developed what he called a super-nuclear bomb that can produce radioactive fallout capable of destroying "all civilization."

It would be foolish to suppose, he said, that Russia is not able to produce such a bomb.

Dr. Lapp, who attended last summer's Geneva conference on atomic energy, spoke to the Amherst faculty last night and to science classes today.

He described exchange of atomic information as the biggest deterrent to global war.

Three Children Back to School By Court Order

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—A three-year court battle ended Tuesday when the three young children of Paul Emile Perron, a member of Jehovah's Witness sect, went back to school.

On Oct. 12 ruling by the Quebec Court of Appeal reversed an earlier judgment by a lower court and resulted in an order to the Rouyn Protestant school board to admit the children to the A. F. Crummey School.

Perron, a former Roman Catholic, renounced the faith in 1950 to become a Jehovah's Witness. Difficulties arose when he sent his children to the Protestant school in September, 1952.

School officials had refused to admit the children on the ground the sect was not a religion but an association."

Gnarled Hands of Eskimo Craftsmen Create Mace for North Pacific

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The gnarled hands of Eskimo craftsmen, hardened by labor, have created a beautiful ceremonial mace, symbol of parliamentary authority and a graceful, modern expression of native history and culture.

The delicately - balanced mace, fashioned of cold whalebone, the wood of a tragic ship, the gold of Yellowknife mines packed in Arctic old copper kettle, will become impressive addition to the Speaker of the west Territories' council — parliament of the north.

It will be presented to the nine-member council at its January sessions here by Governor-General Massey who conceived the idea, feeling legislators of the north should have a symbol of authority similar to those in the Parliaments of Canada and Westminster. Four of the council members are elected and five are government appointees.

Working steadily for 21 days in the tiny Cape Dorset hamlet in the southern tip of Baffin Island, the Eskimos showed astonishing skill in perfecting the 56-inch mace. The design was selected from a rough sketch prepared by James Houston, Canadian artist-administrator and expert, dispatched to the north to get the job done.

Great carver, Oshaweetuk, 55, of Cape Dorset did the main figures. A fellow elderly compatriot, Pitsulak, 50, did the crown. Six others pitched in to help.

Without mechanical instruments, they fashioned an Edward's crown of copper and copper wire, polished and perfectly balanced and hammered out of native copper found in the central Arctic. Copper from an old kettle left by Lapp herders also came in handy.

The orb of whalebone atop the crown is as round and smooth as a billiard ball.

Mass Selling Key to Success Says Speaker

North American sales ability and enthusiasm have played a major part in the continent's prosperity, G. Alec Pharo, managing director of R. C. Smith and Son Limited, Toronto advertising agency, said here last night.

Key to the success of this continent's salesmanship is that it sells to the masses, he told the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club.

"Mass selling made possible mass production and the two together mass credit," he said.

"Europeans wonder at the prosperity of this continent and fail to understand how it continues to progress," he said.

"What is it that our foreign critics have overlooked? Just one thing—North American salesmanship.

"The thing they have failed to grasp is our salesmanship on this continent is something unique.

"Our salesmanship has always been to the masses. And is why Europeans have failed to grasp what we have over here. There is no class. The whole thing is pitched to the classes, not the masses.

"Once only in European history was such an approach adopted in Europe—when Adolf Hitler had the promise of the Volkswagen car for every family. Hitler might have kept his promise, it provided the needed faciglity for the masses," Mr. Pharo said.

"Mass selling today holds out the promise of a higher life to those willing to work for it.

"There is also the incentive for even the shiftless to work," he claimed.

Direct result of such selling leading to mass production has been Canada's and North American continent has produced three times as much wealth since 1776 as the rest of the world from the beginning of time to that date, he said.

However, Mr. Pharo also was quick to point out that nothing is for granted in the economic life of the country. Today people are infatuated with their prosperity and are sitting back taking things easy.

"The time to enjoy abundant life is when the day's work is done, not when the day's work is going on."

"There are demanding more returns financially and otherwise, he said.

"And the crying shame is that we are getting it. As a result the Canadian people are a goods out of world markets.

Mr. Pharo was introduced by Phil Flagler and thanked by Larry Beck.

Winter Fishing Is Opposed

The Belleville Fish and Game Protective Association last night has passed a formal motion against winter fishing for speckled trout in the district's northern lakes.

Already similar organizations in the area have recommended the winter closing of northern lakes to lake trout fishermen to the Department of Lands and Forests. The Belleville Association linked itself with the recommendation last night.

There was a full attendance at the first fall meeting of the organization to hear Departments of Lands and Forests Officer Tom Whitfield report on an earlier survey of the rivers and lakes in this district.

Among other points of interest Mr. Whitfield's report showed use of lamprey spawning grounds found on the Salmon River about eight miles inland. In all there were about 60 nests of lamprey larvae discovered. When found the adult lamprey had left but the nests were "just crawling" with larvae, he reported.

"We may find other grounds in other places here. We are not sure yet," Mr. Whitfield said.

Since the lamprey is a great climber, he said that dams on the rivers may have to be modified to prevent their entry inland.

Three films on Nova Scotia also were shown the meeting.

JOHN KENNETH GREEN (Ameliasburg)

Resident of the first concession of Ameliasburg for the past 22 years, John Kenneth Green died suddenly early Monday morning in a general pit on the township's second concession yesterday. He was in his 47th year.

Resident in the district all his life, Mr. Green was born in Rawdon township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John G. Green. He had lived in Ameliasburg for 22 years before finally settling in Ameliasburg. A member of the Centre District Church he also was prominently identified with the Belleville office of steward of the church.

Mr. Green leaves his wife, the former Vivian Irene was one daughter, Sandra, and two sons, Wilbert and Ronald Eugene, all at home.

Also surviving are one sister, Mrs. Gerald Brooks, Stirling; two brothers, Clifford of Peterborough, and Gordon, of Harold.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

JOHN EDWARD CROSS (Marmora)

In his 80th year, John Edward Cross of Deloro, district postmaster of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday. Born 79 years of his life were lived in close proximity to the plant where for 41 years he was a valued employee, working there long there for nine years previously in the then old Its forerunner, Canadian Goldfields.

Cross was born in Toronto where his parents were employed. His father, John Cross, a native of Lancashire, England, had about one of his bride, Jane Taylor, a native of London, England. Following the employ of an American firm, which was laying the Grand Trunk railroad between Toronto and Belleville, the parents of Mr. Cross live-Toronto for a short time thereafter and then moved on to Madoc for a five months' sojourn. In 1882 they moved to Deloro. After finishing John Cross senior found employment on the Grand Trunk railway construction living on the farm of the late Thomas Murray and operating a boarding house there. At the time his son was ten, the family moved to the late Robert Murray's farm, a little north of Deloro. Years later he died in the conveyance of their furniture.

ASSISTED IN LOG CUTTING

At this early date John assisted his father in the cutting of logs for the Rathburn Company of those days on property of the Deloro Company adjacent to the Moira River at Deloro. After the property the Cross family moved to a residence by the Gold Gatling Mine at Deloro which later served as office for the now defunct Deloro Chemical Company. Affectionately Cross" as familiarly known to scores of acquaintances throughout life at the age of twenty forsook farming to follow in his father's footsteps and work for the Canadian Goldfields, first as laborer and then as tankman. He drew ore concentrates from the mill then situated by Moira C.N.R. Station to the Deloro plant. Later he drew the concentrates from the mill near the old plant laboratory to the site they were needed at the plant. In the period of the smelting of ore the property was taken over by the new company he was driver and horseman for the late Peter Kirkegaard general manager for twenty-two months.

Johnny entered the employ of the Smelting and Refining Company in 1905 as a construction workman. Later he was in turn fireman, Outlet Plant engineer, steamter's helper, truck driver's assistant and finally general laborer. On July 17, 1901 in the former St. Paul's Rectory, he was married by the late Canon C. M. Harris to Ada Emigh, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Emigh, Deloro also on October 10th, 1938. Ten of their family of 13 children survive, namely James and William Cross, Deloro; Lena, Belleville; Mrs. Russell Rosch (Alice) Belleville; Mrs. Harry Peck (Mary) Springbrook; Mrs. Murray Emery (Jean) Marmora township; Mrs. Harold Lowery (Gladys) Deloro; Mrs. Harry Gawley (Peggy) Belleville; Mrs. Clayton Smith (Stella) Marmora; and Mrs. William Clemens (Betty) Canniton. Also surviving are 34 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

The deceased was of genial disposition with a warm greeting for his many friends when meeting them. Out of his reminiscence came many interesting stories of Deloro's history. He was an Anglican in religion. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon leaving the residence of his son William at Deloro at 2.00 p.m. for service at St. Paul's Church at 2.30 p.m. conducted by Canon J. M. Brownlie.

Interment will be in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. CHARLES SHERWIN (Deloro)

Mrs. Charles Sherwin, of Hillier, died in Prince Edward County hospital, Picton, Wednesday, Oct. 19th, after having been in poor health for 1½ years. She was 78.

The deceased was born in Ontario, Ont., the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McKnight, and lived in Hillier for 44 years.

She was a member of Hillier United church.

Third High School Will Be Necessary Within Six Years Kiwanians Told by Principal

Within six years Belleville may have a third high school. At least, within that time it will be necessary, according to BCIVS principal, Arnold Orr.

"Will I shock you if I tell you within five or six years we will have a third high school in Belleville to house the 3,600 students we will have in the year 1961?" Mr. Orr asked members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly meeting here yesterday.

Tracing the growth of secondary school enrolment in Belleville through the years, Mr. Orr pointed out two years ago the number of high school pupils was 1,280, necessitating the building of a second high school in Belleville—the Quinte Secondary School with accommodation for 600 students.

Next year this school will be filled to capacity and already new plans are underway to build expansions to the school.

"Within a year if there are three educational problems facing Ontario today: (1) Accommodation for the rapidly growing number of pupils; (2) Sufficient supply of teachers, and, (3) The educational curriculum, or, what to teach.

Apropos the first situation, he noted in 1945 there were 110,000pupils in high schools; now with this had risen to 150,000. Ten years from now there will be well over 300,000. And, he added, if there is a business recession that figure will be considerably modified.

The shortage of teachers is emphasized by the fact that the number of new teachers needed in Ontario will increase relatively from 740 this year to 1,140 in 1965.

He also noted that the impression was abroad that, apparently, that the Teachers' Federation was a "closed shop."

"We should think, rather, the Federation was only insisting on proper training for those who are doing everything it could to encourage more interest in the profession.

In elementary schools the situation, he said, was somewhat relieved by the return of many veteran married women teachers. But in secondary schools there was not the same reserve to call on.

SERIOUS SITUATION

"We don't know how that problem is going to be solved, but it is a serious situation," he said.

Regarding the problem of curriculum, Mr. Orr noted that "you can't please everybody, not when you have that type of situation.

"One thing is clear that our educational system is falling apart. We are making changes in it, yes," he added.

"Today parents and employers insist on results. Our standards with the result there are more students and a wider range of abilities. Therefore, it is necessary to provide a wider range of courses and subjects.

Discipline, too, has changed. Nowadays, it is more difficult for the parent will reciprocate on the discipline lacking handed out an errant pupil.

"Our general philosophy has broadened from passing years, but I do not think the general basis of it has changed very much," he told the club.

Mr. Orr was introduced by Jim Langford and thanked by Lawrence Kells.

Silver Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Last evening over 100 community friends, and those from Hamilton, Peterborough, Colborne, Shannonville, Belleville and surrounding district, met in Aikens' community hall to honor the silver wedding anniversary of an esteemed couple, Mr. Lee Grills, former reeve of Sidney township, and ex-warden of Hastings county and Mrs. Grills.

Mr. and Mrs. Grills were married 25 years ago in Shannonville at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan MacDonald, by the late T. W. Jones and the Rev. W. H. Clarke.

Mr. Malcolm Hamilton as master of ceremonies, provided a most delightful evening, with brief addresses by Mr. Fred Ash of Peterborough, Mr. Edgar Ray of Belleville and Mr. Orval Weaver, also of Belleville, who recounted some amusing incidents in the lives of the bride and bridegroom of 25 years ago.

Following a short program an address was read, and Mr. and Mrs. Grills were presented with an electric fryer and an electric tea kettle, as well as many other beautiful gifts for which they graciously expressed thanks and appreciation. They were also the recipients of many beautiful cards of congratulations and best wishes, including a letter from the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow and Mrs. Goodfellow.

Mr. and Mrs. Grills are active in both church and community work, which was reflected by the number of friends present to honor their musical talent to Aikens' church, whenever called upon to do so.

They have one daughter, Betty Jane, at home.

Bountiful refreshments, served by the ladies of the community, brought an enjoyable and auspicious evening to a close, enhanced by the good wishes of all for their 50th anniversary to come.

Tenants Have Received Notices To Vacate

Fuel to the speculation of several months that a new post office is to be built by the Federal government in the upper Pinnacle and Foundry street area, has been added recently with tenants of properties in this area having received notices to vacate.

Notices to vacate by April 1st, 1956, are said to have been received by businesses and tenants occupying property on both sides of Foundry street between Pinnacle and Church streets.

Rumor has it that a new building to house the post office and other government offices in the city, is to be colstructed in the above area.

However, there has been no official word from Ottawa of any building planned for the area and efforts of the local Chamber of Commerce to obtain information met with negative results.

Frank S. Follwell, M.P., for Hastings South, was today unable to give any further information on the subject other than to say nothing had been finalized.

Driving Ability Of Trucker Saves Bayside Man

Nelson Genereaux, 40, of Bayside, is a lucky man.

He escaped death late Tuesday night by inches thanks to a happy combination of luck and the driving ability of a Montreal transport driver.

While crossing the highway at Bayside, Genereaux stumbled and fell on the pavement as the big transport truck came on. The truck driver, Nocola Jaconelli of St. Hubert, Quebec, undertaking to by-pass the man and applied his brakes but could not stop in time.

So he swung the truck to allow the wheels to straddle the man on the highway and when the truck finally ground to a halt Genereaux was found beneath the truck completely unharmed. The only damage was to the heel of Genereaux's shoe which was run over by one of the truck wheels without injuring the man's foot.

FREED OF CHARGES

WHITBY (CP)—John Wiebe, 32, of Pickering was freed Tuesday of charges of manslaughter and dangerous driving. Evidence was that Wiebe was the driver of a car that fatally injured David Hood 37, Feb. 5. Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court directed a jury to bring in the acquittal verdict. He said there was reasonable doubt Wiebe was to blame.

Economic Study Of Nova Scotia Is Commenced

HALIFAX (CP) — The Gordon royal commission is here today to continue charting the course of Canada's economic future during the next quarter century.

During a three-day session, the seven man team of economists will hear briefs from such groups as the Nova Scotia government; steel, mine and marine workers' unions; the Nova Scotia government; steel, Company; the Dominion Steel and Coal Company and Fairey Aviation.

Newfoundlands Premier Smallwood told the commission in St. John's Tuesday his province would secede from Confederation rather than have its people become second-class citizens.

Mysterious Blast Injures Two, Four Forced to Flee

KINGSTON (CP) — Investigators today still were searching for the cause of a mysterious blast which Tuesday night rumbled through a three-storey apartment building on this city's main street.

Two persons were injured and four others forced to flee when flames shot through the building after an explosion in the basement.

Ernest Muller, 28, a second-floor resident, suffered burns when his clothes caught fire as he escaped. Det.-Sgt. Bill Code suffered minor cuts. Muller was admitted to hospital.

Muller's wife and son, Abbie, 5, and Mrs. Robert Morrison, 26, and her son, Michael, 4, escaped through a window. Police said Muller was replacing a fuse in the basement when the blast hit him.

Dolan's leather shop on the first floor and the upstairs apartment were reduced to a shambles. The blast shattered a restaurant plate glass window 60 feet across the street.

Firemen said a similar blast occurred in Kingston Oct. 8 when basement floors in two houses were ripped apart and six persons injured.

Donald Ross, city works commissioner, said today the explosion was "definitely not in the sewers." He said sewers found leading to the building were checked today and found in good condition.

Fire chief V. C. Brighiman said the explosion was probably caused by gas leaking from a line. Firemen battled the flames 20 minutes before bringing them under control.

Montreal By-Law On Store Closing Ruled Invalid

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today unanimously ruled that a Montreal city by-law requiring stores to stay closed on certain Roman Catholic holy days is invalid.

The court, in a judgment read by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, granted the appeal of seven large Montreal retail stores which had challenged the by-law and the provincial statute on which it is based. The ruling upset the decision of the Quebec Court of Appeals which had decided in a split three to two vote that the by-law and provincial statute were constitutional.

Federal Cabinet To Rush Decision On Cash Advances

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said today the cabinet will immediately discuss proposals for providing cash advances on farm-held prairie grain as "an urgent matter."

He made that comment to reporters on entering a cabinet meeting, but he merely shrugged when asked to amplify on the nature of federal plans and to indicate how soon a final decision may be reached.

A prairie delegation, headed by the agriculture ministers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, appealed to Mr. St. Laurent Oct. 11 for federal assistance in providing loans to western farmers unable to market huge quantities of grain still on their farms.

HURT ECONOMY

The delegation said that unless farmers are able to get some cash soon the prairie economy may be hurt. Saskatchewan and Manitoba tax collections were dropping, affecting the provincial ability to operate. A decline in prairie economic strength could spread through other parts of the country, the delegation maintained.

Mr. St. Laurent said after the Oct. 11 meeting that the government may make up its mind on the prairie appeal in a reasonably short time.

While he declined to outline today what the cabinet may consider it is understood one federal plan is to revive legislation under which the government guaranteed a portion of bank loans to prairie farmers putting up farm-held grain as security.

Three Witnesses Fail to Identify Slayer at Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Three witnesses to the fatal shooting of Natale Brigante said Tuesday they could not identify Paola Violi, 24, as the slayer during his trial for manslaughter.

Violi is charged in connection with the death of Brigante here May 24.

Violi was arrested in Welland where he had entered hospital with a deep knife wound in the chest after Brigante, his friend, was found dead in the sidewalk near a west-end Toronto intersection. Brigante's own stiletto was lying beside the body.

Douglas St. Pierre, 21, of Toronto, told the court he was standing directly across the street when the shooting occurred.

He said a man ran into a service station lot with Brigante running behind him. Suddenly the man in front turned and fired four shots, St. Pierre said.

Two men who said they were seated in a car close by the scene were also called as witnesses. Neither identified Violi as the slayer.

The trial is continuing.

Help Offered Toronto Italian

TORONTO (CP) — Benvenuto Trillo and his three motherless children are discovering that Toronto isn't such a bad place after all.

Job offers and financial help for the family have started to come in since Trillo's 35-year-old wife hanged herself in her jail cell Monday after she and her husband were arrested on a $10 shoplifting charge.

Police discovered the family had been getting along on an income of between $28 and $30 a week. A construction firm offered Trillo a better paying job, starting immediately.

The Trillo family came to Canada from the Frosinone district near Rome nine months ago. Trillo has been working as a bricklayer's helper.

Zebra-Skin Upholstery Steals Show

LONDON (AP)—Britain's annual automobile show opened today with Lady Norah Docker's latest whimsy—to nobody's surprise—stealing the spotlight.

The publicity-conscious Lady Norah, whose husband owns the big Daimler works, showed her new gold-plated coupe upholstered in six zebra skins.

"I decided zebra would be best," Lady Docker confided to reporters. "Mink is too hot to sit on."

Sir Bernard said the new toy cost £15,000.

Other wise manufacturers showed few new models, concentrating instead on improving existing makes.

PRINCESS PARTED

Townsend called on the princess at Clarence House Tuesday afternoon and stayed about an hour and a half. Later Margaret went off alone to a cocktail party given by the RAF Cinema Corporation at a west end hotel.

Townsend was not at the party, where the princess, sipping a pink gin and soda and smoking cigarets from a long black holder, chatted about films.

Prime Minister Eden Tuesday night had an 85-minute audience with the Queen at Buckingham Palace following a cabinet meeting earlier in the day. The audience lasted longer than the usual weekly meeting between the Queen and her first minister, but no statement followed.

If anything was raised touching the princess' future, Eden will have an opportunity to discuss the matter with his government colleagues at another cabinet meeting called for Thursday.

Woman Says Pregnancy Gives Taste for Theft

MONTREAL (CP)—A judge today pondered a tearful woman suspects statement that pregnancy gives her a taste for theft.

Mrs. Bosse, sobbing, had pleaded guilty to theft of $25 worth of baby clothes and toys. She was remanded until Thursday.

Mother of two children, aged two years and eight months respectively, Mrs. Bosse said she is expecting another child and pregnancy gives her a weakness for shoplifting.

PEARSON MORE THAN INTERPRETER

External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson's trip to Moscow has been greeted almost unanimously by the press as "worthwhile" even if results are still nebulous.

The Washington Post and Times Herald, in lauding Mr. Pearson's visit, goes editorially that he went as a spokesman for a country which "is playing an increasingly important role as an interpreter's house."

This is a most unfortunate conclusion.

Canada has been "a bridge between the United Kingdom and the United States," "an interpreter of America to Europe," "an interpreter of Europe to America," in diplomatic speeches at least, for decades. Now, it seems that the extent of Canada's emergence in international affairs is to be reduced again to "playing an increasingly important role as an interpreter's house."

This is ridiculous. In this connection it has been pointed out incisively by Professor Frank R. M. Lower of Queen's University, that "a bridge is something to be walked on." As for the role of interpreter, what is it?

London and Washington understand one another perfectly well without any Canadian interpretation. No Canadian interpretation would be valid for any other European country that is not strictly plain that the United States creates its own impression abroad without the assistance of Canadian interpretation. Prime Minister St. Laurent's praise of the United States in the Indian parliament on his world tour last year was hailed as a masterstroke of pro-American propaganda in the Far East. It may well have been a good deed done on behalf of the United States. But it was a good deed done by a friendly neighbor when a good deed seemed to be in order. It was not an interpretation of the United States.

Mr. Pearson's visit to Moscow has its political and international overtones but one thing that it definitely is not is an interpretation of the West to the Russians or an interpretation of the Russians to the West.

Russian Communists and non-Communists in the West have been trying for ten years to interpret one another's intentions without going to war. For part of that time Mr. Pearson sat as chairman of the United Nations and while he did a good job it can hardly be said that he, for anyone else, satisfactorily interpreted the Russians for anybody.

Mr. Pearson's visit to Moscow is nothing more nor less than a visit to Moscow. Anything that he accomplished from discussions with Russian leaders, will undoubtedly be carefully assessed by Western diplomats. Any conclusions arising from such assessment will be their own.

Mr. Pearson's opinions are Mr. Pearson's opinions. His contribution to any understanding of the Russians by western governments will be his contribution as the Canadian cabinet minister. It will be the constructive contribution of an independent mind.

It will not be that of an interpreter. An interpreter is one who merely translates something from one language to another and adds as little as possible of his own conclusions to the translation. There is not the type of contribution which Mr. Pearson will be making to an understanding of the Russians.

It is to be hoped that our American friends continue to reveal the limits of their understanding of Canada's independent stature in the world by continually regarding this country's efforts abroad as the work of a hireling instead of the contribution of a full-fledged member of the family.

DEEP, PRIMEVAL NONSENSE

There is a lot of nonsense abroad at this time of year about hunting satisfying a deep, primeval urge in man.

Most people have a deep, primeval urge to eat, sleep, but hunting is not one of them. The history of mankind is one of speediest possible retreat from the labors and dangers of the hunting field.

The quest for food and clothing that starts with stalking of hairy beasts always ends at the hearthside after a day of tending crops and herding animals. The zest of the chase has always been applied for the convenience of the abbatoir and the danger of pitting one's life against ferocious beasts always, somehow, ends in a battle of wits with grasshoppers, potato bugs and poppycock.

Natural cover for game is sacrificed in the interests of cultivation, marshes are drained for market gardens, trails become turnpikes, spawning grounds sometimes become cesspools.

Hanging storm windows takes precedence over hanging game as man hastens, voluntarily, from the saddle to the easy chair, from the fishing dory to the fireside, from the chase to the chaise lounge.

Hunters don't want to hunt. They want to go hunting where roads lead to resorts, guides lead to game and cooks prepare the kill. Hunters are much more interested in talking about hunting with other hunters over a bridge table than they are in actually enduring discomfort for a good shot.

Mankind's deepest, primeval urge is for ease. His whole history is a quest for comfort. This stuff about hunting and deep, primeval urges is just poppycock. Hunting is just an easy way to hunt up an excuse for a holiday.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 19, 1935

Miss Barbara Bateman and Miss Jean Bateman entertained at a three-cornered tea evening at their home on Queen Street in honor of Mrs. Jack Ensbury, the former Miss Eva Weichrodt, now residing on McDonald Avenue. Many of her girl friends were present and the event was most enjoyable.

Mrs. (Dr.) A. D. Walker, formerly of this city, left today for her home in California after spending the past two months visiting friends in this city and district.

Mrs. Morley Pearson has left for her home in Toronto after spending a week here with her mother, Mrs. C. M. Richardson, Coleman Street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Irvine, Orier Street, have returned home after a trip to Western Canada where they visited Mrs. Irvine's brothers in Alberta and also friends in the City of Saskatoon.

The following members of the Woman's Auxiliary in connection with the Belleville Hospital attended the Prince Edward Deanery meeting which was held in Centenbury Hall, St. George's Parish, Trenton, yesterday; Mrs. E. B. Lagle, the Deanery Secretary; Mrs. R. J. Bell, Mrs. J. R. Cummings, Miss Amy Wallbridge, Mrs. Joseph Tiller, Mrs. J. R. Belcher, Mrs. H. C. Tilney, Mrs. H. Scarcerilli, Mrs. D. A. Young and Mrs. E. Martin. Christ Church Parish Women's Auxiliary was represented by seventeen members.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 19, 1925

TABLETS DEDICATED AT CHRIST CHURCH.

During the 60th anniversary of the organization of Christ Church parish of which the Rev. C. H. Mackie is rector, a tablet was dedicated to the memory of the members of the parish who lost their lives in the Great War. The tablet which is on the sidewall to the left of the altar is the gift of the choir, and was unveiled and dedicated by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, rector of St. John's Church, Peterboro, a former rector of Christ Church parish, assisted by the Rev. A. E. Gren. A tablet on the south side of the altar was also dedicated having reference to the large and beautiful window in three sections above the altar, the lower part of the reredos hides the original inscription so the window and in order to overcome this the tablet bears the inscription as follows: "The windows above the altar were erected in memory of Lewis Wallbridge, Caroline Wallbridge and William Holloway Wallbridge."

Note above 1935: Lewis Wallbridge became the Hon. Lewis Wallbridge when he served as speaker of the Legislature; he was elected to represent what was then called the south riding in 1880 and 1883. Later he was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Manitoba. He practised law in Belleville for many years. The Wallbridge home, which in its day was a fine residence, is still standing at the north east corner of Front and Dundas Street east, being extant and the dundas of the shape about these feathers is not only that they are identical with those of present-day birds, but that they are arranged in the same way on the wing. Each feather is set from a wing. It also had a tail, bearing feathers, that was quite unlike different from the tail of modern birds.

Today all birds have short, stumpy tails, with the few bones inside the body. In Archaeopteryx, Archaeopteryx, on the other hand, had a long jointed tail, longer than the rest of the body, and inside it there were no less than twenty separate and elongated bones, like the skeleton of the tail of a reptile such as a lizard.

Here, straight away, we are faced with the fact that the remarkable fact that Archaeopteryx combines the characters of two classes. Some, like the feathers, are 100 percent. bird-like; others, like the jointed tail, are 100 per cent. reptile-like. This is partially intelligible when we remember that we believe it was from the reptiles that the birds evolved, and in Archaeopteryx we have a form which was a perfect link between the two classes, showing us that it was a mosaic of old and new pieces.

Now let us look at some of the other features of the skeleton of Archaeopteryx. The bones in the fingers of the wing, with their simple joints, like a pile of pocket-handkerchiefs, and with the complicated articulation found in all modern birds; the attachment of the shoulder girdle, which was short and involved only half-a-dozen bones of the spine instead of over a dozen as in modern birds; the bones of the hands and feet, with their simple joints, another instead of being fused together as in modern birds; and the ribs were slender little curved rods, instead of the stout jointed structures in birds of today.

In all these features Archaeopteryx resembled its reptilian ancestors. It also had teeth, but This is not important because other fossil birds had these as well.

On the other side of the picture are the features of the skeleton of Archaeopteryx which, like the feathers, show its true bird nature: The fusion of the bones of the neck to make a merry-thought, instead of remaining separate as in reptiles; and in the foot the arrangement of the toes shows that Archaeopteryx could grasp with its feet, indicating that it spent some of its life perching on trees.

But it also had claws on its hands, and it must have used these for climbing trees and clinging to branches because it could not fly up.

When a modern bird flies up it lewis downward with its wings, and it does this by means of its powerful breast muscles—the flesh we eat in the case of chicken. The size of these muscles can be deduced from the breadth of the bones to which they are attached. The muscles were attached for use end to end with the proper arm, but in Archaeopteryx they were attached sideways for their attachment. The other end of these muscles was attached to the breast bone, and when Archaeopteryx was discovered people could not see how it was breastboned to see if it is flat, as is in the case of birds that can fly well, or not fly, or to see if it is provided with a keel as in all flying birds. The fossil was split in the region of the size of the muscles that operate the wings.

In spite of much searching no body had found the breast-bone of Archaeopteryx, and in order to study it with ultra-violent light. And then we have the fossil available and very useful property of making bone and flesh fluorescence, when the slab of limestone in which it is embedded remains dark.

When we look a photograph of Archaeopteryx we immediately see immediately saw a structure that had not been noticed before. This is a mosaic of old and new pieces. Now let us look at some of the other features of the skeleton of Archaeopteryx. The bones in the fingers of the wing, with their simple joints, like a pile of pocket-handkerchiefs, and with the complicated articulation found in all modern birds; the attachment of the shoulder girdle, which was short and involved only half-a-dozen bones of the spine instead of over a dozen as in modern birds; the bones of the hands and feet, with their simple joints,

Reptile-Bird of Long Ago

(By Sir Gavin de Beer, FRS, Director of the British Museum of Natural History in London.)

Some 150,000,000 years ago a lucky accident took place as a result of which one of the creatures of the middle of the Age of Reptiles was preserved and fossilised.

Fossilisation is always a rare event, and the lucky accident was that this creature, Archaeopteryx, an early reptile-like bird, must have been blown out to sea to fall into the muddy of a lagoon at low tide. The mud covered it and with the passage of millions of years became hardened into the fine-grained limestone in which Archaeopteryx was found in 1861. This, the first specimen to be discovered, can be seen in the British Museum of Natural History in London. The only other specimen is in a museum in Berlin.

Just a word first about what the fossil found like. It is in a slab of grey limestone, split so that part of the impression of the creature is on one side and part on the other.

The detail of the preservation is extraordinary, and it is the details that are of such interest. The finest detail can be seen, and the remarkable thing about these feathers is not only that they are identical with those of present-day birds, but that they are arranged in the same way on the wing. Each feather is set from a wing. It also had a tail, bearing feathers, that was quite unlike different from the tail of modern birds.

Today all birds have short, stumpy tails, with the few bones inside the body. In Archaeopteryx, Archaeopteryx, on the other hand, had a long jointed tail, longer than the rest of the body, and inside it there were no less than twenty separate and elongated bones, like the skeleton of the tail of a reptile such as a lizard.

Here, straight away, we are faced with the fact that the remarkable fact that Archaeopteryx combines the characters of two classes. Some, like the feathers, are 100 percent. bird-like; others, like the jointed tail, are 100 per cent. reptile-like. Perhaps it is right and commentary that the schools, rather than the homes, have to bring these ordinary rules of common sense to the attention of young people. But if it has to be done, it is a good list. Here it is:

1. Don't let your parents down. They've brought you up.
2. Stop and think before you drink.
3. Be smart, obey. You'll give orders yourself, someday.
4. Ditch dirty thoughts fast or they'll ditch you.
5. Show-off driving is juvenile. Don't act your age.
6. Pick right friends to be picked for a friend.
7. Choose a date list for a mate.
8. Don't go steady unless you're out the sign.
9. Love God and neighbor.
10. Live carefully. The soul you save may be your own.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GET EXCITED!

You will note when there is good news how excited people get and how it stirs them, and they show go to their work with double the enthusiasm. I like to see workers in a business get excited over a big sale or when the business, or a golden big order. It proves good team work. People like to work in a business where there is excitement over growth.

A worker gets excited over a substantial advance in salary—and it inspires him to do better work. Excitement is actually enthusiasm, but with a big flame! I like to see a worker excited at his job. That proves he is happy and is interested in the firm for which he works. You see plenty of excitement at a baseball, or football game. That's what inspires all in the contest, I have often envied those leaders.

I recall how the whole town was excited after it was announced that the first world was was over. People sang, yelled, cried for joy, and acted like a city full of kids on a rampage. Salesmen who get excited talking to a prospective client usually end by taking the order away with them. Excitement is contagious.

It is a good thing for people to get excited over something they have discovered or created. It proves there are inside thoughts that work. Some have called them—inside working thoughts growing pains! One thing is quite evident—people who don't get excited get very little out of life. I am sure Robert Fulton was excited.

Another, got excited as their first attempts at something new and useful proved a success. People who are constantly creating something new are always exciting people.

Get excited! Don't mind the critics. I would like to have seen Henry Ford testing out his first automobile on the busy streets of Detroit. I'll wager he was more excited than any who watched and thought he was crazy. Edison's entire life was one of excitement and achievement. Excitement! Encourage it!

Senior Citizens

They're trying to slip it to us gently, tactfully, and whether we like it or not, the "senior citizen" is with us to stay.

Old folks, thank heaven, that is real old folks who admit it and like the joys and the tribulations of living as they come, are with us in increasing numbers. We eliminate from the discussion those poodle-toting, bleached, horrific old frights trying to cavort in the night-clubs, and also the bountiful, tempered, corseted matrons commonly observed escorting their blank-faced "glamor girls."

Those who grow older instead of simply getting old are the Senior Citizens to whom we refer. And it is they who stand ready to contribute more to our culture than they are now realize. America is only beginning to see the vast bounty we have in our old folks.

Within the ancient culture of China we find the elder member of the household granted a respected and revered place in the family community, from which he or she offers solicited advice and wisdom, in which he or she is the honored "senior citizen." In our own less cultured culture, we have had the tendency to toss our old folks off into institutions, where their offspring needn't suffer the pangs of watching their misery. Which sounds the more humane?

In columns to come we'll discuss the joys and tribulations involved in growing old. Don't forget that word "growing." If you stopped growing when you finished school, this won't help you or your children.

Unless you'd like to start again?

And don't go awky frustrated, for we'll discuss even sex and age. That ought to bring you back long enough to hear about the rest of it, in which you can do, what your children can do, and what their children can do, to be old folks.

If you've completed your first forty years, you're qualified to join the Senior Citizens. So get out your notebook and prepare to learn and grow.

Dutch Make New Province

(Ottawa Citizen)

The draining of the Zuider Zee demonstrates the modern Dutch industry that has made Dutch settlers among the most successful immigrants to Canada. According to reports, the town of Lelystad, rising on a sandy stretch of land under water not long ago, will have 60,000 people by 1960. It will be "the capital of a new province of the Netherlands," and the area of The Netherlands will have increased by seven per cent.

Drainage and dyking have always, of course, been the means by which the Netherlands has expanded at the expense of the North Sea. The vulnerability of the land to flooding has created a strong defence in time of war, but like the Zuider Zee project, it has sometimes results in disaster. Always however, the Dutch patiently repair the damage and drain the soil to productivity. Their country is overpopulated and such arable square mile is important.

The Zuider Zee project was begun in 1932, when the North Sea was shut out, and the work has been proceeding ever since. Section by section has been enclosed and drained to form "polders". Despite the opening of these new lands to settlement, The Netherlands will probably still be sending some of its sturdy people to countries like Canada. There are said to be 300 applicants for every prospective farm in the region being drained.

Caterpillars Invade Devon

(The Times of London)

England is the country, so we have always been taught to believe, for seemliness and moderation. Even nature knows its place and is too well disciplined to go in for excesses, but in South Devon caterpillars, it appears, have been behaving as though they were in another Egypt or plague on modern England. Locusts do not swarm over our neat and ordered fields; giant ants know better than to build their monstrous cities upon our lanes; even flies and wasps come as single spies rather than in battalions. But in south Devon caterpillars, dead to all sense of decency, have been rioting in numbers and with an exuberance unknown since the days of the locusts than to Totnes. Not content with devouring all he green stuff they can lay their teeth on, they have been crawling in their thousands up along a pipe line at a cider factory, up the walls of an inn and into a chine merchant's stores. The most curious feature about the whole affair is that the caterpillars are, as might be suspected, aliens, being descended from those cabbage whites which make a point of flitting over from the Continent every year.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

You may suppose your real estate business to you. You may own a house, you figure it is yours. But not if you have trees aroufnd it.

A friend of mine moved from a distant city to take up his work in a new branch of his company. The house he bought here was in a fashionable and long-established residential area. It was a fine house available at a good price because it was about due for sale. For instance, kitchen needed to be modernized, and some money spent on redecorating, and installing new bathroom fixtures and replacing an outmoded oil burner.

Out in front of it, on a terraced lawn, stood two trees. One was a mountain ash that had flourished mightily over the years, and, with its autumn bunches of bright red berries, was a sight to behold. But it also completely overshadowed the windows all over the front of the house, engulfing the rooms in gloom. And, in fall, with robins and starlings and pigeons feasting on the pretty berries, it became a dirty mess hard to describe.

So there went the mountain ash. And it was here my friend discovered there is a public equity in all of his property. For the neighbors (creatures and economic fuss, decreeing that the tree had been an object of beauty in which the whole district took pride. And there would be a disgrace decreying of social ostracism. Some of the neighbors don't speak to my friend yet, though two years has passed.

The other tree on the lawn is not one but five white birches growing in a close clump. They are local landmarks. They have lent a special beauty and character to the whole residential block. I have no doubt the neighbors used the birches as a kind of rendezvous, telling people to their homes by saying "the house with the seven trees up from the birches. You can't miss it."

But the birches have destroyed my friend's drains and weeping tiles. And down they must come. There is likely to be a riot.

Over the grave of the mountain ash my friend erected a sign for a few weeks: It said merely: "It was dirty."

Over the new stump, he is going to sign: "Okay, You grow some birch-

TAKING RISKS

In the last 2500 years, Mt. Vesuvius has erupted numberless times and destroyed many human people. Yet this does not deter farmers from living on its slopes and contributing to till its fertile hillsides, in spite of the danger. They take this risk because the hillsides are fertile. They run a big risk to get a good crop.

It is commendable that people should put thoughts of personal safety aside in facing life's larger issues. It is not commendable, however, if people think so much of fertile fields and good harvests that they will risk the lives of their loved ones unnecessarily.

There are people who all through their lives live dangerously, as do these farmers on the slopes of Vesuvius. Some of these people heroically and some live wretchedly. The former are those who have objectives nor for their loved ones, if they can have full assurance.

These are the men who give everything to business and no time to their families. These are the convivial parents who are going to have a gay time, whether it hurts the kids or not. These are the people who are always standing up for their right and bringing down the hatred of their colleagues upon them.

Weddings

CLARKE—EMMERSON

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the United church parsonage, Thomasburg, by the Rev. B. G. Chapman, on Saturday, October 1, at 5:30 p.m., when Lois Eileen Emmerson of West Huntingdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Emmerson, became the bride of Reginald Jonathan Clarke of Hallowray, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractively attired in a floor-length bridal gown of white satin panelled with nylon lace, having a fitted bodice with sweetheart neckline and long pagoda-like sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil of nylon net was held by a seed pearl and sequin tiara and she carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Lena Emmerson, only sister of the bride, was her attendant, gowned in pink nylon net with matching lace, in floor length. She wore a headdress studded with seed pearls and carried a bouquet of roses and white 'mums.

Mr. Gerald Clarke of Hallowray, attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the bride's home which was prettily decorated with white wedding bells, blue birds and autumn flowers. The bride's mother, in a tailored suit of grey with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnations, received the 45 guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore powder blue crepe with matching accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Western Ontario and United States the bride chose a taupe-grey suit with navy accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside in Campbellford, Ontario.

Guests present from Stirling, Belleville, Moira and Thomasburg.

STAFFORD—ELLIS

The Rev. L. Arthur Pegg, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, officiated.

Miss Gertrude Simmons presided at the console of the organ for the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Hazel Simmons, who rendered before the ceremony, "I Love You Truly" and during the signing of the register "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely gown in ankle length Chantilly lace, net and satin, fashioned with fitted bodice having a sweetheart neckline with molded sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists, and a scalloped Peter Pan collar. The gracefully full skirt of Chantilly lace was enhanced by an insertion of accordion pleated net over a white satin underskirt. Her fingertip veil of embroidered tulle illusion, was taught by a matching headdress studded with seed pearls and she carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Jacqueline Hull, as maid of honor, and Miss Muriel Hull, as bridesmaid, sisters of the bride, were attired alike in strapless, waltz length gowns of nile green net over taffeta with matching stoles. They wore matching green feather headdresses and carried red and white carnations and pink and white carnations, respectively.

Little Misses Judy and Peggy Hull, sisters of the bride, as flower girls were sweet in their pink and blue sheer organdy frocks. They carried nosegays of pink and white carnations, and blue and white carnations, and were matching headdresses.

For the reception which was held at the Orange Hall, Point Anne, with its timely decorations of gladioli, mums and ferns, the bride's mother, wearing an Elizabethan blue gown, with black accessories, and corsage of pink and white carnations, received. The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. Arthur Pegg, to which the bridegroom responded, and that to the bridal attendants by Mr. Don DeMille of Picton.

For travelling to points east and the United States, the bride chose a gown of navy blue sharkskin accented by white Peter Pan collar and cuffs, with navy accessories, hat and grey kidskin jacket. Mr. and Mrs. Stafford will reside on Trenton Road, upon their return.

NAYLER—LEONARD

MARMORA—St. Paul's Anglican church, Marmora, with its altar adorned with white and yellow chrysanthemums and its two windows decorated with chrysanthemums, blended flowers and autumn leaves, was an imposing setting for the wedding on Saturday afternoon, October 8, of Muriel Leona Leonard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Leonard of Marmora, and Gerald Earl Nayler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Nayler, also of Marmora. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was daintily attired in full length cloud-white Chantilly lace with low "V" neckline, etched with seed pearls and sequins, and bouffant skirt. Her long sheath sleeves formed points over the hands. Her elbow length veil was of tulle illusion held by a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and roses.

Her sister, Miss Clayton Cronkright, was matron of honor, dressed in burnished brown crystalette in floor-length. She carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums with Croton leaves and bells of heavy stems.

They carried bouquets of large green 'mums, Croton leaves and barley stems. The latter was dressed in green crystalette in floor length, with feather headdress and carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums, Croton leaves and barley stems.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in navy blue with white accessories and wearing a corsage of white roses.

Later, the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to New York and Ottawa, the bride travelling in a black and white tweed suit with

B.P.W. Club Enjoys Talk On European Trip

A dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club was held at the YMCA, recently and a most enjoyable program was enjoyed. The speaker of the evening was Miss Nellie F. Merry, well known retired Belleville school teacher.

Miss Merry and her sister visited various parts of Europe last summer and as she told of it the members could almost feel the atmosphere of the places described. Miss Merry took an unusual approach to a travel talk by first emphasizing how little Canadians were to have all the advantages of living in this wonderful country and pointing out the unfortunate circumstances the people of Europe have had to endure. She then went on to describe vividly the beauty and the rich heritage of European countries, and the lessons one could learn from them in preserving what Canadians have of beauty.

Miss Merry's interesting meeting followed with preparations discussed for the provincial conference. Plans for the year's activities were brought forward.

Bay of Quinte W.I. Hears Talk

The Bay of Quinte Institute held its October meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis, on Wednesday evening with a good attendance.

Several letters were read, also a notice of the W. I. Rally to be held at Stirling, on October 22.

Mrs. John Reid handled the meeting over to Mrs. Clarence Holmes, the convenor for "Community Activities and Public Relations." Mrs. Holmes said, "This being Thanksgiving time, we should be thankful not just one day, but every day of the year, and she suggested we sing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow". A good Institute member is a good church member and a good church member also makes a good Institute member as we are working "For Home and Country" the motto of the Institute.

Mrs. Holmes added that she was interested in conservation "for if we do not conserve our forests we will have no wild life and there will be a shortage of water, which is the life blood of everything". She asked, do those who will come after us. A lot of our empires have fallen through neglect in the past so let us take care of our land. There is much land now that is not fit for use and in Ontario 100 years ago, fish were so plentiful it was not unusual to get 1000 lbs. of salmon on catch but not so today.

"We have cities and towns springing up and our land is quite a bit being cut in vast sewer by the rubbish and waste that is going into it, from the rivers flowing into it, and the countryside around. This is not good for the fish, for it sooner or later causes the fish to die. Conservation should be practised by all to increase our supply of wild life, so that the hungry people there will be war.

"People have been cutting down trees for years. At last now we will have to replace these trees, giving them time to grow. Already now where the trees have been cut down and it is just a sandy rocky waste.

"In 1950 a committee was set up to inquire into the need of reforestation. It was decided $5,000 square miles be reforested. Ontario has 100,000 square miles of forest, its lakes, rivers and streams will be saved by wild flowers, the beautiful colored leaves of the trees in the autumn and fall makes this a natural playground for tourists. A natural appreciation of nature will lead to better health."

Mrs. Holmes had the W. I. sing "Three Blind Mice" in three parts, which caused much merriment.

Mrs. Reid thanked Mrs. Holmes for her fine talk and Mrs. Curtis for the use of her home.

Mrs. Holmes held an Institute Contest, with several ladies winning prizes.

The hostess and conveners served refreshments.

'House of Happiness' Described At Massassaga W.A.

The October meeting of Massassaga W.A., was held at the church in the form of a tea where they entertained several other W.A.'s as guests for the afternoon. The church was gaily decorated for the occasion with autumn flowers.

The president, Mrs. George McKillop, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Davidson conducted the devotional period assisted by Mrs. Hillman and Mrs. Revill.

Mrs. Revill gave the Scripture reading and Mrs. Davidson spoke briefly on "Friendship."

Mrs. Hillman closed with prayer. Collection amounted to $18.24.

At this point Mrs. McKillop extended a hearty welcome to the guests, to which Mrs. O. Sills, of Ameliasburg, graciously replied.

A trio from Ameliasburg, Mrs. O. Sills, Mrs. Harry Gibson and Mrs. Karl Mitchell, contributed a musical number.

Mrs. Rose Valleau introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. A. E. Hillman, of the Bloomfield Methodist church, Campbellford.

Mr. Hillman spoke of the "House of Happiness," which he and Mrs. Toombs have organized at Campbellford. It is a real home for retarded children where loving care and understanding are given unrestricted. He spoke of their own boy born in India—a perfect child until 14 months of age, when he fell from a high crib and was injured to the extent that he never talked nor walked again for many, many years.

It is the fruits of their untiring efforts and years of struggle to help their own unfortunate child, as well as many other children in the community.

Mr. Toombs spoke of parents of emotionally disturbed children, find it hard to accept the fact that their child is as hopeless as another. He told how a few years ago they never knew there before.

Mr. and Mrs. Toombs felt the importance of these children and with this purpose in mind founded the "House of Happiness."

There they are taught to read and write and to develop good character as to their ability. They all eat together with the staff of helpers, and the children are taught table manners and toilet habits. On the farm they try to make them socially acceptable.

In closing, Mr. Toombs said "God has a place for these children — we do not know here but well in the Eternity."

Mrs. Howard Adams on behalf of the Massassaga W.A., thanked Mrs. Toombs for coming and wished them every success in their wonderful work.

Mrs. Rattray from Consecon, favored with a solo.

Mrs. Gibson thanked Mrs. Townsend for filling in for the organist, Mrs. Gray, and Mrs. Townsend for Mr. Farrow, who was unable to attend.

The Rev. F. Townsend closed the meeting after which the members of Massassaga W.A. served refreshments and all enjoyed a social time together.

'Lack of Food' Cause of Most Social Problems

At the October meeting of St. Michael's High school Parent-Teacher meeting held Monday evening plans were discussed for a euchre and turkey draw to be held in December by the Academy. It was learned that results of the current financial drive for funds for the purchase of sports and other equipment for the high school were most encouraging and that the objective set would be reached shortly.

Rev. Sister Mary Theresa will act as moderator on a panel discussion which will be the highlight of the November P.T.A. meeting. The discussion will be on "Parents Part in Homework."

Mrs. Godfrey Donoghue introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Boyd Upper. The topic he had been requested to speak on was "Catholic Interest in Social Problems." Dr. Upper developed this theme thoroughly and painstakingly. He said "Lack of Food" is the cause of most social problems and cited India and her starving masses of people whose average lifespan is 32 years, and to survive as a country must reproduce her population in one generation.

"Lack of shelter and undesirable housing conditions add greatly to the social problems of Canada," he continued. Recently, it was learned that results of the current financial drive for funds for the purchase of sports and other equipment for the high school were most encouraging and that the objective set would be reached shortly.

Mrs. Godfrey Donoghue introduced the guest speaker, Dr. 13 years, he said 7,000 high school rooms would be required and 7,000 teachers. At the present rate of a gain of 50 teachers each year we shall have only 650 of the 7,000 needed.

Reading excerpts from a Boston newspaper editorial, which were most thought provoking Dr. Upper said 100 letters were received regarding alcoholism, several more about drug addiction, slums, and so forth but that more than 900 had been received from accused anti-vivisectionists.

Rev. Sister M. Garvin thanked Dr. Upper.

The hospitality committee served refreshments and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU'RE NOT LIKELY TO HAVE ANY TROUBLE DIVORCING THIS MAN

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 30 years old, married, and have a little boy a year old.

Before I even knew my husband, I had an affair with another man. When I met my husband, I told him everything. He said it was all in the past, and that it was forgiven.

However, throughout the two and a half years we have been married, he has done nothing but make me feel very low about the affair. He even brings it up in front of his family and friends. He has never supported me or even made a home for us. I worked and paid for my hospital expenses when the baby came, and a month after the baby came, I went back to work to keep the baby and myself. I now live with my mother and he lives with his folks.

I don't love him any more. His treatment has killed all love I ever had for him. So now I am ready to sue for divorce. He knows this, and says that if I give up the idea of divorce he will do better. But he has told me that many before.

I would like to know if I can get a divorce even though he promises to change. Can he take my baby away because of the affair I had before I even knew him? I have done nothing to give him any married that would make me an unfit mother. I love my son, and would never see anything bad that him taken away from me. Mrs T. Dear Mrs. T.:

Personally, I think you are wholly justified in divorcing your husband, and I do not believe you need worry in the slightest about your baby being taken from you. It seems quite obvious that you have been a far better parent to him than your husband has been, and I am sure any court would agree.

Another thing I am sure of. Is any court would consider you an unfit mother. Its present husband is bring up your son. For where you inspire confidence that you are a woman of experience who learned from a mistake and would never be likely to repeat it, your husband, on the other hand, has shown that he is not only mean and petty, but actually cruel. For a man to tell a woman, before marriage, that he understands and forgives a mistake she made in the past, and then, after he has married her, to continually hold that mistake up in front of her, even to the point of betraying her confidence to friends and relatives, is unspeakably contemptible.

Tragically, this is something that not infrequently happens when the man a girl hopes to marry knows that she has made this kind of mistake. In the emotion of the moment, he may sincerely feel that anything which happened in the past is to be forgotten and that love life is all that counts. Then, some time goes on, and the first flush of marital ecstasy wears off, he drags out the incident and will not allow her to forget it. Sometimes it is because he honestly wonders if having done this thing once, before marriage, his wife may not be tempted to do it again. But, even more often I suspect, he resurrects the past because of something that is on his own conscience, and he can quiet his conscience only by accusing her. My guess is that the latter is the reason why your husband behaved as he did and I do not think you can put any confidence in his renewed promise to change.

So go to a reliable lawyer and tell him your story without fear that you will be considered an unfit mother.

You most certainly are not.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

ACCESSORIES SHOULD BE CHOSEN WITH CARE

Large, chunky bracelets worn by a short woman minimize the loveliness of her hands and wrists.

Accessories are such an important part of a woman's costume that it is somewhat amazing to note how little care many women exercise in their selection.

All of us have observed, for instance, the petite type of woman whose face and neck are almost buried in the enormous collar of her coat, and the tall, angular woman who has chosen a hat or scarf in a color which is definitely unflattering to her complexion; the tall girl wearing flat shoes and the short one with stilted ones that seem all out of proportion; the woman who has gone too far in matching her accessories—shoes, hat, bag, gloves all in the same color; or worse yet all in different colors; and the woman whose costume jewelry, far from accenting the beauty and line of her ensemble, calls attention to itself by its disproportionate size or a coloring which does not harmonize with the rest of her ensemble. Such carelessness detracts from a woman's appearance, is definitely a beauty liability.

When purchasing accessories, the two most important things to keep in mind are color and proportion. Where color is concerned, it is best to have not more than two accessories in identical shades—Your hat and bag, your gloves and bag, your gloves and shoes or your bag and scarf. Others can then be chosen to harmonize with, rather than to overpower each other or the suit, frock or coat you are wearing. Choose colors which are flattering to your skin and hair tones and those which do the most for your outfit.

A sense of proportion is an absolute necessity in the selection of accessories. If you're on the petite side, avoid large hats and large bags. They're dwarfing, to say the least. And do avoid huge scarf effects. Remember that no matter how beautiful such accessories are, they can be overwhelming. People will notice them, all right, but they won't be able to notice You. Tall girls, of course, can be much more daring. Carryover hats, oversized handbags and striking scarves were just made for them. And the same goes for costume jewelry. If it's fashionable to wear large earrings, for instance, the tall girl can go overboard in her selection, but not the smaller woman.

Necklaces and bracelets should also be purchased with proportion in mind. Dog collars, for instance, are lovely on long, slender necks, but if worn by a woman whose neck is short and fat, they give the appearance of choking her, by not eliminating the throatline completely. A single strand of pearls, real or otherwise, is a much better selection for this type.

The tall girl can wear bracelets. Large chunky ones, massive solid ones also, can be constructed with heavy links are fine for the girl with long arms and beautifully manicured, tapering fingers. But they do nothing for the stocky woman whose hands inclined to be short and square. In fact, if your wrists are inclined toward the short, fat side, is better not to wear bracelets at all. But if you must have one, be sure that it's delicate in craftsmanship and that it's loose enough not to cut into the flesh. In the choice of all accessories, simplicity should be the rule—the kind of simplicity that's really dramatic.

Breakfast—Eat a Good One

By Mary Moore

Unless you are a midnight snack eater it is probably 12 to 14 hours since you had a meal when you sit down at the breakfast table in the morning. . .

. . . and do sit down.

This silliness of standing at the kitchen counter sipping down a glass of orange juice and a cup of coffee is slow murder.

If the artful Mrs. Draw Dagwood doesn't change his plot and have Dagwood eat an egg for breakfast I'm going to get irate and write him a fan letter. I'd give him a piece of my mind if I could spare it.

You do your best work in the mornings and need an ample breakfast to keep you fueled up and running at full steam ahead.

Every one of you cook mothers who reads this should use every known trick to work an egg into every breakfast you serve—especially to those precious children of yours.

Some of you will not have any trouble at all serving poached eggs on toast to them, or bacon and eggs, or lovely new laid eggs cooked in the shell, with hot buttered whole wheat toast.

But this little offering is for the girls who have trouble with members in their families who are "egg-squeamers". (Pete dreamed up that word combination. He was little and had a chum who screamed when his mother gave him an egg. A said-the child was squeamish. Pete said he was screamish. We settled on "Cyril the Squeamer.")

The scrambling of eggs is a fine art with the French and one famous man who liked them done the French way was President Roosevelt. Of course he's dead—but that doesn't mean his choice of eggs was wrong necessarily.

SCRAMBLED EGGS

This amount will serve one or two or three—depends on their size and appetite. Beat 3 eggs with rotary or electric beater for one minute, then add 1-3 cup milk or 1-4 cup cream. If you are real venturesome you can use 1-4 cup sour cream, and 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-18 teaspoon pepper. Have hot in the frying pan 2 tablespoons butter and when butter is hot and has turned golden brown pour in the beaten egg mixture. Let it stand now without moving it, over high heat, for about 30 seconds, then push the cooked part to one side and allow liquid part to flow around and over the bottom of the pan. As each portion cooks and browns push it across the first cooked part. This "layers" the whole thing and when you cut through it to serve it looks very attractive. Don't overcook it. It should be barely set. I like it with sliced tomatoes.

If they are dead set against eggs of any kind I think you can win the most stubborn child over with

FRENCH TOAST

For you can bait the trap with plenty of maple syrup or honey and butter, to drizzle over.

Two eggs slightly beaten, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 to 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg is optional, 2-3 cup milk, 4 slices bread cut ratherly thickly then cut in halves. Beat eggs add all remaining ingredients but bread and mix well. Dip bread half slices into egg mixture until soaked through, drain a little and fry in generous amount of hot golden butter—turning when underside is brown and lightly browning other side. Don't soak the bread too long or it will be soft and break. Jam is good with it too. Pete and my nephew Brian want four slices like that for additional eggs, fried, on top of two of them—plus four rashers of bacon, plus a bowl of cereal, plus a glass of orange juice, plus two glasses of milk. We'll die poor though.

REDS PLAN LOOK-SEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven journalists from Soviet Russia have arrived to have a look at "every thing worth seeing—the best of things." The group plans to be in the United States a month, and to visit New York, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco, Phoenix, Arts, and Washington.

THE BUTTONS on your children's play clothes have a hard time hanging on, what with all the tenacity required when trees are climbed, etc. Try sewing the buttons on with dental floss, the waxed surface of which seems to defy most wear and tear.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NOTES TO THANK FOR CARDS-OF-CONGRATULATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I recently had a Silver Wedding Anniversary party given in our honor. I am sending "Thank you" cards, with a little note of heartfelt thanks for each gift, including the silver dollars and other money-gifts. What should I do to acknowledge the many cards of congratulation? — M.T.

You and your husband must be very fine and delightful people . . . to receive so many friendly and generous gestures on this important milestone of your life! One reason why you are so popular with your friends, I can see, is that you want always to express adequate appreciation of a thoughtful gesture.

Those cards of congratulation are gifts too, each a good-thought. Therefore each should be thanked for . . . a sentence or two written in informal or on semi-note paper:

Dear Anne,

How very kind of you and Bill to send Joe and me such good words of friendship on our Wedding Anniversary. You warmed our hearts, and we both thank you, deeply.

Devotedly,

EVIDENTLY DIFFICULT CIRCUMSTANCES TO MEET

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son was married the first part of last July, and our daughter was married two weeks later. We is responsible for sending the write-ups of the wedding and the photographs to the newspapers? Is this duty in both cases up to me, their mother? (The parents of my son's wife live a great distance from here, and were not present at the wedding.) My friends have been watching the papers for these write-ups, but none has been put in, as they both object. — Mother of Two

The parents of the bride are the ones who send the announcement of the wedding and the photographs, to the newspapers. And usually they send this announcement also to the newspapers in the home-city of the groom and or his parents. Since this announcement is so delayed, you and your daughter should consult together at once to see what she wishes to have you and your husband do about this. The parents of your son's bride are the ones who have the responsibility of sending the announcements of the marriage of their daughter and your son. Although you did not at all explain what you mean by "as they both object," I have a feeling that in both cases you and your family must use special tact to carry out your obligations, not to do anything about the announcing that might be misleading.

CO-WORKERS ONLY AT THIS SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are eight girls who have worked together in our office for two years. We are wonderful friends, and we very often have out - of - the - office dates together. Now the first girl in the group is to be married, and we would like to be the first to give her a shower. We plan to give the shower in a small private room in a restaurant where we sometimes lunch together, all of us or several of us. We'd like to have this a luncheon - shower, just for our group. But several of the girls insist that this is not correct, that we are supposed to invite the girl's mother and her fiance's mother. True, Mrs. Beeckman? — The Eight

No . . . not necessarily true. Practically always when a group of co-workers, like you, give a shower for a member of the group, the co-workers are the only ones present at the shower. "The mothers" would expect to be invited to this so-very- special party.

Color and fabric play a stellar role in the new pageant of fashion, with far less emphasis on glitter than we have seen in many a day. A welcome change it is, too, this notion of letting fabric and cut assume sartorial honors.

London's Coffee-Bar Craze Has New Type of Waitress

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—London's coffee-bar craze has produced a new type of waitress—a creature who can discuss Freud and Plato as handily as she can sling hash.

She's called the "espresso girl," after the Italian coffee machines the bars are built around, and she attires a properly exotic note in the intimate little spots which have brought a lively touch of color to grey old London.

Her fancy pants, open sandals and pony-tail hairdo are as continental and contemporary as the decor of the coffee bars, which feature such trimmings as tropical plants, animal skins, twittering birds and soft music from hidden speakers.

She may be a student, model, dancer, an actress resting between shows, even a debutante. She's generally young and pretty and has sometimes been given a hairdo besides beauty. Probably she feels more at home in the plush coffee houses than she would in a cafe, and she finds the weekly wages—about £8 or £9 including tips—easy to take.

Renato Ratti, owner of two new places in the Knightsbridge district, told a reporter he wasn't interested in the dirty run of waitress. His idea was to have bright, attractive spots where people would "feel they aren't in London" and he picked girls of looks and personality to do the serving.

A typical espresso girl is green-eyed, good-looking Jenny Meredith, a dramatic school graduate who is working to finance a spot of plastic surgery on her nose.

"I could have plenty of dates," she said, "but one experience was enough—they know where to find me the second time so it's hardly to say no without creating a scene. So, no more dating with customers."

Brenda Thompson, 22-year-old Australian, has already spent two months touring the continent on her coffee-bar earnings. Her adventures as waitress include a maharajah's proposal of marriage—which she declined—and the pleasure of serving actor Peter Ustinov and ballerina Margot Fonteyn.

Miss Thompson works at El Cubano, whose atmosphere is so faithfully created that the Cuban consul in London agreed to preside at the opening ceremonies.

At the nearby Mocambo, which is Fijian for meeting-place, blonde, blue-eyed Heather Sutherland finds waiting at table "exhausting, frustrating and yet fascinating." Heather is biding her time, hoping to go into pantomime at Christmas.

Espresso girls come in many nationalities. At the Negresco in the expensive Mayfair quarter, the customer may be served by Mrs. Nalini Siegenberg of Ceylon, wearing a chiffon sari-type dress, gold dangling earrings and an armful of eastern bracelets. She's the mother of boy actor Kurt, who appeared in "The Purple Plain" with Gregory Peck.

One of the first debutantes to join the coffee-shop ranks—something that would have scandalized the family a few years ago—is Sarah Rothschild, daughter of Viscount Rothschild. "You have to be quick as a flash," she says, "but it's good fun."

The turnover is high among espresso girls. Some owners have waiting lists of applicants. The coffee bars, with their stucco walls, bamboo fittings and other ultra-modern touches, made their debut two years ago and have been spreading fast. It is estimated there now are about 200 in central London alone.

Princess Royal Visits Falls On Way West

By OLI DAUM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The Princess Royal took in the honeymoon capital of the world today before heading west on her tour of Canada.

The 58-year-old Princess Mary will visit the falls and take in other sights before leaving for Winnipeg by plane. A luncheon is also on for Niagara Falls agenda.

The princess, Queen Elizabeth's aunt, arrived by train Thursday night and received a royal welcome from a large crowd that turned out despite heavy rain.

Thursday in Toronto, she had one of the most gruelling days since her arrival in Canada two weeks ago.

PRESENTED PICTURE

President of the Girl Guide Association in the Commonwealth, she honored 50 members of the provincial and Dominion executives with her presence at Canadian Girl Guide headquarters. There she presented a recent picture of herself in official uniform to replace one taken before her marriage to the Earl of Harewood in 1922.

The princess left Toronto laden with gifts. At Sunnybrook Hospital, where she visited patients for 45 minutes, she was presented with a white woolen skier by Henriette Cumming, 80, who was a nursing sister in the First World War.

At the Canadian Red Cross headquarters Caroline Kerr, 5, walking with a crutch and with braces on both legs, presented her with a bouquet of red roses.

She also visited the Ontario depot of the Canadian Red Cross blood transfusion service.

The princess, who is commandant-in-chief of the Red Cross, was keenly interested in every department.

At the hospital she was greeted by an honor guard of the Canadian Red Cross Corps and the band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, of which she is colonel-in-chief.

At a luncheon given by the City of Toronto she said what she had seen of Canada was "magnificent."

No Substitute For Motherly Love–Doctor

By VIVIAN BROWN

NEW YORK (AP)—The hero of the American nursery, Dr. Benjamin Spock, says the trouble with parents is they are not educated—to be parents, that is.

"Academic education instils in young women (and men too) that a career is more important than a family," the widely known pediatrician says. "Young people graduate with an absorbing philosophy that all good is accomplished outside the home."

The author of the perennial best-seller "Baby and Child Care" suggested in an interview:

"Why not connect nursery schools with high schools and colleges, making students aware of their primary role in life and getting them in the mood for it by everyday contact with children? As it is now the spirit of education tends to divorce them from the idea."

JOY IN DOING

Dr. Spock, a visiting professor at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, has just started a Sunday afternoon TV program for mothers. He says the joy of life comes "in doing things"—not just reading about them.

"All knowledge," he contends, "gets in the way of easy doing, one reason why it is difficult for a nurse, pediatrician or psychologist to become an easy-going parent."

Dr. Spock maintains there is no substitute for motherly love in the home and adds:

"The working mother might find excuses for maintaining a career —more money, bigger house and car, private schools for the youngsters—all things her children can do without in exchange for her devotion at home. But these are not the real reasons she works anyway. They've been schooled to work and it is emotionally essential to them."

These well-educated working mothers may be tortured when away from home that their substitute speaks broken English or says "aint;" but Dr. Spock says there are relatively unimportant considerations if the substitute has other requisites for the job—a comfortable personality and understanding of the child. Changes are not good for youngsters, so the right person should be hired in the first place, he says.

Newest Fashions In Shoes Fill 3 Hotel Floors

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Footwear from France, Britain, Italy and Switzerland, indicating gay shoes for the late winter, spring and summer to come, filled three floors of a London hotel at a grand exhibition.

The trend was toward transparent plastic and metal heels, novel trimmings and materials and bright colors.

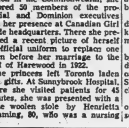
Sensation of the show was a twin-heeled model in stardusk pink satiny kid—one heel in pink and one in blue.

Transparent perspex heels gave a cinderella look to evening and cocktail shoes, sometimes combined with a plastic vamp and decorated with bunches of fruit, flowers or diamante sparklers to give the impression of a trimming perched on a bare foot.

Pumps had spiky heels up to 4½ inches high. And for those with difficulty in keeping backless or sling-backs on, elastic, foot-gripping insoles were introduced.

The elongated pointed toe, not yet as extreme as the continental point but a modification for the English market, was well to the fore.

Pinky tans, mushroom, chocolate, coffee, mustard, blues, yellows, greens, pinks and lilac are the colors to brighten grey sidewalks.



Permanently pleated leathers were used in a number of styles, bringing in a soft dressmaker touch. Swiss screen-printed calf was an attractive newcomer—in black on white, or with multi-colored chintz designs. Llama calf and kangaroo were other exotic leathers to make an appearance.

Wooden-soled shoes made a reappearance—with high slim heels and curved soles. They boast leather or raffia vamps, and some of the heels were decorated with flowers. Aluminum heels fitted some wooden-soled shoes, light, durable, and often lacquered to contrast with or match the vamp.

Bright ornaments used in decorate the shoes included diamante, jet, and even ceramic trimmings—while pottery flowers and artists' palettes splashed with bright blobs of color.

A strong Italian influence comes into the color and styling of all types of shoes, both for adults and children with more open toes and shortened vamps.

For summer, there are flight raffia beach mules with a thin cork wedge that any small girl would be delighted to own, decorated on the vamp with a doll, flowers or a small Italian straw hat, and sized for all ages beginning with babies in prams.

BEGUILING SUIT

By VERA WINSTON

What makes this suit so youthful and jaunty is the jacket that is cut like a shirt. It has a Peter Pan collar (blouse collar is shown outside), flapped, button-down pockets and a buttoned front with centre panel. There is a fold down the centre of the straight skirt. The fabric is camel colored woollen and it is shown with a shirt blouse of white nylon satin. An excellent choice for campus, for the career girl and for travel.

Princess Royal Cuts Red Tape Of Protocol

VICTORIA (CP)—The Princess Royal proved adept at ribbon-cutting here Monday.

First it was a white silk ribbon at the opening of a new barracks block at the Royal Roads Canadian services college. The second was the red tape of protocol at a veterans' hospital.

She obviously enjoyed the second snipping best.

The princess was tense and unsmiling at the college ceremony but chatted gaily with every patient in the hospital, stopped to fondle a tiny chihuahua pup handed to her by one of the men and signed an autograph.

She asked at the end of the hospital visit whether she could meet the volunteer workers at the adjoining Red Cross centre. And she did.

SIGNATURE MISSING

Hospital patient Solly Saunders received the autograph when he produced a Christmas card sent by the princess to members of the Queen's own Oxfordshire Hussars during the First World War.

"All that is missing is the signature," Saunders told the princess, who obliged by pulling a pen from her hand bag and signing "Mary."

As she left the hospital Capt. J. H. Gray, a veteran of three wars, placed a five-week-old chihuahua pup on the floor in front of the princess. When she smiled, he picked it up and handed it to her.

She petted the dog for a few seconds, but said she couldn't keep it as a gift because it was too young.

VISITORS TO MEET

The princess continues her five-day stay in Victoria today by attending a luncheon given by B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett and visiting city hall.

In the afternoon she will meet Lady Baden-Powell, world chief of the Girl Guides who also is in Victoria on a Canadian tour.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

The October meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was held at the home of B. Demill with Mrs. Hubble presiding.

The minutes, correspondence, a thank-you letter from Mrs. MacPhee, also a letter from Mrs. Elton Armstrong, were read.

DELEGATES APPOINTED

Mrs. Rombough, Mrs. Hubble, Mrs. Waller, Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Johnston were appointed as delegates to the area convention, with Mrs. Shorey appointed as the voting delegate.

It was decided to hold the November meeting in the form of a "family night" with a pot-luck supper on November 8, but no further discussion this date proved unsuitable and the next night was decided upon.

It was decided to use about $300 in the building of cupboards in the auditoriums with the first five members names on the executive to be the planning committee.

Mrs. Bamber, as convener for the group on "Citizenship and Education", read the report of her committee in the compiling of the paper on the churches, school and different organizations in the village and district for newcomers.

In reply to a wish by Mrs. Churchill, Mrs. M. B. Shorey is to be a member of the film council.

PROGRAM

Mrs. L. Moore was in charge of the program, and called on Mrs. Skinner and Mrs. Rombough to lead in the singing of "Open Up Your Heart", "The Bible Tells Me So", "Skip to My Lou" and "Davy Crocket".

Mrs. Moore gave two contests and these were followed by Mrs. Shorey as a member of Mrs. Prindle's committee on "Historical Research" and "Current Events" reporting on "Current Events" about the opening up of new mines and oil well in the Yukon, called "The Klondike Trail of 1955."

The roll call "A Prominent Canadian with Whom I would Like to Have a Talk", drew forth a variety of names and was answered by 22 members and three visitors.

A social half hour followed with refreshments served by the hostess and her assistants.

Russians Like New Fashions By Britain

By MURIEL FENN

LONDON (Reuters) — London's fashion "Big Twelve" today exposed their glamorous gowns to Leningrad's top fashion expert with the verdict:

"They are very beautiful, but they are not within the reach of the working people."

The exposure in the season's sheath line, swoop-line, to the long silhouette and tunic-line, and all the current foibles of the capitalistic fashion world, took place in the fashionable salon of Norman Hartnell, dressmaker to the Queen.

Those exposed, were Madame Kaminskaya, director of Leningrad fashion and six male members of a Soviet trade delegation now visiting the British capital.

ONE BAD MOMENT

In general, all went smoothly, but there was one bad moment.

Audible whispers rose from among the Russian guests as a model glided past in a regal black velvet dinner dress by Worth, with long sleeves and large oval patch pockets embroidered in jet.

"Imperial Russia," the Russians whispered.

The dress did, indeed, call up memories of the plush days before 1917.

HER COMMENT

"There is great creative artistry in all the models," Mme. Kaminskaya said after the showings, as she sipped a glass of vodka. "But they are only for a small circle."

When informed that Hartnell not only does work for the Queen and Britain's elite, but also designs clothes for mass production, Mme. Kaminskaya replied, "Then I wish him luck."

She commented that even the London suits have more trimmings on them than Russian clothes—"more buttons, more sequins, more embroidery."

Man Believed Killed by Angry Bull

KITCHENER (CP) — Norman Reier, 46-year-old Elmwood district bachelor who lived alone, was found dead in a field Tues., believed killed by an angry bull.

Reier owns a farm and sawmill 1½ miles east of here in Bentinc township. When an employee, Gordon Wright, came to work this morning Mr. Reier was missing.

Wright contacted neighbors and a search was started. Neighbors recalled they had heard the bull bellowing in the field Monday but thought nothing of it because Mr. Reier had told them he was going to Toronto.

The body was found in the field, where the bull had torn off every stitch of clothing except a rubber boot.

Neighbors said the bull had attacked Mr. Reier once before.

MADOC JUNCTION

Successful Bazaar Held By Eggleton WMS

MADOC JCT. — A bazaar, under the auspices of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William McMullen, with a good number in attendance despite the inclement weather.

While the guests were arriving and being seated, soft music was provided by the pianist, Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

The W.A. president, Mrs. William McMullen, presided over a short program, which opened with the hymn "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee," after which prayer was offered by Mrs. Carl Bridges.

Mrs. Clifford Lansing gave an interesting reading, "Children of the World."

A vocal solo by Mrs. James Hoard, with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver playing her accompaniment, was greatly enjoyed.

At this time Mrs. McMullen graciously welcomed all the guests present and expressed pleasure at having the Presbyterian W. A. president, Mrs. A. Fyear, present at the meeting. Mrs. Fyear was then presented with a lovely corsage.

Mrs. Fyear spoke briefly, expressing her pleasure at being able to attend the meeting and also remarking about the happy memories she had of the various W.A. meetings she had attended and where she had met with women who were so willing and enthusiastic in the W.A. work of the church.

An interesting reading on "Thanksgiving" was given by Mrs. C. R. Chapman. A piano solo, contributed by Miss Joyce Stapley, was also much appreciated. Tea was served with Mrs. Harold Chambers and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett serving the plates, serviettes and cups of tea; Mrs. Bruce Stapley the cream and sugar; Mrs. Milton Reid, Mrs. Gordon Nelson and Mrs. Maurice Clancy served trs. of dainty sandwiches, relishes, cakes, cookies and tarts.

Mrs. Harry Clarke was in charge of making tea and Mrs. Carl Bridges, Mrs. William McMullen and Mrs. Clarke replenished the trays.

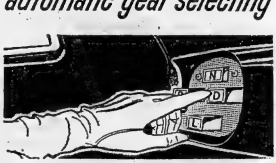
BAZAAR

All were then invited to visit the room where the bazaar articles were attractively displayed. A rack of pretty aprons made up in several attractive patterns; a table with a large variety of miscellaneous articles; a 25-cent touch-and-take table; another table with homemade cooking, pies, cookies, tarts and cakes; a harvest table, with colorful cut flowers, potted plants, jars of delicious looking relishes and pickles; also bags of homemade candy.

At one side was a large display of beautifully boxed cards for Christmas and various other occasions. A fish pond, presided over by Mrs. George Jervis, provided much merriment.

The treasurers for the day were Mrs. Warren Harlow, Mrs. McMullen and Mrs. Clancy.

Sales were brisk at all the tables and proceeds of the bazaar were most gratifying.



The members of Eggleton WMS and WA wish to thank all those who attended or assisted in any way to the success of the bazaar. Thanks are also extended to some who through illness in the home and other reasons were unable to be at the meeting, but had sent their contributions for the bazaar.

Church Body Studies Anglican Withdrawal

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London Council of Churches met in special session Tues. to consider a reply to statements made Saturday by the Anglican bishop of Huron, Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton.

Bishop Luxton announced that the Anglican Church "is in the process of" withdrawing its official recognition of the inter-denominational church council.

The statement caught ministers on the council executive by surprise and left more than one Anglican clergyman wondering whether he should continue to attend council meetings.

The council meeting called by Rev. Alfred E. Kitchen, president, was closed to the press.

Rev. Morse C. Robinson of St. George's Anglican church, vice-president of the council this year, said Monday he has no intention of resigning his post unless ordered to do so by the bishop.

Press Council Thinks Story Badly Handled

LONDON (Reuters)—The Press Council, voluntary watchdog of British newspaper standards, today censured certain unnamed newspapers for offending "against all taste" in their handling of the Princess Margaret story.

At its quarterly meeting with the chairmanship of Sir Ian Andrews, editor of the Yorkshire Post, the council passed a resolution which said the treatment of the story in some papers had been a considerable ill service to the reputation of the press."

The resolution said: "The press council has had under consideration specific complaints against newspapers and general complaints against the press regarding the way in which the personal life of Princess Margaret has been treated.

"The council recalls that this is not the first time that it has been compelled to comment on this matter.

"It must be stressed that public interest in the lives of members of the Royal Family is intense, and rightly so, and that newspaper comment on, for example, Princess Margaret's future, is justified and this involves newspapers in a great responsibility in the way they deal with both fact and commentary in maintaining a standard of good taste.

"The council feels that certain papers have offended against good taste and have done considerable ill service to the reputation of the press."

515 Square Miles of Welsh Moorlands for National Park

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Britain has set aside 515 square miles of deep-wooded valleys and Welsh moorlands as a national park, the second in the last month.

The two new parks—still awaiting government confirmation—bring to more than 3,000 square miles the area throughout Britain designated since 1951 as National beauty spots for all to enjoy.

The second park includes the grassy slopes of southern Wales rising to the 2,907-foot Brecon Beacons, and the heather- and bracken-covered moorlands of the Black mountains and Carmarthenshire Vans.

QUAINT VILLAGES

The Beacons, a bare uncultivated mountain, is Britain's best example of rugged red sandstone.

The second park, in the Northumberland district, includes a Roman wall that skirts into nearby Cumberland.

The first national park was confirmed four years ago when Britain decided to put boundaries around her beauty spots. Unlike most Canadian national parks, British scenic sights include quaint villages, rolling farmland and private estates. To preserve their charm and grandeur, changes within park areas must be approved by a planning council.

The largest park is in the lake district—866 square miles of dimpled countryside with winding footpaths and special camping sites overlooking some of Britain's most breathtaking views. The smallest—only 225 square miles—is in Wales, along the rugged Pembrokeshire coast.

The others are the Peak district, Snowdonia, Dartmoor, North York Moors, Yorkshire dales and Exmoor.

HIKERS ENCOURAGED

Britons love to walk leisurely through the country, hiking with a knapsack or pack over mountain paths, along cliff roads, or into the moors, heaths and downs of the open spaces.

For hikers alone, four long-distance routes are being planned and the right-of-way negotiated. The Pennine way meanders for 250 miles along a range of mountains often called "the backbone of England." Thirty miles of it are still unfinished.

Two paths in Cornwall—the north and south coast paths—will cover 270 miles when finished, rimming the boulder-strewn coastline of Cornwall.

An official of the national parks commission says:

"We're proud of Britain's beauty and we want to keep it. We haven't 'nationalized' the land. We've merely said 'this is a beauty spot, so let's enjoy it.'"

During the last summer, many thousands—including visitors from North America and Europe—did just that.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Several ladies from the Bay of Quinte Institute attended the Area Convention in Belleville on Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Lorne Mallory and grandson, Paul Douglas Anderson were Tuesday guests of her sister, Mrs. Walter Jones.

Mrs. Ernest Curtis opened her home on Wednesday evening for October meeting of the Bay of Quinte Institute.

Mrs. George Page, of Pontiac, Michigan, has returned to her home after holidaying with her sister, Mrs. Jackson and father, Mr. Gilbert Saries.

Mrs. Clifton Rush, president of the Bayside W.M.S. and Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. W. Jeffery and Mrs. R. Nicolson attended the autumn rally of the Woman's Missionary Society on Friday, at Grace United Church, Trenton.

Congratulations to Mr. Gilbert Saries, who celebrated his 83rd birthday on Wednesday, October 12 at his home at Bayside. His family presented him with a Columbia television set and television light. His many friends join in wishing him many happy returns of the day.

At a Y. P. U. installation service Messrs. Donald Bowers and Bruce Bury, of White's were given the offices of treasurer and secretary respectively.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. L. Larsen to Limerick on Thursday and had dinner with friends at Limerick Lodge.

Berle, Gleason Feuding Over Buick Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Milton Berle touched off a transcontinental feud Tuesday with Jackie Gleason. Berle was quoted as saying he had turned down Gleason's $11,000,000 Buick television contract.

"I thought he only stole jokes," retorted Gleason as he denied he was Buick's second choice. "I guess he's going in for stealing, too."

Gleason was backed up by Myron Kirk, vice-president of the Kudner advertising agency, which handled the TV contract for Bruick, Said Kirk:

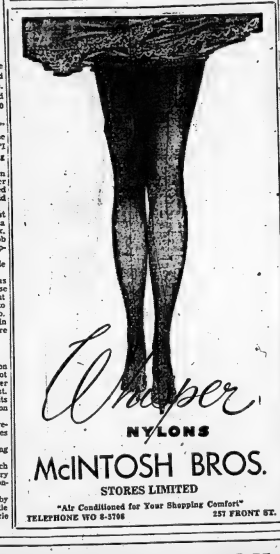
"Jackie Gleason was the first and only man approached to do a weekly series of shows for Buick. As for ever offering Berle a job or a Buick renewal, we never approached him at any time."

In a copyrighted story, TV Guide quoted Berle in reply to Kirk:

"Sure, they'll deny that I was offered the contract because they're a big organization, but let's not get dirty. If they want to play dirty—I can play dirty, too. Those agency guys back there in New York have charcoal gre hearts."

WAS BEING FRIENDLY

After TV Guide quoted Berle on the subject, the comedian could not immediately be reached for further comment. He is on the west coast.



Buick sponsored Berle until its account was switched to Gleason last Jan. 3.

Berle said he withheld any previous statement on the Buick sales out of friendship for Gleason.

In New York, an unsmiling Gleason told a reporter:

"We never associated with each other. We've never been very, very good friends. But I always considered him a friend of mine.

"I think this is some scheme by a press agent to kick up a little excitement. I'm sure Berle wouldn't say a thing like this."

TERMINAL EXPANSION

From the massive storage bins in this grain terminal at Churchill, Man., a river of wheat has flowed this summer. Ships of many countries have been loaded with Canadian grain for foreign markets. Construction of an annex to the terminal is nearing completion. When finished it will double the terminal's capacity to 5,000,000 bushels from 2,500,000 bushels. (CP from National Defence.)

Churchill's Grain Terminal Forgets Miserable Childhood

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—The giant pile of concrete and steel that is the Churchill grain terminal stands on grey rock thrusting like a gnarled finger into wind-whipped waters of the Hudson's bay.

From its massive storage bins this summer has flowed a river of wheat. Beneath its shadow the ships of many countries have moved into the bay and over the northern horizon, their holds crammed with Canadian grain.

Behind the terminal a town thrives. And across the barren tundra scientific and military minds seek to solve the mysteries of the north.

Never before in its 26-year-old history has the National Harbor Board terminal seen such activity. Its dismal past is all but forgotten.

BROACHED IN 1878

Churchill as a port had a miserable childhood. As early as 1878 a move was made to have the federal government build a railroad to Hudson's bay. Promoters argued that a shipping route through Hudson strait would save 1,000 miles and several handlings in moving wheat to England.

Construction of the rail line from The Pas, 320 miles northwest of Winnipeg, to the bay began in 1910 in the direction of Nelson, 130 miles downcoast from Churchill. The steel reached Kettle rapids on the Nelson river and stopped there. Construction ended in 1917 due to a wartime steel shortage. What work was done gradually deteriorated and an expenditure of some $20,000,000—$14,000,000 on the line itself and $6,000,000 on port facilities at Nelson was doomed.

But in 1926, an organization of western Canadian farmers and businessmen, called the On-to-the-Bay Association, persuaded the federal government to rehabilitate the line, abandon development plans at Nelson and complete the line to Churchill.

Steel finally reached this port on March 29, 1929. The first shipment of grain—a token shipment only—sailed from Churchill the following October. However, it was not until September, 1931, that the first commercial cargo was loaded from the newly-completed terminal.

DISASTROUS START

The first complete shipping season in 1932 ended in disaster. The tramp steamer Bright Fan, one of 19 ships that made the northern voyage, hit an iceberg in Hudson's strait on Oct. 1 and sank. Repercussions were great but a court of inquiry decided the vessel did not have a proper lookout.

The next few years were as discouraging. The depression came and drought and grasshoppers ruined Canadian crops. The mid-30s brought little business to Churchill. The port was closed down to commercial traffic during the Second World War, reopening in the spring of 1945.

A reorganized On-to-the-Bay Association, now renamed the Hudson's Bay Route Association, pressed for more business for the port. It called for greater railway maintenance and in 1947 organized tourist excursions from the Prairies.

By 1950 Churchill was practically vindicated and since then it has set an annual record for traffic. In 1951 31 vessels arrived, in 1952, 26; 1953, 31; 1954, 36; and 1955, 28.

The federal government, eyeing the increase, authorized construction of an annex to the terminal. When completed in November it will double the storage capacity from 2,500,000 bushels to 5,000,000.

The new annex, started in 1954, required 17,000 cubic yards of concrete and 850 tons of reinforcing and structural steel, all shipped from England. Its final cost, when completed in November, is estimated at $1,700,000.

Joint Defence Exercises Will Be Carried Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Canada announced simultaneously plans to conduct joint air defence exercises this winter.

The U.S. department of defence designated the operation as "Cracker Jack" and said the exercises will involve the air defence systems in both countries, presumably including the DEW (distant early warning) radar line now under construction near the Arctic circle.

Purpose of the exercise is to provide radar tracking and intercept practice for defence forces during winter weather. The U.S. strategic air command will be used to test the defences.

No date for the beginning of the exercise has been announced.

Reappraisal of Role of RCAF Air Division in Europe Postponed for Time Being

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—An "ongoing reappraisal" of the role of the RCAF air division in Europe has been postponed for the time being.

The problem, as External Affairs Minister Pearson put it recently, is that military strategy has outpaced political strategy.

Military speaking, the government would like to bring the 12 sabre jet squadrons in France and Germany back to Canada because it feels the main threat now to the entire NATO area is air onslaught against North America.

But, politically speaking, that can't be done now.

VISIBLE STRENGTH

Mr. Pearson said it is important that the physical evidence of Canada's cooperation in NATO—the air division and one infantry brigade—be maintained in Europe for the Europeans to see. It has frequently been said here, privately, of course, that Canada's brigade in Germany is a political brigade.

Officials say that the psychological factor of the comparatively presence of American and Canadian forces there—is more important than the cohesion of NATO than possibly better defence forces based on Canada, they add.

Canada, in any event, would be unlikely to pull out the air division without the approval of its NATO partners.

Mr. Pearson has said that there is no reason to think that these forces will be shifted around soon or that such a shift will be brought to the attention of the annual NATO council in December.

Officials say it is worth something that will have to be kept in mind.

SHIFTING EMPHASIS

The Canadian government is looking to the European partners to realize that North America is becoming an increasingly important defence area within NATO and that there is a growing defence burden for North America. North America is considered to be the only base from which a devastating and swift atomic counterblow could be made against Russia.

All this indicates that any decision to withdraw the air division is probably two or three years away.

And it is difficult to forecast what strategy will be in the next few years because of the rapid development of weapons systems, particularly guided missiles.

Uncover Loophole In Law About Crashes on Lakes

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A county police court case Tuesday revealed a loophole in the laws governing boat collisions on the Great Lakes.

The case showed there is no criminal negligence that can be laid against a boat owner whose boat rung down another craft.

Three government agencies have delved into the case since June 19 when five persons narrowly escaped death or serious injury when their boat was rammed.

In court a charge of failing to keep a lookout against Stanley Gomez, Jr., 44, of Gosfield South, was dismissed.

Magistrate J. Arthur Hanrahan said failing to keep a lookout does not constitute a legal charge.

Arthur Valentine, 51, of Kingsville, said he and four others were riding in a 15-foot boat about half a mile off Gosfield South in Lake Erie, when he saw a large cruiser bearing down on his boat.

He said the other boat struck his boat at the bow. His family donned life-jackets when the boat started shipping water and stayed afloat until help arrived.

Valentine said the cruiser kept right on course and failed to stop at the scene.

Crown attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald, said he contacted the department of transport and asked for information about a directive what charge should be laid against Gomez. He said the department would not advise him of any charge to lay.

RCMP investigated and, after searching shipping laws, decided "failing to keep a lookout" keep a lookout. The Mounties felt it was a proper charge under the circumstances.

The magistrate said the charge referred to a section of the Canada Shipping Act and does not create an offence.

The regulations did not cover the Great Lakes, but would cover a similar collision on the Detroit river.

Canadian Dollar Seems Settling Down Toward Par

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian dollar is settling down toward par. This may have some advantages to exporters in competing in foreign markets, but it may mean slightly heavier costs for Canadians who import large amounts of things from foreign sources.

The Canadian dollar, cut loose from government control in 1950, has been floating above par—that is, at an American price higher than the United States dollar—since March, 1951.

But its premium value has been dropping in the last few months. Tuesday at the close of trade it was quoted at a premium of one-quarter of a cent. At the end of May, it closed at 3-32 of a cent, down 5-32.

That is the closest it has come to par in three years. Another heavy slump would bring it to par or below.

A lot of factors enter into the Canadian dollar situation. Financial officials said it is difficult to tell which are causing the greatest pressure. They point to one of the world's leading traders, does a business in excess of more than a $8,000,000,000 in exports and imports.

In addition huge amounts of money cross the border in capital movements, chiefly as long-term investment. However, it appeared likely that many importers have been buying U.S. dollars to pay off bills, thus increasing demand. Canadian investors also may be pulling out their money, also creating a heavy demand.

Exporters and a lot of producers who sell on the export market have been clamoring for a reduction in the exchange rate. This could have the effect of either raising Canadian prices abroad or increasing exporters' earnings.

Importers, who benefited by the premium rate, may find their costs increasing sharply and this could trickle down to the consumer in perhaps a minor rise in living costs.

Canada's official reserves of gold and U.S. dollars undoubtedly are also affected. They totalled $1,936,290,000 at the end of September, up from $1,898,600,000 a year ago.

It is understood the Bank of Canada, which handles the reserves, would like to see them rebuilt. But it could not do so in the last few years without bucking the market trend.

CHARMS NOT LOST

LONDON (AP) — Diana Dors, billed as "Britain's delectable reply to Marilyn Monroe," was cut on the head, hands and legs in an automobile collision Monday night. Doctors said the platinum blonde film star suffered no serious impairment of her charms.

Support of Separate Schools Should Be Put in Writing

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario's public school trustees want municipal taxpayers to put in writing whether they wish to support separate schools.

That was the effect of a resolution passed by the trustees' association Tuesday before the close of its two-day annual meeting. It urged deletion of section 24 of the Ontario Assessment Act.

The section permits tax assessors, if they know personally that a taxpayer is Roman Catholic, to enter him on assessment rolls as a separate school supporter. He then pays school taxes to separate schools.

Bryson Comrie of Cornwall, chairman of the resolutions committee, said its repeal would end confusion which sometimes arises when Catholics are listed, unknown to themselves, as separate school supporters when they prefer to use public school facilities.

"It is embarrassing when the public school board goes after them for not supporting the public school," he said. "The assessor should have to rely on a written declaration signed by the individual concerned."

Another resolution said that when a separate school adherent changes his support to the public school, he should be required to continue public school support for eight years.

Mr. Comrie said Catholics sometimes send their children to one-year kindergarten classes or special classes for handicapped pupils which are not provided by separate schools. These classes were especially costly and the extra expense could be partly offset by requiring tax support over a longer period.

The association criticized provincial government policy of refusing construction grants for gymnasiums, auditoriums, domestic science rooms and similar facilities. It said those things are regarded as basic curricula, but that grants are insufficient to provide them.

Another motion approving the teaching of French in the elementary grades of public schools.

Later, Works Minister Winters forecast that by 1975 Ontario public and separate schools will need 9,000 more classrooms and teachers to meet the needs of an estimated 1,020,000 pupils.

In 20 years, the province's high schools will be called on to accommodate a great many more pupils and will need 6,000 additional teachers and between 6,000 and 6,500 more classrooms than at present he said in an address to the annual meeting.

Mr. Winters cited three important community planning considerations—"which have a great deal to do with school matters."

First, orderly and compact residential development was needed on the fringes of the cities where the province is taking place.

Secondly, he said, although community planners are not unanimous there is general agreement that new neighborhoods should be laid out with the elementary school as the point of focus.

The third consideration was that schools need space. He hoped school authorities would not always be obliged to build new schools on lots that can barely accommodate the buildings themselves."

Workers Request Big Wage Hike, 35-Hour Week

HAMILTON (CP) — American Can Company employees here announced Tuesday night they intend to submit to the guaranteed annual-wage and endorsed union demands for a 25% general increase and a 35-hour week.

Representing 450 workers in Hamilton, the union is one of four in the Can Workers' National Council (TLC) which covers 2,600 employees in the company's plants at Montreal, Hamilton, Simcoe and Chatham.

In a statement, issued by president Claude Boult, the local referred to the agreement signed recently by United Steel Workers with the other company plants, which includes provision for the guaranteed annual wage.

"The officers and members of the Hamilton Can Workers' Union believe that the guaranteed annual wage which will have effect in the plants organized by the Steel Workers on Oct. 1, 1956, is not guaranteed, is not annual and is not a wage. It can best be referred to as 'supplemental insurance benefits' " the statement said.

"The best way to rationalize, mechanize and the continuous introduction of automatic machinery is the reduction of the work day and the work week."

Still No Sign Of Settlement In GM Strike

TORONTO (CP)—The strike of 17,000 General Motors workers in five Ontario cities for a month old today and there is still no sign of a settlement.

George Burt, international representative of the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CLC) said Tuesday night union and company negotiators are "still talking," but would make no statement about progress.

Details of a seniority plan in the company's Oshawa plant continued to occupy negotiators Tuesday.

Top level talks covering company-wide matters, including a union demand for a guaranteed annual wage, will not begin until the Oshawa problems are settled.

Preliminary negotiations covering problems at the St. Catharines, Toronto, London and Windsor plants have already been completed.

Keen Election Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto appears to be heading for one of the most keenly-fought municipal elections in years.

At least six councillors or former councillors indicated Tuesday they will run for the four board of control seats and two others said they are thinking about it.

Controller Roy Belyea said recently he will run for mayor in the Dec. 15 elections against Mayor Nathan Phillips.

Ontario, Manitoba Finally Settle Their Boundary

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario and Manitoba have finally decided exactly where they are going.

They've been at it off and on since 1881. A federal act that year described Manitoba's eastern boundary as following Ontario's western reaches, but no one knew exactly where that was. It has taken 42 federal and provincial acts and orders-in-council and 84 years of sporadic surveying to reach the final decision.

The federal government and both provinces approved the surveyors' final findings in 1954, but the mines department said Tuesday that the Ontario-Manitoba boundary commission only recently turned in its final report.

The first survey, covering 58 miles of the 600-mile boundary, was made in 1871. All prospectors moved farther and farther north in their search for mineral wealth, the importance of knowing which province owned property that may be found to be rich in gold or rich mine became obvious.

So the survey proceeded again in 1921-22, 1929-30, 1937 and 1947-48, coming to a conclusion complete with cement markers along the way in 1950. The ground survey came to the point 27 feet on the Ontario side of the theoretical terminal as defined in 1912 legislation after some startlingly previous acts and orders-in-council. That was a point on the Hudson Bay shore where the 95th meridian.

The 1950 survey which includes 29 maps in its 92 pages, will form a permanent record of the survey, if the boundary ever needs defining again, the report will be there in all its detail to make the job easier than it was.

Political Honesty Not an Attribute Of Liberals--Hees

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, president of the National Progressive Conservative Association, said Tuesday night that political honesty is not an attribute of the Liberal party.

He told a meeting of the Women's Conservative Association of the Broadview riding that the Liberals promised nationwide health insurance 14 years ago but have ignored this solemn pledge.

"We have been making the same promise at every election since then," he said, "and once the question of honoring that pledge than they had in 1921," he said.

Mr. Hees said the Liberal party for the government to confer with the provinces on a mutually satisfactory national health insurance plan.

BAER IN OWN ROLE?

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Max Baer, former heavyweight boxing champion, has been signed by Columbia Pictures to portray a champ who ends the role of a prize fighter. The picture is "The Harder They Fall," and the role is reminiscent of the one fight in which Baer knocked out huge Primo Carnera to win the championship in 1934.

MEET IN OLD CAPITAL

BERLIN (Reuters) — Berlin became Germany's capital again temporarily Tuesday as the West German Bundestag held a full-scale session there.

Western Canada Outstripping East in Rate of Housing; Slum Clearance Moves Slowly

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western Canada this year is outstripping the East in rate of housing construction and at least one eastern city is experiencing an apartment building rush.

But clearance of slums and depressed areas across the country still is moving slowly, a survey by the Canadian Press shows.

In Regina, where building and fire regulations have been relaxed to permit construction of frame apartment buildings, 15 apartment blocks are in construction — compared with two at this time last year.

Winnipeg is building 32 apartment blocks and Calgary has 53 under construction. Rents still generally are high both in the East and West.

REDEVELOPED AREAS

Of 13 Canadian cities surveyed, only four report action in rebuilding depressed areas.

In Toronto the Regents Park north project, completed last year, has 1,289 units, five per cent of them five-bedroom, planned and financed by the city and the dominion government. Plans are complete for the Bain Avenue south project, planned and financed by the dominion and Ontario governments, but no actual work has been held with owners of the land to be purchased and clearing of the 725 units will consist of 13 per cent five-bedroom.

Hamilton and London, Ont., are making studies for similar projects. A slum clearance is also underway, reported from Vancouver, Calgary and Saint John, N.B. Winnipeg is considering a similar proposal to ease limits on housing construction.

COST REMAINS HIGH

Families in the low and middle income brackets still are feeling the greatest housing pinch. In Halifax, builders say low-cost construction is discouraged by a high municipal business tax.

One source reports the cost of building individual homes has doubled since 1947. A Halifax home built in 1947 for $8,000 is expected to bring $16,000 if sold now.

In Toronto, new one-bedroom suites are renting at $90 a month and up.

Housing is reported especially tight in Saint John and Charlottetown.

In St. John's an estimated 80 per cent of all homes built this year drew assistance in the form of loans from the crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. New homes with land will cost $13,000 to $20,000.

BUSY IN WEST

In the West, construction of residential units is at its highest since the war. Winnipeg reports 2,633 new homes to date as compared with 2,769 during the same period last year. Figures are the highest recorded for Winnipeg by the CMHC.

Housing construction in Calgary is likely to break all records among $17,000,000 by the end of the year, 30 this year. Residents have spent $23,000,000 on 2,294 single-family homes.

Vancouver reports 6,687 homes under construction as compared with 4,655 completed in 1954.

Toronto leads in construction in the East. Figures there say 28,779 dwelling units were built to May, 31 this year. In 1954, 37,383 units were completed by the end of August.

Fourteen cities surveyed generally report moving unpopular because of the tightness in the housing situation. Many western cities, however, say moving is at a higher ebb than they have known, with a trend away from the city toward the suburbs.

Paddy Keough Had to Be Content With Cadillac

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time since "The $64,000 Question" television show started, a contestant missed the $32,000 question Tuesday night and was forced to go home with a "mere" glittering luxury convertible as a consolation prize.

The unlucky quizee was Patrick (Paddy) Keough of St. Louis, a lifelong baseball fan.

In his baseball category, Keough got the first parts of a three-part question, but missed the final part.

Master of ceremonies Hal March asked Keough what one player holds the record batting average for three different major league clubs, the names of the clubs, and the record average with each club.

The portly assistant plant manager named Rogers Hornsby as the player and the St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves as the clubs.

He got .424 as the batting average with the Cards, and added .380 with the Cubs and .387 with the Braves. Then he said .389 for the Cubs.

"Paddy, would you repeat that?" asked March hopefully.

"Well, it was either .387, .382 or .389," he said.

"I'm terribly sorry, Paddy," March said. "You're wrong. The exact figure was .380."

Keough's face fell. The consolation prize, an expensive car, was brought on the stage and Keough was shown off, how-ever impressive and sombre.

Child Trapped In Food Freezer For Three Hours

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Three-year-old Mark Swanson was walked out of a hospital late Tuesday, fully recovered from the effects of being trapped in a food freezer for more than three hours Monday.

He apparently got into the upright freezer in the basement of his home before noon Monday while hunting for his cat.

Mark's mother went to the hospital Monday his temperature had dropped to 91. Doctors said a device which lowered his temperature, had probably saved his life. Mark's brain cells—the processes so he needed less oxygen. They said he might otherwise have suffocated.

WOULD BAR DIVORCES

DARTFORD, England (Reuters) A judge in Britain's appeal court has suggested right for the abolition of divorce as "the only solution for the protection of family life."

Lord Justice Hodson, 60, lord justice of appeal since 1951, speaking at a meeting of the local marriage council, said there has been an "enormous flood" of divorces recently.

Daley Critical of Attitude Taken by Labor Director

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley of Ontario said Tuesday the attitude of George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CLC) has been to try to strike first and to ask questions."

In an address to the annual convention of the food division of the Retail Merchants' Association, Mr. Daley criticized the union leader for "walking out" on conciliation hearings of his dispute between the UAW and General Motors Corporation of Canada.

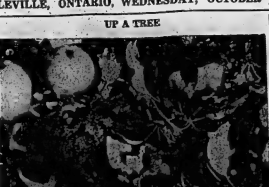
Some 17,000 employees at GM plants in five Ontario cities have been on strike since Sept. 19.

Mr. Daley suggested the union would have obtained many of the improvements it has requested without the necessity of strike action "if George Burt had . . . followed out the proper procedures."

Mr. Burt, in a prepared statement released after the minister's address, said Mr. Daley "has again gotten into a strike on the side of management."

He said Mr. Daley's suggestion he might have averted strike action by "following procedures" is a "platitudinous guess founded in hypocrisy."

Later, the independent grocers were advised that to cut costs and help meet supermarket competition they should cut out credit and home deliveries.



The advice came from a panel of five wholesalers who discussed ways of holding and increasing small-store business.

Walter Lumbers, general manager of Toronto wholesale grocery, said proof of the wisdom of cutting credit and deliveries was the fact the most successful independent operators have abolished both.

"I know of some grocers who have reduced sales of as much as which customers owe them," he said. "They could use this money to expand and become more efficient. People pay cash when they go to a movie or buy a bottle of liquor, yet they think they should get food, which is much more important, on credit."

The wholesalers' panel discussed the value of advertising, listing newspapers, then handbills, then radio as the most valuable media.

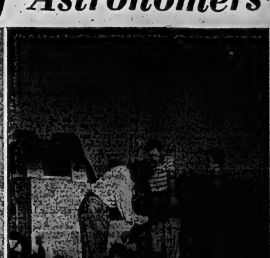
SOAPY LANDING SAVES SABRE FROM DESTRUCTION



An RCAF Sabre Jet has come to a safe stop after literally sliding to a landing at its Grostenquin, France, base when the nose wheel became cocked at right angles to flight direction. Quick thinking on the ground by F/L Lloyd Skaalan, Kelowna, B.C., who ordered a strip of fire extinguisher foam put on the runway for the crippled nose wheel to slide on, and precise flying by F/O Bob Caskie of Toronto, who straddled the strip with his main wheels and, then gently lowered the nose wheel to the greasy surface, saved more than a quarter million dollars of aircraft. The nose wheel's skid mark can be seen in the middle of the strip, as the pilot surveys the safe but soapy scene. (RCAF Photo from Central Press Canadian.)

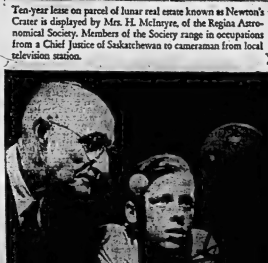
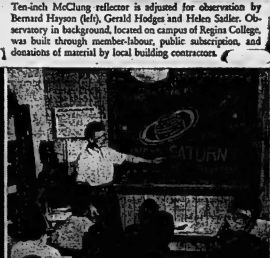
Do-it-yourself Astronomers



Ten-year lease on parcel of lunar real estate known as Newton's Crater is displayed by Mrs. H. McIntyre, of the Regina Astronomical Society. Members of the Society range in occupations from a Chief Justice of Saskatchewan to cameraman from local television station.



Ten-inch McClung reflector is adjusted for observation by Bernard Hayson (left), Gerald Hodges and Helen Sadler. Observatory in background, located on campus of Regina College, was built through member-labour, public subscription, and donations of material by local building contractors.

Star-gazing is the hobby of the 70 members of Regina's Astronomical Society, who help keep tabs on outer space in the interests of fun and science. The Society was formed in 1951 by a small group of amateur astronomers who were determined to build an observatory from which to carry out their celestial observations. Over the next four years they drummed up local interest in astronomy, coaxed donations of building materials from Regina merchants and put in long hours designing and building new quarters. Now, from their aluminum-domed observatory, they star-gaze every clear night, compiling scientific data on the universe. Telescope-making is an interesting part of the hobby and members spend a lot of time keeping delicate lens surfaces in top condition (above). To finance its program the Society sells plots of land on the moon for membership dues. Here Bernard Hayson (below) points out location of newly-purchased piece of heavenly real estate to wife, Joan.

Mysteries of our solar system capture the fancy of young and old alike. Septegenarian Alex Colven explains to 12-year-old Ron Torne the operations of an orrery, a device used to illustrate the relative movements of the moon and earth in their orbits around the sun.

In wartime shelter donated by City of Regina as clubroom, members listen to lecture on Saturn and its satellites given by Saskatchewan engineer Johan Toews. Society has contributed scientific reports on its observations to various astronomical periodicals and to the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa.

Municipal Golf Course Will Not Have 'Pro'

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto metropolitan municipal golf course will be without the services of a professional golfer when it opens next July.

Metropolitan council ruled Tuesday that the initial staff of the $275,000 championship course, in North York township, will consist of manager, greenkeeper and a temporary crew of maintenance workers.

Fred Gardiner, metropolitan chairman, told the council the cost of the golf course is a long way above the original estimates. "We don't want to have to subsidize the course with taxpayers money," he said.

Mr. Gardiner also apologized for calling professional golfers "prima donnas." He made the statement a few days ago and has since been under considerable fire by the professionals.

Six Russians See Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — Six touring newspaper men from Russia ventured down Wall street Tuesday to see at first hand what Soviet newspapers have long viewed as a place of sinister influence indeed.

They came away saying that they had has a nice time.

Keith Funston, president of the New York stock exchange, met the group and explained how the United States economy operates to provide the capital investment for tools and equipment used by each of the millions of American workers.

The Russians, who arrived here Monday, made Wall street the first sightseeing stop of their month-long American tour.

Faulty Plumbing Cause of Flood Ruling of Court

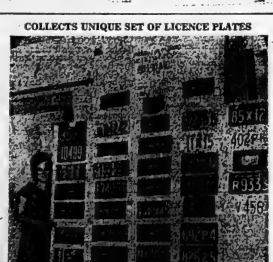
TORONTO (CP)—Three co-owners of an Orillia building block lost an action for damages against a roofing contractor Tuesday when an Ontario Supreme Court justice ruled plumbing, not roofing, caused flooding of the building Sept. 4, 1953.

W. Griffith Bingham, his wife Bessie, and his mother Annie, had sued the roofing contractors, John Berrisult and Son, after the Bingham building block was flooded.

The plaintiffs charged the contractors had left portions of the roof unprotected when they discontinued work on the roof Sept. 1, 1953.

The contractors filed a counter-claim of $1,800 for the balance owing on the roof repair job.

Mr. Justice H. A. Aylen dismissed the case. He found faulty plumbing caused the flood. The judge said there was no dispute over the amount owing the contractors.



Keewatin Men Are Asphyxiated In Smoky Cabin

KEEWATIN (CP) — Police in this northwestern Ontario resort town Tuesday identified two men who were asphyxiated in a smoke-filled cabin Monday as Joseph Charles Daigle of Richibucto, N.B., and Tyler Mallet, believed to be from the Kenora district.

The men, working at odd jobs around Keewatin, had been living in the cabin. Their bodies were found by the son-in-law of the cabin owner after he investigated heavy smoke coming from the chimney of the oil-heated cabin.

Mallet has a sister in Sudbury.

COLLECTS UNIQUE SET OF LICENCE PLATES

One of the many unusual collectors' items owned by Capt. John C. M. Kirk, of Whitby, Ont., is this complete set of 48 Ontario licence plates, believed to be the only one in existence. Dating back to 1903, the year motorists made their first appearance, the collection has won Mr. many Regia at hobby shows. In 1954, at the CNE's International Home and Crafts show, the display was awarded an honorable mention, edged from first place by a collection of old firearms. But Kirk wasn't disappointed, for he also owned the guns. (Central Press Canadian.)

$6,000 Tax Money Missing in B.C.

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Six thousand dollars in tax money was listed as missing as police attempted to pick up the trail of a city hall employee who left town in a chartered aircraft.

Sought for questioning was Jack O'Neill, 28-year-old assistant accountant who, police said, set out to deposit tax receipts at the bank Tuesday but hired a plane instead.

City cheques totalling $41,000 were found in a parked car. Kelowna comptroller Doug Herbert said another $6,000 in cash, also part of the money meant for deposit, was missing.

RCMP said no warrant has been issued but that they were seeking O'Neill for questioning.

Discovery of Car Hood May Solve 15-Year Mystery

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Discovery of the hood of a car in the water off the CPR dock here Tuesday night has led to speculation that a 15-year-old mysterious disappearance might be solved. The discovery was made while police were dragging for another car which they believed had been driven off the dock by a Sault man Monday night.

A North Bay couple, Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk, were objects of a widespread search after they disappeared Oct. 4, 1940. They had left Sudbury for the Sault, enroute to spend a holiday in Emmerson, Man., and were never seen again. They were reportedly driving a 1938 black Plymouth.

The car hood found here was said by one auto mechanic on the scene this morning to have come from such a car. A diver was to start operations this afternoon.

The search which led to the discovery was being conducted for Arthur Rooley, 50, who had been reported missing since Monday night after intimating to his son he intended to commit suicide. A mark on the edge of the dock, which could have been made by the tailpipe of a car, led police to the area.

Prisoners Take Mute Advice From Bystanders

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (Reuters) — The people of East Germany have found a way round restrictions imposed by Communist police designed to prevent them tipping off prisoners returning from Russia on just what life is like in the Communist zone.

Trains from Russia move through East Germany only at night, and East German citizens are prevented from approaching the train or talking to the men.

But, according to prisoners, they have found a way to make it clear to the prisoners that they would be better off in West Germany.

They stand in lines along the track with fingers outstretched, pointing to the west. The great majority of the prisoners have taken the mute advice.

Number Seeking Work in Sept. Rises Slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of Canadians unemployed and seeking work in September rose slightly for the first time in six months as ideal harvest conditions shortened the season and resulted in a sharper-than-usual decline in farm employment.

Persons without jobs and seeking work Sept. 17 rose to 138,000 from 131,000 Aug. 20, but was well below the 188,000 in this condition a year earlier, the bureau of statistics and the labor department said today in a joint monthly report.

Applications for work on hand with National Employment Service offices Sept. 15 had declined 11,500 to 186,000 from the 197,000 on file Aug. 18. This was 57,200 below the figure for that period last year.

In the month ending Sept. 17 the number of persons estimated to have jobs was 5,485,000, down but higher than the 5,427,000 a year earlier. Some 118,000 of the 346,000 decline were farm laborers, the report said.

MISSION CHURCH

Rev. L. R. Willis in charge of St. Paul's Anglican Mission, stirs the coals in the church stove at Churchill, Man. The church is the oldest mission in the Churchill diocese and was first established in 1890 across the river from the present townsite. Destroyed by fire in 1890, it was rebuilt in 1892.

Living Problem in Hudson Bay Port of Churchill

Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Living is a problem in this Hudson's bay port.

Food costs are higher. Telephones are few. Plumbing is mostly outdoors. And only a few houses have running water.

Summer brings out the black flies and the mosquitoes, winter, the snow and the freezing cold.

And when you die they have to carve out your grave with dynamite.

POPULATION 830

But some 850 hardy souls call this town, scattered over the rocks and tundra at the mouth of the Churchill river, home.

Churchill is enjoying its best year ever. The shipping boom has brought increased activity to the port. Construction of radar defence lines further north has turned the town and nearby Fort Churchill, a joint Canadian-U.S. military base, into a bustling operations headquarters.

The boom has created a multitude of problems for the town which is still an unorganized municipality. This summer the town, with the approval of the Manitoba government, established a five-man town planning committee headed by furniture dealer A. A. Anderson to handle affairs.

Fifty new homes were erected this year and the committee set aside new building lots to meet next year's demand. The lots would make a city contractor shudder. They are strewn with huge rocks—some as big as a small house—beneath the tundra.

Only two or three feet below the surface the ground is frozen solid the year round. Excavation is impossible; buildings rest on a gravel pad hauled in by truck. Yet these lots are selling from $30 to $300.

Because of the permafrost pipelines run along the surface. Water supplied by the National Harbor Board is piped to the town from Lake Isabel, two miles distant. The line skirts the town with a branch running through a row of houses to the Canadian National Railways terminal.

The 20 houses by the lines are able to tap the supply at $1 a year. But when the cold weather sets in the supply to the homes is cut off and householders must haul their own water or pay 75 cents for a barrel delivered. Some residents melt ice.

The few telephones are operated through the camp switchboard. When a telegram arrives for a resident an announcement is made over the camp radio station CHFC and the receiver must either walk to the nearest telephone or directly to the station.

The local chamber of commerce now is trying to persuade the Manitoba telephone system to run a long-distance line from The Pas.

ELECTRICITY SUPPLY

The harbor board supplies the town with electricity at 12 cents a kilowatt. Most homes have outdoor toilets, others septic tanks and cesspools.

Fuel oil sells for $14.30 for a 35-gallon drum and coal at $24 a ton.

Churchill looks its best in winter; the snow hides the garbage and litter strewn about the town. Infrequent garbage collections are made during the summer and none in the winter months.

The shabbiness is made more noticeable by the lack of vegetation. Hudson square, a huge rectangle set in the middle of town, is a barren expanse of boulders and gravel. There are no lawns or gardens. Drainage ditches run deep along some streets.

Exteriors of most homes are dull, generally grey imitation brick siding. Tar paper is common. The only painted home of Dave Croal, Churchill bush pilot, stands like a fresh blossom in a fading garden. The enterprising Croal is currently attempting to make a lawn around his home. He has laid a fill of wheat screenings and coal dust. Before the snow flies he hopes to truck a load of top soil from the Churchill river banks.

ARMY HUTS MADE OVER

Enterprising business men have moved abandoned army huts from the camp and carved them up into small homes. Thirty families of servicemen live in town, paying from $70 to $90 a month for two- and three-room dwellings.

Traffic is fairly heavy on the dusty, gravel road running the five miles to Fort Churchill. The 10 taxis operating from the town charge a set rate of $4 for the round trip. Gasoline costs for 54½ cents a gallon.

Fresh milk sells for 40 cents a quart and 50-pound sack of potatoes $8. The mail-order businessn for clothes is brisk.

The town is fringed with shacks and tents of the Chippewyan Indians. Howling sled dogs are chained in the flats between the town and the port for they are not allowed within 200 feet of a building.

The town is the centre of two religious orders. It is the headquarters of the Oblate Fathers of the Hudson's bay vicariate, a Roman Catholic order whose missions spread north from Churchill throughout the Hudson's bay area.

The order, first working in the area in 1912, established its permanent mission in Churchill in 1920. The fathers run one of the town's most thriving tourist centres, the Arctic Museum. The museum, managed by Father Valant, contains one of Canada's finest collections of Eskimo work.

ESTABLISHED IN 1866

Rev. L. R. Willis of Sundridge, Ont., is in charge of St. Paul's Anglican mission, the oldest mission in the north. The most northerly mission of the Keewatin diocese, it was first established in 1866 across the river from the present townsite.

The church was destroyed by fire 30 years later. The present building was donated by interested people in England, Scotland and Ireland who shipped the materials and furnishings to Churchill. It was erected in 1892 by Rev. Joseph Lofthouse who later became the first bishop of the Keewatin diocese.

The church was moved across the river to its present site in 1936. Of the 130 families in the congregation two-thirds are natives.

A whaling factory operates on the river during the summer months. Natives are paid $1 a foot for the beluga, or white whale, which normally run to about 12 feet. The mammal's oil is shipped out by the barrel and its flesh and bones ground up for mink feed.

The ruins of Fort Prince of Wales still stand on Eskimo point on the mouth of the Churchill. The fort, completed by the British in 1771, was destroyed on Aug. 8, 1782 by a French raiding party. Recently the historic sites and monuments board restored it.

Little Benny's Notebook

It was windy as anything, and the leaves were blowing around the street in circles to prove summer was all the ways over, and us fellows were running around in the same circles pretending the wind was blowing us too, and Puds Simkins said. Hay, Benny, your mother is waiving for you to come home.

Which she was, out on our frunt steps, and I thought, Aw heck.

And I walked down slow, and ma said, Doel you think you've had quite enough of that wild chasing around.

Aw G, ma, gosh. I was just startin to really injoy it. I said, and she said, There's no use carrying injoyment to the point of exhawstion, dont forget you're only human.

No I'm not, ma, I meen I feel fine, I said, and ma said, I dont doubt it, you'd still feel fine if you were on a stretcher on your way to the oxygen tent. You're puffing so you can hardly talk, she said.

Aw G, ma, I could keep it up another hour and still feel fresher than when I started, I said. Jimminies, ma, I'm just getting my 2nd wind, I said, and ma said, Well in that case you can run around to the market for me and get your 3rd wind. I actually thought you must be tired, but now I know you're not because I have your own werd for it. In fact, I have a whole flood of your own werds, she said.

Aw heck, ma, that was a heck of a way to make me fall in a trap, I said, and she said, Nonsense, I never heard zuteh nonsense.

And she lafted as if she thought it was a good joke on me just the same.

Which it really proabably was.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

MIX IT UP!

If the sports powers-that-be could toss in an exhibition game between the Ottawa Rough Riders and the Toronto Argonauts between now and Sunday, the faithful could run practically the entire gamut of fall and early winter sports this week. And while they're at it, they could import Flo Chadwick, Marilyn Bell and a few other fair natators to do a swim marathon up the fragrant waters of the swollen Moira.

By instance, hockey will make its inaugural bow, albeit an exhibition affair, when the Montreal Junior Canadiens step on the ice Thursday night against the warriors wearing the colors of the Belleville TPT senior "B" club, while on Saturday afternoon, the village baseball suits will come out of the year-old mothballs in some cases and get an airing against Frank "Spec" Shea's touring Major League stars. If the weather man tosses in his fair-minded cents all should be hunky dory for the puck-baseball addicts.

As far as the hockey game goes, don't let that moniker "junior" fool you. These Morryall kids may be youngsters, but they're juniors in the age category only. They breed 'em tough down thataway and the land of the Richards, Lachs, Olmsteads, Beliveaus and other illustrious puck names is still producing rumblers that bid fair to carry on the traditions of their forefathers.

Reports from the eastern metropolis state that the Junior Canadiens are one of the better younger squads to wear the famous colors of the club. They are big, fast, good stickhandlers and know what to do with the puck when near the enemy goal. Some of their more enthusiastic supporters have visions of a Memorial Cup for the flying French rounkers.

Coach Danny Cox has not yet announced his starting squad to get the season on its way. This will probably be released in time for tomorrow's editions for Danny will send the best he has out in an effort to rack up the first victory of the season. With a week's hard practice grinds under their belts the TPT's should be in shape for the intensive workouts and should be in fettle for the important tussle with the beardless buckaroos from Quebec.

Meanwhile, hard-boiled baseball fans, a number of others and a large crowd of the curious who have not as yet laid eyes on a major league baseball player in action, are anxiously awaiting Saturday afternoon hoping that the weatherman will forget football and hockey for the nonce, and send some mild weather this way. The meeting between Frank Shea's luminaries and Jack Carson's not-so glittering all-stars of the district.

Carson is scouring the district for players with which he can round out a squad to face the major leaguers. In any event they will have the benefit of a topflight hurler, either Clem Labine, Ed Roebuck, Chet Nichell of the Milwaukee Braves and Frank Shea of the Washington Senators. Fans attending the game will likely see some of the longest ball hitting ever to grace the Exhibition Park.

The baseball game proceeds will go to the city "B" hockey club's exchequer—or by hiking it both the Canadiens-TPT hockey tilt and the major leaguers-District all-stars game you will be putting your support eggs in one basket—and assist the hockey crew to a good start on what looks like a highly interesting season.

WITH BROTHER ACT WITH CANADIENS

The Richards, Maurice and Henri, who are currently cavorting in great style with the Montreal Canadiens, are the ninth set of brothers to have worn the blue-blanc-rouge of Canadiens.

Starting back in 1917-18, the first season the National Hockey League operated, there were the Mummery brothers, Harry and Walter, who played together on Canadiens. In 1923-24, the Canadiens' roster listed the names of Odie and Sprague Cleghorn, one of the NHL's better brother acts. During the 1926-27 season, Aurel Joliat, Canadiens' illustrious left winger, was joined by his brother Rene.

Another Canadiens' brother act during the 1934-35 season was composed of the Boschers, Bob and Billy. In 1935-36 the Lepine Freres graced the Canadiens' lineup. They were Pit, the recently deceased centre and brother Hector. Although Hector played very long with the club he was an outstanding player and vividly remembered by Montreal followers of that period.

The best-known of Canadiens' nine brother acts first joined forces in 1943-44. That was the season that Sylvio and Georges Mantha played together on Canadiens. The Mantha brother act lasted for several years with Canadiens. In 1947-48, Jean-Louis and Conrad Bouvier played with the Habitants, while in 1951-52 Terry and Kenny Reardon played on the same Montreal Canadiens' team. The Reardons played just the one season together on Canadiens.

Nine brother acts on one team is quite a record and one that will take some beating.

APROVE FLO'S RECORD

DOVER, England (AP) — The English Channel Swimming Association Tuesday accepted Florence Chadwick's swim from Dover to France in 13 hours 55 minutes as a record.

The 34-year-old San Diego, Cal., swimmer set it Oct. 11. Her time was 11 minutes better than that established by England's Bill Pickering in August.

Brantford's Gordon Wallace Flattens Briton In Fourth; Yvon Durelle KO'd By Pompey

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian fighter has rung down the curtain on Randy Turpin's career and another Canadian was the unwilling means of boosting the stock of Yolande Pompey toward the world title shot that slipped from Randy's grasp.

Pompey, the Trinidad Negro who ranks seventh among the world's lightheavyweights, was tapped for a possible match with champion Archie Moore as a result of a slugging match with Canadian champion Yvon Durelle Tuesday, which ended with the Bale Boy, Anne, N.B., lobster fisherman on the canvas in the seventh round.

But it was Gordon Wallace, an unranked 26-year-old slugger from Brantford, who nailed down Pompey's title ambitions a few minutes later by blasting Turpin from his path with a fourth-round knockout that led the former world middleweight titleholder to announce his retirement.

London promoter Jack Solomons announced after the card that, he would cable Moore immediately offering terms for a defence against Pompey in London Jan. 10. It would be Archie's first fight since he was knocked out last month in a futile bid to capture Rocky Marciano's heavyweight crown.

FLANS CHANGED

Solomons originally intended to line up the bout for the 27-year-old Turpin, but Wallace's two-fisted attack decisively changed his plans.

Wallace, a blonde, stocky standup fighter who boasted professional five years ago after winning the Canadian amateur middleweight title and who has lost three times in as many meetings with Durelle, took his share of punishment from the 27-year-old Turpin, who still holds the British and Empire light-heavyweight titles.

But the gallant West Indian Negro, who has been unbeaten over the great Sugar Ray Robinson four years ago brought Britain her first world middleweight title in 30 years had gone back too far from his peak form.

"My reflexes aren't there any more," he said softly after his defeat. "When that happens it is the end."

Apart from his three losing battles with Durelle, the last a 12-round decision for the Canadian title, Wallace's most important fight was a three-round technical knockout at the hands of Floyd Patterson, widely regarded as the next heavyweight champion.

Wallace, born in Creighton Mines Ont., and a steel-moulder at Brantford, had 20 fights in years of his pro career, showed plenty of gameness against the former champion, who drew blood from his nose and opened a cut over his eye in the early rounds.

WALLACE DOWN

But in the second round Turpin went down twice for counts of six and eight. Turpin took the best display in the third round, dropping Wallace for six with two heavy rights. Wallace got up to stagger the ex-champ with a right to the chin, but as the bell the Canadian wandered dazedly toward a neutral corner and had to be guided to his stool.

Wallace recovered quickly during the lunch hour, right to line that dropped Turpin for nine and another barrage of blows put him away. It took Randy some minutes to recover and when he did so, he and his manager, George Middleton, were prompt in announcing his retirement.

"We have no excuses," Middleton said. "Turpin put his heart and soul into Wallace for this fight."

It was the end of a slow downhill process for Turpin, beginning 66 days after he became champion

BRANTFORD (CP) — Gordon Wallace's manager, Frank Bricker, said Tuesday night "I'm really proud of the boy's great win in London."

Wallace scored a knockout over Randy Turpin, former world's middleweight champion, Tuesday night and immediately after the bout Turpin announced his retirement from the ring.

"I've been Gord's manager for 13 years and he has never caused me any trouble," Bricker said from his home here. Bricker said he was unable to make the trip to England with Wallace because of business.

"Wallace has never fallen down on his conditioning. He is in top shape for each fight," Bricker said.

"I don't know where the boy will go from here. But one of the conditions of the fight was that if Gord put up a good fight against Turpin, he would probably be set up for a better match in London," Bricker said.

Soccer Game Won by Blues

HAMILTON (CP)—University of Toronto's senior Blues overwhelmed McMaster University Marauders 10-1 Tuesday to register their fourth straight win in intercollegiate soccer League play.

The Blues, undefeated in two years, had little trouble against McMaster. It was McMaster's third loss in three starts.

Outside right Rod Green scored three goals for Toronto. Inside right Ed Bracht scored twice while team-mates Ulo Sarna, Andy Rava, Ernie Ouspuu, Jimmy Reid and Ron Williams added single goals.

Toronto's intermediates made it a double-victory for the Blues with Master 7-0.

It was their third successive triumph. McMaster has lost three in a row.

when an aroused Robinson battered him into submission by a technical knockout in Detroit to regain his world title.

Durelle put up a rousing scrap against Pompey, ranked seventh among the world's light-heavyweights, before three tremendous rights to the head put him away in the seventh.

The rugged lobster fisherman, making his second losing appearance in a British ring this year, matched Pompey's attack for the first three rounds but appeared to hurt his right hand on the head of the third.

In the seventh Pompey finally floored the Canadian champion for a count of eight with a smashing right uppercut. Another uppercut dropped him for nine and a flurry of blows climaxed by a third uppercut sent Durelle down for the count.

BRITISH TEAM ARRIVES

NEW YORK (AP)—British 10-man Ryder Cup golf team arrived Tuesday for its match with the U.S. professionals at Palm Springs, Calif., Nov. 5-6. Beaten in the international series since 1953, the visitors expressed optimism over the possibility of getting back on the winning path.

"I think we have the best balanced side we ever had," said team captain Dai Rees of Wales. Another reason, said Rees, is the British players will be able to use the smaller English ball here for the first time. The English pellet is one-sixteenth of an inch less in diameter than the U.S. ball.

Curling Classic Game Length Is Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — Length of games in the Ontario Silver Tankard, premier competition in curling in this province, has been reduced to 12 from 16 ends.

This decision was taken Tuesday at the 52nd annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association.

The double-rink tankard competition, played annually since 1873, originally was a 32-end event but in subsequent years was reduced to 28 ends, then to 18. Other double-rink events, the Governor General's, the Borden, and The Globe and Mail Trophies, also were cut to 12 ends.

Retiring president W. O. Tudhope of Orillia presided at the meeting at which it was announced a host of Scottish curlers will visit Canada in 1957.

W. E. Middlurry of Toronto, secretary, reported a membership increase during the year.

T. H. Simpson of Hamilton presented the tankard banner to W.M. Crothers of the Peterborough club which won the event for the first time last winter.

W. J. Stewart of Toronto was elected president and other officers included: Mr. Simpson and D. W. McCormick, Galt, vice-presidents; Rev. C. A. Lawson, Toronto, chaplain; Mr. McMurtry, secretary-treasurer.

Bud Smith Predicts KO Over Carter

CINCINNATI (AP)—The records show that Jimmy Carter, frequent champion of the lightweight boxers has been knocked out only once in 26 fights, but Bud Smith, who dethroned him last, expects to do it here tonight.

"Almost had him when I took the title in Boston in June, and sure will get him this time," Smith, a Cincinnati boxer, said Tuesday. "I'm ready, and eager."

So is Carter, accused of fighting best only when the big chips are down. They are down for the scheduled 15 - rounder, because some say the little New Yorker is slipping.

Back in 1947 Carter, with less than two years' experience, was stopped in seven rounds by Charley (Cokey) Lewis. Lewis was quite a fighter in those days.

Smith too, has been stopped once—by Joe Miceli in two rounds in an overweight match in 1954.

Smith, who has made little money in seven years of professional boxing and 46 bouts, believes his left hook is better than that of the three-time champion, and that it carries more power.

Vancouver Gets 4000 Cup Tickets

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Rugby Union has allotted Vancouver 4,168 tickets for the Grey Cup football classic in Empire Stadium Nov. 26.

Don Mackenzie, president of B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, announced the figure Monday night.

Although temporary seats will raise Empire Stadium's seating capacity to approximately 31,500 for the game, Mackenzie said Vancouver was fortunate in obtaining more than 4,000 tickets.

Another 8,000 tickets will be issued for standing room at the north end of the stadium, Mackenzie said.

Leafian Brains Show Promise; Wandering Willie Marshal Back in National Hockey Loop

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Willie Marshall, who threatened to quit hockey unless given a try-out with Toronto Maple Leafs is back in the National Hockey League. And this time it may be to stay.

Marshall was recalled from Pittsburgh Hornets, Leafs' American League farm team, Tuesday after the Toronto brass decided the Leafs needed some scoring punch.

The 154-pound centre told Leaf general manager Hap Day that he would quit the game if he wasn't given a tryout with the big-league team during fall training.

Willie got that assurance but he would be given the same chance as anyone else if he wanted a berth with us," Day said Month at Leafs' training camp.

RETURNED TO HORNETS

Marshall had his tryout with Toronto but before the NHL season was launched he was back with the Hornets.

But he will be wearing a Toronto uniform when the Leafs open the season at Madison Square Garden in the lone NHL engagement tonight.

Marshall's scoring record in Pittsburgh's first four games of the season was what probably turned the heads of Toronto officials toward the Kirkland Lake native.

In those four games, Marshall fired five goals and assisted on nine others for 14 points. In one game alone he counted three goals and five assists.

This is the third time Willie has been up with the Leafs. In 1952-53 he played in two games but didn't get on the score sheet. Last year he was with Toronto for 16 games and scored one goal and four assists.

LEAFS IN CELLAR

If Marshall is major-league material, probably will not get a better chance to prove it. At the moment Leafs are looking at the rest of the league from the cellar with a dismal one win and a tie in six games.

They have been held to one goal and three setbacks in their four games on the road. Detroit Red Wings were Leafs' victims 4-3 at Toronto and Leafs tied Boston Bruins 3-3 in the other home game.

Rangers move into Madison Square Garden with a split in their first four games, all on the road. They are in a fourth-place deadlock with the Red Wings, one point out of second spot and also a point ahead of Leafs.

The game tonight will mark Phil Watson's debut in New York as the Ranger coach. Although he is disappointed with the team's two weekend losses, Watson is nevertheless happy that its record equals the best starting road tour in the last nine years.

Bill Chadwick, who spent 14 years as an NHL referee, will be presented with a silver tray before the game by league president Clarence Campbell. Chadwick hung up his whistle at the end of last season in favor of a general manager's job with a New York Country Club.

Thursday night Montreal Canadiens try to make it five games in a row without a loss when they take on Boston in Montreal. Chicago will be playing the Red Wings at Detroit in the other game.

Indians-Seals Deal in Bag

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A deal by Hank Greenberg to buy the San Francisco Seals baseball club appeared in the bag today.

"We have reached a verbal agreement on the sale," the Cleveland Indians general manager said Tuesday night after conferring with Demon Miller, president of the Little Corporation, which controls the Seals franchise in the Pacific Coast League.

Miller, who struggled with slumping attendance and growing debts all last season, broke into a big grin.

"If all turns out as expected, Greenberg said he would make a press - conference announcement today.

The offer made to Greenberg, Miller said, would be a $100,000 deal.

Frisk would have to assume a $65,000 bank note, pay off $30,000 still owed the Pacific Coast League and purchase 100 per cent of the common stock, which is worth $20,000."

Greenberg said he expected to be president of the Seals club but would remain in Cleveland with the American League club.

"The important thing is to get players," he said. "I think I could better serve the Seals by remaining in Cleveland.

"But the big wheel would be the man I place here to run the club."

'Mo' Sues Firm For $265,000

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Tennis promotor Jack Kramer Tuesday told a jury, hearing former tennis champion Maureen Connolly's $265,000 damage suit for a horseriding injury, that she asked him to pay her $75,000 the first year as a professional.

The former women's tennis champion, now Mrs. Norman Brinker, charges the injury wrecked her tennis career, including plans for professional play.

She suffered a broken right leg and a torn calf when her leg was caught between her horse and a concrete mixing truck July 20, 1954. She is suing the Pre-Mix Concrete Company and its truck driver.

Kramer said the deal with Miss Connolly didn't get beyond the talking point, but added that he intended to get her "as cheaply as possible."

Kramer estimated that on the basis of previous professional tennis tours, she could earn approximately $52,500 in the United States plus another $30,000 for a world tour, in addition to income from endorsements.

Happy to Be 1956 Cup Host Says Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto would be most happy to be host to the Grey Cup football game next year, Mayor Nathan Phillips said Tuesday.

The chief executive of the city that had regularly been the scene of the Canadian football championship game until this year, was commenting on a statement by Sydney Halter, western Canada football commissioner, that Vancouver lacked adequate, first class accommodation to handle visitors.

This year's game will be played in Vancouver.

"We'll have at least 4,000 more hotel rooms available for next Grey Cup time," Mayor Phillips said. "We certainly would welcome the Grey Cup back. We have no hard feelings because Vancouver has the game this year. We wish them luck."

Arena Opens With Big Crowd; Winnipeg Loses

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's entry in the Western Hockey League didn't fare too well Tuesday night but the fans marked the official opening of the city's $2,000,000 arena with a record attendance.

While Winnipeg Warriors lost their first home game and their third this season, 9,671 enthusiasts welcomed professional hockey back to the city, betseting by 818 the old WHL attendance mark set in Calgary. It was Winnipeg's first pro game in 28 years. Warriors lost 5-2 to Calgary.

Pre - game ceremonies, with speeches by provincial, civic, business and hockey leaders, opened the spacious, modern building, stretching south from the combination football-baseball stadium in the city's west end.

Gault Leads BCI Seniors To 10-0 Win

By BOB VAUGHAN

Quarterback Bill Gault scored two touchdowns, leading his powerful senior squad to a 10 to 0 victory over Picton at the muddy Picton exhibition grounds on Tuesday afternoon.

Belleville's offensive backfield consisting of Gault, Durno, Marsele, Rowbotham, and Lunn drove for 13 first downs in exhibiting their finest running display of the season.

A strong defensive B.C.I. squad paced by Bruce Bedell and Don Dalrymple held Picton's offensive attack throughout the game while Gerald Grills made two fine quick kicks to turn back two of Picton's scoring bids.

Gault's touchdowns, each of which he took over on drives from his quarterback slot, failed to be converted as Pat Smith's kick hit the upright on one, while the other was rebuked for too much time in the huddle.

Belleville's centre, Richard Marsele suffered a dislocated shoulder in the third quarter. He was taken to the Picton hospital for treatment.

KEEPING IN SHAPE

VICTORIA (CP)—Bert Thomas says he wants to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca again this fall and take a crack at the English channel.

In a telephone interview Tuesday from his home at Tacoma, Wash., Thomas said he is "keeping in fine shape, but maybe a little fat."

He said he plans another attempt on Lake Okanagan in late May or early June and hopes to tackle the English channel about two months later. Then he'll come back and make the strait swim from the Victoria side.

Thomas, now an advertising manager for a Tacoma firm, became the only person to swim 15-mile Juan de Fuca July 5 from Port Angeles to Victoria.

ASK A STUPID QUESTION. . .

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League, was being queried about various rulings Tuesday at a weekly sports luncheon.

Sportscaster Beth Pritchard, a former Philadelphia Eagles halfback, asked:

"Suppose we're trying for the extra point and the ball, after it is kicked, bursts in the air, half of it going over the crossbar and half of it under. What happens?"

"You're out $17.50," replied Bell.

MORE SCIENTIFIC

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Coach Sid Gillman of Los Angeles Rams proposes an electronic eye gadget, or higher goal posts, as a more scientific method of judging whether football field goal kicks are good.

He suggests that adding 20 or 25 feet to the height of goal posts would be an improvement.

Rams lost to Green Bay 30-28 last Sunday on a last-minute field goal so high it appeared difficult to tell whether it was within the uprights, although the officials ruled it was.

"I want it understood that I am not protesting," Gillman told an interviewer. "I hope this won't sound like sour grapes. . . I just think it's high time to be getting a more accurate method of judging field goals."

'Wide, Wide World' Was Extraordinary Technical Feat

AT THE McCARTHY — Joan Crawford and Jeff Chandler are an exciting new team in Universal - International's high-voltage romantic melodrama, "Female on the Beach", coming on night at the Odeon McCarthy theatre.

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — People and places are as interesting on television as on vacation, "Wide Wide World" (NBC-TV) has so demonstrated again. In its initial program of the new season it captured some of the biggest and variety of an American Sunday afternoon.

Using 71 cameras, it took the video audience to the Grand canyon, Dallas, San Francisco, Lake Mead, Nev., the Mississippi river, an Ohio steel mill, a Florida underwater theatre, Rockefeller Center in New York, a Gloucester, Mass., fishing wharf. It was an extraordinary technical feat.

Dave Cartoway served as narrator of an excellent script prepared by Saul Levitt. A thought that occurred in one viewer is that in future programs "Wide Wide World" could well make use of a map in guiding its audience around the country.

When somebody asked Bing Crosby what he's doing these days (the story goes), Crosby cheerfully replied: "I'm imitating Perry Como." Certainly it's impossible to go into a disco after midnight and fail to hear Como on the juke box. And it's just as impossible to find anything on TV or radio or younger who doesn't rave about him.

Take a look at his Saturday night show on NBC-TV and you'll learn something about the younger-generation as well as about Como. Like Crosby, Como is cool. It's absolutely impossible to ruffle the guy. This is a rare virtue among men, let alone TV performers. And it's fine to see a younger generation that admires the virtue.

The Kraft Television Theatre (NBC-TV) will shortly announce a plan that should bring it some top flight dramatic scripts in the coming year. A prize of $50,000 to the writer who has the best TV drama performed on the program between next Nov. 2 and Oct. 31 of next year.

Who will decide what is the "best?" A board of three judges composed of actress Helen Hayes, playwright Maxwell Anderson, and dramatic critic Walter Kerr.

John Wayne Happy to Play Supporting Role to His Son

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—By his own admission, John Wayne was playing a supporting role in a television drama, "Rookie of the Year," starring Pat Wayne.

No star has ever been happier taking a back seat to a younger actor. Pat, of course, is John's son. Both were appearing in a Screen Directors' Guild playhouse show, directed by John's long-time mentor and Pat's godfather, John Ford.

Between scenes, the proud father declared, "Yes, I certainly hope Pat wants to be an actor, though it's early for him to decide—he's just 16.

"But it would be so easy for him if he does want to act. You should see the fan mail he's getting already just from having his picture in the fan magazines."

Besides "The Searchers," which the Waynes just finished, Pat has also appeared in "The Quiet Man," "The Long Grey Line" and "Mister Roberts." All were Ford pictures. Says the veteran director! "He's a fine boy; he does a wonderful job."

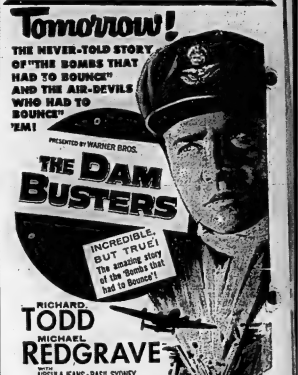
What does Wayne advise his son about acting?

"Only to know his lines, get to the set on time and be ready to take direction. I don't practise lines with him, because I think it's a mistake to get too set in a role. You might get on the set and find the director has an entirely different conception of the scene."

Wayne was asked if he ever got advice as a young actor. Just once, he said. He got a big splash at Fox in "The Big Trail." Then the studio cast him in a college picture, in which the boys played a girls' basketball team. He objected if the school would remain co-educational.

Wayne was grumbling down a studio street when he encountered Will Rogers.

"What's the matter, Duke?" the humorist asked.



Wayne told him his beef. "I've been a football player and I've played in a western; now they want to put me in a picture like Fred Astaire."

Rogers grinned. "You're working, aren't you?"

It was a good lesson for Wayne, and he's been working almost steadily in films ever since, good pictures and bad.

AT THE CAPITOL — Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall are appearing at the Capitol Theatre Thursday in their latest Bowery Boys comedy for Allied Artists, "Jail Busters", with Barton MacLane and Anthony Caruso heading the supporting cast. On the same program in Technicolor "Black Horse Canyon", starring Joel McCrae and Mari Blanchard.

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant—Rawdon W.M.S. Holds Thanksgiving Services

RAWDON — On Wednesday, Mrs. Grant Hubbie was hostess for the Thanksgiving meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society. There were 25 members and four others in attendance.

The W.A. president opened the meeting and conducted a brief business session.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs, president, W.M.S., then took charge and read an article on "Thanks" and offered prayer. Mrs. John Holmes assisted at the organ and all sang "When All Thy Mercies".

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave her report and the corresponding secretary dedicated the offering. A letter of thanks was read. The autumn thank-offering on Sunday last was almost $32.

Mrs. Herbert Smith brought a stewardship message on "Love".

The Mission Band leader announced that the thank-offering was $3.60 and thanked the ladies for their assistance with baking for the recent sale.

The supply secretary needs more quilt blocks. The citizenship secretary told of the millions of dollars spent on alcoholism every year.

The nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers in November is Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mrs. Herbert Smith and Mrs. W. G. Fletcher.

Thanks were expressed for hospitality and program.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen then took charge of the hour's program, which she had arranged and read an article entitled "The First Thanksgiving Festival" based on the Bible.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen sang "A Thanksgiving Prayer".

Miss Doris Sine read an article by W. B. Creighton entitled "October Days", and "surely the glory of the Lord is what these wondrous autumn days are revealing unto us."

SECOND WORSHIP SERVICE

The second service of worship based on "The Call to Commitment" was in charge of Mrs. W. G. Fletcher, and three Bible lessons with brief comments were given by Mrs. Robert Merrick, Mrs. Roy Thrasher and the Rev. W. G. Fletcher. This pointed out that Jesus believed that commitment to the will of God was the way to full, rich and complete life. A hymn of consecration closed the devotional period as outlined in the Missionary Monthly.

Prior to the study, Mrs. Thrasher read a poem "O Canada," by J. T. McKay, which emphasized that people came from all lands, far and near, to make Canada their home.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen introduced the autumn study, which is in two parts. The one book entitled "No Vanishing Race," tells of "The Canadian Indian of today" and the other book, "Coming Our Way" gives descriptive accounts of how the United Church greets the immigrants who come to this land.

The books, together with "Home Missions Digest No. 3", are a challenge to share in this fundamental Christian ministry.

"The folk who represent over 50 national backgrounds have come to dwell in our midst and they require a welcome in our country and in our church."

The first chapter was entitled "The Great Trek," as millions of people are on the move. Many of these folk have suffered much misery and are objects of charity. Then there are thousands of immigrants who are voluntarily seeking homes in Canada because of her prosperity and expansion programs.

In 1950 the International Refugee Organization operated a fleet of 36 ships and it was reported that one of these ships left Europe every day taking refugees to ports in 61 different countries.

An average of thirty thousand displaced persons were transported every month.

The World Council of Churches set up headquarters in every area. They have 36 centres in 15 countries around the world and their work is like reading newly added chapters to the "Acts of the Apostles."

Canadian history reveals to us the influx of French settlers, then the British came after Quebec fell to Wolfe, or to United Empire Loyalists, and from 1901-1915 Canada received three million land settlers.

After World War II over one million persons were admitted to the end of 1954. It is obvious that so large an influx of strangers within Canada's gates will shape our destiny.

The problems of the immigrants are varied but the language barrier, scarcity of money, a new experience in household appliances, employment on farms and in trades all point that their life is not easy.

BLOCK SETTLEMENTS NOT GOOD,

The idea of block settlements is a practice that is not in the best interest of Canada in thousands of these people settle in areas and tend to keep up their old customs.

Then there is the "dollar lever," with a tendency to push aside their cultural and religious values. However, these new Canadians have developed hundreds of string orchestras, drama groups, dance bands, musicals. Literally one has written a book, "Stories of Great Canadians," which will be available soon. They have had several wonderful displays of art have shown as well a great skill in tapestry design and color. One writer has said that "A genuine culture goes to other cultures as the bee goes to the flower for pollen, and not as the beekeeper goes to the hive for honey."

Mrs. MacMullen told various ways of how "The United Church of Canada" serves these immigrants. The General Council has specially charged the Board of Home Missions with oversight of the church's work among immigrants. Refugee families are being sponsored, many folk are given on direct help and special literature is distributed on board ship that will be helpful to the immigrant when he lands on Canada's shores.

UNITED CHURCH CO-OPERATION

The United Church congregations are welcoming these people and trying to co-operate with them.

The task of helping the immigrant requires the marialled strength of all the church membership.

Mrs. Ross Jeffs read an article from the Digest entitled "A Church Post Office." This gave a full description of the work of delivering letters, cards and parcels to people from all nationalities at The Church of All Nations' Post Office, Toronto."

The service closed with the rendition of a Thanksgiving carol, which was written to pay tribute to the glories of nature and the bounties of which we are so blessed.

At the close the hostess served home-made candy.

START NEW CO-OP PLANT

STRATFORD (CP)—Mayor W.P. Gregory Tuesday turned the first sod at the start of a $120,000 plant being built here by United Co-operatives of Ontario for the manufacture of chemical plant food. H. C. MacLeod, manager of the co-operatives production division, said the new plant is the latest addition to facilities that provide for farm members of local co-operatives. The plant is scheduled to open next March.

U.S. ATOMIC

"What you would have to do," the scientist said, "would be to develop some means of getting a steady stream of anti-proton particles and use them to bombard the atomic nuclei so they would strike protons. These would be annihilated, and perhaps 90 per cent of the matter involved in the annihilation would be released as energy."

In the fission process only about one-tenth of one per cent of the total mass is converted to energy, and yet that produces an A-bomb explosion.

The new particle is the negatively charged proton. It is the counterpart of the proton, which carries a positive electrical charge and is the main building block of all the elements in nature.

A team which included Dr. Owen Chamberlain, Dr. Emilio Segre, Dr. Clyde Wiegand and Dr. Thomas Ypsilantis produced the new particle by bombarding a copper atom with ordinary protons of high energy—6,200,000,000 volts.

Out of this bombardment came a proton pair, one positively charged, the other negative. They shot out at a speed of better than 100,000 miles a second, but travelled only a few feet, then collided and vanished.

Just what happened in this disappearance is not yet known, Segre said, but they probably turned into energy which are short-lived breakdown products of atomic disintegration, then into x-rays, which are energy as distinguished from matter.

GUARDED HANDS

Four muskox horns extend from the main body of the mace. Here the Eskimos were concerned. They did not want the horns too close to the crown, because persons might think the Queen a devil.

Between the horns will be discs of pure gold gathered from three Yellowknife mines.

Below, in deeper relief, are carvings telling of Eskimo life: A muskox, wolf, Eskimo hunter, woman with child, white whale, caribou and walrus. Then comes a circle of deeply-carved white Arctic foxes, mainstay of the Eskimo economy.

From the wreck of HMS "Fury" came a piece of oak carved for the bottom of the shaft. The British ship came to grief on Somerset Island just west of Baffin, some 1,400 miles north of the Canada-United States border, while searching for the northwest passage in 1825.

Officials Think Wheat Agreement May Collapse

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Official federal thinking now is veering to the possibility that the framework of the 47-country International Wheat Agreement may collapse when the current pact expires next year.

Though Canada will be fighting for a new pact at the Oct. 26 United Nations conference at Geneva, authorities said today they are none too confident that a new agreement will emerge. Some United States and United Kingdom factions have expressed opposition.

"We think a new agreement is desirable," an official said. "It is quite possible that we won't get it, that would be unfortunate. But it will not be an overwhelming catastrophe."

Meanwhile, a group of federal experts heads for Washington tonight to follow through on the Canada-U.S. ministerial decision to hold closer consultations on the whole question wheat giveaway programs and its impact on Canadian markets overseas.

HEAD DELEGATION

Mitchell Sharp, associate deputy minister of trade who will be Canada's chief representative at Geneva, will also be Canada's top spokesman at the Washington conference opening Thursday. With him will be George McIvor, chairman of the Canadian wheat board, and Dr. E. E. Richards, a leading agriculture department economist.

They will meet with their U.S. government counterparts to explore means of setting up permanent consultation machinery. Canada hopes to do some measure of policing of the U.S. program to protect vital overseas markets for Canadian wheat.

Canada made several complaints in the past that the American giveaway program wheat gravely hurt Canadian markets, but the U.S. made no efforts to reduce its giveaway activities further she increased them, much to Canadian concern.

During the Sept. 26 meeting U.S. Agriculture Secretary Benson informed a reporter that U.S., world's leading wheat exporter and member of the IAW, has not made up its mind about supporting a new agreement.

Canada is understood to be ready to exchange lower prices in return for another pact. But reductions offered may not be large. Congress would have to approve U.S. participation and officials have doubt Congress would grant approval if the pact included a sharp price cut.

Anglican Bishop Lists Three Tasks Facing Church

TORONTO (CP)—Rt. Rev. Frederick H. Wilkinson, 58, newly-consecrated Anglican bishop of Toronto, says evangelism, education and extension are the three immediate tasks facing the church today.

Bishop Wilkinson pledged himself to these aims following his enthronement before a distinguished congregation of clergy and laymen at St. James' Anglican cathedral Tuesday night.

The first task of the church is the proclamation of the gospel, he told the overflow congregation of 1,000 persons.

"The church that has lost its sense for the cure of souls has lost its soul," he said.

Bishop Wilkinson quoted the Archbishop of York as saying the duty of evangelism is part of the daily work of the church and on education said "growth in knowledge is essential to growth in grace."

Dimensions of the church extension challenge in the Toronto diocese appeared "almost frightening," but extension was not a cold soulless term of dollars and cents for either and bricks.

"Extension means caring for the spiritual needs of our fellow churchmen and of providing the ministrations of the word and sacraments to those who live at an inconvenient distance."

Miss Hart, an active amateur for 20 years and winner of all the world's major women's tennis titles will become a teaching pro at the Flamingo Hotel here.

The 30-year-old Doris said she was tired of traveling and wanted to quit while she was "still at the top."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, October 20, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Plan and study your day's schedule before acting. You can achieve more in a light-hearted manner than you can by being too rigid or strict. Mechanical trades, industry, are strongly favored.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Auspicious influences for sound business, work and money interests but do not be careless in legal matters. Seek sound advice if necessary. Be progressive, creative. Have faith in you.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Ingenious ideas, promotions, skilled manual labor favored now. A good period for trying out new inventions, machinery, etc., and for investigating latest improvements; also for executives.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Building, general merchandising, construction, handling machinery, tools, mining, working with lumber and paper among the many matters highly favored now. Be up and doing.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — An impressive outlook. You may not acquire all that you seek but you will net real gains if you put forth your best efforts. Labor and artistic interests honored.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Animation and a spirited interest in your day's duties will quicken returns, give you more time for rest or diversion. Study, teaching, writing favored.

September 23 to October 22 — (Libra) — Similar indications to Taurus now. Be as mindful of small but essential duties as of bigger items. Both are necessary to the completion of a whole project. Help keep it a pleasant day.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Be well informed if making investments, entering new business, partnerships. Extra study beforehand can save money, headaches later. You should make good headway now.

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — Neither a sluggish attitude nor too much force wise. Steady, smart application all day will net good results, perhaps unexpected gains. A good day on the whole.

December 22 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Friendly Sun, Jupiter and Moon rays should encourage your best efforts, intelligent management. Financial and occupational matters favored. Try new ideas of value.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Excellent aspects for home, family affairs; for adding artistic skill to whatever you are doing. Added assets from financial gain in business, real estate, mercantile trading.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your efforts may extend profitably beyond your own particular field today. It often pays to branch out — wisely.

You born today are suited to the professional professions, can gather knowledge quickly, know how to use it advantageously. You may have to curb a tendency toward harshness, wanting your way too often. Cultivate your talents, have tolerance for those less bright and spirited. You can attain unusual success in any field you particularly like and for which you are trained, but you must practice consistency of effort. Pray for guidance, never contradict by word, deed: Sir Christopher Wren, scientist-architect; John Dewey, American philosopher.

BALM FOR MISSED BUS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A woman who sued a bus company because its buses passed her up twice at a bus stop made connections Monday with $100 in damages awarded by a jury. Mrs. Olga Ford sued the bus company under a seldom-invoked common-carrier law, complaining that the company illegally denied her service when she was passed twice at a bus stop.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among those sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H.®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Softball League Plans Banquet For Nov. 16

It was decided at a special meeting of the Belleville and District softball executive last night to hold their annual presentation banquet on Wednesday, November 16th at the Belleville Shrine Club.

Some 17 members of the league and team executives discussed plans at the radio station. After a lengthy discussion, with pros and cons for Wednesday night or a week-end as the date for the banquet, it was decided to hold it on the week night.

Mr. John Brady of Oshawa, president of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, will be the guest of honor. In the statement that he would be unable to attend on a Friday or Saturday night influenced the Wednesday date. Mr. Brady will likely present the trophies to the Belleville Bobcats, provincial champions of the Intermediate "AA" series and the Point Anne Cementmen, winners of the new Industrial Intermediate series.

Local president, Cy Barriage stated that it was a great honor to have two Ontario champions from the same league and he felt it only fitting that high-level members of the OASA be present to present the trophies.

Other trophies to be awarded are the Bill Ott cup to the Orfums for capturing the city "A" championship, the Labatt trophy to the Bobcats as city "A" winners and the batting trophies to Gerry Goyer and Dave Lockyer.

A committee was named to arrange the banquet, expected to be held in the form of a turkey supper. Cy Barriage is the chairman and Don Lee in charge of the preparation of the hall and food, Ken Duesbury looking after the restitration of those attending and Claude Tice, Garry Alexander and Jack Devlin arranging the program.

It was also decided to invite Mr. Ernie Simpson of Kingston to the banquet. Mr. Simpson is a past president of the OASA.

All persons concerned with the Bobcats, Orfums, Point Anne, Frankford and Madoc along with guests, press, radio and the executive are urged to attend the banquet.

The tournament has been arranged at the suggestion of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Professional Golf Association by the Guelph Lions Club, of which Porteous was past president. It is backed by the two Guelph golf clubs.

BCI Juniors Tie Quinte 6-6

By BOB VAUGHAN

Paul Kennedy's last minute rouge earned B.C.I. juniors a 6-6 tie with Quinte Secondary School before a large crowd at King George School on Tuesday afternoon.

Doug Patterson gave B.C.I. the lead early in the first quarter when he recovered Bertrand's fumbled punt in Quinte's end zone for a B.C.I. touchdown. Late in the quarter Bill Dickey's attempt for a field goal failed but Rowbotham was tackled in the end zone for a Quinte touchdown as the half ended B.C.I. 5, Quinte 1.

Dennis Kervulak's fine 40 yard runback of the second half kick-off paid dividends when moments later Eric Beeby picked up a fumbled punt and raced over for a Quinte touchdown, giving Quinte the lead.

Captain Ken Vogelsang's thrilling 60 yard run to Quinte's 35 yard line put Paul Kennedy in position for his game tying rouge on the final play of the game.

The game was highlighted by the fine playing of Dickey, Jamieson, Beeby, Phillips and Aquino of B.C.I. and Vogelsang, Kennedy, Patterson, Hurst, and Pollard of Quinte.

Officials: referee, Cam. Buskard; umpire, McLaughlin; head linesman, Mr. Ronald.

Lineups:

QSS: Beeby, Ritchie, Gerow, Cox, McGurn, Jamieson, Green, Musgrove, Masters, Goodman, Kemp, MacLaurin, Symons, Pierro, Dickey, Hobbs, Kerrulsh, Phillips, McLaughlin, Locke, Clarke, Wilson, Aquino, Garrison.

Big Four Brass Will Discuss Third-Place Tie

OTTAWA (CP)—The Big Four executive will discuss the problem each possible third-place tie between Toronto Argos and Ottawa Rough Riders at a weekend meeting Nov. 1, it was learned Tuesday.

Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats are assured two of the three playoff spots.

Argos have the inside track on the third, having a two-point edge on the Riders with three games each remaining. The teams meet in a home-and-home series to conclude their regular schedule.

Montreal Alouettes lead the league with 14 points on seven victories and two losses. Hamilton has 12 points on six wins and three losses, Toronto six points on three wins and six setbacks and Ottawa four with only two victories in nine starts.

KINER LEAVES INDIANS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Former National League home run king Ralph Kiner, 32, was named general manager of the Pacific Coast League's San Diego Padres Tuesday.

He obtained his release as a player from Cleveland Indians to take the front-office job.

Kiner, who hit 369 homers in his 10 years in the majors, with Pittsburgh, the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland, was hired by the San Diego club's new owner, the Westgate-California Tuna Packing Co.

It purchased the club from Bill Starr and associates after the 1955 season.

Kiner reached a top salary with Pittsburgh of $90,000 in 1952.

His contract with San Diego is for one year at a reported salary of $25,000.

15-Year Mystery Of Missing Couple Solved At Sault

Car Discovered in River With Few Bones on Seat

Mother and One Of Six Children Burned to Death

IGNACE, Ont. (CP)—A mother and one of her six children were burned to death Wednesday when fire destroyed their home. The five other children escaped the flames.

The victims were Mrs. John Sloyed, 41, and her two-year-old daughter Gloria Jean.

The fire was started by an explosion shortly after 8 a.m. when 17-year-old George Sloyed attempted to start a wood stove by using oil. The fire spread rapidly through the five-room home in this town 200 miles northwest of Fort William.

SAVES SISTERS

George, badly burned about the hands and face, ran out to notify neighbors. Sixteen - year - old Kenneth Sloyed, 14, was rescued by Bill Hamilton who worked in a nearby garage.

Mrs. Sloyed had left the flaming home but ran inside again when she discovered that baby was still inside.

Members of the Ignace volunteer fire brigade fought the fire. Mr. Sloyed, an employee of the Ontario department of lands, was away at the time.

The Sloyeds moved to Ignace eight years ago. The surviving children are being cared for by their grand-parents in Dryden.

U.S. Successful In Blocking UN Seat for Reds

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Yugoslavia and Gen. Philippine were deadlocked again Wednesday night in new balloting for a disputed Security Council seat, but Russia's bid to seat the Belgrade Communists appeared crippled by an American manoeuvre which placed the Yugoslav contender in key United Nations council.

When voting resumed Wednesday in the General Assembly, Yugoslavia—backed by both Britain and the Soviet bloc—appeared to be within reach of the two-thirds majority needed to win. Interest in the outcome was keen, since a Philippine defeat would deal a heavy blow to the United States, which has been backing the Philippines strongly.

After three ballots in which neither side got the needed majority, there was a recess to look like a standoff. On the ninth and finally ballot, Yugoslavia had 42 and the Philippines had 31 votes to Yugoslavia's 27.

CRUSHED U.S. PROPOSAL

The picture changed when the U.S., over bitter Soviet opposition, pushed through a proposal postponing the Security Council election and switching to balloting for the Economic and Social Council and the Trusteeship Council.

On the second ballot, Yugoslavia found herself elected to ECOSOC with 46 votes—seven more than the required margin. No date was set for voting to resume for the Security Council seat.

Jubilant Americans quickly claimed that Yugoslavia's election to ECOSOC considerably weakened her chances for the Security Council.

CANADA WILL ASK FOR BIG INCREASE IN AID TO ASIA

Will Provide Burma With Cobalt Bomb Unit

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SINGAPORE (CP)—Canada will provide a "cobalt bomb" unit to Burma for cancer treatment under the Colombo plan, External Affairs Minister Pearson told Asian planners today, and the Ottawa government will ask for a "significant increase" in contributions to the plan for aiding Southeast Asia.

The Canadian minister, speaking to the Colombo plan conference during the third day of its meeting here, gave no details of the Burma cancer project, but said it would be a two-year affair.

In addition, a specialist officer would be assigned by Ottawa to the Singapore area to travel on Colombo plan business, and a technical team would be sent to Indonesia.

WILL COST $90,000

It is understood the Burma cobalt unit will cost a total of about $80,000 including installation and training of personnel who will handle it there.

The current year's Canadian total of $25 million was fixed at the meeting, was $26,400,000. In the past 12 months, Pearson said, Canada has been spent by Ottawa, mostly in aid to India, Pakistan and Ceylon. "Technical co-operation has been close and productive."

Canada's share of power being worked out for the previously announced NRX atomic reactor for India, but the cost of this would not be taken from the normal Colombo contribution to Canada. The Indian reactor likely would cost Canada about $15,000,000 over the current period. Both governments agreed in principle last month on the project.

"It has been agreed that this reactor should be made available for the use of scientists from other countries, including other Colombo plan countries," Pearson said.

OFFERS RESEARCH CENTRE

Meanwhile, the United States offered to help set up an atomic research centre in Asia. Assistance for nuclear research and training under President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program.

The U.S. proposal, put forward by Lyndon B. Hollister, administrator of the foreign economic aid program, did not suggest where the centre should be located, said its "guiding purpose must be complete availability of its facilities to plan countries on an equal basis."

Federal Govt. Will Guarantee Loans in West

OTTWA (CP) — The government has announced a new plan to help prairie farmers, unable to market huge quantities of grain, to buy farm farms.

It involves government guarantees on bank loans which will protect banks from complete loss should the farmers be unable to repay them. Farm-held grain would be used as security, but details are left to be worked out with the banks.

Trade Minister Howe announced the government's intentions following a cabinet meeting. Details now being arranged include interest rate and maximum size and duration of loans.

Brantford Fire Chief Says Blaze In Farm Home 'Deliberately Set'

BRANTFORD (CP)—Fire chief Ed Jarvis said today the fire which destroyed the farm house from which Mrs. Phyllis Aslek and her two children disappeared was "deliberately set."

He said a fluid, possibly gasoline or kerosene, was used in the farm house alibne, Oct. 8. "The house was burning at least for a normal fire," he said.

The criminal investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police has been trying to determine what happened to Mrs. Aslek, 27, and her daughters.

Police today launched a hunt for a man who asked directions to the Aslek farm the night before Mrs. Aslek disappeared. They believe he may be able to help them in their investigation. They also are still looking for a man who may have driven the family while the house was burning.

Jan Hancharuk, who was living with Mrs. Aslek, said Mrs. Aslek left the house shortly before the fire is believed to have started. Wednesday he had been decided a half-interest in the farm with Mrs. Aslek.

It was first believed three persons died in the flames, but police started to investigate when no bodies were found in the ruins. A few fragments of human bone were found, but police said they were definitely not enough to account for three bodies.

They have not revealed whether before Mrs. Aslek disappeared or child.

Toronto Plans New By-Law Against Flop Houses, Vice

TORONTO (CP)—A new by-law is to be the city's main weapon in a proposed drive against flop houses and the red light district.

The by-law to be patterned after legislation brought in recently by the reform administration of Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, is being drawn up by the legal department.

Under the by-law, owners of houses renting accommodations on a less-than-weekly basis to more than six persons would require a licence. The city would be empowered to cancel any licence without stating a reason and there would be no appeal from council's decision.

Controller Ford Brand said the best way of dealing with houses of ill repute was through the type of by-law adopted by Montreal. He asked that the legal department obtain a copy of Montreal's by-law to make sure there are no loopholes in Toronto's act.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said he had asked the police department for a report on crime conditions in the area around Jarvis street, centre of the red light district in central Toronto.

"We had an expose concerning the area two years ago," said Mr. Brand. "We asked for reports then but nothing came of it. Asking for reports in itself accomplishes nothing."

Operators of flop houses and other objectionable types of accommodations, he said, have been able to evade the existing laws by resorting to all types of trickery.

"The laws have been so badly written that it has been almost impossible to obtain convictions."

Controller Ray Belyea said council should "ask for police action instead of reports."

The problem, he said, at what Jarvis street is . . . it is one of those tourist spots that are pointed out to visitors."

Huge Butter Surplus by Next Spring Says Dairy Council

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Dairy Council of Canada has estimated that the country will have a record 72,193,000-pound butter surplus by next spring.

The council, spokesman for most of Canada's dairy industry, in a statement Wednesday estimated the total butter supply between now and next May 31 will be 247,201,000 pounds, of which 174,000,000 would be sold to the Canadian consumer. That would leave Canada with a butter surplus of 72,193,000 pounds next spring when farmers begin their higher production period. The council said surplus stocks on May were 58,000,000. In May, 1954, inventories, a steadily increase since 1951, the surplus was 43,000,000 pounds.

The council differed sharply with Agriculture Minister Gardiner over the extent of Canada's present butter surplus.

It estimated surplus butter stocks at 65,000,000 pounds. Mr. Gardiner

50 River Pilots To Resume Work

MONTREAL (CP)—Fifty river pilots operating between Montreal and Kingston voted to return to work Wednesday night, following a promise by Transport Minister George Marler that he would meet with the group Oct. 27.

The pilots, seeking compulsory use of pilots along the Montreal-Kingston stretch of the St. Lawrence, went on strike last Sunday.

Officials Wednesday night said the first of the pilots have already returned to waiting vessels at the eastern entrance of the Lachine canal and at Kingston.

Plan Strike Vote

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Union representatives of all three locals of Massey-Harris-Ferguson Ltd., from Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock agreed at a membership strike vote after two days of negotiation with company officials here.

PICKET LINES FORM AROUND ONT. BREWERIES

1200 Workers Out On Strike to Press Demands

TORONTO (CP) — Picket lines formed around breweries in five Ontario cities early today as 1,200 Canadian Breweries Ltd., employees went on strike to back up contract demands.

Officials of the company and United Brewery Workers Union (CIO-CCL) were still in session here as the strike deadline was reached. Negotiations were to continue today. Hit by the strike were Ontario, Carling, Labatt's at Brading's and Dow-Kingsbeer in Windsor, Hamilton, Kitchener, Waterloo and Toronto.

The strike cuts off 60 per cent of the brewing capacity in Ontario. Ottawa is the only Ontario city in which a supply of Canadian breweries brands still is being produced.

SOME PROGRESS MADE

Negotiators said after ending their first session early today that some progress has been made but several questions of wages and union remain to be solved.

Employees of Brewers' Warehousing Ltd., Ontario's liquor union, were instructed by the union to continue handling and shipping beer. Officials of the warehousing firm said a two-to three-week supply of beer usually is kept on hand. Labatt's and Molson's Brewery in Toronto also affected by the strike. Hotels in the province were reported to be stocking up on beer in the event the strike spreads.

Agreement was reached some time ago with employees of a small Carling's unit in Toronto and O'Keefe's and Brading's operations in Ottawa. They accepted an offer of an 18-cent hourly increase for the first year and 20 cents for the second.

Basic pay at the other plants is $1.66 an hour. The union demanded a 15-cent hourly increase, a shorter work week, standard hours, certain managerial functions and other contract changes.

Avro Test Pilot Killed, Chute Partially Opens

TORONTO (CP) — A test pilot at Avro Aircraft Limited was killed today when a CF-100 jet plane crashed in a field near Malton airport.

The pilot was identified as Glen Jeremy Ellenton, 30, Toronto. He was one of the two Avro test pilots who flew Canadian planes to the Farnborough, England, air show last summer.

Officials of the Avro said the plane went into a tailspin and the pilot attempted to use the ejection seat—ejection mechanism to escape.

The plane apparently wasn't high enough and the pilot's parachute failed to open in time.

The spokesman said the crash was the first to occur during the latest show began Monday. CF-100 planes for the RCAF four years ago.

Coffin Review Date Is Dec. 6

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada will review the bitterre case against convicted murderer Wilbert Coffin Dec. 6.

The date for hearing falls three days after the execution date the prospector is scheduled to be hanged. However, officials said Wednesday they expected postponement of the execution by the Quebec attorney-general's department, the sixth since Coffin was sentenced to death Aug. 5, 1953.

Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin set the date in chambers following consultation with counsel for the attorney-general of Canada, the Quebec attorney general's department and counsel for Coffin.

WOULDN'T SHARE COOING

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Odelle Kelly Kemp, 29, testified in waiving a divorce Wednesday that her husband was jealous of her parakeet. She said her husband, Robert, 37, became angry and struck her when the bird began to bite her after they returned from their honeymoon last June.

Queen Approves Margaret Visiting Ceylon In 1957

Move Adds to Confusion Over Plans of Princess

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — A Buckingham Palace spokesman said today the Queen has given her approval for Princess Margaret and the Queen Mother to visit Ceylon in February, 1957.

This routine statement had the effect of throwing a mantle of confusion about the reported romance of Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

The first supposition — and it was only that — was that Princess Margaret would be following the round of her official functions even as far ahead as that date.

That did not square with the equally unsupported assumption that pretty 25-year-old princess might give up such activities if she and Townsend marry, as millions of Britons confidentially believe.

MAY NOT GO

Nor was there any certainty that the princess and her mother would go to Ceylon. As is customary for governor - general, Oliver Goonet-Lilleke, asked the Queen's formal approval. But that will coincide with a Colombo plan exhibition in the Commonwealth country.

The palace spokesman said the Queen's approval "does not mean" that her mother and sister would have to make the trip. He added that whether they would make the visit and asked him to write to him themselves.

Attorney - General Sir Reginald Manningham Buller was called from a court room on short notice to attend a cabinet meeting. This time was the first absentmind in Fleet street newspaper offices for a moment, but then it generally was assumed he had gone to 10 Downing street, the prime minister's residence, to talk about the budget and not about constitutional matters regarding Margaret's future. Sir Reginald is not a member of the cabinet but almost always attends its sessions.

Economic problems all but crowded stories about the romance out of the newspapers today. The guessing game about Margaret and Townsend was regulated to the minds of many Britons with wondering about which new taxes the chancellor of the exchequer, R. A. Butler, will order in his special autumn budget next week.

The Daily Telegraph, influential Conservative paper, which till now has kept clear of speculation about the princess and the 41-year-old war hero, said: "The nation is in strong editorial headed "A damaging silence."

Calling for an official statement, the paper, which is close to the government, declared: "We declare: "The longer any element of mystery is allowed to cloak this affair, the more deplorable the publicity is likely to become."

"Let is be ended in justice to the Royal Family and in the interests of the institution of monarchy. . . ."

Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh and the Queen Mother had a dinner party guests Wednesday night of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire and other high ranking Anglican clergymen at Lambeth Palace, the archbishop of London residence.

Reveal Churchill Stored Britain's Securities, Gold Bullion in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada during the Second World War was the storehouse for a vast share of the United Kingdom's liquid assets, more than $7,000,000,000 in securities and gold bullion shipped across the Atlantic during Britain's darkest hour.

The story of Sir Winston Churchill's bold gamble to safeguard his country's treasure against the Nazi war machine is detailed in a series of articles by Leland Stowe, a Pulitzer prize winning U.S. correspondent and one of the Reader's Digest.

The magazine says the dramatic, daring exploit involved the transfer by thousands of boxes of securities and gold aboard British warships, crossing an Atlantic infested with Nazi U-boats, was one of the best kept secrets of the war, though the big operation involved hundreds of seamen vaults of the Bank of Canada here.

MacArthur Twice Favored Russian Aid Against Japs

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long-secret documents from Washington files record that Gen. Douglas MacArthur twice concurred directly in the opinion that Russia should move into the war against Japan.

Once was in 1941, three days after Pearl Harbor, when he called a northern strike at Japan a "golden opportunity." The other was in June, 1945, two months before the war ended in Europe, when he said "the hazard and loss (to American attacking forces) will be greatly lessened" by a Russian attack.

Both the admittedly incomplete 25,000-word record released by the United States defence department Wednesday and MacArthur's own contradicted MacArthur's contention — during that top secret advance knowledge of the early 1945 Yalta conference, and was "most emphatically" against inviting the Soviet Union into the conflict at that time.

CNRAA CONTEST No. 33
Commences October 21st

Mrs. A. McLaren Heads Catholic Teachers Group

Mrs. Alma McLaren was elected president of District 4, OECTA, when these Catholic teachers held their annual meeting on September 15 in St. Michael's auditorium, Belleville. In addition to Mrs. McLaren as president, the nominating committee's slate of officers for 1955-56 consisted of the following: past president, Sister Mary Evelyn, B.A.; vice-president, Sister Mary Immaculate, B.A.; secretary-treasurer, Miss Vivian Cameron; executive, Sister Mary Magdalen, B.A., Sister Mary Lawrence and Mrs. Bernadette Gabourie.

After the teachers had examined a display of teaching aids, the meeting was opened with prayer by Very Reverend J. Gerard, who also repeated the OECTA pledge, accompanied by the assembled teachers. Mr. Gerard extended the audience a few words of welcome.

After the reading and approval of the minutes and the treasurer's report, Miss Mary Evelyn, B.A., addressed the members. Her subject was an answer to the question "What has OECTA done for me?" She outlined briefly the functions and achievements of OECTA since its inception. Among the achievements that, through it, the requests and ideas of teachers are carried to the department of Education; good public relations are maintained, teachers' salaries improved, salaries and superannuation pensions improved and conferences for curriculum building fostered.

Sister M. Evelyn reminded the teachers of the various activities sponsored by OECTA that during the summer, such as "The Reading Course" by the Women Teachers' Federation, and the elementary principals' course by Miss Mary Tweedie. Particular attention was drawn to the Christian Curriculum Development conference to be held in the Royal Edward Hotel, Toronto, in December and urged the attendance of the eight delegates who plan on attending it.

Mention of booklets "We, The Teachers of Ontario" were distributed, examined, and members also received their membership cards.

The speaker, Rev. Mr. Y. J. McGee, B.A., delivered an informative and inspirational address to the young-Christian worker movement. This movement is endeavoring to arouse the conscience of young people who tend, due to working conditions, to lose nature, to become degraded. They are helped by other young people who have been trained and who are trained to become Christian leaders in their homes, in their jobs and in their leisure time. Father McGee explained the technique used in accomplishing this aim and described the weekly meetings where Scripture is studied and difficulties discussed.

"The speaker appealed to teachers to try to get their pupils to realize that Christ is asking for sacrifices in the form of young people who will gather in the harvest. They should realize that children find the fragments which our Lord enjoined us to gather up are to be found in their daily lives—daily Mass, devotion to Our Lady, the practice of charity to such like, he said. Children, too, can be taught to be Christian leaders.

Refreshments prepared by the lay teachers of the city, were served with the help of girls from grad- nine A class.

Miss Cecilia Maloney entertained the audience with two readings "Irish High Cost of Living" and "The Bride's First Call at the Butcher's".

Girls from grade IXA sang two choruses, "With Jockey to the Fair" and "Irish Nightingale". Misses Jeanne, Susanne and Jill Belair performed the Sword dance.

Prescription Pharmacists

A GOOD NAME is the FINEST ENDORSEMENT

Almost daily, new drugs appear which we are urged to offer. To reject the unproved produces is just as important to this pharmacy as is the service of being alert to provide the newest and the best.

There are certain helpful guides on which we rely. Reliable pharmaceutical manufacturers, such as Parke, Davis & Company, establish quality and effectiveness with exhaustive clinical tests before a product is announced. Your Doctor is then given facts, and on his judgment we rely in making our decision.

Thus, if a preparation is in our stock, you are assured of its reliability.

He was sighted from the air shortly after daybreak by a Neptune bomber.

Resident in Middleton Park he was mess officer in Chatham, N.B., about a year ago.

IN MEMORIAM

PHILIPS. — In loving memory of George Philips, who passed away October 20th, 1952.
Time may change the circumstances,
Years may make the wound less sore,
But memory keeps the picture
Of the one we shall see no more.
Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Though sadly hide the tear,
Memories keep the wound still open
With the days that are no more.
—Sadly missed by wife Myrtle, family and grandchildren.

BUSHLOW. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandmother, Ellen Bushlow, who passed away October 20th, 1954.
We do not need a special day
To keep you in remembrance,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very few indeed.
If only I could give to you,
What I would love to give,
We'd give it, yes and more,
And take you back to Glenora.
Come smiling in the door.
—Ever remembered by her Carmen Cook and Russell Baker families.

SCEGO. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Jacob Scego who passed away four years ago on 20th October, 1951.
Four years have passed since that day,
A little linked with my own;
Memory keeps me ever true,
As I walk through life alone.
—Remembered always by wife Caroline.

SCERO. — In loving memory of our dear dad, Jacob Scero, who passed away four years ago today, October 20th, 1951.
One sad today dear dad was called
To heaven's real rest,
Gone where the angels sing so sweet,
And take no grief nor pain.
We miss him here so very much
Where he once was with us,
But we all hope in heaven to meet
Where he can see us.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Dorothy, Reg and Jacob's dirch.

CARDS OF THANKS

A great big thanks to all my good friends who remembered me with cards, flowers, fruit, candy and good wishes during my stay in Kingston General Hospital. Thanks also to all those who furnished my wife and family with transportation to Kingston while I was there.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market continued to advance slowly during late morning business on the Toronto exchange today. Industrials led the forward movement with base metals close behind.

Industrial gains were almost entirely in fractions and ranged to two points at the outside. Financial institutions brought the strongest demand. Papers, liquors, manufactures, foods, textiles, motors and refining oils were ahead. Utilities and steels were a little lower in light trading.

Aluminium was up 82 to 104½. About a point higher were General Motors, Weston's and Bank of Commerce.

Most senior base metals moved up. International Nickel leading with a 1⅞ gain. Profit - taking whittled down some of the lower-priced issues, including Glenn, off 15 to $1.67, Maybrun 17 to $1.51 and Eureka 7 to $2.50.

Some uraniums notched small advances. Gunnar added ½. Burnston was down a penny at 40 on 126,000 shares. Golds as a group were little changed, but Anglo-Rouyn was down 18 at $1.60. Westures led better - holding companies, up $1.90.

Petrol was star performer among western oils, jumping 48 to $2.38 on a lively 221,000 shares. Tviad and West Naco each yielded 20 cents.

Canadian Dollar Stands at Par With U.S. Dollar

NEW YORK (CP) — The Canadian dollar today stands on an equal footing with the U. S. dollar for the first time in 3½ years.

After a steady decline in recent weeks, the Canadian dollar which was last at parity with the U. S. dollar March 7, 1952, finally dipped to par value Wednesday.

Canadian monetary experts however, were not dismayed by the decline and attributed the fall to:

1. The withdrawal of money from Canada by U. S. investors because of more attractive interest rates elsewhere.

2. The buying of U. S. dollars by importers to pay off bills while exporters held onto their currency, apparently awaiting a more favorable exchange rate.

Ottawa financial experts were confident the Canadian dollar will show little variation from par but did not fear a sudden change in the world money markets which might cause the dollar to jump up again or decline further.

Eisenhower Resumes Painting

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower's condition improved Wednesday to the extent that he was able to resume one of his favorite hobbies—painting.

He used an easel Mrs. Eisenhower gave him on his 65th birthday last Friday and copied from a colored print of a mountain scene his staff had taken from a magazine.

Calgary Mayor Returned By Big Majority

CALGARY (CP)—Don Mackay's wide-brimmed, high-crowned civic showmanship rode three ins to saddle today with his election to his fourth term as mayor of Calgary.

With 202 of 204 polls tabulated, Mayor Mackay had 24,339 votes to 3,952 for candidate Gordon Wray.

The victory for the 41-year-old former disc jockey, sportscaster and radio station manager, who once rode a horse through Toronto's financial district — it was Grey Cup time and a Calgary team represented the west — is good news for the manufacturers of cowboy headgear.

Mayor Mackay has made a name for Calgary by passing out white 10-gallon hats to visitors as he rode in open cars in the Calgary Stampede and Russian Ambassador Dmitri Chuhavin.

Missionaries Praise Reds

HONG KONG (Reuters)—A Canadian missionary couple arrived here today after 30 years in China and praised the accomplishments of the Chinese Communist regime.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Brown of the United Church of Canada said that under the Communist regime "we smelled no opium, saw no gambling, met no beggars." They said that if Communist China got "reasonable co-operation from and with all nations" she could look forward to a "leading place among the nations of the world."

The couple arrived here today on the British steamer Hunan from the northern Chinese city of Tientsin on their way home to Ontario.

Listing Communist achievements, Brown said:

"Dikes are being built to save folks from future floods, great windbreakers are being planted to hold the Gobi desert sand from spreading over the land, and hospitals, schools, public buildings and all sorts of roads and bridges are being constructed. It is a new country."

QUEEN APPROVES

As the ranking prelate of the church, which frowns on the remarriage of divorced persons whose former mates are living, the archbishop has become a central figure in the talk of a possible Margaret-Townsend marriage.

The Daily Mirror reports exclusively that the Royal Family spent 15 minutes in talk with the archbishop at a private room before the dinner, and another 15 minutes in private talk with the archbishop and six senior bishops after the meal.

But as far as could be gleaned from other sources the Royal Family had no opportunity to talk alone with the archbishop. These sources said that at one stage Princess Margaret stood for 20 minutes talking with a group which included the archbishop.

HAPPY EVENING

"We had a very happy evening, a wonderful party," said one of the guests, Dr. Spencer Leeson, bishop of Peterborough. "Lots of chat, lots of gossip."

"Did you discuss anything currently in the news?" he was asked.

"Oh, certainly." Dr. Leeson replied, "lots of things."

He declined to elaborate.

Princess Margaret out of his temporary London home not long after dawn today. She believed he had gone to spend the day riding at Epsom, where the princess later in the day was to open a new hospital wing.

REVEAL CHURCHILL

One of the most remarkable aspects of the whole operation was that not one of the gold - laden ships was lost, although 134 Allied and neutral ships were sunk by German submarines during the three months in which the gold and securities were shipped across the Atlantic.

One five-ship convoy alone carried more gold than was produced by the Klondike and California gold rushes combined.

Five special CNR trains were needed on that occasion to carry the gold from Halifax to Ottawa. It took three days to unload the tons of thousands of 27-pound ingots into the Bank of Canada's vault.

The first "gold train" highballed into Montreal and Ottawa on July 2, 1940—17 days after the fall of Paris.

The magazine says three dozen trainloads of securities — then were packed in nearly 2,000 crates —were unloaded at Montreal during the three months, filling almost 900 four-drawer filing cabinets.

MECHANICAL AUCTIONEER

The Age of Automation has Arrived—with a Capital A.

Strictly speaking this is not news. Down at the Ontario Stockyards in Toronto a mechanical auctioneer has been in operation since Wednesday, August 10. For some reason or other, however, this development does not appear to have been recognized as headline-making material by Canada's newspapers and news-gathering organizations —or if it was our newspaper reading must have missed a more than usually severe lapse during the vacation period.

Anyway, the first news of this development was from a publication of decidedly limited circulation, the farm news press clip sheet published by the Federal Department of Agriculture.

From it we learn that at the Ontario Stockyards the cheery auctioneer, with booming voice and cheerful smile and knowing nod, has been supplanted by an arrangement of buttons and lights.

This, in itself, is a revolution, but the mechanical auctioneer has reversed the usual process of bidding. Instead of starting with a minimum bid, bidding begins at the top and moves down to the place where somebody is prepared to pay the price which the mechanical auctioneer is quoting. Just reflect that we would have no prices in difficult to say. Auctioneers have always prided themselves on their ability to wheedle another bid out of a prospective buyer and to push the price well past the point at which a sale would have satisfied the owner of the auctioned goods endeavored to arrange his own sale. On the other hand, the mechanical auctioneer's process may also result in high prices being obtained.

First, though, we should explain how the mechanical auctioneer works. It consists of a "clock," the "hours" of which represent certain prices. The commission agent sets the price at the point from which he expects to receive. He starts the "clock" and the "hand" moves around the dial, from the highest price to a lower one and on to the lowest. Buyers sit facing the "clock." Before each buyer is a button. If he pushes this button, the "clock's" hand stops. That records the price. A lower dollar is shown by numbers for each buyer. When a button is pressed, the buyer's number on the lower dial lights up.

Under this system the buyer has to decide when to step in and "stop the clock." If he waits, some other buyer may push his button first. Identical bids by two buyers cannot be recorded. As soon as one button is pressed, the proper current which activates the "clock" is cut off from the buttons before other buyers.

The commission agent can accept or reject any bid. If he thinks the bid too low he can press a button which shows "no sale." He can also use this "no sale" button before a bid, at any time when he thinks that the price shown by the "clock" has dropped below the proper value of the animal being offered for sale.

The human auctioneer is adept at getting every last nickel, or dollar, out of bidders; but the mechanical auctioneer faces the buyer with a different type of problem which may also produce high bids. If a man sees something he wants, if the price shown by the clock is $25, if the would-be purchaser thinks that this is somewhere near what other people will be willing to pay for the article—here is the question posed: Should he press the button and pay $25; or should he wait, hoping to get the article for $24.50 and risking the chance that somebody else will "stop the clock" before its hand drops to that figure?

The buyer has to think fast. The "clock's" hand makes a complete revolution of the dial, dropping the price $1, in six seconds. Here is a case where the man who hesitates may be lost, but may also make himself one of the quickest bucks in his lifetime.

RUSSIA'S "CREEPING CAPITALISM"

Private enterprise, in various forms, is infiltrating the socialistic economy of Soviet Russia.

Soviet publications announce this admittedly primitive and rudimentary type of private enterprise as "crypto-capitalism." Pravda, for example, waxes bitter against what it calls the growing tendency of Russians to sell advantageously." Other Soviet publications are replete with denunciations of what they call "fantastic cases of commercialism."

What would be legitimate enterprises or commercial transactions in the free world are, of course, looked upon as "subversive" and "black market" operations in the socialist heaven. But without such examples of individual enterprise and initiative, taken at great personal risk in many cases, the Soviet economy just wouldn't function at all. Indeed, communist party leaders themselves have conceded recently that almost all building done in Russia by collective farms and factories is the work of roving contractors who provide black market material and pay higher wages than those decreed by Moscow. It is, apparently, the only way to really get anything done in Russia.

What is significant about Russia's "creeping capitalism" is that the Kremlin has found it expedient to tolerate economic conduct which is so wholly at variance with orthodox socialist or Communist teachings.

CIVIL SERVANTS' ROLE

A civil servant is stepping out of his role when he comments on a government policy. Civil servants have no business defending policies; their job is to administer laws. And it doesn't matter whether what they say is right. The point is that when it comes to a matter of policy, things which belong solely to responsible politicians, civil servants can't afford even to be right. They can only afford to be silent. COMPLETION

Were every dream come true
And all the tasks were done,
There'd nothing be to do
But day by day have fun.

The men at golf could play.
The women sit and chat.
But idle that to say
They'd soon get tired of that.

Get rid of strain and strife,
Banish the need to dream,
Take failure out of life,
And time would endless seem.

Get rid of every doubt,
The dread of loss destroy,
Work every problem out
We'd end both pride and joy.

The Passion for Reading

(Montreal Gazette)

In 1870's the village of Lossiemouth, in the Scottish Lowlands, had a remarkable ragman. As he pushed his barrow through the streets, he would have an open book in front of him, stuck up against the crockery. As he pushed he read.

The schoolboys of the village used to give him a bad time. They tormented him, and he looked up on them with suspicious bitterness. But one day a boy stole up beside him and began reading the book. The man did not welcome him with his foot or fist as he most often did when small boys came nearby. He saw how the boy was absorbed in the reading.

"Are you interested?" he asked. The boy nodded happily. "Take it," he said. "I will do you more good than it will me."

The boy went off with the book. It was a volume of Thucydides in English. And later he was wont to say, "What a story! What men! What stirring days! What movements! How the long winter evenings sped!"

That boy who followed the ragman's barrow in the streets of Lossiemouth grew up to be Ramsay MacDonald. He was to be three times Prime Minister of Great Britain.

There were few books for him to read in his impoverished home—where he lived, only "some tattered odds and ends." But the passion for reading was in him. On Saturdays he would talk ten miles to a neighboring town. There he would stand in front of the bookstalls' windows and read the pages of whatever books might happen to be open in the windows. This, he said, was his beginnings in general reading.

This passion for reading, the adventure of entering into a glorious new world, is perhaps never quite understood except by experience in childhood. And yet it may last a lifetime. It may, if it matures, be as keen, with one adventure opening up after another, habitual!

The man of this time had been a more habitual reader than Dr. Johnson's day, when it was always rare to put this to the test by submitting to an inspection of my mouth and teeth by a competent dentist in comparison with the state of the mouth and teeth of any number of Americans of my age.

If it were only the sinful waste of money and time on this idiotic tooth — brushing rite, I would not be bothered about it. If the children didn't spend their pennies like

Use Your Teeth To Save Your Face

At least a hundred million Americans have now proved, by diligent daily brushing with glorified soap, sweetened and flavored, that a clean tooth decays, notwithstanding the slogan invented by a dentifrice vendor and parroted by dentists of yesteryear.

I say "dentists of yesteryear" parroted the sales slogan that "a clean tooth never decays." You'll I'm about to come to Julius Caesar!"

Get visualized the background for an instant: a farm on the windy side of a hexafield. Between long strips of grape vines, the "sallie" with its big mantelpiece; on the side of this a tiny library of three or four musty prayer-books, a gardening book, a Bible, a peripatetic voyor's manual, a Family Lawyer, a Lexicon, a Dictionary, and few old almanacs, and, in the far-away corner, the little black canvas Dentist's Outfit.

A CAMPAIGN SPEECH

During a recent campaign to increase the building fund of his church, a man who was acting as one of the campaign solicitors approached another member who was an old friend.

"Frankly, John," his friend said, "When he had heard the request for a contribution, "I don't see why I should give anything. I don't attend church any more, or take part in any activities. Why should I give to the church? What does the church do for me?"

The solicitor paused a moment. "Well," he replied. "you were almost certainly baptized in the church: you went to Sunday-school there; you met your wife in the young people's group; you were married there. Your children were baptized there, and still attend there. You were confirmed there ago, when your father died, the service for him was held there. You got a lot out of that church, community would this be if we didn't have churches? How much would juvenile delinquency increase without churches? How many people does the church help start on the right path?

"And that's still not all. The church won't quit just because you haven't give a dollars, or even if you stay away. The church keeps right on going—and it's there. You had better get back in step again."

Said his friend, "I'll—right now! Let me get my checkbook."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INFLUENCE OF WOMEN

Never can the influence of women in life be adequately spoken or praised. It is too great. From the Mother of Jesus down the ages to the humblest of us, we have hearts that have had their influence upon us all, as men, we owe an undying tribute.

Lord Northcliffe became a great English newspaper publisher largely because he believed in, and understood, the influence of women over the affairs of men. Just before he died and on his last cruise around the world, he sent a daily message to his Mother in London. She, in turn, had been remained his one best friend to the very end of his life, together with his faithful valet.

One of the undying pictures in my memory is that last look my mother gave me as I returned to college, never looking back again. We both understood, and that smile of hers is as fresh in my mind as though it had been only yesterday that I looked upon it. Oh, Mothers of the world! Never can we repay all for your sacrifices, your love and your inspiration. Devotion.

Nobody do I pay tribute to the teachers I had in school and college who were women. Many of their lessons remain to this day unforgotten. There is a subliceus in the Mother Instinct that is so deeply manifest, no matter to whom it is directed. Nevertheless women recognize this power of women and so seek to make their papers of interest to women. Even their ads.

I have a little book telling of the Mothers of American Presidents, and there are illustrated the characteristics of motherhood that so much to bring out the later characteristics of the Presidents. Action owes more to its women than to its men, and God grant the time may rapidly come when their faces will never be bathed in tears because of useless and tragic wars!

Echo from Past In U.S. Court

(Montreal Gazette)

The AP story from New York described Abe Horowsky's appearance in court last week as an "echo from the past." Perhaps it had even a more distant echo—age, another climate, another philosophy of living.

Horowsky was arrested by police for begging. He appeared before Magistrate Charles Solomon in Brooklyn. The magistrate offered the man before him—"Don't I know you?" he said.

"You've said it, Horowsky. It developed that the two used to debate politics on the street corners of Bronsville 37 years ago. The judge, in these far-off days, was running for election to the state assembly on the "All-Socialist" ticket. Horowsky, for his part, was a "philosophical anarchist."

Also, of those fancy theories of political economy here passed, Solomon is now a Democrat. But Horowsky, it is reported, has realized a measure of his own individualism.

Why was he begging? asked Judge Solomon.

"I wanted to go to a concert," said Horowsky, "and I needed the money to buy a ticket."

Now, there is an answer as fine as any Solomon in any court ever received. Wisely, the judge gave Horowsky a suspended sentence.

But there might be an earlier way for a music-loving but penniless philosopher. Horowsky might and here gold to attend his concert. Horowsky might become a critic.

Empty Seats Good Business

(St. Paul Pioneer Press)

Between governmental regulations and union restrictions, the life of the businessman is not a simple one. And when you add to that that there is no business like show business, the theatrical business their share of complexities.

When a new musical comedy opened in New York city recently it was noted that a block of some 100 seats was roped off and unoccupied during the performances, even though the rest of the house was sold out.

Inquiry developed that it was more profitable for the management to keep the seats empty than to fill them with paying customers. The reason given was this: The musicians union had a contract under which the size of the orchestra must be doubled if the theater sold more than 1,000 tickets. The seat sales were therefore limited to 1,000 because the additional capacity of the house would not be sufficient to pay for the extra expense of hiring twice as many musicians.

Under such circumstances an old "standing room only" sign once the mark of theatrical success, would instead only indicate poor management.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Some of the most mischievous elderly women can adopt the sweetest and gentlest expression. Elderly men can rarely get away with such deceit. A cranky old man cannot escape looking like a cranky old man. A wicked old man reveals his character as by a flash of lightning. But some of the ladies, as they move into their mid-night call the fourth or final act of their lives, succeed to elude the physical consequences that usually overtake most of us as we age.

In the post office yesterday, it being early afternoon, only one of the three wickets for selling stamps was open, and three of us were in line at it. I noticed an elderly well-dressed woman come in and gaze a little helplessly about her. I took her at once to be her appearance of gentleness. A fragile small smile, as if at her own helplessness, lit up her face. Just as I was about to step out of line and go over and assist her at what ever she needed, she came over and joined the line, next behind me. What a lovely November of woman she was. I glanced pleasantly at her, then looked straight back and give her my place. Then I heard her voice.

In a low, growly voice, the dear, gentle voice of the outwardly cracking woman, she muttered to me:

"Just look at that, will you! Four wicket open, only one being open. It's abominable, that's what it is, abominable. It's the same everywhere . . ."

Her voice took on a rasp, as she realized that I was not for an audience.

"It's the same in all these government offices. Just look at those girls in back there. And only one wicket . . ."

I had already recoiled; for the change of expression had been from a flower on her face had bitterly withered, and there was now under scolded and girded a mean, troublesome, even a wicked old woman. I have only one way of self-defence, in such situations.

"Pardon me, ma'am," I am a little hard of hearing. Were you speaking to me?"

And those old termagants also know enough not to ruin their chances. With a look of disgust, she ceased her growling.

But what a tragedy such a woman must be in some home, some family circle.

Thanks Fire Dept. For Help in Flood

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Permit me, through the medium of your paper, on behalf of the residents of Octavia-Henry Street district, to express our sincere appreciation to Fire Chief Vance and his men, for coming to our rescue last week-end, when through sewer trouble, had spread over my first floor, when Chief Vance was approached. He promptly sent the pump and his department were here for over two hours to help us in our trouble.

I am sure I can speak for many more citizens of Belleville who also were assisted so cheerfully and willingly by our firemen.

I wish to thank you for allowing me the privilege of publicly thanking there men for their help.

Immeasurable wooded hills and valleys;
Hise
Are the signature of autumn's lavish hand.
Hold back the cold: the frost that bites and stings;
Whose rearing touch envelopes all the land.
Spare fires on swift impassioned wings.
This is the season when each plant and flower
With crowning art achieves its destiny—
In rain or sunshine, daily hour by hour.
Proudly attains perfection all may see.
Stay, lovely autumn, unsurpassed and dear,
Holding unslingly the harvest of the year.

Hospital Aux. Presents Fine Report

Though she does not carry a lamp to watch over her patients any more, the modern nurse is just as important to the welfare of those in her hospital care as was her famed predecessor.

It is the aim of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary to make her busy life a little easier by having her surroundings in the residences restful and attractive.

REPORT SUBMITTED

Mrs. J. M. Forrester, one of a committee appointed to attend to the project of the nurses' residences, submitted a report and a proposed budget, which was passed at the recent regular meeting. Acting with her, in this connection are Miss M. Peart, director of Nursing, Mrs. J. N. Vanover, and Mrs. Louis Marsalese. Miss Peart expressed appreciation of the interest taken by the members. Mrs. L. Thomas kindly donated $10 towards the project.

Mrs. J. L. Smith, the president, welcomed the following new members, Mrs. S. C. Angus, Mrs. R. J. Grandin and Mrs. Mervin F. Jones.

$16,000 PRESENTED

An encouraging report was heard on the tea, held at the home of Mrs. George Faulkner, at which time the president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary presented the hospital board their pledged donation of $10,000 to the Hospital Building Fund.

The coffee shop, which is carrying on most successfully, is being assisted by generous donations of home cooking from the Kinettes, Mrs. S. Spiegel, the Second Thurlow Neighbors' Aid, and the Gamma Mu and Alpha Lambda chapters of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Home baking is always appreciated.

Mrs. Smith reported that she would be in touch with Miss Dickens regarding Christmas gifts and cards to patients.

WORKERS NEEDED

Mrs. Beeby made an appeal for clothes, dishes and odd bits of furniture for the Opportunity shop. She expressed the need for workers on Saturdays and paid tribute to the constant help rendered by Mrs. J. C. Young, Mrs. L. Arnott and Mrs. I. Lenzer.

Interesting reports were heard from Mrs. W. Dallas, treasurer, and the secretaries, Mrs. J. E. Fugh and Mrs. R. E. Burley.

Mrs. J. E. Buchan, in her account of her day spent in the Pathological Laboratory conducted by Dr. Alex Rota, enthralled her listeners with her descriptions which made them realize the important work being done in our Belleville hospital, and stimulated an interest in further instruction. Those who heard her determined they would not miss the next vital talk by an actual witness if she portrayed the drama that was taking place before her eyes as did Mrs. Buchan.

Jewish Ladies' Auxiliary Sponsors 'Sukkot' Bazaar, Tea

Blue and white colors, and fragrant cedars formed a delightful keynote for the exceptionally fine "Sukkot" tea and bazaar held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Jewish Ladies' Auxiliary, in the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue.

Receiving the throngs of guests were the gracious receptionists, Mrs. A. Black and Mrs. P. Nemtin whose warming smiles and firm handclasps made everyone feel at home amid a bevy of nicely planned booths, and a most charmingly arranged tea room. Its white fence, and tall white standards of frosted cedar sprays joined by entwined loops of pale blue, had a square archway of cedars interspersed with fruits and vegetables, reminiscent of the flight from Egypt.

"SUKKOT"

This archway was further highlighted by a written page with the following message: "The theme of the bazaar is 'Sukkot', or the Jewish festival of Thanksgiving, having a three-fold purpose: it commemorates our ancestors who lived in the desert for forty years; their protection and guidance. Today, we still live as God's children, depending on His divine guidance; it is a festival of Thanksgiving, or a harvest festival, and bear in mind the needy or less fortunate of the entire world, and give thanks for living in this land of freedom and bounty, and the end of the festival is our expression of delight in the word of God which teaches us in such forms as the Ten Commandments."

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

Within this cedar arch could be seen the attractive tea table with its exquisite Guipure lace cloth, centred by a miniature canopy which both exemplified the blue and white colors of the Auxiliary, as well as the florist's fine talent, in the mingling of pale blue 'mums, pale blue tinted grapes, and frosted huckleberry foliage. Flanking this were tall, heavily-wrought antique silver candle holders with tall, white candles, and at either end the ornate silver tea services.

Those who presided during the afternoon included: Mesdames, E. Kunner, E. Spiegal, N. Wiseman, F. Gerstein, I. Lindenberg, S. Salt, J. Potash, J. Albert, H. Yanover, Forester and A. Moser. Those who served were: Mesdames M. Levine, S. Lipson, S. Mandel, S. Spiegal, H. Simrod, K. Shulman, M. Tuchmayer, B. Taylor, and J. Goldstein.

In charge of the tea table were: Mrs. J. Yanover, of the kitchen, Mesdames L. Lenzer, A. Moser, I. Lindenberg, K. Jourard, and R. Freeman.

The booths, comprising the plants, white elephant, knit goods, sprays, records and magazines and books, and homecooking, were nicely arranged in the form of an "L," with the homecooking extending across the western end of the assembly hall.

Among the multitude of plants shown, in charge of Mrs. H. Cappel and Mrs. B. Tarke, were foliages, sweet scented geraniums, begonias, artillery plants, cacti, rubber plants, philodendrum, African violets, green and variegated peppersnias, and red-tinted wandering jew.

WHITE ELEPHANT

The white elephant table with its bevy of assorted costume jewellery, china, pictures, vases, solid crystal candle holders repeating the theme of dinner and tea, pepper and salts in abundance, gold-edged dinner set, flower vases, cups and saucers, coffee jars, pin-up lamps, skirts, belts, dolls with blue and white, gaily-patterned aprons, and many other articles including a set of dishes. This booth was convened by Mrs. S. Safe and Mrs. T. Schwab.

The knitting booth was plentifully supplied with all manner of children's knitted articles; lovely baby bags, baby sacques, baby dresses, sweaters, mitts, stocking dolls with blue and white, caps, pull-overs, stuffed animals, bears, cats, giraffes, and many articles in pretty shades of blue organdy, and mauve. Mrs. S. Rose and Mrs. L. Goldberg had charge of these.

The apron booth was a flower garden of color, displaying every type, and style or all-over, half aprons, in prints, organdies with lovely appliqued motifs of flowers. In pale blue and yellow; toweling aprons with spacious pockets and aprons in stripes, floral backgrounds, and a host of others, each one a perfect Christmas gift. Those convening these were: Mrs. S. Bosloy and Mrs. H. Kaye.

The record-books booth had a good assortment of new and used records at the low price of 5 cents each and a large assortment of pocket editions of novels and other books, at the same price. Mrs. H. Rosen had charge of these.

The homecooking table, with its conveners, Mesdames J. Aisramsky, F. Gitelman, M. Wiseman, M. Salz, J. Albert, K. Kassel and H. Yanover was completely hidden from view by the eager shoppers who tried to obtain the cake or pie, of their choice. The display of cooking has seldom been seen; here one could obtain the delicious strudel cakes, cream puffs, pies of all kinds, mouth-watering buns cherry topped; angel cakes, raspberry tarts, fruit cake, cup cakes, almond bread, Chinese chews, jam tarts and "nothings."

Mrs. E. Kunner had charge of the preserves which included jellies, pickles, relishes and jams, while fish and other delicacies.

The extra drawing cards were those of the rhinestone necklace and matching earrings, which were won by No. 48; the door prize of dinner tickets, won by No. 265, and the artistically decorated angel cake with its motto reading, marschino cherries and shredded coconut, by Mrs. Dulmage of Trenton.

A most successful bazaar and tea, lovingly arranged with appreciative thanks going to the conveners, Mrs. I. Shulman, Mrs. A. Lipes, Mrs. I. Lenzer and Mrs. L. Yanover; to the decorating committee for its effective and extraordinary "decor", Mrs. W. Jardine and Mrs. Lenzer, and to the convener of publicity, Mrs. S. Lipson, for a task well done.

TREATMENT FOR WEAK AND BRITTLE NAILS

Drawing by Jean Seiler

A nightly application of warm olive oil will help to reduce the brittleness of unhealthy fingernails.

Strong, healthy fingernails are absolutely essential if one's hands are always to look their beautiful best. Even the weekly manicure is no avail if the nails are so weak or so brittle that they break at the slightest household or office chore which requires strong pressure of the fingers.

To keep nails healthy, diet is, of course, the first consideration. For, only on a diet which is rich in vitamins can your nails be as strong as they should be. Vegetables and fruit, salads, butter and milk are musts" if you'd have the kind of nails you want. And eat all of these foods plentifully—not just once in a while, but every day. And, if your nails have been in a unhealthy state for a long time, don't expect miracles to happen overnight. It takes a long time for new nails to grow out from their matrix just below the cuticle. So don't follow your vitamin-rich diet for only a week and expect to see immediate results. In fact, for general health, you should be on a vitamin-rich diet all the time. But for the moment, we'll just consider the question of nail health.

While you're waiting for new nails to grow out beautifully and healthily, as a result of diet, there are a few things you can do to help nature along. One of them is special care in the manicure technique. Never subject your nails to heavy pressure—especially at the cuticle base. Pressing too deeply with steel instruments or even with an orangewood stick is highly damaging to the nail. Work gently in lifting cuticle. Even if it is unusually heavy and thick, it can be loosened with warm, soapy water or with any of the fine creams or liquid designed to soften the cuticle.

Also, while you're campaigning for strong, healthy nails, shape them as close to the fingertips as possible. You may not like to do this at first since you think they're prettier if long. But if you will remember that the shorter they are, the less they'll come into contact with objects that cause—breaks, you'll realize that you're on the right track. Once they're in good condition, you can let them grow as fashionably long as you wish.

Olive oil is also a great help. Make it a habit to warm it and heat the oil and apply it with cotton over the entire nail and about the cuticle every night. Leave it on for a while, then wipe off the excess and leave a little until morning. In between times, whenever you're using a hand lotion or cream, rub a little extra about the cuticle and the base of the nails. This not only lubricates the skin and the nail itself but also stimulates circulation, both of which are important in strong, healthy—and beautiful—nails.

STAYED WITH TRUCK

CREEMORE (CP) — A tractor trailer loaded with 16 tons of salt skidded down a 60-foot embankment near here Tuesday, snapped off 35 small trees and turned over on its side. Harold Nussey, 32, of Tilbury, the driver, stayed with the vehicle after its brakes failed at the top of a hill and guided it around two curves before it ran off the road at a third. Nussey escaped with a shaking up.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GIVE YOUR HUSBAND A SURPRISE!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 40 years old, and married several years.

My husband is always saying that I'm getting old looking, that I have wrinkles under my eyes and around my jaw and neck. This makes me feel very unfortable.

Is there anything I can do to get rid of these wrinkles, like using some kind of cream or anything? My face is thin. It always was, but I am gaining weight other places. What makes this, or is it just Nature? — Mrs. A.

Dear Mrs. A.:

Sure, it's Nature! Wrinkles and extra pounds begin creeping up on all women your age; you're not the only one! And there's lots you can do about it, so don't let it throw you.

Maybe you've just been letting yourself go, and that's why your husband is making these remarks. Well, do a little remodeling job on yourself and give him the surprise of his life!

For one thing, you might go to your local beauty parlor and have your hair re-styled. The just-right new hair do can work wonders to give a woman a more youthful look. It's not only the hair-do itself that does it. It's the feeling it gives her that she looks smarter, and her face reflects that knowledge in a younger, more confident expression.

If you can afford to spend a little money, have yourself a facial every couple of weeks. Facials do a lot toward smoothing wrinkles less conspicuous, and also tone up your whole complexion. There are several creams, too, that are specially designed for the older woman's skin, and that do a good job on smoothing out lines and wrinkles. If you'd like to have their names, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope—you didn't give me any name or address, you know—and I'll gladly mail you the names of the products.

Another thing you can do that will definitely improve your appearance is to get rid of that weight you say you're gaining. And the only really effective way to do this is to cut down on your eating. Watch your diet, and go light on the starches, the sweets and fried foods. Do this for awhile, and you'll be surprise even yourself with your new, more youthful figure.

You might go over your wardrobe, too, to see if you can smarten it up. If you've been used to buying much the same sort of things year after year. Get something new and different. It'll do a lot for you, both appearance-wise and psychologically. Don't just go out and plunge, though. Study the fashion magazines and make sure what the right lines and colors are for you—the things that will play up your best points and play down the less good ones.

There's a book called "Clothes Make Magic," by Ermni Cotler, that you should be able to find at your local library. It has a lot of helpful ideas along this line. And while you're at the library, have a look at two other books—"Youth After Forty," by Ida Bailey Allen and "Charm, Beauty and Personality," by Edyth Thornton McLeod.

Finally, get yourself some new interests, so you'll feel wide awake and eager for every new day that comes. There's nothing in the world that makes anyone feel healthier, happier and younger than to get excited over some new activity, whether new hobby—and the person who is healthy and happy can't help feeling, and looking, younger—it will also give you something new to discuss with your husband, instead of the same old things you've been talking about through the years.

So now you know where and how to start on the New You! Let me know how it goes.

A Chinese Meal At Home

By Mary Moore

Last week being National Fish Week we set off cooking fish like crazy. Last night we had a Chinese supper that tickled three Canadian palates so pleasantly that you have to hear about it.

We had Egg Flower Soup (hold on now—it is an illusion of flower-ess— not Ferdinand stuff) and Shrimp Almond Din. That last sounds noisy but it wasn't, we just quietly ate with no din at all. For almond cookies we had shortbread with ground almonds in it, and preserved ginger and Jasmine tea. Any errorts in the theme are due purely to ignorance.

EGG FLOWER SOUP

You can use chicken bouillon from cans or make chicken broth or do as we did use chicken bouillon cubes as directed on the package. When the broth is rapidly boiling stir in 1 well-beaten egg—holding it at least two feet above the soup pot as you pour and stir, so that the egg cooks as it hits the boiling soup and sprays out in little flower forms. Serve at once. Use 1 egg for soup for three people; 2 eggs for soup for six.

SHRIMP ALMOND DIN'

At a downtown fish store for 89c I bought 1 lb., huge shrimp in the shells to serve three people. These I put on to boil in water to cover, with lid on, for about five minutes, then stood them off the heat, with lid still on, and let them stand in that hot water for 15 to 20 minutes. Then I drained them well and put them in the refrigerator to chill. The jobs sort of shelling and de-veining them is not tedious if you have someone to talk to. It took about 15 minutes I suppose.

Heat in a large frying pan 3 tablespoons oil—preferably peanut or sesame oil—but corn oil will do. In that gently saute 2 large green peppers cut into long narrow shreds, 1 bunch diagonally cut celery hearts—about 2 1-2 cups—and 1 thinly sliced mild onion. (I used a medium-sized red Italian onion—the Italian onion took to the Chinese mix real broadmindedly.)

I stirred this mix over very low heat about 20 minutes, not allowing it to brown at all. It was quietly stir-frying process. On tight cover, bring to boil, reduce heat as low as possible and cook until all water is absorbed —about 20 to 25 minutes.

About two minutes before serving time I sprinkled 1-2 teaspoon each salt and monosodium glutamate and 1 tablespoon soy sauce over the shrimp mixture. On the hot plates a mound of snowy rice was beside an outsize serving of Shrimp Din. Toasted Almonds were liberally sprinkled over all for good measure. Additional soy sauce was passed at the table. Was it any wonder we quieted down for the next quarter hour? The shrimps retained their crispness, the vegetables retained their greenness, I retained my overweight.

FLUFFY BOILED RICE

Wash 1 cup long grain rice in sieve under running water. In heavy pan add to it 2 1-4 cups cold water, 1 teaspoon salt and if desired 1 tablespoon butter. Put cover tight over, bring to boil, re-

BRIDE WEARS BRIDAL COSTUME TO EVENING RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married in church at 11:30 in the morning. She is to wear a wedding gown and veil. The reception will take place at 7 o'clock in the evening. When does the bride remove her veil? — Mother.

The bride wears her complete bridal costume to the evening reception, just as she does to the morning ceremony. She takes off her bridal veil when, at the end of the reception, she goes to change to her going-away costume.

"THE HONORABLE" NOT CORRECT ON CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument we are having, please answer this question: Is it correct to say "The Honorable" on a calling card?

— Readers

No.

WHEN YOU DON'T KNOW THE BRIDE-TO-BE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received a card of invitation to a bridal shower. The hostess is a girl whom I've known quite well for several years. I have never met the bride-to-be for whom the shower is being given. The card says the shower is to be a "Linen Shower," and it requests an answer ("R.S.V.P."). I have a job, (as the hostess very well knows) and I couldn't possibly attend this midday dessert-and-coffee shower. Ever since I have been working, I have tried to send a present (a small, inexpensive one usually) to a shower given for a friend, when I find it impossible to attend the shower. But under the present circumstances, do you think I should knock myself out to send a present? — Betty

No . It is absolutely unnecessary for you to send a present to this girl whom you have not even met. To be polite, you must write a note saying it is impossible for you to accept the invitation. After that, don't worry. For you know, and I'm fairly sure the hostess knows too, that she shouldn't have used this unattractive technique to try to force you to give a shower present.

You don't pay extra for quality, because quality pays for itself.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The October meeting of the Holloway Street United Church Women's Missionary Society was held in the evening at the church, when members of the various groups of the W.M.S. family and the other women's organizations were present to enjoy the fellowship of the autumn thank-offering occasion.

The president, Mrs. Coulter, extended greetings to those present and made suitable reference to the Thanksgiving season in relation to the society and to the responsibility as Christian stewards in the world.

The worship service was presented by three members of the Evening Auxiliary with the theme of Thanksgiving as the subject providing much food for thought and contemplation.

Mrs. White contributed an appropriate solo, "There's a Voice in the Wilderness Crying."

At this time, the guest speaker, Mrs. Stanley Spafford, was introduced by Mrs. F. Wilson, subject of her address, being "My Four Years as Conference Branch President".

Mrs. Spafford paid tribute to the many members of boards and executives with whom she had served. The missionaries with whom she had contact, and cited many instances of unselfish service which gave her a broader vision of that which is being done as well as, plans of the future. She explained of how the allocation is planned and the many changes taking place in keeping with these times.

Even such expressions as "missionary conference" is now changed to "missionary church" and the question "The church exists for those, who are in it," indicates a new approach to the problems at hand.

A new emphasis is now placed on a national church in foreign countries with native trained workers.

Her closing challenge was that each one consider it her responsibility to be a living witness for Christ, that His will be done on earth.

On behalf of all those present, Mrs. S. Westover expressed appreciation to Mrs. Spafford.

A solo "Open Mine Eyes" by Mrs. James Ketcheson, expressed the thought of each heart, after which she described some of her work with the Mission Band.

Use of puppets made by herself and several ways in which the older members can help were also mentioned.

The visitors were highly commended for the excellent and efficient manner in which the work was exemplified.

The lovely voice of the soloist, Mrs. Waters of Wood, Ont., added greatly to the impressiveness of the installation.

The District Deputy was presented with a gift from Oakdale; as was Mrs. Agnes Wickens, who was recently married.

The bountiful and dainty refreshments served to bring an enjoyable evening to a close.

Sister Stella Wood, D.D.P., on behalf of the visitors thanked the lodge for their hospitality.

Vice-President IODE Visits Chapter

Mrs. J. L. Cameron, vice-president of Provincial Chapter, Imperial Order Daughter of the Empire, was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the St. Julien Chapter of Belleville, at St. Andrew's Church, Monday evening. This was given in place of the regular monthly meeting.

Members of the chapter and from Picton and Stirling chapters and friends of the order were welcomed by Mrs. L. B. Fonger, Regent, who presided at the dinner.

After a delicious repast served by the ladies of St. Andrew's, the toast in Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II was proposed by the Regent. Mrs. R. C. Reidel favored the guests with two solos, "A Mighty Fine Day" from Madame Butterfly, and "Estrellita."

I.O.D.E. WORK

Mrs. Cameron was introduced by Mrs. Gordon Vince, vice-Regent of St. Julien Chapter, giving a short resume of her work in the I.O.D.E.

Mrs. Cameron gave an inspirational address on the work of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. It is a unique organization in Canada and even in the world, being the largest, voluntary, ladies' patriotic organization of its kind. There are 900 chapters in the ten provinces of Canada, 425 of these being in Ontario.

Last year $87,000 was spent on educational work in Ontario; this being the Order's major peace time project. Of this $54,000 was spent directly on student assistance, such as bursaries, scholarships and help in other ways.

Mrs. Cameron stressed unity of purpose in the order, each member to the other, each chapter to the other and each member to their officers. The order can only be as strong as the weakest primary chapter, and each chapter as strong as each individual member makes it.

OBJECTIVE AIMS

The objects and aims of the order were outlined from the constitution, showing how patriotism takes its different aspects. Service was often as valuable as money and the combination of service and money is shown in the First and Second War Memorials, these being scholarships and bursaries to sons and daughters of service personnel. These were called "Living War Memorials" to the glorious heroes of past wars.

Another object of the order is "Unity of Purpose" which is divided into three parts: responsibility to yourself, your home and your country; loyalty to the Queen and country; loyalty to each other and loyalty to the officers of the order; tolerance toward each other and to oneself, knowing that none are perfectionists.

The address was closed with paraphrases from the prayer of the order "We praise Thee for the blessings of our homes; for the fullness of life and opportunity in this Dominion, and for the ties which bind us together within our Empire," and "give to each member grace to serve Thee faithfully and to labor loyally for the welfare of our country; for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

The speaker was graciously thanked by Miss Margaret Fairbairn, saying she had given the members thoughts to take home and dwell upon. The evening closed with the singing of "God Save the Queen."

The executive of the chapter gave a coffee party at the home of Mrs. Charles Bishop to conclude a delightful visit from vice-President Provincial Chapter Mrs. J. L. Cameron.

Christ Church C.C. Discusses Business Plans

Members enjoyed a short talk given by the rector, Archdeacon Creegan.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by hostesses Margaret Wiggins, Shirley Boyce and Nadine Thorne.

H-S Assoc. Plans Future Activities

The Shannonville Home and School Association held its first meeting of the season with a good attendance.

Treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $85.27.

Conveners for the balance of October and November are: Mrs. Ken Hollands and Mrs. Joan Shelly. Press, Mrs. Helen Louis; cards, Mrs. Margaret Hill; historian, Mrs. Willis Wilson; membership, Mrs. William Coles.

A card party will be held in the local school rooms on Friday, October 21st.

Plans for the Hallowe'en party were made and Mrs. Fred Louis is to purchase treats; Mrs. Nellie Howard to buy prizes for the costumes.

The executive committee for this coming year is: Mrs. Doris Johnson, Mrs. Velma Cook and Mrs. Nellie Howard.

It was decided that cash prizes be given for the euchre parties.

A sewing meeting will be at the hotel dining room on Wednesday evening in preparation for the Home and School bazaar to be held on December 9th. Mrs. Henderson, teacher for the junior room, won the prize for most parents in attendance.

A guest speaker will be chosen for the next meeting, which will be the third Monday in November.

Here's How to Win!

Get Free Check List at any Dominion Store.

Find the "Phantom Famous Brand" listed on the check sheet but not illustrated in this advertisement. Next, if your telephone rings between 2 and 3 o'clock next Saturday evening, DO NOT ANSWER HELLO or you will be automatically disqualified from an opportunity to win $2,000.

Instead of answering HELLO, say "DOMINION STORES" and then state the name of this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" you will win the Grand Prize of $1,000.

$1,000 BONUS! If you win the Grand Prize and have in your home at the time a box top or label from this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" (or a reasonable facsimile) PLUS a $3.00 or more, you will qualify for a bonus prize of $1,000.

$100 CONSOLATION PRIZES! If the DOMINION FORTUNE HUNT calls your telephone number and you name the mistake of answering HELLO, but can still name this week's "Phantom Famous Brand", you will qualify for a consolation prize of $100.

GRAND PRIZE MUST BE WON! If this week's Grand Prize is not won on Saturday night, it will be added to next week's Grand Prize of $1,000. This will be repeated if necessary until someone wins the accumulated Grand Prize.

Employees and agents of Dominion Stores Limited and their families are not eligible for this contest.

On the 27th phone call to various localities throughout Canada by Radio, Mrs. Mario Walter, 26 Talbot Street, Thorold, won $1,000 in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE HUNT by answering her telephone with the words "Famous Brand — Libby's Deep Brown Beans with the Rich Flavour" and she actually had a DOMINION Beans Prize between the covers of a Dominion Recipe Book. Miss Walter did not have a Dominion Store cash register slip for $3.00 or more, but she had a bottle of 1/2¢ vanilla extract and so was awarded a $100 Consolation Prize. Mrs. John Avance, Niagara Falls, Ont., won $100 for naming the Phantom Brand but made a mistake in answering "hello".

Banding Eagles a Hobby

Mr. Charles L. Broley retired as manager of a bank in Winnipeg when he was fifty-eight. He is now well over seventy and has spent the intervening years in a face to face study of the eagle. Climbing giant trees on rope ladders and scaling cliffs that would daunt a boy of seventeen, he has banded over 1200 vicious and clawing eaglets. He is recognized as the world's leading authority on eagles, and has featured in articles in the Saturday Evening Post, Maclean's and the Reader's Digest.

When a bank clerk here in the Montreal Bank he saw his first eagle flying over the port office.

In recent years he has devoted much of his time to lecturing, depicting with matchless color movies the exciting story of his work and many phases of the life of the eagle. His movies of young eagles learning to fly excite the interest of his audiences and are most amusing.

His program is suitable to young and old.

On October 23 Mr. Broley is giving his lecture "Banding 1200 Eagles," in the Collegiate auditorium under the sponsorship of the Quinte Field Naturalists.

SHANNONVILLE

United Church Holds Rally Day Service

SHANNONVILLE — The leaflet, "Lord of the Lands, Make Canada Thine Own" was used for the Rally Day service in the United church Sunday school hall, on Sunday evening. There was a large attendance of pupils, teachers, parents and others.

A beautiful basket of flowers adorned the front of the hall.

The minister, the Rev. T. Hogervard conducted the service and Miss Marina Mastin, Sunday school pianist, presided at the piano.

The junior choir assisted with the service and sang "Land of Our Birth". Miss Beryl Scruby read the Scripture lesson and Miss Lorraine Shelly read a story "A Boy and His Alley".

Mr. Hogervard gave an interesting address on "How a Child Should be Trained to Make a Good Citizen."

The collection, which was received will be used for home mission work. All across Canada many Sunday schools have the opportunity to share in the Mission work of the church, through a rally day offering. This year the gift of money will be used to help in the church's work among the first Canadians, the Indians and in work among the newest Canadians who have come from other countries to make Canada their homeland.

All joined in singing for the closing hymn "Lord of the Lands, Make Canada Thine Own."

NAME MINISTER

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir V. Matskevich, who headed the Soviet farm delegation that toured the United States and Canada last summer, Monday was named Soviet agriculture minister. He is expected to adopt many ideas and methods picked up on his North American visit.

15-YEAR MYSTERY

For weeks police and volunteer searchers scoured the bushland west of Sudbury to no avail. They used grappling irons to search the numerous rivers and lakes along the way. They vainly sought a smashed guard rail or snapped-off tree which might indicate an accident scene.

Border points reported no record of the couple or the car leaving the country. Friends insisted he and his wife would never leave their children.

The next spring, the finding of a torso in a metal box at Sault Ste. Marie led to speculation that it was part of the body of Mrs. Kirk. It proved to be part of a corpse used for medical experiments.

Still later, the finding of human hair in two lakes in northern Ontario seemed a clue but the mystery remained unsolved.

In 1947, seven years after the disappearance, the Kirks were declared legally dead and provision was made for their children to share their estate on becoming of age.

Besides the youngest daughter living with Mrs. Lou Cameron at Carnduff, Sask., there is a daughter living with relatives in Brandon, Man., and a third believed living at Marcelle, Sask. A son was in the armed forces at the time the couple disappeared.

Another son, Peter, 21, is a sailor stationed at HMCS' Naden, Esquimalt, B.C.

"I guess I always expected something like this had happened," he said Wednesday night.

"Years ago, when I was a small boy, I heard they were dragging in the hope of finding something. But all they got was some human hair."

St. Andrew's Observes 72nd Anniversary

IVANHOE—St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, West Huntingdon, observed its 72nd anniversary on Sunday with special services.

Owing to the inclement weather, congregations were not as large as usual for this occasion.

Special music by the choir under the direction of choir leader, Mrs. A. Hassall with Miss Beada Fleming at the piano, included morning—anthem "We Meet Again" trio, "His Hand Will Guide" by Miss A. Fleming, Mrs. L. Sills, Mrs. A. Hassall.

Evening — anthem, "I Am the Way"; junior choir, "Tell Me Lord Jesus", solo part taken by John Haggerty.

Among the lovely flowers that adorned the church was a basket of mums placed by Mrs. Roy Belshaw and Lorraine; a basket of mums placed by Mrs. J. C. Sills, Russell and Lindsay, in memory of John Chester Sills.

The services were conducted by the Rev. T. E. Kennedy, B.D., of Markworth. The guest minister delivered timely messages both morning and evening.

Morning text, Luke 23:39.

"Luke's story of the dying thief illustrates God's great love and saving power. The dying criminal's name is not recorded, yet he lived long enough to experience conversion and salvation and to teach men to the end of time a number of religious lessons.

"We are taught that salvation is independent and separate from our sacraments. He was not baptized yet Christ pardoned all his sons. Salvation is independent of good works. It is not universal. On that first Good Friday, Christ hung between two thieves, one was saved, one lost. This is happening every day.

"This man taught sinners to seize their opportunity to be saved. 'Do not defer action. 'Now is the accepted time. Behold now is the day of salvation.'

"The change that took place in the chief of sinners gives us warrant for believing in sudden conversion and instantaneous sanctification. Salvation is conditioned on repentance and faith. Faith saved the dying thief. Faith will save you."

Evening — Acts 11 latter part verse 26. "And the disciples were called Christians, first at Antioch."

"The term 'Christian' is only used three times in the New Testament, and the name was applied by outsiders, to the followers of our Lord. If we read and study about the early followers we find they were known by five different names. Disciples, believers, brethren, saints and witnesses.

"Antioch, the third greatest city in the Roman Empire, containing a million people and noted for its great wealth, culture and commerce is not remembered for any of these things.

"Three great events took place there. The doors of the Christian church were first open to the Jews as well as the Gentiles; persecution broke out after the stoning of Stephen. The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church. Antioch became the birthplace of Christian missions. It was here the illustrious name, Christian was first bestowed. It did not come from the Jews but was coined by the Gentile heathen.

"If we would be ideal Christians, we must be disciples; sit at the feet of Jesus and learn of Him; own Him as Master and Lord. We must have the believer's faith. We are exhorted to live as brethren in friendship and love.

"The word Saint was used 39 times in the New Testament but never in the singular. No term in the Bible has been more abused. We must strive to have wholesome of the holiness of the Saints.

"St. Paul in one of his great letters said, 'We living epistles to be known and read of men'. We must have witnessing power. May God grant we may all be bright and shining lights in His Church."

RIOT IN HALL

HAMBURG (AP)—Seven thousand hot jazz fans rioted in Hamburg's Ernest Merck Hall Monday night when the microphone went dead during a personal appearance concert by Louis Armstrong. Screaming "We want our money back," the down-beat set hurled chair legs and seat cushions on the stage. Fifteen rioters were arrested.

Britain on Friday Will Pay Homage to Viscount Nelson's Sweeping Victory at Trafalgar

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain, embroiled in the struggle for survival in an atomic age, pauses Friday —Trafalgar Day—to honor the man whose victory in wooden ships 150 years ago safeguarded this tiny island's supremacy on the seas.

Led by the Queen, representatives of Canada and other Commonwealth countries will pay homage to Horatio Viscount Nelson and his sweeping victory at Trafalgar bay, southern Spain, Oct. 21, 1805, over the combined fleets of France and Spain.

Officials of Canada House will be among that taking part in the traditional ceremony of placing wreaths at the base of Nelson's Column, 170 - foot landmark in Trafalgar square. Above their heads, on a temporary yardarm rigged for the ceremony, will flutter 36 naval signal flags spelling out the message with which Nelson sent his fleet into the battle:

"England expects that every man will do his duty."

Crowds of overseas visitors will watch the ceremony in the square, always a mecca for tourists, while hundreds of resident pipers, started by the military bands, wheel overhead.

WREATHS AT SHRINE

The "England expects" signal, of which there now are several versions, will also fly from the yardarm of Nelson's flagship Victory, preserved as a national shrine at the big Royal Navy base at Portsmouth on the south coast. On the deck of the tiny wooden vessel wreaths will be placed on the spot where Britain's celebrated sailor died mortally wounded at the height of the battle.

And in mid-Atlantic a Canadian naval contingent, headed by the aircraft carrier Magnificent, will be resplendent in bunting as it marks the day with the naval ceremony of "dressing ove all."

Friday night the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will dine with the lords commissioners of the admiralty at the annual Trafalgar Day dinner in the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.

For the first time in history, millions of persons throughout the United Kingdom will obtain a close-up view of the ceremony by means of a BBC telecast. Guests will Commodore J. V. Brock, naval member at Canadian joint staff, London.

PRINCIPLES STILL GOOD

To Britons the ceremonies are far more than traditional homage to a great sailor and the country's greatest naval victory. Nelson and Trafalgar are remembered year after year because they are constant reminders of enduring, unchanging things.

For today, 150 years after Trafalgar, students of military strategy still find that Nelson's fighting principles—concentration of force, bold attack, disruption of the enemy's formation, relentless vigor in fighting—hold good for any action on land, at sea or in the air.

Flax Becomes Primary Source Of Cash Income

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flaxseed, the foundation of the paint and varnish industry, this year is the silver lining behind a black cloud hanging low over western Canada's grain belt.

In a year when the movement of grain is at its slowest, and the farmer's financial structure is wobbling, flax has become a primary source of cash income to the western grain grower.

Bumper crops on increased flax acreage in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta are moving freely through the country elevators and on to the open market where it is being bought at premium prices.

Up to Oct. 12 country elevators had received 6,130,302 bushels of flax, nearly four times the amount delivered during the same period last year.

Grain officials say the demand has been created by a booming construction program in Canada. The linseed oil manufactured from flaxseed is used as a base for paints, oils and varnishes.

Exporters have sought the grain —now being used in edible fats and oils in Europe.

Unlike wheat, flaxseed is moving free of quotas from the farm to the elevator and to the buyer.

"We are accepting all flax," an official of a western elevator concern said Wednesday. "It's a cash crop to the farmers . . . the one crop in which they are realizing actual cash."

Acquittal Strikes Crippling Blow To Phone Act

TORONTO (CP) — A court decision Wednesday indicated it may not be illegal under the Ontario Telephone Act to use profane or immoral language over the telephone.

A young student lawyer won acquittal for Randolph F. Baird, 17, who was charged under the act after a woman complained Baird made profane suggestions to her over the telephone.

Aaron Brown, 25, a third-year law student, argued the Telephone Act should not come under the jurisdiction of the province. Magistrate W. W. McKeown said Baird's acquittal had struck a crippling blow to the act passed in 1954.

BUSINESSMAN DIES

HAMILTON (CP) — Stanley E. Burns, 54, a prominent business man and sportsman in nearby Dundas died in hospital Wednesday. Born in Smiths Falls, he was president of Caustic Sanitation Co., and a former member of Dundas town council.

At Inquest Father Admits Beating Child

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Fernand Amie Desbiens, 28, father of two children, broke down in the witness box Wednesday and admitted he had killed his 11-month-old son, Roland, by beating him with his fist.

Desbiens was testifying at an inquest into the death when he surprised the crown attorney with the statement.

The inquest had been underway an hour and 15 minutes and Desbiens was in the box little more than a minute when he confessed.

"Would you tell us exactly what happened?" crown attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald asked.

"I hit him," Desbiens blurted, his throat choked as he began to sob.

"What did you hit him with?"

"I hit him with my fist. I hit him all over."

"Then the baby didn't fall out of the high chair as you first told police?" asked the crown attorney.

"No he didn't," the father replied.

The inquest was adjourned and Desbiens was taken back into custody.

BLOWS SELF UP

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—A 53-year-old Indian took his own life Wednesday by blowing himself up with a case of dynamite. Police said Allan Mackenzie sat on the box of dynamite and lit a homemade fuse.

Life in South Sea Islands Is Still Pretty Carefree

By J.C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Life in the South Sea islands of romance may not be as idyllic as it novels, but it is still pretty carefree by the standards of the modern world.

It's not much effort to grow food, or to catch it from the sea. Housing is little problem—the materials for a thatched hut grow in abundance. So life, love and laughter go on as always.

But always—there have been darker moments. Illness, accidents, hurricanes find these isolated communities with few resources. That has been the case in the past anyway. Infrequent and slow communications have meant that people struck by disaster have struggled through or have died before help could come.

Now, however, the natives of the South Pacific have an ever-present help in time of trouble—a maid of all work which can render help at short notice. It is the flying boat squadron of the Royal New Zealand Air Force, stationed at Lauthala bay, Fiji.

The squadron is part of the free nations' defence network in the Pacific. Equipped with long-range Sunderland flying boats, its task is reconaissance and tracking down submarines and other enemy craft. Since 1953 it has been stationed in Fiji as part of New Zealand's effort to relieve Britain of some of her defence burden.

But the squadron operates widely outside this official defence sphere. The flying boats are ideal of linking islands with no airfields. They can land anywhere there is a smooth stretch of water—and this covers the large numbers of islands and atolls with a coral reef sheltering a lagoon near the shore.

Its tasks range from dropping supplies to castaways to helping to pacify natives engaged in tribal wars. Recently a feud between two villages in the Lau group led to fist fights, then clashes with sticks and stones, and finally to a pitched battle in which a man was killed and others wounded. A Sunderland flying boat was hastily loaded up with police and officials and in a matter of hours peace was restored.

On isolated Niue Island a young man was badly hurt in a blasting accident. The only way to save his sight was to get him quickly to hospital for complicated medical medical treatment. A Sunderland battled through storms to Niue and took the man nearly 2,000 miles to hospital at Auckland.

When a hurricane swept several island groups and scattered fishing craft and island schooners, the Sunderlands were out again searching for disabled craft and spotting survivors cast ashore on uninhabited islets.

Sue Lumberjack For Passage Paid by Company

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Friction between some Canadian lumberjacks and their New Zealand employers has led again to court proceedings.

The Tauhgurua Logging Co. has sued William Solheim for a refund of £100 the company said it paid for his trip from Canada, where he was hired last year along with a number of other Canadian bush workers. Solheim replied with an allegation of wrongful dismissal.

Counsel for the company said Solheim had signed a contract to work for the company for three years. He had been given duties in the camp as it was considered the only job he was able to perform. The company added that he had been found sitting on a bed in front of a radiator when he should have been working, and was dismissed.

The magistrate reserved decision.

A case previously heard in the same court resulted in a Canadian logger being ordered to refund his passage money.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and some man went past with a grate big dog walking alongside of him, and a little bit of a dog came running up to him jumping up at his face and barking mad, and the big dog just kept on walking with the man without paying any attention as if he didn't give a darn.

Which he probably didn't, and the little dog went back up his own front steps, and I said, Jimminies, pop, I bet that big dog could of finished that little mut with one easy bite.

No doubt, but everybody would of called him a big bully, pop said. So he acted like an intelligent person and refused to get angry, thereby making the silly little mut look even sillier, he said, and I said, But G, pop, if he had even pretended to get mad and just showed a few of his teeth, I bet that little dog would of got scared and ran.

Perhaps, and perhaps he would of got panik stricken and lost his head and made a real pass at the big dog, and that would of been the end of him, pop said. Then the big dog would of been the only survivor, so he would of got all the blame. In other words, even the show of force by a superior power can be disastrous. So keep your dignity the next time some little squert gets fresh with you, he said.

But heck, pop, supposing some big tuff guy like Reddy Mercy picks on me first, what then? I said, and pop said, Then excuse yourself politely and hurry to the ferst fone booth and call up the nearest branch of the United Nations. You can always keep your temper, even if your dignity is temporarily ruffled, he said. Which maybe you can.

MISSING FROM THE Christening

Aluminum was named by a man who never saw it. In 1807 the great scientist Sir Humphrey Davy decided that alumina had a metallic base, but failed to find a way to extract the metal. But he went ahead anyway and christened the unseen metal "aluminum". Later he changed his mind and re-named it aluminium. Both versions are still used.

Wonder if the English scientist ever dreamed of the day when, in far-off Canada, millions of hydro-electric horsepower would unlock the riches of alumina to produce more than 500,000 tons of aluminum a year?

Army Wives, Kids Leave to Join Men Overseas

QUEBEC (CP)—Wives and children of Canadian servicemen bound for Germany and returning soldiers met in the St. Lawrence today as the transfer of troops got into full swing.

The troops scheduled to disembark here today from the liner Columbia are the vanguard of the 1st Infantry Brigade which is being relieved at Soest, Germany, by the second brigade.

The gigantic transfer operation will take several weeks to complete. Thousands of soldiers and their families will be crossing the Atlantic.

The Empress of Australia sailed from Quebec Wednesday night for Rotterdam with some 625 wives and children of members of the second brigade aboard. They are dependents of members of the first batch of soldiers sent to Germany from the brigade. Some 2,500 soldiers of the second brigade's total strength of 5,000 will leave within the next few weeks and their families will follow later.

One more shipload consisting entirely of dependents and two ships carrying mixed troops and families are scheduled to leave here before the whole move is completed about mid-November.

Some army officials described Wednesday's sailing as unique in Canadian history. It is the first time army dependents have been transferred overseas en masse and probably the biggest group movement of children from Canada.

The Empress of Australia was especially stocked with baby food and playroom toys for the voyage.

The second brigade will be stationed at Soest for the next two years.

Jury Places Responsibility On Wine Truck

CORNWALL (CP)—A Supreme Court jury Wednesday awarded a total of $34,100 to two estates as a result of a car-truck crash near here last December. The three occupants of the car were killed.

The jury placed responsibility on Bright's Wine Company, owners of the transport and its driver, Russell Peacock, 27, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Killed were Lyle O'Shaughnessy 25, of Williamsburg, Ont., his 23-year-old daughter, Helen, and Mrs. Marion McHaffie, of Morrisburg. Mr. O'Shaughnessy was assessor for the counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

The O'Shaughnessy estate was awarded $24,250 and the McHaffie estate $9,850.

New Trial For Five Men

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice A. M. Manson Wednesday ordered a new trial for five men charged with attempted murder and ordered the publisher and editor of the Vancouver Province to appear in court today to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt.

The 12-man jury was dismissed after Mr. Justice Manson ruled on a motion by Angelo Branca, a defence counsel. Mr. Branca said it was "contempt of the most profound type" for The Province to print the names and addresses of the jurymen and to picture the accused men's court background. The story in question appeared Tuesday.

Charged with attempted murder in connection with the beating last June of Thomas Kinna, 29, are: Robert Joseph Tremblay, 33; Lucien Joseph Mayers, 40; Marcel Frenette, 28; James B. Maigren, 28, all of Montreal; and Charles A. Talbot of Vancouver.

'Minor Problem' In Beverage Rooms Issue

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The Ontario Hotel Association is earnestly seeking the co-operation of the public in keeping minors out of hotel beverage rooms, taverns and public houses.

This appeal was made Tuesday by executive officers of the association who are meeting in Fort William for the presidents and secretaries conference.

The "minor problem" was one of the three principal resolutions discussed by the association during its three-day conference.

Nick Kaneb of Cornwall, president of the association, and Roy Corbett of Toronto, managing director, said in many instances hotel owners are placed in the role of "age guessers" an unsatisfactory means of restricting the presence of minors.

Finds Humidity In Shows Raised By Tear-Jerkers

TOKYO (AP) — Dr. Miho Daigo of the central meteorological observatory set up his sensitive recording instruments in Tokyo theatres and found: "Tear - jerker" sequences boost the humidity as much as 10 per cent.

Climax scenes at all-girl revues (the ones promoters call sizzling) raise theatre temperatures as much as two degrees.

"My associates and I are making these tests solely to determine health factors involved in theatre-going," said the scientist.

Many Chemicals Used in Foods Not Known Safe

CHICAGO (AP) — A researcher says many chemicals used in manufactured foods "are not definitely known to be safe."

The statement was made by F. J. Schlink, president and technical director of Consumers Research, Inc., an organization which tests consumer goods.

His address was prepared for today's session of the annual National Safety Congress.

"It is an interesting and important fact that over 700 chemical additives are used in manufactured foods nowadays, and of these 40 per cent are not definitely known to be safe," he said.

In Washington, the United States food and drug administration declined comment.

Schlink predicted that in the future more and more manufacturers will question assurances that additives with "cryptic and fancy names are just what are needed to make foods smoother and keep them fresh longer.

Schlink also suggested that manufacturers design household electric plug fuses so that coins can't be inserted under them when they fail; make inaccessible the "live" or "hot" parts of radios, record players and television receivers; develop baseboard sockets preventing access by children with pins and wires in hand.

Turn Down Request

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Lincoln county council has turned down a request for a grant of $136,600 to help finance a new nurses' residence at the St. Catharines General Hospital, it was announced today.

Omaha Widow Loses $145,000

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — "They really cleaned me out," said Mrs. Margaret Kellogg Wednesday, motioning to a bedroom safe from which, she said, two masked gunmen had taken $125,000 in jewels and $20,000 in cash.

The robbers smashed their way into the big brick home on Omaha's fashionable west side Tuesday night while Mrs. Kellogg, 58-year-old banker's widow, and three women friends watched television upstairs.

The women said one bandit jammed a pistol in Mrs. Kellogg's back and ordered her to open the safe.

The two men laid a bedspread on the floor and tossed the jewels and money into it. The jewelry included a diamond dog collar for one of Mrs. Kellogg's three pet chihuahuas.

Quebec Mother Abandoned Child, Jailed for Year

QUEBEC (CP) — A young mother has been sentenced to one year in jail for abandoning her one-month-old child while she and her husband allegedly made a living by begging.

Mrs. Gemma Couture pleaded guilty to the offence and was sentenced Tuesday. Her 40-year-old husband, Roland, however, has pleaded not guilty and will appear for preliminary hearing Oct. 24. The couple was arrested recently in Toronto.

Police said the couple abandoned their child at St. Pierre, on nearby Ile D'Orleans, while begging there. They asked a family to look after the infant for a few days, but failed to return.

Artificially Bred Holsteins Sell Well This Year

OAKVILLE (CP)—Prices for artificially bred holsteins were greater than last year at the annual auction sale of the Maple Cattle Breeding Association here Tuesday.

Fifty-five head were sold for $24,420, an average of $444, compared with $417 at last year's sale.

Top price was $2,000 paid by S.B. Roman of Gormley to Fred Hutchinson of Malton for a seven-year-old cow, Hazel Rag Apple Segis.

Nine head were sold to buyers from Colombia, three to buyers from Venezuela and five to buyers from the United States.

Second Man Arrested In $30,880 Theft

TORONTO (CP) — Police have issued a warrant for the arrest of a second man in connection with the theft of $30,880 from Imperial Oil Ltd. over a six-year period.

Police said Douglas D. Storms, 38, a former cashier at the company, is being sought.

William A. Summerfield, 60, an employee of the firm for 38 years, was arrested at his Toronto home Tuesday night on a charge of theft.

Police said both men were suspended without pay by the company a few weeks ago and were later dismissed. Company officials said Summerfield would have been eligible for a pension in five years.

Vinarterta

Layer upon layer of luscious Jewel cake!

Vinarterta

Somewhat like a torte, this cake is developed from an old Icelandic recipe. It cuts into fingers, keeps (in the frig till you need it. What makes the cake—and preserves it—is the Jewel Shortening.

- for high, light cakes
- for flaky, tender pastry
- for tasty, digestible fried food

Swift

½ cup QUICK-MIX JEWEL SHORTENING
½ cup Swift's Allsweet or Brookfield Butter
1½ cups fine granulated sugar
3 Swift's Brookfield eggs
2 tablespoons cream
1 tablespoon almond extract
2 teaspoons baking powder
2½ cups cake flour

Place Jewel in bowl. Jewel is the low cost shortening with the high cost ingredients. In any recipe it excels, but in this particular recipe it's an absolute MUST, because only with Jewel can you get the proper flavour and texture. Add sugar and Allsweet. Cream until light and fluffy. This only takes a couple of minutes because Jewel makes creaming faster. Add eggs and beat well. Now stir in cream and almond extract. Sift baking powder and flour. Work in flour mixture gradually until batter is almost stiffened, like a cookie dough. Because it contains Jewel, you'll find your batter blends easily. Now divide batter into 6 equal portions. Pat into 8-inch Jewel-ed pans. Bake in a moderate oven until each layer is a delicate brown.

Baking Temp: 375°F
Baking Time: about 13 minutes

When cool put layers together with the date filling. Wrap in aluminum foil and store in a cool place. This cake is enhanced if allowed to set for a few days before cutting. And with Jewel as an ingredient, it stays fresher longer. Serve in narrow strips.

FILLING

1 pound dates, chopped
½ cup sugar
½ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine dates, sugar and water. Cook over low heat until smooth and thickened. Add vanilla and lemon juice. Cool.

QUICK-MIX JEWEL for quick easy baking!

Luscious Kim Novak Offers Something New, 'Quiet Sex'

AT THE BELLE — Richard Todd and Michael Redgrave are co-starred with Ursula Jeans in Warner Bros. "The Dam Busters", incredible but true, the amazing story of the "Bombs that had to Bounce," starting today at the Belle Theatre.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The latest thing in Hollywood is quiet sex, as evidenced by a luscious Chicagoan named Kim Novak.

This is in contrast to noisy sex represented by such other blondes as Marilyn Monroe, Mamie van Doren and Sheree North.

Unlike that much-publicized trio, Kim hasn't been over-sold to the public. Her studio's press agents haven't kept her under wraps; but they haven't flooded the country with her cheesecake photos and sexy sayings, either.

"I like it better that way," says the subdued Kim. "When you get a tremendous buildup your career has trouble catching up with the publicity.

"Real sex appeal should come from the inside. It should be quiet and sincere; you shouldn't shout about it."

LIVING EXAMPLE

Kim voiced these sentiments on the set of "The Man with the Golden Arm," and her appearance supported her argument. She was fairly well covered in a full-length gown. Yet with her short blonde hair, lovely face and bare shoulders, she looked sexier than any scantily clothed chorus girl.

Otto Preminger, who was directing Kim and Frank Sinatra in a street chase, paused to comment on her appeal. He also directed La Monroe in "River of No Return."

"Kim's is a real kind of sex, not phony," he remarked. "It is quiet, subdued and convincing, not manufactured."

Kim's way of living is as quiet as the sex she exudes. She still lives at the Studio Club, the home of Hollywood hopefuls.

thing better. I have visited the big NBC studio in Brooklyn where technicians have prepared some interesting surprises to convey the mood of fantasy. Before I've actually seen the show I'd say it's going to be a good one.

England were as delighted as their children.

I have read the television script written by Florda Friebus and think that next to reading Alice itself you couldn't ask for any-

URGE EQUAL TAX

OTTAWA (CP)—Three tire manufacturers Wednesday urged a finance department committee to recommend that sales of standard brand and special brand tires be taxed equally. B. F. Even Hour-and-a-Half Show Short for Ferrer's Cyrano

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The production of Cyrano de Bergerac on NBC-TV demonstrated that an hour-and-a-half television show can be too short.

Jose Ferrer brought his brilliant interpretation of Cyrano to "Producers' Showcase" this week, rounding out performances on both stage and screen in the same role. He was delightfully complemented by a lovely Roxanne played by Claire Bloom, a British actress.

Anyone who saw Ferrer as Cyrano on Broadway must have regretted the cutting of many fine lines and characterizations from Edmond Rostand's drama of frustrated love and uninhibited swordplay in 17th-century France. Yet, given the inflexible limitations of time on TV, the cutting was intelligent and left the audience with the satisfaction of having seen a full-bodied play.

Occasionally it seems empty to review a television drama. Whether it was good or bad, it is past and will not be repeated. You either saw it or you didn't, and you either agree or disagree with the critic. Sometimes it's more profitable to look ahead and set the stage for something that's coming. This Sunday, for instance, Maurice Evans will present "Alice in Wonderland" over NBC-TV.

The charm of Alice lies in the perfect plausibility of all its impossibilities. That is to say, it's fantasy and requires from an adult a suspension of a sense of what's plausible. When Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, a brilliant mathematician, published his stories about Alice under the pseudonym of Lewis Carroll, adults in Victorian

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

ALL READY!

Coach Danny Cox announced his line-up late yesterday for tonight's exhibition tilt with the starry Montreal Junior Canadiens starting at Memorial Arena at 8.30.

Tony Portzi and Don Saxberg are slated for the goal-keeping duties, while Bob Wilson and Bill McMaster will form the first line of defence. Aiding in the behind-the-blueline efforts will be Sam Mulholland, Bob Taylor and Jud Seneca.

The shock troops up front sees last year's speed line of Vern Goyer, Davy Jones and Keith MacDonald in the van, while the Peterborough trio of Chum Fryia, Gus Leonard and Toody Greenlaw will work together. This threesome was one of the best to perform with the Petes last year and should prove very effective on the offence with the TPT's.

The third line sees Bert Hill of the Petes, centering Peter Jones and Doug Day, and this threesome should not weaken the TPT's goalscoring efforts.

The selection is a tentative one, and Coach Cox no doubt will keep an eagle eye on the going's on since this is the first time the squad has participated in competitive play.

Wilson, who was the most improved player of the 1954 Memos, at least in this corner's department, and who is teaming up with touch Bill McMaster of the Petes, should form a defence duo that if ruggedness and heavy checking tells, makes one of the toughest rearguards in the senior "B" loop.

Goyer, MacDonald and Davy Jones, all of whom have been skating at top speed during the practice grinds, should make their presence felt, and probably rate high in the scoring columns. Fryia, one of the most dangerous players in front of the net last season, centres a wily, tricky hard-shooting pair in Toody Greenlaw and Gus Leonard. All three rated high in the Petes' scoring records last season. Peter Jones, Bert Hill and "The Nobber" Day round out the sharp-shooters' division and this trio should prove of great assistance to the other lines.

There are some illustrious hockey names on the Canadiens' roster, such as Richard, Boucher, Pronovost, Cartier and such ilk. Young Richard, whose first name is Claude, is probably one of the famous hockey family, although we are not certain on that point. However, the Canadiens club will be well worth the price of admission to watch, while not of secondary importance to city fandom is how the 1955-56 edition of the Belleville senior "B" club shapes up in its inaugural start of the season.

GOING GOOD!

The St. Catharines junior "A" Teepees are playing an exhibition game with the Brockville junior "B" entry, a new addition to that category and which is operating with the assistance of the Chicago Black Hawks. A story in the St. Catharines paper by columnist Jack Gatecliff, says the Teeps would like to play an exhibition tilt with the Belleville TPT's, but as far as we can learn, the TPT's board of strategery did not go along with the idea.

After all, there is the expense item to be considered. Hockey teams of modern times do not eat grass in pasture fields, nor do they hitch-hike. Expenses these days come high and the TPT executive probably studied every angle, if they did turn down the invitation.

Speaking of the Teepees, that's the club that Bobby Hull of Point Anne is cavorting with. And reports from the Garden City have it that Bob is the silliest junior to show his wares up thataway in many a moon.

In fact Chief Scout Bob Wilson of the Chicago Black Hawks, phoned us Tuesday night on his way through to Brockville to see his junior "B" Hawks perform. He told us that Hull had the St. Catharines rabbinical gaga with his fine scoring.

"Don't be surprised," said Wilson, "to see young Hull in a Chicago Black Hawk uniform before the season ends. He is showing exceptional promise. If he does make the Hawks he will be the second youngest junior to make the big time. Toronto's Teeder Kennedy, I believe, played his first professional game at 16 years of age."

"Incidentally," Wilson said, "I have a cheque for the Belleville Minor Hockey Association to the amount of $75, recarding Hull's transfer. It is made out to that organization and I shall bring it with me on my next trip through Belleville."

VOTED "OUT"

Point Anne hockey officials got the cold shoulder but good at the meeting of the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League session this week. The Ox Polishers, who sought entry into the intermediate "A" group were voted to stay in their own backyard by a vote of 5-1. It seems of the six entered clubs, Port Hope, Cobourg, Lindsay, Oronо, Bowmanville and Lakefield, Port Hope was the only organization to favor the Ox Point entry. Seems there was a matter of transportation, always a bugbear in a hockey group, and the boys could not see their way clear to tote down thataway just for a hockey tilt or two. Sounds reasonable at that.

This seems to put the quietus on the stories being circulated that Point Anne will not be in hockey this season.

Recount Gives Americans Win Over Russia

NEW YORK (AP)—Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, said Wednesday a recheck of points in the world weightlifting competition at Munich, Germany, gave the United States the team championship by one point over Russia.

Coach Bob Hoffman of York, Pa., and members of the team returned by plane Wednesday from Germany.

Ferris said Russia had been credited with 29 points, to 25 for the United States, but that officials had not given the United States five more points for winning the physique competition.

REJECTS OFFER

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (CP)—Owner Marty Haske Wednesday rejected an offer by a civic baseball committee to purchase the Syracuse club of the International Baseball League.

Haske, who several weeks ago announced he no longer could stand losses incurred in running the Chiefs, stood firm on his selling price of $105,000.

Hustling New York Rangers Hand Cellarites 6-2 Setback; Rookie Hebenton Sparks Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Muzz Patrick always figured Andy Hebenton was a good National Hockey League prospect.

The New York Ranger general manager liked the way Hebenton operated in the minors. So he bought him from Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League last summer, put him in a Ranger uniform at the start of the current campaign and unveiled him before 11,658 New York fans Wednesday night.

Hebenton didn't disappoint Patrick or the fans. The 26-year-old right winger scored two goals to lead Rangers to a 6-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The win moved the Blueshirts into second place in the standings and left Leafs in the cellar with five losses in seven games. It was Rangers' third win in five starts.

SCORED WINNER

Hebenton, 180 - pound forward, scored what proved to be the winning goal in the opening minute of the second period. He also added a clincher midway through the final frame.

Danny Lewicki, Wally Hergesheimer, Ron Murphy and Bronco Horvath were the other Ranger marksmen. Earl Balfour saved the Leafs from their fourth shutout defeat with a pair of third-period goals.

Rangers have become a hustling, scrappy club under rookie coach Phil Watson. Defenceman Lou Fontinato led the parade to the penalty box Wednesday night as he received four minors—three in the first period.

Referee Red Storey handed out four penalties in the first three minutes of the game and went on to send nine players to the penalty box for two - minute sentences. Leafs got seven.

While Toronto was peppering 21 shots at Lorne Worsley in the Ranger goal during the first period, Hergesheimer and Lewicki built up a 2-0 lead for New York.

WHILE LEAFS SHORT

With Leafs short two men and Rangers one, Hergy flicked Horvath's pass under Leaf goalie Harry Lumley's right leg to make it 1-0 at 1:21. Lewicki's goal came at 8:51 after he stickhandled his way past two Leaf defenders and shot a 25-footer into the net. The teams were at full strength at the time.

Hebenton and Murphy made it 4-0 by the mark of the second period and Horvath added another at 18:58. Balfour broke Worsley's shutout attempt at 5:02 of the final 20 minutes after taking a pass from centre Rudy Migay. Hebenton then scored Rangers' sixth goal before Balfour closed out the scoring at 16:15.

Altogether, Worsley stopped 46 Leaf shots, Lumley handled 24 New York shots.

Chicago Black Hawks take on the Red Wings at Detroit and the League-leading Montreal Canadiens meet Boston Bruins at Montreal tonight.

Lions Blank Chicoutimi 2-0

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Trois - Rivieres Lions Wednesday night won their first Quebec Hockey League game of the season, a 2-0 victory over Chicoutimi Sagueneens.

After a scoreless first period, Kapusta opened the scoring at 6:05 of the second on a screened shot from a goal-mouth scramble. Scherza scored with little more than a minute left in the game.

Manager OK's Pompey--Moore Ring Battle

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Moore's manager said Wednesday he is willing to have the light-heavyweight champion defend his crown against Yolande Pompey instead of Randy Turpin in London Jan. 10.

"I'm trying to reach Archie out west to see if the switch is okay with him," said manager Godfrey Johnston. "It's okay with me if the terms are right.

"I just got through talking on the transatlantic telephone with Jack Solomons (London promoter) and I told him to hop a plane and come over here so we can iron out all the details," said Johnston.

"We had virtually everything settled for the Moore-Turpin fight and I'm sure we can settle this thing quickly if Archie approves the deal."

WALLACE BEAT HIM

Plans for the Turpin-Moore fight were blown sky-high when Turpin, former world middleweight champion and current British light-heavyweight ruler, was knocked out in the fourth round in London Tuesday night by lightly-regarded Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont.

Turpin announced his retirement after the shocking defeat.

Pompey, fourth - ranking 175-pound contender from Trinidad, has played second-fiddle to Turpin in England for the last four years. Now he's ready to step into the spotlight.

Solomons, in London, said he had an advance sale of $112,000 for the cancelled Moore-Turpin fight for huge Earlscourt Arena in London. He was hoping to close the substitute match quickly and hold on to the advance.

N.F.L. Teams Make Bonus Peek At Early Date

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—National Football League teams will make their "bonus pick" and select the first three choices from the 1955 college player crop sometime between Nov. 14 and Dec. 23, some two months earlier than usual.

Commissioner Bert Bell said Wednesday night that there was no secret about this meeting as expressed in some quarters.

The continuing war with the Canadian league motivated the early draft. Usually, the NFL draft is held at the annual meeting in January.

The commissioner said the primary reason for the early draft would be to offset the possibilities of lawsuits between NFL teams and Canadian football promoters. He said it was not considered a weapon to combat raids on NFL selections by Canadian teams.

"We're trying to avoid the possibility of signing ball players already signed and vice versa," Bell said.

ORDER OF SELECTION

He said the position of the teams in the league race "at the time of the early draft" will determine the order of selections. Normally the teams with the lowest percentages draw first in the mid-winter meeting with the champions picking last.

Earlier Wednesday the Milwaukee Journal said it has learned of a "secret draft." A story by Journal sports writer Oliver E. Kuechle quoted an unnamed club owner as saying:

"We are sick and tired of Canadian raids on our best college talent. We've had to sit helplessly by in the past, with the draft in January, while Canadian clubs swooped down in late November or December and plucked off, or at least approached, the cream of the crop.

"We, too, now will be able to approach boys as soon as they have played their last college game."

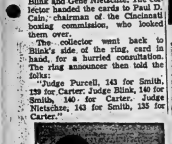
Bud Smith Verdicts Jimmy Carter To Retain Lightweight Championship

Ex-Champ Fails to Maintain Record of Former Comebacks; Judge Changes Decision Twice

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI (AP)—In as merry a shindig as you'll find, Walter (Bud) Smith has retained his lightweight championship Wednesday night.



Smith, a 26-year-old Cincinnatian, defeated three-time champion Jim Carter via decision—and what a decision it was. No one was certain today whether it was split or unanimous.

Smith weathered a bruising 13th round in which he was in serious legged trouble, and finished the 15-rounder in good shape. Then the 6,683 paying customers sat back to await the verdict.

Judges' scorecards were collected from Willie Purcell, Joe Blink and Gene Nietschke. The referee for handed the cards to Paul D. Cain, chairman of the Cincinnati boxing commission, who looked them over.

The collector went back to Blink's side of the ring, card in hand, for a hurried consultation. The ring announcer then told the folks:

"Judge Purcell, 143 for Smith, 139 for Carter. Judge Blink, 140 for Smith, 140 for Carter. Judge Nietschke, 143 for Smith, 135 for Carter."

Jimmy Carter

That made Smith the winner on a split decision.

Ten minutes later commissioner Cain had reporters he had rechecked the cards and that Blink's added up to 143 for Smith, 140 for Carter, and that the decision was unanimous.

But Blink tossed every-thing into confusion again by stating:

"I don't care how they add it. I voted for Carter, 144 to 140."

That made it a split decision again.

Commissioner Cain observed: "We must go by the figures on the card. It was unanimous for Smith."

But Blink, still jubilant two hours after the main event, was firm in his declaration that "I voted for Carter, 144 to 140. It's still split as far as I'm concerned."

The Associated Press card gave the fight to Carter by 144 to 111.

There was no handsome in the scrap, which attracted a gross gate of $30,441 and a net of $25,-789.35, of which the principals received $9,000 each in addition to a cut of the television receipts.

Carter, who suffered cuts requiring 30 stitches when he lost the title to Smith last June 29, was cut in the right eye in the round and fought from the eighth on with the eye closed.

Smith was unmarked, although he took a terrific battering in the 13th when Carter belted him into the ropes with a series of rights and lefts to the head and body, and had him hanging on like a leech.

Carter, who has won and lost the 135-pound crown three times in the last five years and was trying for a fourth, term plans a rest until his eye heals.

Both fighters weighed 133.

RICKEY TO BOW OUT

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cagey Branch Rickey, the guy who built pennant winners at St. Louis and Brooklyn but failed to give pennant-hungry Pittsburgh a championship club, definitely is bowing out. Nov. 1.

Rickey, now 74, and with more than 50 years in baseball, reiterated Wednesday he intends to step down as general manager and executive vice-president at the termination of his five-year contract.

"I intend to stay with the club in some capacity—if permitted to do so. And I think I will be. I hope to devote my time more or less to scouting."

Blues, Aggies Tie for Top In Track Meet

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The University of Toronto with 66 points and the Ontario Agricultural College with 66 tallied on top at the combined senior and intermediate intercollegiate track and field championships held here Wednesday.

Despite the fact the defending senior champions, Toronto, won only four events, they put together eight seconds, nine thirds and four fourths to stay well ahead of McGill who was the runner-up with 46 points. Western was third with 39 and Queen's fourth with 13.

The intermediate championship changed hands when the OAC Aggies chalked up 62 points against last year's champions McMaster who garnered 43. Toronto captured third spot with 36 points, Waterloo was fourth with 15 and Queen's trailed with seven.

SETS RECORD

Harry Hall of OAC set the only record of the meet when he sailed six feet seven inches in the intermediate high jump to better the old mark by two inches.

Damp weather and a slow track hampered Rich Ferguson's effort to set a senior intercollegiate mile record in the last race of his competitive career. He finished the mile run in a slow 4:44.0 which compared with his 4:04.6 at the 1954 British Empire Games at Vancouver.

While the fastest Canadian miler had no trouble winning his specialty, earlier in the afternoon Pete Reid of Scottish product Ferguson running for Western in the back stretch of the half-mile race to win in 2:03.3.

HANG UP SPIKES

Ferguson hung up his spikes after Wednesday's meet and will concentrate on a future in business.

The best competition of the afternoon came in the intermediate division with OAC and McMaster staging a hard-fought battle for first place throughout the meet.

West was a big point-getter for the Aggies with wins in both the high jump and javelin and a second in the broad jump.

John Yates of McMaster was a double winner in the 100 and 440 as was Al Claremont of the Aggies in the mile and three miles.

Soo Indians Whip Wolves

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP)—Sudbury Wolves suffered their first defeat of the season in NOHA senior A action Wednesday night when they were edged 3-2 by the Sault Ste. Marie Indians.

The loss for John O'Flaherty's charges was their first in four outings. They had previously won two games, tying the third, for a league-leading five-point total. Indians fashioned a 2-1 lead in the first period when Chuck Holdaway and Pop Backor scored after a Sudbury goal by Nick Tomiuk.

The margin was increased to 3-1 in the second frame by Birley Rose.

The win was the first of the season for the Indians who now share third place in the five-team race with Pembroke Lumber Kings on three points.

Jap Hurler Breaks Record

TOKYO (AP)—Shoichi Kaneda, 25-year-old pitching ace for Tokyo Daiei Stars, struck out his 350th batter Wednesday to surpass the world professional record of 348 set by Cleveland's Bob Feller in 1946.

Kaneda did it the hard way—in the last game of the season, an overtime contest which went 13 innings. Kaneda had a 29-20 record this year. He pitched 403 innings in 361 games, fired a great 1.91 earned run average and struck out 371 batters in 68 games.

'CRASE' WORTH $50,000

NEW YORK (AP)—The champion steeplechase horse of 1955 probably will emerge from the world's richest jumping race, Friday's $50,000-add Temple Gwathmey Handicap at Belmont Park. A dozen horses are expected to go in the 2¼-mile grind over 16 fences.

Favoritism will lay between Mrs.

Ogden Phipps' Neji and Shipboard, from the Montpelier farm of Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott.

ASK TV CUT

LONDON (AP)—Britain's racehorse owners urged track officials Wednesday to cut them in on money collected from commercial television for rights to film races.

The Council of the Racehorse Owners' Association also complained that the money contributed by owners towards prizes in Britain was out of proportion to that given in other countries.

FORMER HURLER DIES

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—George K. Murray, 55, former American League baseball pitcher, died Tuesday night. Murray, a righthander, pitched for New York Yankees in 1922. He later played for Boston Red Sox, Washington and Chicago White Sox.

SUES OIL MAN, AIRLINE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A surgeon has filed a $60,000 damage suit against oil man Glenn McCarthy and Braniff International Airways. Dr. Marcio M. Bueno alleged in a federal court petition Wednesday that McCarthy attacked him while both were on a Braniff flight in South America last year. The surgeon said his practice was curtailed as a result of the beating about the head and face and alleged that the airline was negligent in permitting the incident.

Demerit System for Drivers Is Now Under Consideration

TORONTO (CP)—A demerit system which could result in suspension of permits of chronic traffic offenders is under consideration by the Ontario government, it was learned Wednesday.

Commissioner J. E. McNeill is expected to advise said there is much in favor of such a system but many details would have to be worked out before it could be started.

Amendments to the Highway Traffic Act would be needed to make the system work, Commissioner McNeill said.

The demerit system, already in effect in one or more of the United States, provides for the suspension of a driver's permit when the total of demerit marks for violations of traffic laws reaches a set maximum. Demerit marks are given for conviction on charges of violating traffic laws.

SUGGESTED SYSTEM

The Ontario legislature select committee on highway safety, appointed by the legislature last spring, suggested the government consider the system as a deterrent to highway accidents.

A Queen's Park spokesman said the demerit system will be included in a submission next week on traffic conditions by Attorney - General Leslie Frost, Commissioner McNeill, Roberts, Commissioner McNeill, Highways Minister Allan and J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles.

Meanwhile, records of traffic law violations are reaching the attorney general's office and the provincial police, sent in by individuals who witness such instances through the provinces.

Earlier this month Attorney-General Roberts suggested motorists report such instances and said although the information could not be used to lay charges, the law-breakers could be warned and then watched for future violations.

Commissioner McNeill said the OPP has been receiving such complaints for some time and acting on them. Depending on the seriousness of the offence, offending parties are interviewed or, if the complaint is minor, are sent letters.

A number of letters are from responsible persons who, as a rule, don't want to appear in court to lay charges, he said. He indicated the main concern is preventing accidents caused by persons who are habitually careless drivers.

Egypt and Syria Ready to Sign Military Alliance

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt and Syria were reported ready to put the finishing touch on their long-heralded military alliance.

A high official said the Egyptian cabinet had approved the terms for the treaty to be signed in Damascus today, and that a similar pact between Syria and Lebanon is under study.

Informed circles in Damascus reported meanwhile that Syrian Premier Said Ghazzi will fly to Saudi Arabia with the text of the Egyptian-Syrian treaty in the hopes of enlisting that oil king-dom's signature.

The spawning network of military treaties in the Middle East has heightened the diplomatic fever over Egypt's recent conclusion of an agreement with Czechoslovakia to exchange Egyptian cotton for weapons and a Soviet offer of technical and economic aid to Egypt. Soviet activity in penetrating the Middle Eastern area where American oil companies have a vast stake also was reported by Prince Faisali, Saudi Arabia's crown prince and foreign minister. Faisali has offered his country arms and an exchange-of diplomatic representatives.

ISRAEL ALARMED

Egypt angered by the agreement of Turkey and Iraq, a member of the Arab League, to conclude a defence pact last January, launched a campaign for a new Iron-clad defence pact with other Arab states who would agree to coordinate top military arrangements with "outside" powers.

The Egyptian campaign failed when Syria rejected a Turkish treaty. Instead, a new Middle East defence alliance began to crystallize has been formed by Pakistan and Iran joining the original Turkish-Iraq treaty.

The drive by Egypt to enlist her Arab neighbors in a military pact with perhaps a unified command and with arms supplied from behind the Iron Curtain, continues to alarm Israel. Prime Minister Moshe Sharett told parliamentary debate has said the Russians are playing with fire in the Middle East.

Jury Says Future Swims Should Be Supervised

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the death of a man who was drowned during the Canadian National exhibit last month recommended Wednesday night that future swims be supervised by the Ontario athletic commission.

The jury, which returned a verdict of drowning in the case of 29-year-old Joseph Gerald Gallagher, Hamilton, also stipulated that the commission endorse a system of regarding the health of the swimmer, the equipment on his escort boats and the ability of the crew of the escort vessels.

Seventeen, father of a four-year-old boy, was drowned in the lake Sept. 18 a few hours after he left Niagara-on-the-Lake for a 32-mile swim to Toronto. Evidence at the inquest indicated Gallagher was an epileptic and that certain members of his escort party had been informed.

The jury stated that the evidence of Gallagher's escort boat commander, pilot, T. J. Ledoux, Niagara-on-the-Lake boatman, should be given little minds as to his ability to properly safeguard the life of his swimmer.

Under questioning by crown counsel Herbert Langdon, Ledoux and Murray Cunningham, skipper of the second escort boat on the lake, said they had been drinking. They said, however, that they had only a small amount of alcohol and that their senses were not impaired.

Youth Captured

TORONTO (CP)—A 17-year-old youth was in custody in court today on attempted robbery Wednesday night after a sub-post office proprietor had been pistol-whipped.

Police said they captured George Sansom, 17, of Cornwall in a home minutes after Fred Sansom, 62, had been hit on the head when he attempted to stop two youths from entering his combined grocery store and sub-post office.

Sansom told police he tried to hold one of the youths by the throat, but he was hit over the head with a gun. A witness, William Rowland, told police he saw a youth flee from the scene and chased him into a house.

RUSSIA TEMPTS ITALY

ROME (AP— Pietro Nenni, fellow-travelling Italian Socialist chief, returned from a visit to Russia and Red China today with the suggestion that Italy could get into the United Nations by co-operating with the Soviet Union. Nenni had a seven-hour conference with N. S. Khrushchev, chief of the Soviet Communist party, while in Moscow. Arriving here, he said that if Italy became more friendly with Russia the Communists might back Italy's bid for UN membership.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair, and I said, Hay pop, do parrits know what they are saying when they talk?

No, and they dont even care, pop said, and I did. But don't think it's wonderful to hear parrits talk, just the same!

I think it's still more wonderful to hear certain people talk, pop said. I know one man who can talk by the hour without the slightest idea of what he's talkin about. He might as well be a parrit, he said, and I said, What does he talk about?

Politics, pop said, and I said, Well anyways, pop, I know when I can get a free parrit that talks already. I mean we wouldn't have to teech him a word.

I know where I can get a free bird of exceptional ability, pop said. Each one is garanteed to go off in my face after the 8th puff, he said, and I said, Well then, pop, you realize how mutch people have to pay when they buy a parrit?

Who buys parrits? pop said, and I said, Lots of people.

They must be out of their minds, pop said. If I had a big outdoor tank, I might buy a parrit, if I had a lot of fish to feed it, but parrits expect to live in the house with the family, pop said, and I said, But jiminies, pop, this fellow's mother wants to get a parrit a good home.

What's wrong with her home? pop said, and I said, Nuthing.

Then what's wrong with the lady? pop said, and I said, She's kind of nervius.

So am I, pop said.

The result being I didn't even actually ask him if I could actually have the parrit.

POPULATION ESTIMATE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The census bureau today said there may be 228,500,000 Americans by 1975, or 28,250,000 more than the current population. The 1975 estimate was based on the rate of growth in 1954 and three for in 1955.

Butler Offers Canada Flattery But No Trade

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Canada was alternately flattered and teased Wednesday by the British chancellor of the exchequer, R. A. Butler.

Addressing an overflow audience of Canadian businessmen, the chancellor spoke in highly flattering terms of the "great Dominion," sprinkled his speech with knowledgeable references to latest developments, but disappointed those who hoped for immediate discovery of Canadian goods into the United Kingdom market.

"Frankly the time has come to put on the brakes," he said, referring to the measures he is going to announce in the House of Commons next Wednesday when he presents a special budget. "These moves, still secret, will be aimed at reducing what is admitted to be Britain's inflationary situation."

MAKE IT HARD

These internal difficulties, he said, make it hard for Britain to move any faster in the external field toward the unrestricted trade Canada would like. Butler was addressing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain, an organization formed originally by Canadian companies operating in the United Kingdom.

The chancellor was introduced by Leslie Sutcliffe, president of the chamber, Sutcliffe, with rather harsher candor than is usual in the presence of a distinguished guest of honor, told the chamber is "perturbed" by the fact that Britain's exports to Canada have not increased in proportion to the expansion of activity in Canada.

Butler announced that a British company, South Durham Iron and Steel, has just been awarded a $12,000,000 contract for 75,000 tons of 30-inch pipe for the natural gas pipeline between Fort St. John and Vancouver. He said this is the "biggest single contract a British company has gained in Canada.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Fri., Oct. 21, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Curtail useless words, action; time is precious in this fast-moving period. You're clever, have a fine mind which, used properly, can overcome many obstacles and produce fine gains.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Cooperate with others genially, but not at the expense of principles or good habits. Know when to say "no", and don't worry about it. Indulge things you like within reason.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Do not make hasty decisions or act without thought. It takes time to do a good job. Don't dally, sidestep issues or waste time on non-essentials, however.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Though you may not be able to achieve as much as you wish now, you can do much to cement good relations and promote accomplishment in the future. Manner, attitude important.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Some days require more pep and incentive, more will to proceed against odds than others. But, generally, obstacles are made worse by undue fear. Give Leo's ability a chance.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Don't expect others to do things just as you do, or at the same time. Let all have a glimpse of your truly well-balanced mind at work, backed by your innate good sense, humor and charm.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Trying too hard, or for too long a period at one time can be a fault now. Review to see wherein you can improve methods. Getting along amicably while being true to principles is stressed.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Don't pit off personal matters that should have your attention now in order to achieve something that will please others; this doesn't make sense in the long run. Rest when you should; be super for yourself, too.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Deal directly where you can, but do not be upset if in some cases you must heed those in authority. Temperament and manner very important now. Show your best.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Though things may not be what you expected, they can be bettered by effort and a keen conception of what is appropriate. Be receptive to friendly suggestions, constructive criticism.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Don't be coaxed to — to anything against your better judgment. This day is especially propitious for improving business relations, aiding community affairs.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Adopt new methods if they are shown to be better than those you have known; don't hesitate about unusual assignments but steer clear of impetuous decisions, questionable deal.

You born today have tremendous energy, self-control and determination that can conquer against seemingly impossible odds. Though sometimes arrogant, you rarely do things for other than the desire to achieve truer progress. Pettiness is absent from your nature. You can lose opportunities through procrastination and needless fears. You have pride; control since it is fine if rightly used. Place no value on flattery. You can accomplish much; never waste time, but do take needed rest and relaxation. Birthdate: Samuel T. Coleridge, famed Eng. poet. Alfred Nobel, chemist — engineer, founder of Nobel Prize.

Was Always Tired, Nervous, "Feel Like Living Again" She Says

Tells of Grand Results She Got by Taking Syntona

Many people who suffer from Indigestion, gas, constipation, nervous irritability and that always-tired feeling can benefit by the experience of others and take Syntona Herbal Compound. Syntona has helped so many people because it is a combination of medical ingredients never before found in any one medicine.

In the case of Mrs. Florence Michaels, 602 Murphy Road, Sarnia, Ont., it most her needs as follows:

Tells Her Experience

"For several years I suffered with nervous, upset stomach which caused awful gas and cold risings after my meals. I felt tired, nervous and run down all the time. I couldn't eat or sleep and had a nasty sour taste in my mouth. I felt terrible and was nervous at times I couldn't eat and would cry over anything.

"When I saw Syntona advertised I said, 'that's the way I feel, and I decided to try it. Now, I think this medicine is wonderful. The nervous condition of my stomach is cleared up, and the aches and pains are relieved and I feel like living again. I can do my work without that awful tired feeling and sleep soundly at night."

In your life made miserable by indigestion, constipation, nervousness, aches and that always-tired feeling? Then try Syntona and see how quickly you can get relief. See how much better you feel!

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan the Druggist.

Ottawa Experts Think NATO Ground Strategy Is Unsound

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence planners here take a dim view of NATO's reported ground strategy for Europe.

This strategy is said to involve mainly the strong defence of "island" positions. Attacking enemy ground forces would be channelled into so-called killing grounds among these islands where they would be decimated with atomic weapons.

Canadian misgivings about this plan are not just technical because this country maintains an infantry brigade group in Europe which would be involved in any such battlefield tactics.

Planners here find two main faults with the strategy:

1. With the enemy milling around the highly-defended islands, it might be impossible to use atomic weapons without causing casualties among the defenders.

2. The "islands" themselves would be prime targets for enemy atomic weapons.

There is some thought here that the NATO strategy represents only the first rudimentary step in attempts to put atomic weapons to use on the battlefield.

One informant said that when the NATO plan was presented to the army staff college for evaluation, officers heaped scorn on it.

And it is known that senior army officers outside the college don't think much of it either.

They are thinking more along the lines of atomic weapons being used for sudden breakthroughs of a fairly continuous front. After the gap was made in the line, ground forces would have to travel rapidly through it and deploy beyond before being hit by an atomic counterstroke.

That is why Canada's army today is concentrating heavily on mobility, dispersal and concealment. It has been found that well dug-in troops have fair protection against atomic weapons.

Union Will Pay Workers' Share Of Blue Cross

TORONTO (CP) — The 15,000 striking General Motors employees in Ontario have been assured by their union that they will not suffer financial setback because of doctor or hospital bills.

The United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) said Wednesday night it will pay the employees' share of Blue Cross hospital insurance and Physicians' Service Incorporated coverage for October. Cost to the union was said to be $100,000.

The announcement followed discussions here between Louis G. Seaton of Detroit, GM's chief negotiator, and George Burt, UAW Canadian director.

Now in its fifth week, the strike was called to enforce contract demands at Oshawa, Toronto, St. Catharines, Acadea and Windsor.

WILL GET REBATES

Some 4,000 workers in Oshawa who paid their own and the company's share of the health insurance for October shortly after the strike started, were assured they would receive rebates.

In Oshawa, merchants Wednesday reported they are beginning to feel the pinch since the 10,000 GM employees there have been off the job.

Some have laid off employees. Workers in industrial plants which supply parts to the motor car company have been laid off. So have auto transport drivers.

SALES DOWN

Sales in stores have dropped 10 per cent, the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce said.

Main contract negotiations still are awaiting solution of local problems at Oshawa, where the powerful Local 222 five years ago succeeded in winning a contract separate from the other four Ontario plants. Local or secondary issues at the other plants have been resolved.

The union seeks a health plan paid completely by the company. Wage increases to bring the scale in line with that paid by Ford of Canada and other benefits are other demands of the UAW.

Sister 'Really Shocked' By Radio Report

CARNDUFF, Sask. (CP)—Mrs. Lou Cameron, a sister of Mrs. Earl D. Kirk, who disappeared with her husband 15 years ago, said Wednesday she was "really shocked" when she heard a radio report that the couple's bodies may have been found.

"One of the Kirks' daughters, a baby when her parents vanished, was sitting here doing her homework when she heard the radio like I did and she was shocked too," Mrs. Cameron said.

Two bodies, believed those of the Kirks, who disappeared during a motor trip from North Bay to Wiseton, were found Wednesday in a car pulled from St. Mary's river at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

"I've always felt they must have driven into a river or something," Mrs. Cameron said. She said she phoned police at Sault Ste. Marie and "they were quite sure it was an accident. They didn't say anything about foul play.

"It isn't exactly confirmed yet but they said they'll know everything by tomorrow."

Beer Store Clerk Tackles Bandit, Is Fatally Shot

Toronto Police Staging Biggest Manhunt in Years

TORONTO (CP) — Three hundred and fifty policemen searched the streets and underworld haunts of Toronto today for a killer who shot a 23-year-old beer store clerk in a holdup attempt and fled without getting a cent.

The bandit fired four shots during the holdup Thursday night. Two of them struck Clerk Walter Hewlett as he lunged at him. Hewlett died shortly after reaching hospital.

Inspector of Detectives Archie McCathie said Hewlett "didn't have a chance to live the way those bullets were fired at him.

"We're conducting the biggest search in three years. Every man on the homicide squad is out as well as other detectives and 250 uniformed men."

JUST BEFORE CLOSING

Police said the gunman entered the Brewer's Warehouse store on St. Clair avenue in west - central Toronto just before the 8 p.m. closing time and pointed a gun at the four clerks, Adam McGarrity, Paul Bruak, David Cook and Hewlett.

McGarrity said at some right all three clerks' wicket and handed him a note which read: "This is a holdup."

"I asked him what he wanted, and he told me to start handing over the money — big bills first," said McGarrity.

McGarrity said he started to hand over the money when Hewlett raced from the rear of the store and lunged at the bandit.

Police said Hewlett was acting contrary to instructions not to resist armed bandits.

STARTED FIRING

The bandit turned swiftly and started firing. The first bullet struck Hewlett in the chest, but he grappled with the man. The second bullet hit him in the groin and he fell to the floor.

As he lay on the floor asking for a doctor, the gunman shoved his revolver into his pocket and fled from the store.

Police say he thinks the gunman fired at him. Two bullets struck the wall and the ceiling near him.

Police surrounded the area and searched every house when it was reported the bandit fled on foot. They stopped all cars in the district and searched the trunks.

Their search widened to underworld haunts when they found no trace of him in the district.

They described the man as about 35, five feet, seven inches tall, 160 to 190 pounds, with a moustache and wearing a grey suit.

Orillia Woman Held for Murder Of Her Husband

ORILLIA (CP) — A 39-year-old caretaker died to death Thursday night from a slashed throat and stab wounds in the chest. His wife was charged with the slaying.

Philip Brooks was bleeding profusely when discovered by neighbors who went to his apartment in downtown Orillia. He was dead on arrival at hospital.

Police later booked Helen Brooks 37, on a murder count. She was picked up in the couple's apartment.

Police declined to give any details of the stabbing.

FULL LOAD

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Police halted a car Thursday and arrested the occupants—16 of them. Actually there were seven adults in or on the car, an officer said, but two or three got away. The boys, all high school students, were turned over to school authorities.

Colombo Plan Being Extended To June of 1961

SINGAPORE (CP) — The Colombo plan to help develop backward Asian countries is being extended until June, 1961, it was announced here today at the end of the five-day conference by Colombo plan countries.

An official communique said that next year the member countries will spend more than the $782,000,000 spent on development this year.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, who is representing Canada at the conference, said Thursday that his government will ask Parliament to make a "significant" increase in contributions to the plan.

Today's report said: "While some countries have gone ahead developing small projects, others are only just surveying resources and deciding on projects and targets. This applies particularly to those who have had to face the additional problems of rehabilitating war-damaged facilities and to those where the internal security situation has been unfavorable."

HOPE FOR STABILITY

Next year's conference will be held in New Zealand, one of the donor countries aiding Asian development.

The conference ended amid expressions of hope for greater stability in the area as a result of promises from the United States and Canada of aid in nuclear development. Canada's will set up an atomic reactor in India and a "cobalt bomb" for cancer treatment in Burma.

The communique agreed with the Canadian and Japanese viewpoints, expressed here this week, that more private investment from abroad is necessary to speed up the development of the member nations.

The Colombo plan originally called for the aid to end in June, 1957. But the extension now for the program has been so successful that it is likely to be prolonged beyond 1961.

Queen in Unveiling Statue Says Father 'True and Trusted' Friend

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Queen today unveiled a memorial statue of her father, the late King George VI, and called him a man whom millions knew as a "true and trusted" friend.

The Queen asked of my father in personal sacrifice and endeavor, often in the face of illness; his courage in overcoming ill endeared him to everybody," said the Queen. Her voice faltered on last, however, difficult, and to the end he never failed in his duty to his people.

"Throughout all the strains of his public life he remained a man of warm affection and simplicity —a man who by the simple qualities of loyalty, devotion and service won for himself such a place in the affection of all of us that when he died millions mourned for him as a true and trusted friend."

The statue, set in a quiet garden overlooking The Mall near St. James's Palace, shows the King bareheaded in the informal, "undress" uniform of an admiral of the fleet, the simple costume of wartime days in which he is best remembered.

The bareheaded statue said William McMillan, 56-year - old sculptor, who spent more than two years creating the memorial.

The Queen fully during the simple ceremony of unveiling.

The monument is part of a larger scheme to build a central symbol of a £1,700,000 fund to be used, as Sir Winston Churchill said in 1952, "in support of causes which he (the King) cherished and for which he strove."

Two-thirds will be devoted to the King George VI memorial youth leaders. Five King George VI memorial hospitals will be established in Britain. Part is being spent on clubs for elderly people.

The Queen flanked by Princess Margaret and Prince Philip, unveiled a memorial to the King's father, the late King George V, and called him a man whose "simple qualities of loyalty, devotion and service won for himself such a place in the affection of all of us that when he died millions mourned for him as a true and trusted friend."

EISENHOWER'S GENEVA SPEECHES ARE PUBLISHED

Some Never Reported Included in Booklet

By WARREN ROGERS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower's peace talks with Russia were on record as State Secretary Dulles prepared today to take up where he left off at the Geneva Big Four "summit" conference.

They include Eisenhower's assurance to Russia that "under no circumstances is the United States over going to be a party to aggressive war"—action any nation.

An 88-page booklet of about 40,000 words, made public by the State Department today by the state department, includes formal statements made by Eisenhower and other heads of government at the July conference.

These statements already had been reported in substance. However, the record includes the texts of about half a dozen of Eisenhower's statements which he never made in Victoria. The public. Only previously published statements by the other principals were released.

DIRECTED AT ZHUKOV

At one point, the president directed his remarks especially at his old wartime comrade-in-arms, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, who was at Geneva as Russia's defence minister:

"I would particularly like my friend, Marshal Zhukov, to listen to what I have to say. I have known him for a long time and he knows that, speaking as soldier to soldier I have never uttered a single word that I did not believe to be the truth."

Eisenhower protected Russia's contention that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which forces he headed in 1951 as first supreme commander, was aggressive, aimed at the Soviet.

"I repeated that job because I believed it to be a true agency for peace," Eisenhower told Zhukov. "Personally I would be glad enough of war. . . ."

EISENHOWER INSISTENCE

The record reflects Eisenhower's insistence that he, Premier Bulganin, Prime Minister Eden and Premier Faure could only define the East-West issue, leaving it to their foreign ministers to seek solutions.

It is for this task that Dulles prepares today. The Big Four foreign ministers' session starts at 10:30 a.m. (EST) Monday. Dulles is stopping first at Rome for conferences with Italian government officials. He will fly from Paris for pre-Geneva talks with NATO, British and French leaders.

SOLDIERS ARRIVE

ROTTERDAM (Reuters)—A contingent of 1,000 soldiers arrived on the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, from Canada here early today on their way to Germany. They will reinforce the 2nd Battalion of the same regiment at Soest, Westphalia, Germany. The troopship Nieuw Amsterdam has aboard 639 officers and men of the 2nd Battalion due to arrive in Quebec Nov. 1.

Crucial Plebiscite Sunday Will Settle Fate of Saar

SAARBRUECKEN (AP) — Saarlanders are under new pressure from the French and West Germans to put themselves under European authority in voting this weekend.

The million-odd people of this rich coal and steel valley on the French-German border vote Sunday in a plebiscite on the French German accord of October, 1954, intended to settle the bitter contentions over the border territory's future.

The compact, part of the bargain for German rearmament in NATO, provides for the Saar a firm ensemble and relations unless with France, internal self-government and supervision of its foreign and relations by a high commissioner appointed by the seven - power Western European Union.

Pro-German parties in the Germanspeaking valley have campaigned bitterly against the proposed Europeanization as a trick. They want to return to the German fatherland. Once before, when Hitler was in power in Germany, 90 per cent of the Saar's voters decided in a plebiscite in 1935 to cast off a League of Nations trusteeship and go back to Germany.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Thursday night again urged the Saarlanders to vote yes next Sunday. Adenauer views the Saar agreement as a key piece in his policy of settling old scores with France for the sake of West European unity and defence.

In a message from his sickbed home, Adenauer said he was standing by his statement at a political rally recently urging acceptance of the Europeanization statute.

"I sincerely hope that the Saar population will take a politically wise decision," he said.

Opposition Socialists at Bonn, however, said Adenauer's support was a poor service to the German cause. They want the statute rejected.

The French cabinet also joined in the pressure for a "yes" vote by declaring that Saarlanders can not hope for union with Germany now if they reject the statute. The French said that if that happens, the Saar will continue as it is and there will be no new negotiations for a different arrangement. The Saar now is governed informally with its own premier, but France controls its economy and foreign relations. The present premier, Johannes Hoffmann of the Christian People's party, has worked in close harmony with

Lord Alexander Warns World Domination Still Red Aim

OTTAWA (CP) — Field Marshal Earl Alexander says he thinks "a Communist world society" is still the aim of the leaders of countries who are "afraid of the West."

"The rulers of Russia today have not weakened or deviated from the goal Lenin set for them 30 years ago to see a Communist world society some day somehow," he told a distinguished audience, including Prime Minister St. Laurent, Thursday night.

The former British defence minister — Canada's governor-general for the years—spoke at a dinner sponsored in his honor by the Ottawa branch of the English-Speaking Union. He and Lady Alexander who also spoke, are winding up a visit to Canada here.

"Personally I believe that the Russians are afraid of the West—afraid of a land attack. It is the central symbol of a £1,700,000 fund to be used, as Sir Winston Churchill said in 1952, "in support of causes which he (the King) cherished and for which he strove."

Two-thirds will be devoted to the King George VI memorial youth leaders. Five King George VI memorial hospitals will be established in Britain. Part is being spent on clubs for elderly people.

The Queen flanked by Princess Margaret and Prince Philip, unveiled a memorial to the King's father, the late King George V, and called him a man whose "simple qualities of loyalty, devotion and service won for himself such a place in the affection of all of us that when he died millions mourned for him as a true and trusted friend."

The statue, set in a quiet garden overlooking The Mall near St. James's Palace, shows the King bareheaded in the informal, "undress" uniform of an admiral of the fleet, the simple costume of

HOLDUP SLAYER STILL AT LARGE AT SAINT JOHN

Kills One, Wounds Another, Takes $6,000

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—Medical authorities disclosed today a slain ambulance - driver Albert Graves was stabbed 17 times but police kept mum on progress of their search for the blonde bandit who killed him for a $6,000 hospital payroll.

RCMP at Fredericton said they might have a statement later in the day on the bizarre holdup that ended with Graves' death on a lonely suburban road and the shooting of Donald Cunningham, 63, business manager of the Saint John Tuberculosis Hospital.

GRAVES' ARMS BITE

There was no hint of how close police were to catching the tall, thin gunman who slipped into the front seat of the ambulance, right behind Cunningham, as the latter returned from a downtown bank with the Thursday morning payroll.

Mrs. Cunningham said her husband tried desperately to "talk some sense" into the man after hearing an eerie 10-mile ride at gunpoint past unsuspecting traffic policemen to the isolated road on the city outskirts.

Cunningham said he and Graves, 40, were shot and dumped from the vehicle which police later found ditched in the woods.

But the city morgue, which discovered that Graves had been brutally hacked with a knife or similar instrument, said the driver's death he also had been shot.

Cunningham was shot in the neck from behind. His condition was favorable.

Cunningham identified the killer as a former hospital patient but he did not know his name.

He quoted the slain man's victims before he shot them:

"I've only got three months to live and I'm going to have a good time out of it."

TOOK THE AMBULANCE

Graves and Cunningham were shot in a hospital ambulance, about 10 minutes after the latter had dumped into a ditch. The killer then drove off in the vehicle, which police found later, abandoned in the city's east end. There was a bullet hole in the windshield and blood on the driver's seat.

The gunman took a satchel containing $6,000 in cash but missed an additional $6,000 in cash in bonds that Cunningham carried in his clothes.

Cunningham was in the habit of splitting the money up each time the Saar now is governed informally with its own premier, but France controls its economy and foreign relations. The present premier, Johannes Hoffmann of the Christian People's party, has Cunningham, in hospital with a bullet wound in his neck, said the gunman slid into the ambulance like a shadow. He said: "I saw a block away from a downtown bank. Downtown, he told me to drive out of town. He made them turn off the main highway and on a back road. Then he shot them.

"I felt the man beside me shift in his seat, he pushed me to one side and clambered into the back of the ambulance.

"The next thing I heard was what sounded like an explosion. He had shot me."

Holiday Opposes Postponing Debate Until After Geneva Meet

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Russia demanded today a full debate on disarmament in the UN assembly political committee in the Geneva spirit even though the Big Four foreign ministers.

Arkady A. Sobolev, permanent Soviet delegate to the UN, made the demand in the 12-nation disarmament commission.

He accused the commission of attempting to delay a report on disarmament because of its big nation sub-committee. Further delays would be harmful, he said.

"It has been alleged that discussion of disarmament here would interfere with or prevent discussion by the Big Four ministers," Sobolev said. "But disarmament was a major topic of all the general policy statements in the assembly. Every member of the United Nations has the right to debate this subject."

SESSIONS RECESSED

The Big Four foreign ministers meet at Geneva Oct. 27.

The disarmament commission sub-committee — composed of Canada, Britain, the United States, France and the Soviet Union — recessed sessions here Oct. 7. They have conducted over-all disarmament plans especially on U.S. insistence that President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan be adopted as a prelude to disarmament.

Under that plan, the United States and the Soviet Union would exchange aerial reconnaissance and defence blue prints to prevent surprise attack.

Sobolev told the commission — composed of the 11 Security Council members and Canada — that everybodys agrees on the necessity of measures to avert surprise attack.

Closeness of agreement on the necessity of reducing armed forces and the necessity of continuing inspection, make it desirable to open the disarmament debate here, Sobolev said. He said there now is a definite possibility of reaching agreement.

Sobolev's statement unveiled some of the mystery behind his request last week for an urgent meeting of the commission.

A United States spokesman said Russia's request for the meeting today came as a surprise, since it had been generally understood that the disarmament debate in the UN until the foreign ministers had had a chance to discuss the issue at their meeting beginning Oct. 27 in Geneva.

Soviet delegate Arkady Sobolev's call for the commission meeting today caused speculation that Russians might unveil some new arms plan calculated to steal the show from President Eisenhower's secret inspection plan.

Princess and Townsend Gay at Party; Just What Were They Celebrating?

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend enjoyed themselves at a gay, informal dinner party which had all the earmarks of a celebration. The question: "Did they announce their engagement?" quickly raced through the city.

To Clarence House no answer this morning, just mild circumstantial evidence that the occasion was somewhat special.

The gathering took place in the tiny, whitewashed London cottage of the Princess' cousin, Mrs. John Dugdale. The two principals arrived separately just before 7 p.m. Townsend was the last guest to arrive happy—more than six hours later —shortly after 1 a. m.

Also present—as is part of the party was unmistakably one of 10 good cheer.

Curious bystanders outside the cottage at No. 49 Kinnerton Street, a quaint mews in the Knightsbridge district, heard frequent bursts of merry laughter through the brightly lighted windows.

In addition to Margaret and Townsend, those present included Mr. and Mrs. Wills, their 18-year-old son Andrew, Margaret's lady-in-waiting, Miss Irah Peake, and at least two unidentified guests.

Margaret's car arrived at 10:40 to take her home, but she stayed on. Finally she came out at 1:10, a gay smile and lovely in a green silk dress and grey fur. A detective tucked her in and she was driven to Clarence House, her London residence.

Townsend followed five minutes later. A friend drove him to the airport, a flat where he is living while on leave from his post of air attache in Brussels. The chauffeur-driven car pulled away to the uniformed policeman outside the building as the latter opened the door and went in.

Mrs. Wills, whose mother, Lady Cunliffe-Owen, is a sister of Queen Mother Elizabeth, has been acting as hostess and chaperone for Margaret and Townsend almost constantly since he arrived in London on Oct. 12.

The Daily Sketch today presents in a front-page story what it describes as "the facts" of the matter as it now stands:

If Christmas Falls on Sunday, Monday Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—Monday, Dec. 26, will be a statutory holiday this year but not because it is Boxing Day, an official of the State Secretary's Department said today.

The reason December 26 will be a holiday is that federal legislation provides that when Christmas falls on a Sunday the following day is a holiday.

The official said there is no federal statute designating Boxing Day a national holiday.

A municipality this year, he said, also could declare Tuesday to be Boxing Day and observe it as a holiday. It was a matter for each municipality to decide.

Poppy Committee Completes Plan For Anniversary

The Belleville Poppy committee held a campaign meeting last night in the Canadian Legion Hall. Representatives from the Canadian Legion, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, their Ladies Auxiliaries, the RCAF Association, and the Red Cross were in attendance with committee chairman Les Digby presiding.

It was reported that the sale of poppy wreaths had commenced and orders were coming in well. Several of the wreaths that had been ordered had been received by the Poppy committee and it was stated that these would be delivered during the week with the remainder being delivered as and when they were received from Toronto.

Committee chairmen for wreath sales who reported on progress to date were: Everett Liddle, clubs, organizations and manufacturers; Roy Madden, Canadian Legion canvass territory; Cec. Chapman, Army, Navy and Air Force canvass canvass territory; and Bill Bailey, rural areas. Canvassers were asked to try and cover the whole of their territory by the end of the week to give ample time for orders to be filled from Toronto.

TREASURER REPORTS

Poppy Fund treasurer Henry Drury reported that since January 1955 to date $3,941.23 had been spent by the Poppy committee on welfare assistance to needy veterans and their dependents. Of this $2,231.53 had been spent on fuel, $708.10 on fuel, $209.72 on clothing, $532.58 on medical help, $124.- 11 on help to transients and the remainder on miscellaneous items of assistance.

Poppy street sales are scheduled to take place on Friday, November 4th and to close on November 5th, with the poppy headquarters being in the armouries. Les Digby, chairman of the street sales committee, reported that the committee had all plans well in hand. He said that last year a record for sale of poppies was established and it was hoped that this year would see this record broken.

All organizations represented were asked to ensure that a good turn out of members would be on hand for the street sales and the good citizens were asked to wear their poppy proudly in observance of this solemn act of remembrance for the many of Canada's finest sons who made the supreme sacrifice in two world wars.

Toronto Man Killed in Crash Near Kaladar

Henry Oliver Simola, 26, of 81 Bedford Terrace, Toronto, was instantly killed Thursday night in a crash on No. 7 Highway, five miles east of Kaladar involving five vehicles.

The chain reaction smash, which occurred on a rain soaked, slippery highway was touched off by a minor two-car accident which partially blocked the roadway.

A west-bound transport was forced to halt and Simola's car piled into the rear of the stopped transport. Another car then smashed into Simola's car rolling it into the ditch. Simola's car was a complete wreck. The dead man was alone in his vehicle. No other person involved in the highway crash was injured.

Simola was said to be a former student at Queen's University and played on the Tri-Color football team.

Coroner Dr. C. J. Whytock of Sharbot Lake, attended at the scene of the accident. Provincial Constable Wallace Martin of Sharbot Lake, investigated, assisted by Constables H. L. Adams and B. Fitzsimmons.

Officials Elated With Success Of Getting Eskimos To Work on Civilian Jobs

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Hinda that since held a harpoon now clench an air hammer. Bodies once bent over the bloody carcass of a seal now strain over a carpenter's workbench. Once-primitive people now are working in a white man's world.

A group of Eskimos are taking part in an experiment being conducted by the federal government's northern affairs department at this military base, 610 miles north of Winnipeg.

Officials here are elated with its success so far.

Andrew Spy, technical officer in the works department, said the natives did "very good" work.

HIGHLY ADAPTABLE

"They are very adaptable to any trade," he said.

Mr. Spy said of the recent difficulty army mechanics had in repairing an outboard motor. The mechanics worked on the machine for nearly 10 hours without success.

"Finally, one of the Eskimos, Siddigit, came and in an hour and a half he had the thing going" said Mr. Spy.

Seven Eskimo families, as well as two young bachelors, were brought to Fort Churchill from Fort Chimo, a wartime U.S. military base on the east coast of Hudson Bay. Most of the men left their hunting and fishing to work at the American base during the war and were reluctant to return to their way of life after the war.

The men arrived here last year. They were joined by their families this summer.

LANGUAGE PROBLEM

If their arrival was confusing to the Eskimos it was even more so for camp officials. The natives all bore English names, chosen in some of Hudson Bay Company's factors and arctic retainers, but most of them Eskimo men can speak English.

But in a short time the families of Charlie Gordon, Andrew Judas, Matthew Adams, Tommy Adams, Willie Adams, Silas Gordon and Edward Berthie were sorted out.

Already on the camp staff were several other Eskimos, among them three from Chesterfield inlet, the Too Tiddigik and Shuzo. These three had already proven their worth. Too Too is a skilled carpenter, Kidlapik runs a hydraulic drill and Shammee is a tile layer. During the last winter's army exercise, Bulldog II, the three natives acted as scouts.

After work and on Sundays this last summer the three harpooned 150 white whales in the Churchill river mouth, which they sold to a whaling factory at $1 a foot.

The Fort Chimo natives, temporarily quartered in abandoned construction huts outside the camp area, were given instruction by camp engineers under Major Lloyd Macdonald.

They went on staff as laborers but their apprenticeship was quickly over. Because of their inborn mechanical ability, they were doing as good, if not better, a job as their white fellow workers.

Charlie and Silas Gordon and Matthew Adams are employed as tile layers. Jacob Gordon is a carpenter, Tommy Adams a painter, Willie Adams an electrician and Edward Berthie a tinsmith. However, their foremen are quick to use their other abilities on other jobs.

"There is absolutely no segregation," said Bill Kerr, northern affairs agent. "They are allowed to participate fully in camp life."

The natives are paid a regular wage, averaging $1.35 an hour for an eight-hour day, six-day week with time and a half for overtime.

CAREFUL WITH MONEY

Mr. Spy said the Eskimos are "very cautious in handling their money."

"They know the value of a buck," he said.

The natives are also paying the price of carrying a living in the white men's world. Income tax and unemployment insurance are deducted from their pay cheques and they must pay for medical services at the camp hospital.

Their take-home pay averages about $50 a week.

Edward Berthie, one Eskimo who speaks English fluently, said he gets as much as a tinsmith "just fine."

"My family like it here and I think we will stay. The children are excited about school and come running home every day with things to show and tell us."

Bill Beswetchick, labor foreman in charge of the Eskimos, said the natives were worth "ten of some of the men we have around here."

To prove it the natives' salaries were raised from $1.10 to $1.35 an hour.

Mrs. Spy said the natives had only one complaint.

"They are most unhappy during the summer months," she said. "They don't like the heat."

All Seeing Is In Brain And Must Be Learned

"The idea that the eye is like a camera has been outmoded for a quarter of a century, yet it is repeated and even taught today," So stated Dr. A. M. Skeffington, author and Director of Education for the Optometric Extension Program, in opening the annual Graduate Seminar for Ontario at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto today.

"No eye ever took a picture. There is no screen in the back of the head, nor is there a roll of film in the eye," said Dr. Skeffington. "Actually, all seeing is in the brain and must be learned. The new-born infant with eyes first opened, starts to learn to see and he continues to learn vision long after he is in school. Even sculpt (clarity of vision) is learned," continued Dr. Skeffington, "and the child does not have the acuity possessed by an older person. But acuity is only the beginning. Eyes are not the trigger, so to speak. Vision actually is mental and involves the whole experience of the organism."

In proceeding on the theme of this year's Seminar, "Visual Care Throughout Life," Dr. Skeffington went on to point out that the visual problem is not an eye problem, and healthy eyes do not necessarily prove the presence of a healthy visual function.

Chairman of the Seminar is Sydney C. Dann, superintendent of this city and director of the Optometric Extension Program for the Province of Ontario.

Among those in attendance are optometrists J. A. McGee and G. S. Wonnacott of Belleville and G. A. Powers of Picton.

Three Belleville Youths Held In Brockville

Three Belleville youths, all about 18-years of age, have been arrested by Brockville police in connection with a break-in at a dry cleaning establishment in that city last night, which saw a small floor safe stolen.

The youths are: Reginald Bourette, Bill Keegan and Bob Cruji, all of that city.

Brockville police reported they had arrested the trio near the city limits and a floor safe in the car. Attempts had been made to open the safe.

British Police Use Tear Gas To Break Riot

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — British police today fired tear-gas bombs to break up a demonstration by Greek-Cypriot students parading on the 24th anniversary of Greece's entry into the Greek movement.

The new violence followed a day of bombings and terrorists attacks by members of the Greek-Cypriot underground, which vows to put an end to British rule of the Mediterranean colony.

It came after the island's new governor, Field Marshal Sir John Harding, commandered six mountain resort hotels for the army and took over hospitals in the troubled port city of Limassol.

Thursday night in Famagusta, terrorists ambushed an RAF officer, wounding him seriously.

Harding declared himself "particularly incensed by the dastardly attack." He told reporters that he will not tolerate any "insults to British forces" here. Famagusta streets were deserted this morning as troops manned machine-gun posts to enforce a daytime curfew there.

McCOT. — In loving memory of our dear husband Allan, and wife Essi and daughter.
Today recalls and memories
Of dear ones gone to rest.
The ones who think of them today
Are the ones who loved them best.
—Ever remembered by wife Laura and daughters Ruta and Sylvia.

RUSHLOW. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Ellen Rushlow, who passed away on October 20th, 1949.
God knows how much I miss her,
Her loving memory fonder
To the spot where she is laid.
—Sadly missed by daughter Margaret, son-in-law Gerald, grandson Francis and husband John.

RUSHLOW. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Ellen Rushlow, who passed away on October 20th, 1949.
We think of her in silence,
Her name we oft recall;
There is nothing left to recall
But her picture on the wall.
—Sadly missed by son Bill, daughter-in-law and family Sharon, Elly and Mildred.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my relatives, friends and neighbors for flowers, cards and other gifts sent me during my stay in the Belleville General Hospital, and also a special thank you to the nurses who were so kind to me.

Israel Demands Security Moves

JERUSALEM (AP) — Mounting demands for security measures are being voiced in Israel by the prospect that an Egyptian arsenal strengthened from behind the Iron Curtain may soon overshadow the Middle East.

Premier Moshe Sharett Thursday night said Israel is entitled to a security guarantee from the United States, and that the matter should be given urgent attention in Washington.

Perez Bernstein, former trade minister and a member of the General Zionist party, in an article in the Tel Aviv daily Haboker urges a "preventive war" against Egypt before the Arab neighbor acquires arms superiority.

Bernstein says he would not advocate "this dangerous measure" if he were not convinced that an Arab war for the purpose of "wiping the Israeli state from the map" is likely.

All Restrictions On Married Women Removed

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has removed all restrictions on employment and promotion of married women in the federal civil service, State Secretary Pinard announced today. The new policy goes into effect Nov. 1.

Restrictions on the employment of married women who do not have to support themselves date back to the First World War. Since then there has been some easement in recent years.

Another cause to disappear is the one which requires women to permanent resign to resign when they marry.

The civil service commission said the policy change is expected to aid recruiting of opening up promotion opportunities for married women and to make the public service more efficient.

The new policy does not affect divorced women and married or widowed women who are self - supporting. They have always been treated as single women and have been able to compete on the same basis as anyone else.

St. Lawrence Bridge Costs To Be Divided

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and American seaway authorities Thursday agreed on principles to govern the division of cost and responsibility for new bridges and roadways necessitated by St. Lawrence seaway construction near Cornwall, Ont.

The one-day meeting discussed problems arising from the demantling of the South Channel bridge over the St. Lawrence river in the International rapids section near Cornwall and Massena, N.Y. The bridge, which now carries both the railway for the New York Central Railway and the highway bridge, must be removed to provide headroom for shipping in the new seaway channel along the south side of Cornwall island.

Taking part in the discussions were Lionel Chevrier, president of Canada's Seaway Authority, and Leslie C. Castle, administrator for the United States Seaway Development Corporation, and their engineers.

Man Acquitted Of Manslaughter In Fatal Shooting

TORONTO (CP) — Paola Violi was acquitted of manslaughter Thursday in the fatal shooting of Natale Brigante May 24.

Violi was arrested after Brigante's body was found in an east-end service station lot.

Violi was arrested in Welland, after he entered a hospital with knife wounds in the chest.

The jury took 75 minutes to acquit Violi.

Defence counsel Arthur Martin said in a summary to the jury that there was more reason to suspect Brigante's roommate — a crown witness during the four-day trial. Mr. Martin termed the evidence of the roommate, Rocco Scopelletti, a "ridiculous story."

Scopelletti had testified he had followed Brigante the night of the shooting but had lost him. Three witnesses to the shooting were unable to identify Violi as the person who shot Brigante.

Hart House Plans Sunday Concerts Despite Alliance

TORONTO (CP)—Music lovers at the University of Toronto decided Thursday night that the Lord's Day Act and the Lord's Day Alliance notwithstanding, they're going to have music on Sunday.

A committee of the Hart House Orchestra and Glee Club has decided after a closed meeting to go ahead with its proposed series of Sunday concerts. The association recently cancelled the concerts because of objections from the alliance that they might be breaking the Lord's Day Act by staging them.

In a statement, the committee said: "The purpose of the concerts is to encourage interest in and knowledge of music on the campus as a contribution to the cultural life of the university."

ENTITLED TO ATTEND

Membership in the organization entitles the holder to attend concerts, lectures and rehearsals. Only members may attend.

Rev. A. S. McGrath, secretary of the alliance, said the alliance has no power to prevent concerts or "things of that kind any more than has any other individual. And we have never claimed to have such power."

"If admission is not charged for the Sunday entertainments, or if it is confined to members of the association with it year-round program it is considered that they might be within their legal right in holding the performance."

BIRTH RATE HIGHER

TORONTO (CP)—Births outnumbered deaths by more than three to one in Ontario last month, according to figures released Thursday by the provincial secretary's department. There were 11,312 births and 3,38 deaths registered in the province in September.

Three Disguised As Members Of Cult Killed

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — A 19-year-old British intelligence officer and three Africans, all disguised as members of the anti-white Mau Mau terror cult, were shot to death Thursday by African policemen who mistook them for real terrorists.

The officer, Donald Bellingham, disguised himself as a terrorist and set off Wednesday night with four Africans to track down a Mau Mau gang which raided a farm 60 miles north of here.

Unknown to him, six African policemen were still at the raided farm, and Thursday afternoon a farm laborer told the policemen he had seen some terrorists, they set out after them.

The four, disguised Bellingham's party, the police opened fire, Bellingham and three of his men were killed instantly.

Clue Worthless

BRANTFORD (CP)—One of the leads which police were following in their investigation of the disappearance of a young mother was checked down Thursday but led nowhere.

The search for a Brantford man had told of seeing a man in a black sedan with two young girls outside Mrs. Phyllis Malek's home in Burford township while it was burning on Oct. 8. Since the fire there has been no trace of Mrs. Malek or her two young daughters.

Police said Thursday night they had found the man who was in the sedan. They said he was a resident of the same district and the two girls in the car were his daughters.

Seven Persons Are Questioned In Boy's Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven persons, one of them a California girl, were questioned today as police sought to learn who beat and strangled three boys and dumped their nude bodies in a forest preserve.

Four men were seized Thursday night when they visited undertaking rooms where bodies of two victims, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton, 11, lay on view in their coffins.

Funeral services for the third slain boy, Robert Peterson, 14, were held Thursday.

Despite intensive police work, the mystery of how and why the boys met death, apparently late Sunday night, remained unanswered.

Four of those in custody for questioning were among some 5,000 persons who visited the Schuessler boys' wake. The men said they did not know the youngsters, but came to the undertaker's to say prayers for them.

USE LIE DETECTORS

Sheriff Joseph Lohman said a lie detector test would be given to Edward Raiffes, a 47-year-old unemployed father of nine who told of sleeping Monday night, along with his dead mute brother, in the wooded area where the victims' bodies were found Tuesday afternoon.

Lohman said both brothers denied knowing anything about the murders and said they had not seen the victims either Monday night or when they left the woods Tuesday morning.

A girl who gave her name as Gloria Vasquez was picked up without charge at Niagara Falls, after she went to a priest to confess an automobile theft. Sheriff James Hixon said she told of being in Chicago last weekend and that she had seen the "fellows war" in the Chicago slaying.

Elderly Couple Of Brockville Killed in Crash

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Two elderly Brockville residents were killed Thursday in a head-on collision between their light English car and a produce firm truck on No. 2 highway 11 miles west of here.

The dead: John Thompson Reid, retired army officer, and his wife, Beatrice. Mr. Reid was about 70; his wife was in her 60s.

Police said the truck was driven by Carl Eckland of Brockville.

Senator Lehman Backs Stevenson

NEW YORK (AP) — Adlai Stevenson made it virtually clear Thursday that he will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I'm not counting on the New York delegation at all," he told reporters. They took this as a plain indication he would be in the race.

While this implied he expected Governor Averell Harriman to be a rival candidate, at least in a favorite-son capacity, Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N.Y.) came out a few hours later with a pledge of support to Stevenson.

This presaged a split in the New York delegation.

Big Flock of Geese

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) A flock of Canada geese flew over this city for 5½ hours Thursday night.

An observer at the United States weather bureau at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., said he thought a large flock was flying in concentric circles over the area in search of Munuscong lake, a favorite resting place 50 miles southeast of here.

INFORMATION PLEASE!

The city council has already decided that a city manager should not be hired.

It may well be that the ratepayers of Belleville do not approve this decision. Nobody knows.

The council is now trying to decide who should fill the position it has already decided to create.

In reaching this decision it is experiencing difficulties. One of these was mentioned by Ald. Jamie Forrester on Monday evening. She wanted to know what the council expected of a city manager. It may strike some people that this point might well have been decided before the council made up its mind as to whether it wanted a city manager at all. Be that as it may, it seems fairly obvious that all members of council ought to know what council is looking for before it selects the person whose qualifications best fit this yardstick.

Ald. Forrester was critical of the fact that the duties of a city manager had not been defined when applications for the position were sought. Ald. Frank Grandame said he had asked Mayor John Bobb why the duties had not been defined and had been told that it would be better to have the applicants tell the committee what the duties of a city manager were, since in this way the committee could tell what the applicant knew of the job. In other words, the applicant would be taking an examination before the committee. Examinations, written or oral, are excellent ways of deciding if a person knows about anything. These is just one little point. The examiner has to know the right answer, otherwise he cannot decide when the candidate's answer is right and when it is wrong.

Did the examiners, the members of the committee, all know the right answers? And, if they all knew what they knew the right answers, did they agree on what these answers should be? Such an agreement should not be merely "in principle," but a specific understanding of details, enough for understanding to be expressed by all in the same word and phrase. Such a detailed agreement on what is desired of a city manager would be impossible to reach without thorough study and careful preparation of a document defining the duties of a city manager. So, if the duties of a city manager were not defined to the applicants, because the committee was wanted to take an examination on the duties of the post, these duties would have to be very carefully defined by the committee, before it was qualified to examine the applicants.

Did the committee so define the duties for the benefit of itself? If it did not, is it not time it did so? If it did, is it not time that the committee let all those colleagues in council who were not members of the committee in on the secret? Is it not perhaps time that ratepayers were given this infogmation, too? After all, as Mayor Bobb observed, this is a democratic country and we want to keep it that way. And there is an election coming up in six weeks' time.

WORKING HOLIDAYS

Want to build a hydro-electric plant in Yugoslavia, repair a church temple in India or a Mohammedan mosque in Egypt, build a Protestant church in Vienna, a Presbyterian church in Alaska, or a monastery in Germany, repair a convent in Cyprus or build ships in Spain?

All these projects are undertaken by volunteer workers during the past summer.

They were part of the "holiday-with-work" program organized by UNESCO's Service Civil International, Voluntary Work Camps. All told, work camps were set up by 125 organizations in 41 different countries. Hundreds of thousands of young men and women from different countries and with widely varying social backgrounds participated in these projects and learned to work and live together.

"Utopian dreamers" remarks that a "holiday" in one of these camps would not appeal to everyone, for it involves work, "and often mainly work." The camps do, however, appeal to more and more people every year.

The idea appears to be an excellent one for promoting wider understanding between people from different countries and, moreover, among those men and women whose willingness to work and curiosity about the world in which they live is most likely to make them leaders in their own lands.

Not all of the volunteers work in camps outside their own countries. That, however, does not deprive the scheme of all its merit. If there were, at such a camp, just one or two workers from other lands, much could still be accomplished in promoting international understanding.

GRAHAM'S "INTEREST RATE"

In a four-week religious revival campaign in Toronto's Coliseum, evangelist Billy Graham was heard by 347,200 persons of whom 7,288 stood out publicly as converts.

The fact that 2.1 per cent of Graham's listeners were converted is not a bad showing, considering that people with savings accounts are satisfied with a 1.5 per cent return on their money. What is surprising is that in Toronto the Good Shame was only 7,288 people out of 347,200 who felt that they could, or should, be better.

Back To the City

We haul the boat up. We are going soon,
And take a last, long look from the cliff water,
Where the seas explode, and the gulls call.
Shall go by day, remembering all
The power of the hunter's moon,
So confident of pattern, snake with claws
To winter crevice in the rocks. The moon
We met when it was young, during our stroll,
Frantically searching for its lost hole;
Now rests its tiny paws.
When we return, what will the spring have brought?
A new-cut beach? A leopard-yellow ledge
Of sand? Or, by blades of sedge
Pebble-scale eggs, with privilege
To look but betray nought
Some things we count on—that the swallows will build back—and
With meadow plaks as it has done before;
Small green things for a forgotten floor,
The shadbush open a forgotten door,
And nothing be quite the same.

Cough's Speed Is Determined

(Detroit Free Press)

Scientists have gone to considerable trouble to measure the air speed of the human cough.

Using a mix of elaborate electronic instruments, they have determined that the cough originates at a supersonic speed in the wind pipe, is slowed to hurricane force by the time it reaches the mouth at a speed of only 11 miles an hour.

We have no quarrel with this achievement, knowing that pure science, or "knowledge for knowledge's sake," often pays off in unexpected, practical dividends.

But now that they've finished with this, we hope science will put a similar effort into determining why the cough begins to pick up that supersonic speed just when the symphony is playing its most dulcet passage or the hero and heroine declare that strong and silent final clinch.

First Modern Police Chief Was Once Galley Slave

(By James M. Auer in the Milwaukee Journal)

If you've ever wondered who gave early 19th century writers the idea of building suspense tales around the figure of a virtually indestructible sleuth, it's time you were introduced to Eugene-Francois Vidocq, a real-life 19th French galley slave who rose to become chief of the first centralized police force in modern Europe.

This flamboyant genius—author, philanthropist, undercover agent, actor, lover and inventor—originated the detective bureau as well as we know it today. His exploits as Guy de Maupassant, Honoré de Balzac and Willkie Collins. It was he who implanted the image of the detective as a popular hero in the public imagination.

Yet the personality and achievements of this man have been almost forgotten in the 80 years since his death. In order to restore to Vidocq a measure of the glory that once was his, Philip John Stead has retold the story of his life in a new biography, "The Life of Vidocq—Ficarocon of Crime" (Roy Publishers).

The foremost detective of his generation was born July 23, 1775, in Arras, France. As a youth he was headstrong and irresponsible. At 14 he killed his fencing instructor in a duel. At 15, following an argument with a tutor, he ran away from home and emigrate to the new world. He was allowed by his parents to join the regular army. And at 18, as the result of violent behavior, Vidocq was jailed and sentenced to three months in prison in Lille.

In prison Vidocq unwisely let some friends use his first while they drew up what he said was a petition for the release of a peasant unjustly convicted of murder. Instead—as he discovered too late—they were manufacturing a set of forged release papers. When the authorities found out about the role the unsuspecting Vidocq had played in the affair, they brought him to trial and he was sentenced to 8 years in the galleys.

But Vidocq had no intention of remaining a galley slave. He repeatedly tried to escape—disguised as a sailor, as a surgeon, even as a woman. Each time he was recaptured. Finally, after diving from a window of the prison at Douai into the river Scalpe, he made his way to Paris, where he established himself as a merchant-tailor.

Eight months had passed. It seemed he had managed to elude the police at last. Then, by chance, he was recognized by group of former galley slaves who were trying to denounce him to the authorities unless he bribed them.

Vidocq was certain that the blackmailers would never relax their grip on him once they had involved him in their robberies. In desperation he went to M. Henry, chief of the criminal department of the Paris police, and offered to tell him all he knew about the thriving friends in return for the promise that he would not be sent back to the galleys.

At first Henry refused to accept the proposition. Then, when Vidocq was betrayed to the police by his former friends, the Chevaliers, and imprisoned again, Henry decided to put him to use.

For the next 11 months Vidocq operated as a police spy within the walls of the prison at La Force, supplying information that resulted in the apprehension of dozens of escaped convicts. At length Henry was convinced that Vidocq would be of even greater usefulness outside the prison. He was released May. 21, 1811, and—though still technically in custody of the police—began his career of crime against the thieves of Paris.

Vidocq's initial crime-busting success as a detective. Drawing upon his intimate Knowledge of the habits and ways of the criminal classes, he solved cases that had baffled the best police minds. Often, disguised as a thief, he pretended to take part in a burglary, only to betray his fellow conspirators as soon as the police had sufficient evidence against them.

The case with which he altered his appearance was legendary. Once according to a popular anecdote, he posed as the King of France in the garb of an elderly lady of high fashion, and by the impersonation that the king summoned the rest of the royal family to his aid.

Because his superiors could at first hardly believe that he was dead in the galleys, Vidocq was given a free hand. Even after his appearance he waited for several hours before the police were sure that he was known to be hiding. Finally, rather than freeze to death, he dug a trench in a manure dunghill and crawled in.

The memoirist odor revived him," his biographer notes, "and he kept tolerably warm."

Place for Men In Nursing

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

A rather unique situation has arisen in the nursing field. Hospital training school for nurses this season with the enrolling among the nursing students of a young male. This is the first time in about 30 years of the training school that such a male has decided to train for the nursing profession.

Perhaps there is a wonder that more men don't turn to this type of work, especially with the present but "nisified"—it needs a keen mind and a good back—needed by women in nursing often work much harder than do men in many fields. Then, too, a young man taking up nursing should be considered no more of a sissy than a man studying stenography or teaching school.

While it may seem a bit unusual in this part of the country for young men to enter the nursing, in eastern Canada, down in the maritime provinces there are a few boys on leaving high school enroll as student nurses. They report that the work in their profession and some have even saved money from their salaries while they were study in medicine, eventually graduating as registered nurses.

If a young man has a yen to help the sick, it is a commendable thing that he should take up a nursing profession. With such a shortage of nurses prevailing all across the country as is the situation today, it is only unfortunate that more young men wouldn't turn their talents in this direction. There must be a great need for male nurses—and say young men have enough on the ball there is or less feminine field, should be congratulated at pursuing such a worthy career.

Prophecies Fulfilled

(Sherbrooke Record)

"It seems only yesterday that we used to read those magazine pieces predicting a fantastic future where commonplaces, like the cover over night to Europe and when air-planes would be the usual call of distant place names: "London . . . Rome . . . Cairo".

Now these things are not merely commonplace, they are becoming staggering in their proportions.

World-wide air traffic today is 36 times greater than it was only days. The governments and airlines of 60 lands have built a global air transport system embracing 35,000 cities on every continent.

Varicose Veins

Varicose veins in the spermatic cord constitute what is called varicocele. Varicose veins inside or outside the rectal orifice constitute what is called hemorrhoids (piles). Everything said above about posture and exercise applies to these conditions as well as to dilated veins in the legs.

The great doctrines of yesteryear philosophized about the state of the "vital rubber"—the elasticity of blood vessels. For instance Dr. Osler said, in his famous Practice, that the onset of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) depends primarily upon the quality of the arterial tissue (vital rubber) which the individual has inherited, and secondly upon the amount of wear and tear to which he has subjected it. This is a neat way to blame grandfather, but it doesn't mean so much when we tally up the blood qualities we inherited, if any. It is well to remember that most of us have all his contemporaries were the undisputed masters of examination. This explains why "gout" was so common in the 19th century and is so rare today.

When veins anywhere in the body are swollen, tortuous and enlarged they are called varicose veins. The superficial veins of the legs are most frequently varicose, particularly in women, more particularly pregnant women and most particularly women who sit or stand many hours daily without an exercise break at two or 2 1-2 hour intervals.

Exercise breaks! Come, come now, you know what a coffee break is, don't you? And even if you never indulge in it you must know what exercise is. A break means a mid-forenoon, noon, and/or mid afternoon ten minutes when you get off your steel chair or saw from the table, bench or counter and get your heels up higher than your head, in one way or another. Preferably standing on your head, high kicking, lying on your shoulders and riding an imaginary bicycle upside down, doing forward rolls, or if you are feeble, just lying on your back with your feet on the mantel. If there's no mantel within reach prop 'em on the nearest desk, bookcase, file cabinet or whatnot. Only so you keep them elevated for at least three minutes.

Better than any of these ways of taking a load off your feet is the "shoulder stand." Lie on your back and raise your legs straight up in the air, supporting them with your hands on your hips. Then, when you have got your feet as high as you can get them, lower your body backward from the hips, supporting it with your hands, until your shoulders are resting on the floor. Then bring your feet down behind your head and rest them on the floor. Keep your body straight, with your weight on your shoulders. Hold this position for a minute or two. Then roll forward and sit up.

Another good exercise is to lie on your back and bring your knees up to your chest, clasping your hands around them. Then roll back and forth, massaging your back.

Strength for the Day

WE CAN'T TAKE IT

There is a passage in the 20th chapter of Acts which, in spite of its tragic character, has always appeared to me to have a touch of divine humor in it. It is the story of the young man, Eutychus, who sat at the window of a third story room while Paul was preaching. And as Paul prolonged his speech until midnight, and as the Bible relates, "discovered yet longer" the boy fell asleep, and finally fell out of the window. "And Paul went down and fell on him, and embracing him, said, Trouble not yourselves; for his life is in him." And of course the boy was wholly restored. Then Paul went on preaching until break of day.

Why is it that we become restive over sermons when they are more than twenty minutes in length? Some of the most eloquence is less than an hour and a half; and some are longer than that. We can't proof or disprove bald double header. Some people balance them on a night shift in the morning. But if a sermon is 25 or 30 minutes long, there is always some one who complains that such a thing produces gray hair and arthritis.

There is something in us which renders argument reformation and inrobels against reformation and inspiration. We can stand twenty minutes, apparently, but no more than twenty-five. We can't stand to be bored if required to contemplate ourselves for more than twenty minutes.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Why do we always build our homes facing onto the street? What is the matter with having the back of the house on the street, with the garage, and the back door, handy for the grocer and the butcher, facing where they belong?

The world is growing more and more functional, more practical, more technological. Streets are growing wider and more dangerous to look upon, with their hustling traffic, their parked cars, trucks, delivery wagons. The time has come when we must admit that the back of the house is a far more attractive thing to be than the front. Most of us have gardens. In the new bungalow housing suburbs, where do you find most of the residents? Out in their back yards, where there are low picket fences, and where there is a sort of real community park in every block.

Indeed, some of the most bungalow-like and very attractively designed backs than fronts. The fences towards crescents are the best already begun, eh?

The world is dynamic, is not modern. In all the old countries, block after block of city and town houses have their backs facing to the eye of the passerby except tall fences and tall gates, which there are gates for admission. Enter one of these gates, and you find yourself in a courtyard, which is the back of the house to you. But there is a side gate, and a back gate, which, with its terraces and verandahs, faces back and is private. There is privacy there, and a world apart.

The great majority of the men in the services of Canada and the United States saw many months in such dwellings during the war. Some of the young men must have reacted to the idea. How long will it be before they start a new movement and cease putting a pretty front on the street where nobody looks?

'Miss Supertest' Seeks Record, Bay to Be Scene of Mile Trials

PICTON — Picton Bay will be the scene of mile trials for a new Canadian record for unlimited class boats on Friday, Oct. 28, when "Miss Supertest" will be brought to Picton from London, Ont., next Tuesday to prepare for the tests. Prince Edward Yacht Club is making arrangements under the direction of Commodore Jack Cole.

Three years ago, Jim Thompson, assistant secretary of Supertest Petroleum Corp., and his father, J. Gordon Thompson, chairman of the Board, made up their minds they would like to endeavor to develop a Canadian challenger for the Harmsworth Trophy which is emblematic of world's top honors in speedboats.

They purchased Harold Wilson's "Miss Canada" which tried unsuccessfully to win the trophy, including trials on Picton Bay. As a result of experience with that craft their latest "Miss Supertest" a year ago.

GOOD TEAM WORKING

Behind the effort to make a winner out of "Miss Supertest" is a team, thinking and working to create a challenger of the highest order. Directing operations is Jim Thompson with his father sitting in as time permits. Other members of the team are chief engineer and sportsman, Bruce Wells, head of Wells Foundry Ltd. in London, and Bill Braden, Assistant General Manager of Hamilton Street Railway Co. Canada's only Unlimited Class driver. Braden, who has raced in regattas at Picton, handles the boat at race time while Jim Thompson does the test driving in between.

There are several mechanics and coming to Picton with the crew will be Danny Foster, who is driver for Guy Lombardo's Tempo V. Lombardo is also a native of London, Ont., and keenly interested in the Thompson effort to win the speed crown for Canada and the British Empire. Foster will act in an advisory capacity.

COVERED BOTH WAYS

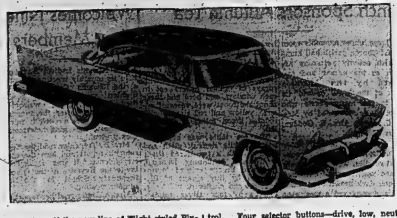
As the mile trials the mile course must be covered both way and the speed for each mile averaged to determine the speed.

Official sanction for the trial has been secured from the Canadian Boating Association and involves permission from international associations, especially in cases that in seeking a Canadian record a new world record might possibly be set.

Reg. Sparks and Bob Finlayson of the Canadian Federation will be present with official timers. The Bell Telephone Co. will install a communication line between the starting and finish lines.

Tune-ups next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will precede the actual trial which it is expected to take place shortly after daylight on the 28th.

ROLLS ROYCE ENGINES



Miss Supertest is powered with Rolls Royce-Griffin motors, developing around 3,000 horsepower.

In the Maple Leaf regatta at Windsor, Miss Supertest won one heat with a course record of 99.457 miles per hour for the 15 miles. A mechanical breakdown in the second heat caused her to finish in second place in the race.

In the Detroit Memorial race she was badly damaged in a four boat collision at the commencement of the race and was unable to continue. The boats involved included My Sweetie and Miss Cadillac.

In other races, Miss Supertest has made good showings and her owners and driver feel that given the breaks she is capable of setting new records. Difficulties with the highly tuned craft are not confined to any one boat, the best often being forced out by trouble of various kinds.

Apple Growers Of Nova Scotia Seek More Aid

HALIFAX (CP)—A forecast of more industry for Nova Scotia was made to the Gordon royal commission Thursday a few hours after it was told Nova Scotia apple growers may be forced out of business unless given some assistance.

The optimistic business outlook came from managers of two English companies which set up Canadian divisions in Nova Scotia within the last seven years. Both said they now could compete success fully with other companies in the central Canadian market.

The note of warning about the apple industry came from the secretary of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers Association who said that few farmers could operate next year unless given assistance in marketing this year's 4,000,000 bushel crop. Roland Sutton said many would go bankrupt. He said apple farmers in the Annapolis valley could not accept no for an answer.

Charles Hibbert of Fairey Aviation Co. of Canada and A. C. Carter of Cossar (Canada) Limited said there was no reason why industries couldn't flourish in the province and that decentralization would likely be an economic boost to Nova Scotia within the next 10 years.

"At present it is by no means certain there will be a marriage.

"They have been informed of the views of other members of the Royal Family.

"These views now are almost solidly against the marriage.

"They have been informed of the views of the prime minister, cabinet, Commonwealth representatives and church leaders.

"These views are mixed.

"The princess and Peter Townsend are talking things over at their meetings together. They are discussing the representations that have been made to them and all the complications that face them.

"Their meetings are approved by the Royal Family, who realize this is the first time in two years they have been able to talk over the future in private.

"The decision, as Townsend has said repeatedly, cannot come from him.

"It must come from the princess. She will decide whether or not they go through with their wish to marry."

Quick Action By Volunteer Saves $1,000

TORONTO (CP) — Quick action by a volunteer Red Feather worker Thursday night saved about $1,000 collected for the combined charity drive.

A fire broke out in the basement of St. Aidan's church in the east end and threatened to destroy the money, collected during the day and brought to the church to be counted.

Mrs. W. Whiteside scooped up the envelopes containing the money and threw them from a second-storey window.

Damage was estimated at $8,000.

SWIM BACK FOR BOOTS

HERLESHAUSEN, Germany (Reuter)—Four East German policemen escaped to West Germany during the night by swimming naked across the River Werra, holding their clothes above water then going back and bringing their boots over the same way. Brewery Strike May Be Settled

TORONTO (CP) — Talks were scheduled to be resumed here today which might bring a quick settlement of the strike of 1,200 Canadian Breweries Ltd. employees in Ontario.

Officials of both the company and the United Brewery Workers Union (CIO-CCL) appeared optimistic Thursday after they adjourned talks on the first day of th ewalk-out. Both parties said they are "hopeful."

The workers set up picket lines after midnight Wednesday when negotiators could not come to an agreement.

The union asks a 15-cent hourly wage increase, a shorter work week, standard hours, certain managerial functions and other benefits.

The strike cut off nearly 60 per cent of the province's brewing capacity, but stocks on hand in the retail stores are still being sold.

Atomic Energy Agreement Likely in Week

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Health Minister Paul Martin of Canada said Thursday he is hopeful that unanimous agreement will be reached within one week on a resolution to establish an atoms-for-peace agency.

Martin made the statement after another day of intensive private talks designed to iron out differences on composition of the agency's board of governors and the kind of link it should have with the UN.

Bethel United Church Observes 81st Anniversary

On Sunday, the Bethel-Rawdon congregation of the United church observed the 81st anniversary of the founding of the church, with a large assembly of worshippers in attendance from the community and nearby points. The edifice was adorned for the occasion with baskets of autumn blooms.

INSPIRING MESSAGES

The Rev. Gordon J. A. Whitborn of Campbellford, was the guest minister both morning and evening and preached two inspiring sermons.

At the morning service, he spoke on the subject "Dry Bones" drawing the analogy from Ezekiel's vision. The speaker indicated the need of our time and the church for the revitalizing power of the Holy Spirit.

In the evening the sermon was based on "Old Paths, but a Sword", dealing with the sense of moral judgments of God and the need for a revival of Christian discipleship and clarifying the issues of spiritual issues and a more positive impact upon the secular world.

Special music, arranged by Mrs. Harold Elliott, A.T.C.M., was rendered by the ladies' auxiliary under the direction of Comrade Bradford.

SCHOLARSHIP DECIDED

In the morning the choir rendered the anthem "Thou Art the House of the Lord", by W. R. Voris, with Mrs. Gordon Bracken and Mrs. Carleton Potts taking a duet part.

Pianist soloist, Mrs. W. D. Grant of West Huntingdon, sang "Jesus, Lover of My Soul". Stephen Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. John Lalnson and Mrs. Grant rendered the trio "Thou Crownest the Year," by Simper.

At the evening service, the choir sang the anthem, "Onward Christian Soldiers", and the Hastings male quartet, rendered two numbers, "Dear to the Heart of Jesus", and "The Lord is my Shepherd".

The morning service closed with the rendition of "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus."

Christ Church W.A. Afternoon Branch Sponsors Autumn Tea

The large, upper assembly room of Christ Church parish hall hummed with activity yesterday afternoon as the bazaar and tea, sponsored by the Afternoon Branch of the W.A. opened its doors to the many guests who were cordially welcomed by Mrs. J. B. Creegan, Mrs. R. Godden, and Mrs. E. Smith.

The four large booths: fancy work; dolls; quilts and homecooking and candies, were attractively decorated with ropes of evinelent green and dark brown over white drapes and displayed a wealth of nice articles.

LACEY DOLLIES

In the fancy work there were delightful, lacey dollies in white and blue, done in fine hand crochet; costume jewellery of many designs; knit goods; fancy wash cloths; bridge tallies in the shape of garden hats; pot holders too pretty to use, in green, blue, yellow; baby bonnets in white and pink; baby jackets; lace-edged crochet handkerchiefs; sweaters; socks; mitts; linen dish towels with embroidered initials and rose roses; hand towels with crochet borders; dainty fancy-dressed soldiers's dresses; large aprons in blues, mauves, green and white; hemstitched kerchiefs; the popular flannelette pyjamas in pale pink, blue, mauve, green and white. Mrs. Orser and Mrs. Pomeroy were in charge of this booth.

CHRISTMAS DOLLS

The doll display, convened by Miss F. Ayling and assisted by Mrs. D. Bateman and Miss B. Thomas, was the answer to many a mother's Christmas problem. There were pretty, pink bassinettes complete with bedding and the little sleepers; cosy little blue and blue; dressed dolls of many compositions, featuring the ever "Topsy," who just grew; fancy, little ladies in party dresses, dolls' dressers, pillows and quilts, and stuffed animals.

An array of lovely quilts included the blue and white snowflake design on the white sateen; the red and white design; the Irish double chain quilt; the fan quilt with its pretty colorful sprays; children's quilts with the little Dutch Girl; the name quilt with its many, many names reviving old memories, and the lovely maple leaf quilt in all the glory of its reds, yellows, orange and greens, in rows and rows on white ground with yellow bands. These were not for sale, but to demonstrate what could be accomplished with willing hands, if desired.

TEMPTING CANDIES

The homecooking table had an array of many tempting goodies, as well as several varieties of "sweeties" for those of the sweet-tooth league, creams, fudges. Among the cakes was the ubiquitous angel cake; upside down pineapple cake; lemon pie; taffy tarts looking like snowballs with their white icing; pineapple tarts, and among the vegetables were celery, big Hubbard squash; a vegetable marrow; sweet pickles; mixed pickles and citrons. There were also jellies and apple ginger.

In charge of these were: Mrs. Pierson, with her assistants, Mrs. Hollombe and Mrs. Drury.

A little close by that of the home cooking was displayed the Anglican Church calendars.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

Downstairs the tea room was most attractively decorated with sprays of crepe Bittersweet in each window, and here and there about the room were vases of orange, yellow and red zinnias with reddish green foliage intermingled.

The tea table was appointed with a white damask cloth and centred with a two-tiered silver centrepiece containing lemons, gold and bronze colored 'mums outlined by tiny sprays of Bittersweet and clusters of red grapes flanked by four silver candleholders with tall, white candles, while the little guest tables each was covered by the white cloth, and had as a centrepiece a low container of orange and yellow calendulas, pink and white carnations and other pretty flowers pertaining to the season.

St. John's Guild Holds Colorful Hallowe'en Tea and Bazaar

Sunny pumpkin vases filled with French marigolds and winter dahlias adorned the window sills in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill yesterday afternoon, peeped from unexpected corners, and sat in miniature state on little guest tables with their pots of autumn flowers for the Hallowe'en tea and bazaar sponsored by St. John's Guild.

Near to the entrance door sat the treasurers for the afternoon, Mrs. J. Exley and Mrs. George Corby, while receiving the ever-arriving guests were Mrs. L. A. Fage and Mrs. R. Babcock.

The tea table was appointed with a yellow cloth bordered by a crescent moon and black cat and centred by an enormous pumpkin with fluted edges, filled to over-flowing with green Niagara, and red Rodgers grapes, oranges, grapefruit, rosy-cheeked McIntosh apples and surrounded by a lovely autumn complement of mauve Michaelmas daisies.

Added attractions were the aprons, of which there were many, all kinds, colors, plain and fancy, half and all-over styles, some with frills of the same; others with rose borders; some in diamond patterns in colonial-American; Polka dot; and it was the pink. At this booth there were other articles of fancy work, a rose-centred doily; rose-color knitted tam; pretty daisy design pot holders in red and yellow; knitted blue socks, tea towels, and others. These were convened by Mrs. W. R. Collyer, Mrs. William Meens.

In the miscellaneous table one could find almost anything one wanted beginning with everlasting straw flowers as centrepieces, and bouquets of the same with baby's breath; scintillating colored wild oats in greens, yellows, reds, blues, purples and gold; red princess feather; bunches of Michaelmas daisies and white chrysanthemums, red and yellow fragrant roses, French marigolds, sprays of Bittersweet, bunches of fresh garden sage—looking forward to that most delicious main course for Christmas; books, candles, taffy-apples, cups of peanut brittle, maple sugar candies, little fruit suckers and hickory nuts and costume jewellery.

These were convened by Mrs. Harold Putman, Mrs. W. Meens, and Mrs. Don Leeming, who were kept busy.

The homecooking table, as usual had its display of pies, apple and pumpkin, lemon and plum, fruit cakes, tarts, frosted homemade bread and buns, graham muffins, date and nut loaves, a lovely angel cake with pink icing and ornamental edges—lovely for a little girl's birthday party—rolls, maple cake, white cake with nut and chocolate topping; cabbage relish, pickles, crabapple jelly and jams, and grape jelly, all with ready customers, and under the convenership of Mrs. Jennis Redner and Mrs. F. Norridge.

A most commendable bazaar and Hallowe'en tea bringing tribute to its convenors and to all those whose willing hands had assisted in its success.

GROOM'S PARENTS AND THE WEEKEND-GIFT CHECK

Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son, out of the Service ten months, is to be married quite soon to a wonderful girl whom he met at the camp where he was stationed before being sent to Europe. We met her several times last summer when she spent her vacation with an aunt who lives near, and she is a charming, lovable, well-adjusted girl. Our son, most fortunately obtained a fine position, we're sure his fiancee is the perfect girl for him, and that she'll make him very happy. We are in moderate circumstances, but we're trying to give them what help we can to get started.

There is a religious situation which complicates the wedding plans. Because of this condition, my husband and I are presenting our son and his bride on the day of their wedding a check made out to "Mr. and Mrs." We know the wedding present should be given only to the bride, but under the circumstances, we prefer this way of giving the present. Do you think there is a circumstances, this will be proper? — Mother

No. 1 certainly would not approve of your doing this. As a matter of fact it is just because of these circumstances (the details of which I am omitting, because of their very personal nature) that I think it is so particularly important that you make out this check in the name of the bride only. You have love, devotion, admiration for her, a deep faith in her. Then why shouldn't you show her your love for her and your belief in her by following the traditional procedure of giving the wedding present to the bride — making out the check in her name only? Since you admit you know this is the proper way to do, you should do it. Why not? Your son would want you to do this, I'm sure.

HOW TO RESPOND TO TELEPHONE-ADVERTISING CALLS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About the maddening bother of answering the telephone when you're very busy, only to be informed by the person calling that they would like to have you store your furs with their company, or will you please give their laundry a trial order, or would you like to have your photograph taken in your own home," or any other of the routine advertising calls. I used to listen to my mother in these circumstances, and she always seemed to be pleasant even though firm, and never seemed to be irritated after she had finished. But I get all hot and bothered, and slam the receiver down. What in the world can one remember to say to end these advertising-calls? — A.R.

Here is an effective 3-part procedure: (1) answer the telephone pleasantly (as, I hope, is your habit); (2) say straightforwardly, but good-humoredly, "I'm sorry, we're not interested"; and (3) add a courteous "Thank you for calling." Only a minute or so to be polite . . . and you'll like yourself and the world better than if you petulantly slammed down the receiver! Try it.

THE TOAST TO HIS FIANCEE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiancee's parents are going to give a dinner at which our engagement will be announced. I know that if her father proposes a toast to both of us, I do not rise. But I'm wondering if I should rise if he proposes his first toast to her only. — Fiance

If a toast is proposed to your fiancee only, you rise and drink to her as the other guests do.

LET'S HAVE THE WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CAKE!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are to celebrate our twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary soon. We have a married son who lives so far away from us that it will be impossible for him and his wife to come here for the celebration. But we have two teen-age boys who will be present. We are planning to give a party in a private suite in a hotel here. Should we have a hostess? Or should my husband and I and our two young sons be in a receiving-line at the door?

2. Do you think we should have a Wedding Anniversary Cake? We plan to serve sandwiches, small cakes, tea, and punch.

Please give us any suggestions you will. — Reader

1. First I would like to suggest that you and your husband stand together (you at your husband's right) opposite the entrance to the suite in which you are to receive and welcome your guests. Then, instead of having your two young sons receive with you, I suggest that you delegate to them special hospitality-responsibilities. (I find that teen-age sons and daughters like to be given these responsibilities; have a very real pride in carrying them out well.) For example, both or either of the boys might stand near the entrance-door, to direct guests to where they are to leave their wraps, then later they might assist their dad in serving, perhaps passing the plates of sandwiches, small cakes (also dishes of nuts, candies, or other food-accessories, if you decide to serve some items-for-nibbling).

Also it would be a wonderful idea for you to have one person in the entire procedure of the Anniversary-Wedding Cake. You and your husband decide beforehand the approximate time for the cutting-of-the-cake . . . you or your husband to give the signal for this to "the cooperating Young ones" . . . then these bid the guests to gather "round the table . . . and, as you and your "helpers-in-charge" begin to cut the first slice, hope the boys will merrily and lustily cheer-lead the singing of "The Bride Cuts the Cake" (to like magic, and you'll be much happier and much healthier.

Would like your recipe. . . Is there something else? . . . Would you have a recipe for Apple Tarts? — E. J.

ANSWER:

Citron may be candied but it is such a complicated long-drawn-out process I have long since stopped attempting it. It isn't worth all the work when you need such a little bit for your fruit cakes.

CITRON PRESERVES

Five and one-half lbs. diced pared citron (approximately 8 well-packed cups), 3 cups granulated sugar, 6 cups water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon lemon rind. To prepare cut the citron in quarters, pare and dice if removing all rind. Cook together sugar and water five minutes, then add diced citron and cook until tender and transparent—do not let it burn. Add the lemon juice and rind and cook 20 minutes longer. Turn into sterile jars and seal. If desired, 2 tablespoons diced crystallized ginger may be added.

APPLE TARTS

No. 1—Line eight regular-sized muffin pans with rich plain pastry. Fill 3-4 full with sliced tart apples, sprinkle with 2 tablespoon sugar (for each tart) and a little cinnamon then 2 tablespoons finely grated old cheese. If desired each may be covered with fine strips of pastry. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes, or until apples are tender.

No. 2—Fill baked tart shells with sweetened applesauce. Top each with whipped cream, and sprinkle lightly with cinnamon, nutmeg, chopped nuts or finely chopped candied ginger.

I have mailed you the calorie chart you asked for.

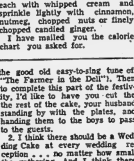
QUESTION:

This is the first time I have written . . . never have anything for the column and benefit by your advice. . . . my problem is what to do with a garden full of citron . . . made citron preserves but nuisance, to get busy and correct whatever is wrong. You can do it! And the irritability will disappear

QUESTION:

I am writing on behalf of a friend whose husband has been put on a very restricted diet. Most of the things he cannot have is ordinary ice cream. As both cream and eggs are not allowed on wondering if by chance there is a recipe using skim milk, which his wife can make at home.—M. H.

ANSWER:



SKIM MILK ICE CREAM

(No eggs)

One teaspoon plain gelatine, 2 tablespoons water, 1 1-2 cups water, 3-4 cup skim milk powder, 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon flour, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 or 2 teaspoons vanilla. Soak the gelatine in 2 tablespoons cold water 5 minutes. Sprinkle the skim milk powder over the 1-3 cups water in a bowl, let stand 5 minutes then beat with rotary beater until milk is dissolved—about 1 minute. Put into top of double boiler over boiling water and heat about three to five minutes, then add soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved. Mix together thoroughly the sugar, flour and salt and stir into hot mixture. When cooled, then cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring about every two minutes. Pour into bowl and chill. Add vanilla. Pour into tray of refrigerator and freeze to a mush then remove to cold bowl and beat out all ice crystals that have not until melted. Quickly return to tray, cover with waxed paper and freeze until firm.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR TROUBLE IS PROBABLY ONE OF THESE THREE THINGS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My problem is that I always seem to be irritable with people.

I'm in love with a fine fellow, but I'm afraid of losing him on account of this habit of mine.

I don't mean, or want, to be that way, but it always seems to get the best of me.

Will you please help me?

— E.M.B.

Dear E.M.B.:

There are three things which, more than any others, make people irritable.

One is that they are not well. The second is that they are frustrated — In other words,—want something they can't get — or are afraid they are going to lose something they have. And third, they are just plain tired, usually from not getting enough rest. The cause of your trouble probably lies in some one of these. I suggest that you check yourself against each one to find it.

For example, to check the first, you might go to your doctor and have him give you a thorough medical examination just to make sure there isn't anything that's keeping you from being entirely healthy.

On the other two points, you're the only one who can check yourself.

If there's something you want badly and haven't been able to get, or something you have and you're afraid you're going to lose, don't take the immature attitude that if you can't have it, nothing else will do and you're going to be a broken the rest of your life. Not only will that attitude get you nowhere, but actually, as time goes on you'll get over wanting that particular thing. That just happens to be the way life works, and it's well to learn the fact early. So put behind you the thing you can't have, and the thing you can have—which you'll find you enjoy just as much—will come along all the quicker.

Then there's that third point of being irritable because you're tired from not getting enough rest. Well, are you? You can answer that one Yes or No, and you can do something about it.

Personally, I sort of suspect that maybe the young man you mention has something to do with the problem. Perhaps he doesn't seem as fond of you as you'd like him to be. Perhaps you're worrying that you're slipping in his affections, or getting interested in some other girl. Because, as a rule, if a girl is really in love, she's secure in the knowledge that the man loves her, and there's much to thank him for be irritable.

But, anyway, get your trouble diagnosed, partly with the doctor's help and partly by being smart enough—and honest enough—to ask yourself questions and give yourself the right answers. Then have the will power, and the good common sense, to follow the prescription.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

GOOD TASTE ESSENTIAL IN OFFICE CLOTHES

A careful - look before a full length mirror will reveal whether office clothes harmonize from head to foot.

With so much emphasis on "slacks" these days, it is hardly any wonder that too many working girls arrive at the office in the morning looking as though they were off to a cocktail party instead of to sit at the typewriter, the switchboard or what-have-you. There are certain types of jobs where a good deal more than so-called "glamour" in dress is permissible, of course. A receptionist at some of our swanky advertising offices, for instance, or employees dealing with the public in radio, TV and theatrical offices. But were talking today about the more down-to-earth type of job-holder—the office worker who is paid to get a good day's work and not to look like Ava Gardner.

There is, of course, no reason why a girl shouldn't look her prettiest while at work. In fact, she should. But it should be the kind of prettiness that comes from good taste and good grooming—not the kind that depends on extremes of dress or glamour doodads. Save these for after five.

Generally speaking, your office wardrobe should be built around a couple of suits and a few basic dresses, in black, brown, navy or gray, if you wear suits, be careful in the selection of blouses. They can be soft and feminine looking, of course, but avoid the frills and the sheerness which belong, more appropriately, to dressy occasions. Your office gear can be a bit off-the-wool or crepe, depending upon the season, and they should adhere to simple lines. You can wear jewelry as an accessory, of course, but from nice to nifty, there is conspicuous. Dangling earring, massive bracelets, but small neck-laces and pins are out for office wear. Avoid elaborate hair-do, too. They may be very becoming but you may have to take time out so often to keep them in place that the boss is sure to notice. And that's not good.

Shoes should be selected with a view to their comfort in the type of work you do, but they can be smart, nevertheless. Even if you're on your feet all day and hot, better in an oxford type shoe, you can find plenty which are just as good looking—or better—than the fancier types of footwear. The main thing to remember is that your whole foot-your outfit should be well harmonized and appropriate.

Make it a habit each morning, just before leaving the house, to give yourself a thorough looking over in front of a full length mirror. Ask yourself, "Am I really dressed for the office or am I dressing for the date I have at night?" If the latter's the answer, you'd better make a quick change. "Glamour puss" may rate the male attention, but it's the girl who dresses appropriately who makes the grade when promotion time rolls around. Bosses just don't take butterflies too seriously.

Mother's Helper

WHILE you clean up the kitchen after lunch, why not save yourself a later interruption by fixing that afternoon snack for your preschooler? Put it in an easily accessible spot where they can't miss it. (Ideas: peanut butter on crackers, protein in sandwich bag.)

Sunday School Lesson

Even God Was Tempted

By ROY L. SMITH

In the age-old description of the temptation of Jesus we have an up-to-the-minute description of the temptation that every great leader of men must face sooner or later. Obviously, as we have the story in the New Testament, it must have come from Jesus Himself, for He was alone at the time.—No one witnessed it, and the form in which the story is cast is doubtless the parabolic style He used in telling it afterwards. It need not then be taken too literally, as to pinnacles, mountains, and stones. But it is true so far as the moral issues are concerned.

DARK DAYS FOLLOW GREAT DAYS

It is almost the universal experience that our worst days follow our greatest days. At one moment we are on the heights and then the reaction sets in, and we find ourselves in the depths.

At His baptism Jesus, the layman-carpenter who had never preached a sermon or invented a parable, received the endorsement of God. It was a thing incredible that One who had never had any training should hear the Spirit's voice say, "This is My Beloved Son; in Him I am well pleased." And with the Voice there came the inner compulsion that comes with the realization of a great destiny. There was only one thing to do— at least only one thing for a carpenter from Nazareth to do. He must get away and think. And into the wilderness He went.

TEMPTATION OF BREAD

Face to face with the conviction that He must do the work of a Messiah, Jesus was confronted by the simple and staggering question "How?"

The first impulse was to promise everyone plenty of bread. He lived in a niggardly land, where the people were chronically hungry. Nothing would attract more attention, and nothing could be kinder, than for Him to exercise divine power and establish a universal commissary. Actually, some time later, He did feed thousands. The insidious aspect of the temptation was that He was tempted to do something good, instead of the thing that was best. And that temptation is still with us. It is the promise of plenty of bread (even at the cost of independence, liberty, and faith) that makes the "appeal" of Communism so strong today.

TEMPTATION OF POWER

There was no limit to what Jesus might expect to do with the endorsement of God, and divine power at His back. The Jews had dreamed of a Messiah (not a supernatural being but a man, divinely empowered) who would throw off the yoke of Rome and establish the nation as a race of free men again. As the temptation broke in upon Jesus in the wilderness He seems to have faced the possibility of actually dethroning Tiberius Caesar, and setting Himself up as the Supreme Ruler of all the earth. And what great reforms He could bring to pass, in such a capacity. It was a temptation desperately serious. But He turned it down because He was sure God had no such purpose as that in mind when He called Him out of the Nazareth carpenter shop.

TEMPTATION OF IMMUNITY

The third temptation was the most insidious and most dangerous of all. He was urged to think of Himself as immune against the difficulties that beset ordinary men, so that He might presume on God.

> The Uniform Sunday school lesson for October 23: "Struggle in the Wilderness," Luke 4:1-15.

It is such a common thing for us to believe that because we have been good we have put God under obligations to us; because we have "faith" that we do not need to exercise the usual precautions of life; that because we are righteous that we will therefore not have to struggle or suffer.

Against all the temptation to play the favored role, Jesus turns His back resolutely and lives the kind of life we have to live in the kind of world in which we have to live.

Eskimo Families from North Enjoying Life at Churchill

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) Jessie Gordon had a houseful of visitors the other day. Acquaintances who had been in hospital in southern Manitoba stopped off on their way back home.

The ladies were relaxing on the chesterfield, chatting and listening to Jessie's collection of cowboy records on the automatic player.

Soon Jessie's children would be home from school and her husband, Charlie, would be finished work for the day.

STORY FOR IGLOOS

It seemed an enjoyable afternoon. And in due course the Eskimo visitors would be sitting in their igloos telling their tribespeople of the wonders of the new life their friends are living in Fort Churchill.

They might try to describe the electric stoves, the washing machines, the radios, the record players. The big bus that takes the children to school. The new jobs the men are doing and the income tax and unemployment insurance they have to pay. The new houses being built for their friends, complete with two bedrooms, living room, dining room. The mysteries of the flush toilet and the running water in the kitchen sink.

The tribespeople may disbelieve but it's all coming true for seven Eskimo families now living and working at this military base 610 miles north of Winnipeg.

It's all part of a unique project planned by the federal northern affairs department in an effort to bring a modern-day civilization to the Eskimos of Canada's northland.

The department has moved the families—38 men, women and children—to Fort Churchill and is providing them with homes, jobs and schooling for the youngsters.

TO AVOID MISTAKE

"We don't want to make the same mistake as we did with the Indians," said Bill Kerr, northern affairs agent and former member of the RCMP, "instead of putting them away on reservations we want to bring them into our society."

The Eskimos were brought to Churchill from Fort Chimo, a settlement on the northeast coast of Hudson Bay, developed by the United States army during the Second World War.

American officials asked the Eskimos to work for them around their base and soon the natives acquired a taste for money, something they had never seen before.

They learned that money would buy food at the Hudson's Bay Company post just like a seal skin or a fox pelt, and the work they were doing was not as strenuous as hunting and fishing. So inborn native talent made their new mechanical jobs easy.

However, the Americans pulled out of Chimo after the war and the Eskimos were out of work. Their taste for money and a good job would not leave them and they were reluctant to return to the old ways. They were becoming a problem to the northern administrators.

CHANCE OF NEW LIFE

Last year the northern affairs department decided to embark on a new experiment. They asked the Eskimos if they would be willing to move to Churchill with their families and start a new life. Ten of them accepted.

The men finally arrived here by April, 1954. Their families joined them this summer.

Two Eskimos have since returned back north, Mr. Kerr said they got in with a drinking crowd at the camp, lost their money and were generally misfits in their surroundings.

The natives are temporarily quartered in huts outside the camp area led by a construction crew. The department gave each family an electric stove. They have a common walk-in food locker and a washing machine.

Construction has already started on nine new homes to be located in the old construction camp.

"It was originally planned to build the houses in the town but it was later decided to keep the Eskimos as far away from the rowdy town life as possible," said Mr. Kerr.

COMFORTABLE HOMES

The pre-fabricated homes will be built of British Columbia cedar. Each will contain a living room, dining room, kitchen, bathroom and two bedrooms.

Each family will be provided with a stove and a heating unit. The Eskimos will buy the rest of the furnishings.

They will pay a rental scaled to their salary at the camp, which will average from $35 to $40 a month.

Mr. Kerr said the natives have quickly adopted the new life. The 12 children of school age attend the Duke of Edinburgh school in camp. The other six at home with their mothers. The women shop at the camp stores and in town, wash and iron, and at night the whole family listens to the radio or record player or holds parties.

"They are natural - born musicians," said Mr. Kerr. "They enjoy square dancing and the old whaling dances."

Most attend the nightly movies at the camp. And have taken a particular fancy to cowboy films.

"They play cards, weird games of their own making, and go to the dances," said Mr. Kerr. "The Eskimos are being treated just as the white man."

Every Monday Rev. L. R. Willis of St. Paul's Anglican mission in Churchill holds a church service.

The group is to be expanded this winter with the arrival of six more Eskimos from Chesterfield Inlet, 250 miles up the bay coast.

Mr. Kerr said the natives need little supervision but once in a while he has to crack the whip.

"A little while ago some of the children found a pile of old tin cans and brought them into their house to play with. They finally tired of the game and threw all the cans down the septic tank."

The Eskimo women are finding their new household chores a little confusing at times.

"They can't understand why I keep telling them to turn off their electric stoves. To them a stove is something that should be kept going all the time. They haven't got that much power to waste," said Mr. Kerr.

ESKIMO HOUSEWIFE

Jessie Gordon, Eskimo housewife at Fort Churchill, Man., tries out her new electric stove, one of many strange appliances seven Eskimo families are enjoying at the military base 610 miles north of Winnipeg. It's part of a unique project planned by the northern affairs department in an effort to bring modern-day civilization to the Eskimos of Canada's northland. (CP Photo).

Russian Newspapers Never Published Word on Carpenter's Talk Canadian Officials Say

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian newspapers never published a word on what Air Commodore Fred Carpenter is reported to have said about them, Canadian officials here say.

In fact, Soviet leaders even asked External Affairs Minister Pearson whether they should publish the report from their Tass correspondent in Ottawa on Air Commodore Carpenter's press conference at Halifax.

Mr. Pearson said he could not advise the Russians on what they should or should not publish but added that the words attributed to Air Commodore Carpenter do not represent Canadian official views.

Carpenter, RCAF chief of air operations, was quoted as saying that "our position is to make the Russians know we can knock hell out of them" and that the Russians militarily are 30 years behind the West.

NEVER PUBLISHED

The Tass version of this statement is not clear because it was never published. A Canadian Press report from Moscow said the Tass account described Carpenter as chief of air staff and had Carpenter saying that the RCAF air division in Europe is poised for attack on Russia.

Informants here report this sequence of events:

On the next-to-last day of Mr. Pearson's visit to Moscow, the Canadian minister gave a luncheon at the Canadian embassy for Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov and others.

The affair went well and was most cordial. When the Russians were about to depart, Kaganovich produced the Tass report of the Carpenter interview. The report was apparently in the form of a telegram. It was not a newspaper clipping.

Mr. Pearson was a bit taken aback for a moment. He said he didn't know about any Carpenter statement but that Carpenter wasn't chief of staff (Air Marshal Roy Slemon holds this job).

ASKED OTTAWA

He added that if Carpenter had made the statement attributed to him he shouldn't have and that he would ask Ottawa about it immediately, which he did.

Molotov appeared to be embarrassed that Kaganovich had brought up the matter at all.

A day or two later, N. S. Khrushchev, Communist party secretary, raised the matter of the Carpenter statement when Mr. Pearson talked with him and Premier Bulganin in the Crimea before leaving the USSR for Singapore.

Mr. Pearson, who still had only the Tass version to go on, is understood to have said that if Carpenter were upgraded to chief of staff in the story, statements attributed to him must also have been distorted.

NOT A SOUR NOTE

Though the Carpenter statement is believed to have embarrassed Mr. Pearson to some extent, it did not strike a sour note during his Russian visit.

Mr. Pearson and Khrushchev, informants say, took the gloves off in their Crimea discussion. Both of them preferred to be frank and blunt.

Mr. Pearson's visit was front-page news in Moscow newspapers all the time he was there. Even the names of persons attending the social functions were carried on front pages.

Association Wants Government To Raise Minimum

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Insurance Agents Association Thursday urged the provincial government to increase the minimum amount of automobile insurance motorists are required to carry under Ontario's financial responsibility legislation.

The association, at its annual meeting here, passed a resolution asking the government to consider changes similar to those now in effect in Manitoba.

Manitoba recently raised minimum insurance limits to $10,000 or $20,000 for bodily injury liability insurance and $1,000 for property damage. The $10,000 liability limit applies if one person is involved in an accident. The $20,000 limit applies if more than one person is involved.

The minimum in Ontario now is $5,000, $10,000 and $1,000.

The association also agreed to support the establishment of identification cards in all provinces by which motorists prove they are insured.

Police Recover Body in River, Death Suicide

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) The search for a man which led to the discovery of remains of a North Bay couple, missing for the last 15 years, ended Thursday when police recovered his body in the St. Mary's river.

Arthur Rooley, 50, father of nine children, was found in his submerged car off the CPR dock here. Police listed his death as a suicide. They said Rooley's wife told them he threatened to drive off the dock when he left home last Monday.

Rooley's car was found near the spot where the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk of North Bay were discovered Wednesday. Police found the Kirk car where they were searching for Rooley.

In another development Thursday, coroner Dr. William Sullivan ordered an autopsy and an inquest into the Kirk deaths. No action was given for the move. Officials have called the deaths accidental.

The Kirks left their children with a housekeeper 15 years ago and set out in their car for a holiday. They stopped in Sault Ste. Marie to buy gasoline and then vanished.

Officials say that the Russian leaders made no attempt to drive a wedge between Canada and the United States. They seemed to appreciate that Canada is not a U.S. "satellite".

Mr. Pearson defended some U.S. policies but was frank about stating reservations concerning those U.S. policies with which the Canadian government disagrees.

An interesting sidelight was that Russian newspapers carried no accounts of the incidents surrounding the visit of Soviet agricultural leaders to Canada in August.

"The Russians apparently want to keep a sweet note," one informant said.

Fear Hog Prices May Tumble To Support Level

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal farm experts, expecting a continuation of this year's big hog marketings, say they fear stockyard hog prices may fall to the federal support level this fall, bringing government buyers into the market to maintain returns to farmers.

Up to early October, the year's hog marketings have been 12.2 per cent above last year. Forecasts are that farmers' deliveries in the last three months of the year—normally the heaviest period for selling—will be about six per cent above 1954 levels.

The federal support price for grade A hogs is $23 a hundredweight at the Toronto stockyards. Elsewhere it varies depending on transport costs to the Toronto market.

If the government steps into the market it would be the first time since December, 1952, during the period of the United States embargo on Canadian meat exports which followed the foot and mouth disease outbreak.

Hog prices at about $27 in Toronto and Montreal early in the month, slipped to $25 two weeks ago. This week they rose by 50 cents at Toronto and $1 at Montreal. In the West prices this week have been about the same as last week when they ranged between $20 and $21.50 on prairie markets.

One official said that in the light of conditions he fears the price will fall to the support level.

Another official pointed to large hog supplies and low prices in the United States and said the general opinion is that the Canadian price might reach the $23 mark. U.S. marketings for fall are expected to be 12 per cent above last year. Canadian marketings up to Oct. 8 were 4,347,000 head, 670,000 more than a year earlier. The over-all rise was 18 per cent, but in the West farmers' deliveries were up 2.1 per cent, apparently due to the use of larger stocks of coarse grain for feeding livestock.

Guilty of Manslaughter

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—Florindo Bondillo, 20, of Toronto Thursday was found guilty of manslaughter and dangerous driving in connection with a traffic accident Christmas Day last year in which another person was killed and two others were injured.

He was remanded to Monday for sentence.

The Supreme Court jury in giving its verdict recommended that those who issue driving licences should study and analyze the applicants can read English. Bondillo, though he had been in Canada nearly three years, said he could not.

Vancouver Paper Fined $1,208 For Court Contempt in Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Province was fined $1,208 Thursday by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson for contempt of court arising out of the trial of five men charged with attempted robbery.

Despite the appeal of The Province lawyer, Senator J. W. de B. Farris, that the paper's error was "sheer inadvertence," Mr. Justice Manson declared that anything in the press "calculated to prejudice the fair trial of the accused cannot be countenanced."

The fine he imposed was equal to the cost of the trial that was abruptly terminated by reason of the contempt.

The judge took no individual action against A. W. Moscarella, publisher of The Province, H. C. Hall (Torchy) Anderson, editor, or Gordon Dickson, rewrite man who interviewed Farris' words "wrote the offending words."

The 12-man jury was dismissed and a new trial ordered Wednesday for the men accused of attempted murder in connection with the theft of Thomas Kinna, 29 on the False Creek flats last June.

Mr. Justice Manson, handing down his decision in Supreme Court, listed three items in The Province news stories to which he objected. All appeared Oct. 13.

Listing of the names and addresses of members of the jury was "something that was calculated to disturb the jurors and something I have never seen done before and something I hope will not occur again," Mr. Justice Manson said.

In the same article, he noted reference was made to Kinna, a crown witness, as a victim of a drug gang war. "That was an inference on the part of Mr. [illegible] which ought not to have been made," Mr. Justice Manson said.

"It was a matter for the jury."

He pointed out that in the final edition of the paper the same day, the statement was made that one of the accused was currently serving 10 years for trafficking in drugs and that the other four were awaiting trial on the same charge.

"No such evidence was given at the trial on the two days during which it proceeded.

"Those statements are highly reprehensible and so far calculated to prejudice the fair trial of the accused that I was compelled to discharge the jury.

"Evidence of previous convictions and of previous implications in alleged crimes can only be given in the course of the evidential circumstances."

Senator Farris said Mr. Anderson, the editor, was out of town when the stories were printed and returned from holidays Thursday.

Mr. Moscarella, the publisher, had no knowledge of the stories "although he recognizes his vicarious responsibility."

The offending words had not been in the article written by the reporter covering the trial. Mr. Dickson was on the desk, had rewritten it "and inadvertently while doing that put in these words."

The trial for Robert Joseph Tremblay, 23, Lucien Joseph Mayers, 24, Francis Frenette, James Mulgren, 28, all of Montreal, and Charles [illegible] Talbot, 38, of Vancouver, will start next month.

Auxiliary Fighter Squadrons Await Decision About Future

OTTAWA (CP)—The 10 RCAF auxiliary fighter squadrons are impatiently awaiting a decision on their future role.

A defence official said Thursday morale among the auxiliary fighter pilots has slumped since the week by the decision not to equip the squadrons with CF-100 long-range jet interceptors.

Defence Minister Campney has asked the air force to hand in its proposed solution for one of the hardest problems ever to face the RCAF in peacetime. Officials have said it takes time because the problem is so complicated.

The air force decided that its reserve squadrons — two each in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, one each in Hamilton, London, Ont., Winnipeg and Calgary — couldn't operate the latest jet aircraft.

The reason is that part-time fliers don't have the time to spend long hours maintaining the more and more complex equipment that goes into today's more and more complex aircraft.

If the auxiliary fighter squadrons can't fly the latest jets, what are they to do? This is the knotty problem over which air force chiefs have been scratching their heads for some time.

As it is, RCAF auxiliary strength has fallen to "about 5,000" from 8,339 at the start of the year, though this may be partly due to the summer slump that also hits the regular forces. If the auxiliaries are maintained, they may be required to fill a new role such as transport, not a glamorous prospect for fighter pilots.

Skyway Handles 80 Per Cent Of Heavy Traffic

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—George F. Collins, acting traffic director for this city, said Thursday night that the $12,000,000 skyway opened here Wednesday is handling about 80 per cent of the normal waterfront automobile traffic.

The elevated bridge is 1 1-10 miles long and connects south Buffalo with lower main street. It cuts out three old single-lane lift bridges and winding, narrow streets of the harbor area.

The bridge has had several tie-ups since it was opened due to sightseers who flocked to take a look at Buffalo harbor. Collins said there were several small bottlenecks which he expects to be taken care of as soon as a traffic pattern can be established.

With approaches on both ends of the structure almost two miles long, and last things set out on hand in a quick weather switch, the city has ordered 7,500 feet of snow fence which will soon be installed at both ends of the bridge.

Three Killed In Collision Between 2 Trucks

The victims were riding in a pickup truck and were identified as Gerard Gagnon, brother, Ernest, 47, was injured and taken to hospital at Dolbeau, Que.

All four men are from Albanel.

Police said the driver of the second truck did not stop following the accident but a suspect was arrested a short time later. He was imprisoned at Dolbeau.

Record Wheat Stockpile, Uncertain Markets Causing Many Transport Problems

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's record wheat stockpile stands in the West like an immense question mark, casting a shadow that reaches to Montreal.

With the end of navigation only six weeks away, shippers and railways are studying the traditional stepped-up end-of-season flow of grain between the Prairies and this port.

Markets—spotty all season—still are uncertain, causing transport problems. Daily shipments from Montreal now go as high as 700,000 bushels—and drop as low as 50,000 bushels on other days.

Latest bureau of statistics estimate the stockpile at 362,000,000 bushels. Of this the carryover—the amount left from the 1954 crop—was estimated at 403,726,000 bushels.

The previous record stockpile was 382,000,000 in 1953.

Grain sources here were reluctant to discuss market outlook for competitive reasons. Transport sources said an important railway problem is allocation of freight cars in view of unpredictable market conditions.

The railways have a responsibility to provide cars as needed for grain movements. They also tried to keep the equipment busy in other uses when not required in the grain trade.

One Montreal source in close touch with the situation said a shortage of railway cars is developing, and he added that there are already complaints of this in the West. This could not be confirmed among other authorities here including grain shippers and brokers.

A Canadian Railway Association spokesman said some 29,000 railway cars now are in the United States but he added that an adequate number is on hand for grain movements in the West.

Harbor officials said Montreal elevators are kept full almost to capacity with shipments increasing as the navigation deadline approaches. The St. Lawrence usually begins to freeze in the first week of December.

The association provided figures indicating that Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways on Oct. 16 had a total of 44,351 box cars in western Canada, compared with 49,182 on the corresponding date last year.

The box car "fleet" was considered adequate for current grain movements and the railways were handling traffic as it was offered.

But the continuing problem of car allocation was not being taken lightly. The railways were making efforts to reshape cars now operating on U.S. railways.

Some sources said the railways had a more complicated job of "spotting" cars this year because of irregular orders and demand caused by the overseas market situation.

National Harbors Board reported Montreal elevators took contained less than 11,000,000 bushels of grain compared with 11,600,000 at this date in 1954.

More than 83,300,000 bushels had been shipped from Montreal at this time last year, compared with the current figure of 76,316,000.

A grain exporter said he had not heard of any difficulties caused by the supply of railway cars.

"Storage space is our problem," he said.

Bruins Hand Canadiens First Defeat Of Season; Hawks Tie Red Wings

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PETERBOROUGH — The Ontario Hockey Association, with President Frank Buckland and fellow brass uncovered an auspicious program to "put hockey to rights" here last night.

The meeting held in the well-appointed Kawartha Country Club attracted some sixty representatives of leagues and clubs in Central-Eastern Ontario.

The meeting was one of four designed to cover the Southern Ontario hockey front. Other confabs will be held in London, Hamilton and Windsor.

It was evident from the points laid down and addresses given that the OHA-Intends hockey will be played "as she should." It was also evident that as many clubs as possible will be brought under the aegis of the parent body.

As Buckland pointed out to this observer: "These meetings are being called to get as many clubs as possible to operate under the OHA. The conclaves are intended also to get a universal interpretation of the constitution and rules, especially the new ones that should prevent a lot of mid-season bickerings and arguments.

The Trent Valley League was represented by Lee Bradshaw, Point Anne, and delegates from Stirling and the Trenton RCAF. The future of the league seemed none too bright, it was said and those present seemed willing to adopt a new set-up under the aegis of the OHA.

As a matter of fact OHA vice-president Lorne Cook, Kingston, was asked and he declared his willingness to hold a special meeting for TVL clubs in the near future with regard to OHA organization.

Many points and rules were brought up and clarified. A new rule which was a long time arriving is the "No-icing" item. If a defending team at full strength shoots the puck rink-length, the opposing defencoman or other player must make no effort to retrieve the puck. If they deliberately let it slide over their red line the face-off will be made in their own defence zone.

The OHA issued stern warning through referees-in-chief Pat Patterson and Bill Chadwick to all officials and to players, coaches or managers. "The book will be thrown at any and all who break this rule," said Patterson. "The OHA intends to stand solidly behind its officials."

Increased efforts will be made by the OHA to encourage young players to can skate, have something between their ears and a supply of 'guts' to take up refereeing," Patterson said. He pointed out the success OHA officials are meeting with in the NHL. Schools will be held in various parts of the province and if it can be arranged they will be held here and in Kingston.

The idea is simple. Six potential referees are selected by the judges, including Patterson and others. Two work the first period of an exhibition game, another two the second period and so on. After the game their faults and good points are discussed and the most promising will be given a chance to work in official OHA games.

"If we can only get two promising young men a season we shall be satisfied," Patterson said. He would be willing to be told this department, to conduct a school here any time it can be arranged.

The OHA is determined to eliminate all rough play and unnecessary argument. "A player can now draw up to five minor penalties for a single offence. He will be penalized if he deliberately knocks or shoots the puck out of reach of an official."

And if a player after warning fails to take his place to face-off, the puck will be dropped without him. And don't throw your broken stick into the crowd, fellas, it calls for a misconduct under a new rule. And a second misconduct in the same game becomes an automatic game misconduct penalty.

And failure on the part of managers and coaches to prevent disorderly conduct on or off the ice during or after the game, calls for referees' penalties and action by the OHA.

President Buckland paid special attention to communities and clubs coming under the intermediate "C" category. "These clubs will be operated without a raft of imports and useless waivers," he said. "Players must play for the club nearest them, or if they are in close proximity the half-way rule will be observed."

DON'T FOOL

And while in Peterborough we learned that the major league all-stars who play a district baseball squad here tomorrow afternoon, do not fool while going through their exhibition dismoad calisthenics. Petes' observers told us the boys play the game like a regular league affair and show no mercy to pitchers or anyone. The game played in Peterborough the other night was productive of all the thrills of a big league game and was run off in a little over an hour and a half. The major leaguers stepped out of character today and took on the Lakefield softball champions in an exhibition till. They will be here in full force tomorrow, in fact some of them were in town yesterday "looking over Belleville." The game gets under way at 2.30.

McKenney's Last-Minute Goal Gives Beantowners Third Win; Chicago, Blues Tied for Third

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The "have nots" of last season are doing all right for themselves in the National Hockey League this year.

It wasn't so long ago that the power teams around the six-team circuit realized that weak sisters were needed some help. A few early player swaps fixed things a bit. Then came more deals and changes of high-scoring personnel.

The results? Sensational. If you look at it from the point of view of Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and Boston Bruins.

Hawks turned in a creditable performance Thursday night as they held Detroit Red Wings to a 2-2 tie. It gave them a record of two victories and two deadlocks in six games this season. That's good for Chicago, now in a third-place tie with Rangers.

BEAT MONTREAL

Bruins, in and outers last year, walloped the league-leading Canadiens—the champs, as Toronto has done it this season—3-2 at Montreal Forum.

They were the only two engagements of the night. Despite the setback, Canadiens remain in first place with nine points. That's two points ahead of Bruins, who have made a late comeback after dropping their first two games.

The Red Wings, defending Stanley Cup champions, are in fifth spot with five points, two ahead of the tailend Toronto Maple Leafs.

At Detroit, Wings had an uphill fight all the way, all one stage in the second period they were trailing 2-0. Those captain Ted Lindsay fired the 2-2 equalizer at 4:06 of the third period.

Bill Gadsby was the other Detroit marksman. He beat Chicago netminder Al Rollins at 17:45 of the second period. Centre Red Sullivan and left -winger Harry Watson were the Chicago scorers.

A crowd of 9,346 sat through the listless contest. Five penalties were called, four against Chicago. None figured in the scoring.

HALL HAD IT EASY

Rollins turned aside 26 shots, 10 in the first period. Detroit goalkeeper Glenn Hall stopped 15 Chicago drives, allowing one to get past him in the first period and another in the second.

At Montreal, Don McKenney's goal at 3:20 of the blistering third period gave Bruins their third win of the season. Canadiens had overcome a 2-0 deficit in the final period but McKenney settled matters after the Habs were given a hard shot that beat goaltender Jacques Plante.

Vic Stasiuk and Doug Mohns scored the other Boston goals. Henri Richard, Montreal Flash, tallied at 2:56 if the third session for Canadiens and Dollard St. Laurent tied the score at 7:35.

Goalie Terry Sawchuk was brilliant in the Bruin cage, turning back 36 shots. Plante stopped a total of 20 Boston shots.

Brawl Marks Marlies, Tigers Junior Game

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto Marlboros defeated Hamilton Tiger Cubs 4-2 Thursday night in a junior A Ontario Hockey Association exhibition game that ended in a brawl.

Referee Hughie McLean handed out 16-minute misconduct penalties to 29 players in the final 2½ minutes of the game to clear both benches of players.

The battle started when Hamilton's Brian Smith and Toronto's Noel Price took a few punches at each other. Cubs' Conroy Burton and Marlboros Al McNeil also decided to pummel each other. Within seconds, players of both teams had jumped on the ice and joined in the free-for-all.

Smith, Burton, Price and McNeil were handed major penalties for fighting plus game misconducts. The rest of the players also were penalized.

Walt Boyer, Bob Nevins, Ken Gerrard and Jerry Collins scored for Marlboros. All the Toronto goals came in the second period. Ken Steinland tallied for Hamilton in the first period ad Max Sturm got one in the third.

Indians Ready To Take Over Frisco Club

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—General manager Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians said Thursday night he is prepared to take over the San Francisco baseball club if the Pacific Coast League will donate the franchise.

Greenberg said he and his group, which he did not identify, are prepared to deposit $150,000 in a San Francisco bank to work as capital in order to open the 1956 season.

"We have talked the league to forfeit the franchise and turn it over to us to form a new corporation," Greenberg said. "That is the only way in which we'd be interested in coming here."

The Indian executive said that he is prepared to bring a three-year working agreement with Cleveland to San Francisco if the league approves his proposition.

Senior Clubs Open Schedule

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A series, Allan Cup champions last season, open their 1955-56 schedule tonight against Chatham Maroons.

The Dutchmen served notice they'll be tough to beat again this season when they gave the OHA All-Stars a battle Wednesday night in Kitchener before bowing out 6-3.

In another senior opener, Owen Sound Mercurys play in Stratford against the Indians.

The northern Ontario senior series is already underway. The junior A OHA season opens next Friday.

Dutchmen have a new front line up from St. Michael's juniors and it looked good in Wednesday's game. Bill Colvin is at centre between Jim Logan on left wing and Paul Knox on right.

LINE STILL INTACT

All but Harrison are eligible for the Dutchies trip to the Olympic Games this season.

Stratford Indians will start with almost the same team they had last year. They've added Doug Ashley, a junior from Preston, Doug White, a leftwinger from Dugout and Ken Murdoch, a flash Arthur forward now attending the University of Western Ontario.

Owen Sound Mercurys are out to regain the senior title they won in 1954 and have the talent and may add more players to their lineup.

WAS WITH CATARACTS

They have defenceman Frank Bergeron, with the former Niagara Falls Cataracts last season, Jackie Hamilton, former Toronto Marlboro Leaf player with Kitchener last season and John Lumley, an Owen Sound boy.

Mercurys hope to get goaltender Norm Defelice, with Hershey Bears the last several years. Henry has signed with Mercurys but Defelice has not signed yet.

Chatham Maroons gave evidence they'll be the toughest customers they were last season when they defeated Windsor Bulldogs 5-3 in an exhibition game this week. It was Maroons' third straight pre-season win.

Goaltender Al Bennett played a great game against Windsor and will be counted on for the team of this season. Defenceman Eddie Dickens, one of the original Maroons of 1949, is back in uniform and will give the team some needed strength around the blue line.

Kiner Ousts Bucky Harris

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Bucky Harris was eliminated as a candidate for general manager of San Diego's Pacific Coast League baseball club, The Union said Thursday, because he wanted a three-year contract.

Ralph Kiner, 32, former National League home-run king, was given the job Tuesday on a one-year contract, at a reported pay of $25,000.

The Union's sports editor, Jack Murphy, said Kiner was the only candidate interviewed by the club's owner, the Westgate - California Tuna Packing Co., agreeable to a one-year contract.

War, Prisons Background Life Of Young Boxer

By BOB MYERS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The announcer will mercky say that the main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium Friday night will be between Dick Goldstein of Los Angeles and Ramon Tiscarono of Juarez, Mex., a pair of promising young welterweight boxers.

But behind the name of Goldstein is a story worthy of a novel, its pages filled with the terror of war and the horror of prisons and concentration camps in Russia and Germany.

The sunlight and peace of prewar Warsaw in his native Poland, then the blight and suffering at Kiev, Stalingrad and finally months of imprisonment in the symbol of all chambers of mass torture and death, Germany's Buchenwald prison—these are vivid chapters in the life of Dick Goldstein.

STUDYING DENTISTRY

Dick is 25. He attends Santa Monca City College and is fighting his way to become a dentist. He has a very engaging personality and a marvelous sense of humor. How he developed the latter is a tribute to the young man himself. Dick was a lad of nine, the son of a school teacher, when the Russians invaded Poland.

Two years later the Goldstein family, mother, father, Dickie and his brother, were herded to Kiev for slave labor.

And when the Nazis invaded Kiev, Dick was taken back to Zasl Germany. He never saw his parents again. The brother, like Dick, escaped death.

Dick, a Jew, landed in Buchenwald. He saw the torture devices, the huge gas chamber, the fireovens "like in a big bakery," a trip-hammer that crushed the skull of the living.

"There was no particular order of choosing the victims for death," he says. "The Germans might take the guy standing in line next to me, in back of me."

ALWAYS THE FEAR

"There was bitter cold and hunger. "A piece of bread, they could see through it. Our clothes, as thin as paper. And always the fear that you would be the next for death."

Eventually Germany fell and Buchenwald's evil gates were opened Goldstein "liberated" a goat and made his way from town to town—"Each place they thought I was just a village boy, thanks to the goat"—until he reached a haven of safety in Hungary and then freedom He weighed 79 pounds.

Goldstein finally reached America. He enlisted in the marine corps and served in Korea in an intelligence unit, thanks to his ability to speak eight languages, including Russian.

Argos, Riders Jockey for Spot Ditto Blue Bombers, BC Lions

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian football heads into the home stretch this weekend and about all that's left to decide is which teams get the last playoff spots.

In the professional leagues the first two places have been decided but the third playoff spots remain in doubt.

In the Western Interprovincial and B.C. Lions play crucial games Saturday. Both must win to keep their playoff hopes alive. Lions, in fourth place with 10 points play Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina, while Bombers, in third spot with 12 points, meet the first-place Eskimos in Edmonton.

Lions have only two games left while Bombers have three. The Bombers have to win two of them to catch a playoff berth while the Lions have to win both games while Bombers drop two.

ARGOS-OTTAWA JOCKEY

In the Big Four, Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats have assured themselves of a playoff berth, but Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders still are jockeying for second position.

Argos have six points, two up on Riders, and both have three games left to play. Saturday Argos play league-leading Alouettes in Toronto Saturday while Riders play Hamilton in Ottawa.

In the senior Intercollegiate League, University of Toronto Blues, undefeated in three starts this season, go to Montreal to meet Redmen in Montreal while Queen's Golden Gaels travel to London to play the winless University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Both Masterson and his Blues are worried over the McGill clash, in spite of the 43-13 pasting they gave Redmen last Saturday.

HIT BY INJURIES

Masterson said he expects five of his top players, including four linemen, will miss the game because of injuries.

Two are definitely out. They're tackle Al Watt and guard Earl Ford. Watt is out for the rest of the season with torn rib cartilages and Ford may be out for two weeks with cracked ribs.

On the doubtful list are tackles Wall Raddick and George Kakes, knee injuries, and fullback Don Cheesemain, chipped elbow. End Don Smith still is bothered with an ankle injury.

Two games are scheduled for Ontario Rugby Football Union teams. Sarnia Imperials do double duty by playing Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in Sarnia Saturday and Toronto Beaches in Toronto Sunday.

HAS SLIGHT CHANCE

Sarnia has only a mathematical chance of catching Kitchener for the league championship. They have to win their three remaining league games while Kitchener drops its last two.

There's a busy week ahead in the WIFU. On Monday Lions meet Bombers in Winnipeg and Regina plays in Calgary against Stampeders. The season ends the following Saturday with two games, Regina at Winnipeg and Calgary at Edmonton.

Bombers will have tough opposition Saturday. Edmonton coach Pop Ivy said all the first stringers who sat out last week's game will be back in the lineup. Fullback Johnny Bright may be out nursing an injured heel.

Bombers have a full team ready with the exception of halfback Lew Lewis, who is suffering torn leg muscles.

No Pro Sponsors For Winnipeg Community Clubs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Community club sports leaders were told at a special meeting Thursday night to keep professional sponsorship of their teams, especially hockey teams, out of their centres.

The meeting, called by the city parks board which supports the clubs on city - owned property, passed a resolution demanding that "no community club permit sponsorship of teams by any professional organization, with the understanding that donations on a voluntary basis to the general funds be permitted."

Club leaders said certain National Hockey League teams were providing free sports equipment, rink rentals and cash donations in sponsoring their "farm teams."

Reg Mitchell, president of the Manitoba Bantam Hockey League, said: "NHL teams spend as much as $10,000 a year in the city."

Ald. J. D. Harvey declared "we don't like this a bit." He said if the club directors did not set the parks board would throw out the professional interests. Charles Barbour, minister of recreation, director, said the interests were "killing" organized hockey.

ARMY SPONSORS

Ray Frost of the West End club said the West End Memorials were sponsored by the Army of the Hill, New York Rangers. Jim Morris of the Weston club admitted that Monk Hour, minister, recreation director, said the interests were "killing" organized hockey.

The Saturday Star said that another unnamed hockey club received $500 from the Boston Bruins last year.

Mr. Barbour said sponsorships looked after the good players only. There is no ambition among the boys to play hockey "because they are not good enough."

He said if sponsorship were thrown out every boy would get his chance on the ice, resulting in better teams.

The periodical tie-up will "kill organized hockey" if not checked soon, Mr. Barbour said. "If you want winning teams, yes it's the answer. If you want as many kids to play as possible, no."

AL KELLEHER

District baseball stars will bring their uniforms out of the mothballs tomorrow afternoon when they clash with the touring Major League All-Stars in an exhibition tilt at Exhibition Park.

JOHNNY MOWATT

TONY PETITT

Johnny Mowatt, Al Kelleher and Tony Petitt, former members of the champion Belleville Bata team will see action against the starry big leaguers.

Junior Canadiens Edge TPT's In Thrilling Exhibition Tilt

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Two unanswered third-period goals by Ralph Richardson gave the Montreal Junior "A" Canadiens a 4-3 victory over the Belleville Senior "B" TPT's in an exciting exhibition hockey tilt at Memorial Arena last night. There were 955 in attendance.

This was the first game for the local TPT's and the team as a whole came up with a fine performance against their speedy younger opponents. It was an evenly played battle all the way featured by hard bodychecks which kept tension high through out. Sixteen penalties were inflicted by referee Don Barrett and Dick Fitzpatrick, the judges collecting nine. Two major sentences were awarded to each team, Bob Taylor and Dave Jones of the TPT's and Terrien and Pelchat of the Juniors.

Each team tallied twice in the opening session which saw Tony Parisi and several key saves. Action was fast and rugged this period and also the middle stanza when Belleville netted one marker to take the lead, 3-2. Ralph Harding was in the nets for Belleville and had little to do with his mates in the way of decisive edge in territorial play. The third period was a little slower with the Canadiens extra month of training possibly making the difference. Don Barclay guarded the twine for Belleville in this period.

"Les Canadiens" opened the scoring in the initial period at 7.53. Dave Jones was sitting out a hooking penalty at the time and Ralph McNitt took a pass from Kennedy before firing a long screened drive by Parisi on a gangling goalie who had kicked out a couple of hard drives at the 4.00 minute mark.

RILL SCORES TWO

The Peterborough line of Gus Leonard, Bert Hill and Chum Fyrja provided the scoring punch for Danny Cox's boys in the dying minutes of the period. Hill skated home Leonard's rebound to knot the score at 17.54 with Fyrja also minding the first nine seconds later Hill again blinked the light, steering in Fyrja's goal-mouth pass. Their lead was short-lived however when at 19.35 Claude Laforge took Kennedy's pass in front of the net and flipped it by Parisi, a well executed play.

Fyrja came close early in the second, hitting the post with a drive as that line appeared to be the best on the ice, both offensive and defensive. Bob Courcy of the Canadiens injured his leg in a collision with Jones but returned to action in the third period.

Sam Mulholland sent his club in front at 14.47 when he stole the disc at his own blueline and streaked in on goal alone to confuse by Johnston. The teams were playing four aside at the time with Taylor and Therrien sitting out majors for fighting. Taylor had the best of the short battle.

Jones and Pelchat left at 1.20 of the third period for fighting and at 4.43, Backstrom cut across the front of the Belleville net and flipped a backhand shot by Barclay. He notched the deciding marker at 13.36 on a passing play with Boucher and Pronovost drawing helpers. Barclay kicked out several shots before Johnston finally poked a rebound to the corner.

Jones drew his third penalty of the game at 15.31 and with Day also off, the TPT's played two men short for a short time without trouble. Barclay was pulled from the nets with 10 seconds left in the game in favor of six attackers but to no avail.

This was the second victory in as many nights for the Canadiens over senior "B" clubs, having defeated Kingston Goodyears 5-3 on Wednesday.

Saturday night finds Tony Parisi, Bob Wilson, Vern Goyer, Keith MacDonald and Dave Jones at the city's Belleville club in Kingston for the annual All-Star game against the Goodyears. Likely several of the Peterborough players will also be representing last year's Litlock club.

The teams:

Montreal: Johnson, Ruel, Longarini, Pelchat, McNitt, Kennedy, Richard, Backstrom, Dumouchelle, Laforge, Trepanier, Courcy, Therrien, Richardson, Harbinson, Pronovost, Tardif, Annable.

Belleville: Parisi, Harding, Barclay, Wilson, Mulholland, Goyer, MacDonald, D. Jones, Fyrja, Leonard, Hill, Cox, Batchelor, Taylor, Schreiber, McMaster.

Referees: Dick Fitzpatrick and Don Barrett.

Wilderness of Brazil Appeals To Janet Gaynor, Gil Adrian

McCarthy Offers Bright, Bouncy Film Parade

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The two persons you would least expect to find settling in the wilderness of Brazil are Janet Gaynor and Gilbert Adrian.

Yet the famed fashion designer and his wife, first winner of the Academy Award, have just returned from nine months at their new home, 1,000 miles inland from Rio de Janeiro. And after the first of the year they'll be heading back for another lengthy stay.

What prompts two people who have led active professional lives to leave civilization behind?

"We fell in love with the place," Miss Gaynor related. "We went down there for the Brazil film festival in January of 1954.

"A friend of ours was flying inland to look over some property and asked us to go along. So we did. Our friend didn't find the place she wanted, but we did."

"Everything seemed ideal," Adrian continued. "It wasn't too much like a jungle. The place had been cleared for coffee growing. It seemed like the perfect location for our painting."

MARY MARTIN AGREES

Their enthusiasm for their new home is contagious. In fact, they have already converted one famous family — Richard Halliday and Mary Martin.

"We thought we had chosen the place quickly," Miss Gaynor said laughed. "We had been there about a week before we decided we wanted to live there. Dave and Mary came one afternoon and left the next morning. They saw it in the daylight only about six hours. But they told us we had to find them a place to live there."

Now the Hallidays own the next farm. Miss Gaynor said they plan to go there after Miss Martin does her telecast of "Peter Pan" in January.

There is road transportation from the coast, but air travel is regular and more satisfactory.

Movies are better than ever.

The fall's biggest, brightest bounciest parade of film favorites at the McCarthy Odeon theatre is proof positive that there is more fun at the movies.

Do you like musicals? The McCarthy has "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" coming soon. It is a gala comedy by Anita Loos, author of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and starring luscious Jane Russell and her gallivanting girl friend Jeanne Crain. CinemaScope and technicolor, naturally. How else could you do justice to the lavish sets, the gorgeous scenes and big, swinging musical numbers?

"Value for Your Money" is J. Arthur Rank's latest girl-studded comedy. John Gregson is the man pursuing Diana Dors, England's answer to Marilyn Monroe, in this engaging romp.

If it's action and a warm love story you are after, Alan Ladd and June Allyson team up in "The McConnell Story", the true story of America's first jet air ace. Cinema-Scope and Warnercolor give sky-high dimensions to the wide sweep of a jet fliers' true adventures.

John Wayne fans can relax. He is coming — and with Laurent Bacall — in a sizzling drama entitled "Blood Alley". Wayne, captain of a meandering merchantman, goes ashore at Chiku Shan, China, to find Miss Bacall and 450 Chinese trying to escape the Reds. Director William Wellman of "Wings and the Mighty" fame, handles the ensuing flight for life with spine-tingling intensity. CinemaScope and Warnercolor add frosting to the cake.

Or, if you are still with us, try "The Night My Number Came Up," a J. Arthur Rank thriller of terror in the air with Michael Redgrave, Alexander Knox and Sheila Sim.

"Summertime," with Katharine Hepburn and Rossano Brasi, is an Academy Award-type picture that does for Venice what "Roman Holiday" did for Rome. Miss Hepburn is the American tourist in Venice who finds time on her hands and Brasi in her heart, eventually. Technicolor, naturally.

"Seven Cities of Gold" is the story of the fabulous, legendary cities of gold that led the Spanish Conquistadores to California before overland settlement from the West and the famous gold rush of 1849. CinemaScope, technicolor and stereophonic sound bring the sights, colors and sounds of one of America's most exciting periods to grand and glorious life in "Seven Cities of Gold."

Still, like a Western with a difference? The stranger in town, in this one, pardner, is a lady. "Strange Lady in Town," Mervyn LeRoy's latest, stars Greer Garson and Dana Andrews. Greer is the girl who arrives in Santa Fe as a stranger. She doesn't make strange, too long, with Dans. It's a CinemaScope, technicolor recreation of the Old West with two of Hollywood's top stars in a story that is different.

For music, laughter, tense and heart-warming adventure, the fall cavalcade of hits at the McCarthy Odeon theatre is your best bet, yet.

WAS WORLD CHAMPION

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joseph Lorcelin, 45, who used the name of Midget Wolgast when he was world flyweight boxing champion in the 1930s, died Wednesday.

The 115-pound ex-champion won the world title on March 21, 1930, by decisioning the late Black Bill. He held the title five years, losing it in 1935 to Small Montana of the Philippines.

AT THE McCARTHY — Audie Murphy, right, is shown prior to entering World War II in Universal-International's Technicolor-CinemaScope production "To Hell and Back" now at the McCarthy Theatre. Murphy enlisted in World War II and emerged from that conflict as America's most decorated war hero.

ROCKY WINS AWARD

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano won the "professional athlete of the month" award for September, it was announced Thursday. The heavyweight champion easily outvoted Johnny Podres and Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Marciano thus became the first former winner to qualify for a second shot at the "professional athlete of the year" award.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, Oct. 22, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Influences are generally friendly for work and business interests, also for home and family situations. Enjoy a hobby, healthy sport with family, good friends in free time.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — If tired of the same activities or routine, try some new diversion in order to relax. But don't discard old methods and good habits just for the sake of variety. Be sound ly purposeful.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — There no doubts about accomplishing the worthwhile this fine day but, of course, you will have to work, too. And you will need consistency of effort. Concentrate on essentials.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — You may be found yourself pressed for time, may have half dozen demands made upon you in the recent past. If so, take today's free hours for rest and relaxation.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Grand Sun influences coupled with good Moon rays give you no excuse for not achieving and enjoying this inspiring day. Duties and earnest recreation both favored.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Your Mercury's aspect now stresses extra care in all matters requiring observation, analysis and judgment. Otherwise day favors wholesome pleasures, exercise, all necessary work.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Mildly favorable Venus rays from yesterday and benefic Moon and Sun aspects promise a happy and productive day if you keep physically fit and in a pleasant mood.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — No need for worry this stimulating, beneficial day. Of course, recklessness and arrogance are taboo. You can gain more by intelligent persuasion than by force.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Activities requiring physical prowess and endurance under Saturn and Mercury. Mechanical trades highly favored. More care urged in personal affairs.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Excellent influences from the Sun and your Saturn rays are encouraging for private interests, for industry, trades, mining, handling machinery, building and generally useful projects.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Do not make sudden decisions or shift from well-planning matters to something untried. But the day, on the whole, should spur you on to achievement.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — A good period in which to advance in your usual occupation, to seek advice on new matters that could result in profit now or later. Don't question your ability; give it full scope.

You born today are intuitive to a high degree, possess numerous talents, could be a leader at work as efficiently underscholastic. You have inherent ability for mechanics, carpentry, managing groups of people, caring for children or those hospitalized. These are a part of your finer side. Faults? A few, but they can be corrected readily by you. You may tend to extravagance, to live too luxuriously, to over — indulge in rich foods and beverages. Guard against quick temper. Keep studying, improving your status. Birthdate: Sarah Bernhardt, Fr. actress; Franz Liszt, Hungarian pianist, composer.

Boxing Brass Refuses to Reinstate Non-Talkative Members of Guild

NEW YORK (AP)—You'll have to wait until next Friday for the next chapter in the case of the elusive bank account—or what happened to the York Boxing Guild's money?

The answer may not even be supplied then although Julius Helfand most certainly will pop the question. Helfand is chairman of the state athletic commission which is conducting a general inquiry into the affairs of boxing. That's what it's called although it's not expected to go very deeply into the affairs of the guild to see what makes it tick.

Helfand resumed the inquiry Thursday after a summer recess and heard three witnesses testify to their enormous lack of knowledge of the affairs of the guild.

The three were Cus d'Amato, vice-president of the guild and manager of light heavyweight contender Floyd Patterson; Bobby Melnick, a member of the guild's executive board and manager of middleweight contender Ralph (Tiger) Jones, and Bobby Nelson, who said he was just a plain member of the guild.

All three were suspended indefinitely by Helfand last June for refusing to testify about the guild on advice of counsel. After they talked Thursday, d'Amato and Melnick asked to be reinstated and were turned down by Helfand. Nelson hasn't any fighters now and he didn't bother to. He'll have his lifted.

Although they are officers of the guild, both d'Amato and Melnick testified they didn't know where the guild got its money, didn't know how much money the guild had, and didn't know who had elected them to their five-year terms as members of the executive board.

D'Amato testified that as vice president he signed checks made out to the International Boxing Guild, parent body of the local which operates the country, but said he didn't know what the checks were about.

The chairman ordered d'Amato to produce at the next meeting the records of the guild, although d'Amato said he didn't know where they were. Helfand said he would have been subpoenaed previously and not produced. D'Amato said he would call a meeting of the guild's executive board and see if he could get the records.

Record Crowd for Grey Cup Mad Scramble on for Tickets

TORONTO (CP)—East and West, the mad scramble is on for tickets for the Grey Cup game that this year will attract the largest crowd ever to watch a football game in Canada.

The plea, "Where can I get a couple of Grey Cup tickets," is being heard everywhere by the country's greatest sports classic little more than a month away. The climax will be reached on the week-end even though the game has been shifted from Toronto to Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

Ticket offices here are expected to jam the country's largest stadium for the final Nov. 26. There's a seating capacity for 31,500 and 2,000 standing-room tickets will be sold. The previous high was the 32,127 set at the Empire Stadium last Sept. 10 in a regularly scheduled Western Interprovincial Football Union game.

VANCOUVER ONLY

The fans across the country won't get a crack at the Grey Cup tangle here. They all will be distributed in Vancouver.

Jack Gallagher, Canadian Rugby Union secretary and in charge of the Vancouver distribution head, said Thursday: "I expect every seat to be sold and every request for tickets to be taken."

Football officials in the East say basic troubles in securing tickets for tickets still are with them. Naturally the clamor isn't as great as when the game was in Toronto, but a lot of eastern fans still want tickets.

The tickets will be divided on the same basis as the 1954 game in Toronto's Exhibition Stadium. The Big Four Football Conference, the Canadian Rugby Football Union, the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

NOW IT'S OPPOSITE

The difference is that this year 5,000 of the CRU block go to the East and 5,000 to the East—the opposite to when the game was played in Toronto.

The Big Four and WIFU will give each club a certain number of tickets and then wait for a further distribution until after the league games are completed which clubs will be in the East-West final. The CRU will get 5,000 of the unsold tickets and the other teams a lesser amount depending on how they finish.

Besides drawing the largest football crowd in Canada's history, this year's game also will be the richest in CRU history. Total receipts from the game are expected to hit more than $250,000. The previous high in receipts was the 1953 game's $126,940.

Cuban Underdog Makes Jump To Big Time

NEW YORK (AP)—Isaac Logart, 22-year-old welterweight from Kid Gavilan's home town, makes the jump to the big time tonight against experienced Gil Turner at Madison Square Garden.

The young Cuban from Camaguey, latest idol of the metropolitan area's Latin colony, has won 27 of 34-to-5 underdog for the 10-rounder.

Logart has been knocking out there opponents, He once fought a main event for $1.50 in Cuba, Tonight, he not only gets a chance to crash the spotlight but he'll pick up a check for about $1,000.

"This is my big chance," he says. "All the time I want to fight in the Garden like Kid Gavilan (his idol) and Kid Gavilan. I show I belong!" Cuban for "I can punch, uh-huh."

He is rearing to go but so is Turner. Gil, now 25, was only 22 when he was knocked out in 11 rounds by Gavilan when the champion was a challenger. That was his first defeat after 21 straight.

Although he is ranked as the No. 10 middleweight contender, the windmill swinger from Philadelphia said he is aiming for another shot at the 147-pound welterweight crown.

REDS GIVEN ASYLUM

SEATTLE (AP) — Almost boyishly exuberant and showing their joy with restraint, nine young Russian seamen found asylum in the United States Thursday night. They flew here from Formosa, admitted by Attorney-General Herbert Brownell despite protests from the Russian government. The nine were among 20 in the crew of a Soviet junker who sought political asylum in Formosa after the ship was captured by the Nationalist Chinese last year.

Bud Smith Has Financial Woes

CINCINNATI (AP) — The financial troubles which often plague a boxing champion moved in on lightweight titleholder Bud Smith Thursday night.

He appeared before the Cincinnati boxing commission to collect a $2,000 check for his share of the gate on his face. He was happy, because he had squeaked out a victory over challenger Jimmy Carter in Wednesday night in 15 bruising rounds.

The smile became a bit frozen, however, when Smith's attorney delivered a court order attaching the check. It was issued on a complaint from promoter Sam Becker.

The attachment followed a suit filed earlier in the day by John Joiner, Cincinnati, who claims he is Smith's manager.

HOW NOT KNOW

Smith said before the fight he did not know just who were his managers. That statement was made to the commission when he was asked the status of Carmine Fiorello, Joiner and Becker, who had been acting as his co-managers.

Fiorello and Graziano are under investigation by the boxing commission in Pennsylvania because of alleged associations with underworld characters.

It then was decided to make out the check for the Carter fight to Smith, Joiner and Becker. There is a five-year contract with him in 1950. Graziano is in Smith's corner Wednesday night.

"HOUSTON'S HOME OF THE WEEK"

NHA SMALL HOUSE DESIGNS—The larger family will appreciate the roominess of this 1½-story house, designed by the Toronto architects, Wilson and Newton. The exterior lines are simple with the criss-cross mullion pattern of the full-length living room window being duplicated in the smaller windows of the front entrance.

The interior design of the house leaves little to be desired. The double clothes closets in three out of the four bedrooms, plus the linen cupboard and full bathroom on each floor ensure convenience for every member of the family. The open fireplace with a tile hearth adds a touch of luxury and creates a partial division between the living and dining areas.

The total floor area of this house is 1,491 square feet and the cubic measurement is 22,271 cubic feet. The exterior dimensions are 32 feet, four inches, by 30 feet. Working drawings for this plan, known as Design 413, are available at minimum cost from Houston's.

41st Parliament Returns to Work Next Tuesday

LONDON, (CP) — Burgess and Maclean . . . Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend . . . autumn budget. . . troubles in Cyprus . . . defence problems.

These among topics likely to be discussed by Britain's 41st Parliament which returns to work Tuesday after being in recess since July 29. The accumulation of subjects may make the next week a period of strain for Prime Minister Eden's Conservative government.

BIG BURDLE

The first big hurdle will be Wednesday's announcement and supplementary budget measures by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer. It is the first emergency budget since 1947 and the decision to present one—reported taken after a sharp struggle inside the cabinet—calls for special shadow in a country which remembers the austerity days after the Second World War.

The budget is being framed to deal with the old bogey, inflation. Britain is outwardly booming but is buying more abroad than she can sell.

Another likely talking point next week, if MPs can fit it in, will be the British- white paper on the ministry diplomatic Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean. The foreign office has come in for considerable criticism on its handling of the incident and a debate has been promised.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) —Attorney-General Roberts has appealed to Ontario police chiefs to "tackle and clean up the terrific loss of life, limb and property," on an Ontario highway.

In an address Friday night to the annual convention of chief constables of Ontario, Mr. Roberts appealed to motorists to co-operate in reducing highway accidents.

"Mend your habits and conform to the law. Accept your responsibility," he said. And he promised to "eliminate from the roads" all those who don't.

"Let me emphasize that the illegal and improper acts of a very small minority of drivers, be they due to carelessness or to criminal action, must not be allowed to continue to endanger the vast majority of competent and good drivers and the occupants of their vehicles."

He said his department has set a specific objective for the next year — a 5 per cent reduction in deaths, injuries and property loss and named eight areas where added traffic enforcement will be especially rigid.

They are the areas with the worst traffic records: the 50 miles of highway 2 between Belleville and Windsor; the 65 miles from London to Chatham; the 112 miles from London to Sarnia; the same stretch near Colborne; 10 miles east of Kingston and another on the Queen Elizabeth Way, especially between the Oakville and Bronte aldermen.

Mr. Roberts said that in September, 39 persons were killed and 3,111 injured on Ontario highways.

He said highways have a "risk and potential danger as great to each citizen as any, risk or danger in either of the two world wars."

In Ontario there were 62,500 traffic accidents in 1954, in which 1,045 persons were killed and 24,607 injured. Property damage totalled more than $25,000,000.

"From partial and incomplete figures for the current year . . . these high figures will be exceeded all along the line unless there is a marked change for the better for the balance of the year."

Mr. Roberts asked that his challenge be accepted by "every police person capable of understanding."

MULLIGAN ASKS REMOVAL AS VANCOUVER CHIEF

Police Commission Will Act on Request

VANCOUVER (CP)—Walter Mulligan wants out as Vancouver police chief.

He asked the police commission Friday to free him from the wrecking age of his career by ordering his dismissal.

Newspaper reports today said the commission will meet within 48 hours to act on the request.

Mr. Mulligan, 61, has served 20 years ago during a shake up brought on by charges of police corruption. The apparent cost to his administration comes with the chief himself accused of having links with the underworld.

In a letter to the commission, Mulligan, 51, referred to the royal commission—now under indefinite adjournment — which has been hearing the charges.

MAIN ASSET LOST

"It is a matter of public concern, particularly in relation to the commission I have here, that my status be clarified," he said.

"One of the main assets that a chief constable can contribute to his work is to be held in high esteem by the citizens as a whole.

"Because of recent events . . . I consider I cannot now fulfil the duties of the citizens of Vancouver I feel now has been greatly damaged."

The chief said it was for suggestions that he sought the board dismissal instead of resigning.

He has been on leave of absence since June 15. Former traffic superintendent Alan Rossiter is acting chief.

Chief Mulligan and his lawyer, Hon. J. W. de B. Farris, walked out of the royal commission investigation Oct. 12. The lawyer claimed the chief almost had been destroyed "by the excess of gossip and hearsay . . . a permitted at this inquiry."

That same day witness Helen Elizabeth Douglas repeated her story of a five-year association with the chief, which she said began during which, she said, he showered her with gifts and told her of a $38,000 nest-egg saved from gambling payoffs.

The royal commission investigation followed the suicide attempt of Detective Len Cuthbert, former head of the gambling squad who recovered to testify that he shared graft with the chief and other officers.

At the time of the Cuthbert wounding, articles appearing in the Toronto weekly Saturday Night charged that Chief Mulligan and other senior officers were guilty of graft and corruption.

Margaret Radiant, Smiling After 6 Hours With Townsend

LONDON (Reuters) — Peter Townsend left London this morning to exercise race horses at Epsom Downs. Princess Margaret prepared to open a church community centre in London's east end.

The divorced airman left his borrowed London apartment to go riding only 6½ hours after spending the evening with the 25-year-old princess at the home of friends.

Before leaving town, the 41-year-old air attache told reporters: "I am going to Epsom and shall be returning before lunch."

Margaret Friday night returned radiant and smiling through pouring rain to Clarence House, her London home, after the meeting with Townsend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brand, members of Margaret's personal circle of friends.

It was the second night in a row that they had eaten supper at the home of friends. On each occasion, the visits lasted about six hours.

Another guest at the Brands' home Friday night was Baron Pierre Carter, with whom Margaret and Townsend dined earlier in the week.

The couple took pains to keep their latest meeting secret.

The princess arrived first at Brands' unpretentious Georgian house soon after her black Rolls Royce sped out of Clarence House at 6:30 p.m. and dodged carloads of reporters attempting to follow.

Townsend, leaving behind his conspicuous green car, was driven to the Brands' home by Bochan Carter and arrived about 20 fie later after the princess.

Noi until the princess' private detective was reported outside was it confirmed that the couple were together again.

Shortly after 1 a.m. the princess left the four-storey cream house with her lady-in-waiting.

She smiled as she sat back in her waiting car while photographers, who kept a night-long vigil outside the house popped off their flash bulbs.

Earlier, Margaret had made a public appearance when she stood in the rain near Buckingham Palace, to watch her sister, Queen Elizabeth, unveil a statue of their father, the late King George VI.

Bracken Liquor Commission Report Political Hot Potato

WINNIPEG (CP)—A caucus of Liberal-Progressive members of the Manitoba legislature has been called for Nov. 1, to try to get political hot potato—the report of the Bracken liquor inquiry commission.

What is one of the most sizzling issues ever to come before the government arrived Sept. 3 when the five - member commission, headed by former premier John Bracken, presented its main recommendations for a government study.

Coming from a commission whose membership was predominantly tee-total, the recommendations were considered a surprise. They call for legislation enabling municipalities to hold local-option votes on whether to allow the sale of beer, wine and liquor by the glass to look in bars and women in five new types of outlet.

At present beer is sold by the glass in men's beer parlors. Women may drink beer or wine in the private clubs but there is no legal sale of liquor by the glass except in service clubs.

Suggested legislation would permit, without local option, mixed drinking of beer and wine in high-standard restaurants; beer in licensed grocery stores adjoining these restaurants, beer, wine and liquor in first-class dining rooms and cocktail rooms under the same roof and beer, wine and liquor in cabarets provided meals and live entertainment.

These were only a few of the 116 recommendations presented. Next weekend the commission is expected to turn over a full report which will include the background reasoning behind the commission's recommendations.

Because of the delay in presenting this section the government has had to mark time, but with so far to go for the second for reactions.

Pre-caucus talk in the legislature corridors indicates some strong opposition by a small group of dryS within the party. However, the report is expected to receive general approval from the government members as a whole.

A newspaper poll of all members of the 57-seat House showed a majority favored implementing the recommendations.

The Manitoba Temperance Alliance has preferred to withhold comment until the full report is received.

But some opposing factions have already fired a few shots. Most vociferous against some of the major recommendations have been Rev. Archibald Matheson, United Church of Canada and the Manitoba Hotel Association.

A. R. Mutchmor of Toronto, secretary of the United Church board of evangelism and social service, during a recent sermon from a Winnipeg pulpit and in a follow-up interview, said the legislature should reject the major recommendations.

The hotel association charged hotel-keeping discrimination against with the 10 p.m. closing outlets would be permitted to remain open until midnight.

Killed by Train

TORONTO (CP)—A 12-year-old boy with a rabbit's foot in his pocket was killed Friday night when struck by a CNR passenger train in suburban Lorne Park.

Police said a witness told them the boy, John Lake, stopped his bicycle at a crossing for a westbound freight. The caboose had just cleared the crossing and the warning signals were still flashing, the witness said, when the boy skirted the gate and rode into the path of the eastbound passenger train. The train hurled him 97 feet away.

1,200 BREWERY WORKERS TO VOTE ON ENDING STRIKE

Company and Union Agree on Settlement

TORONTO (CP) — Twelve hundred Ontario brewery workers will vote this weekend on whether to end their strike against Canadian Breweries Ltd., in five cities.

Company and union negotiators reached agreement on a new contract Friday night, less than two days after the strike was called.

A union spokesman said leaders will recommend acceptance of the contract at meetings in Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener, Waterloo and Windsor. Details of the agreement were withheld until the meetings.

The settlement left the way open for talks between the union, the United Brewery Workers CIO-CCL and Brewery Warehousing Co.

The 1,200 drivers, warehousemen and clerks who operate the province's retail stores and deliver beer to hotels for brewers' warehousing voted last week to strike to back the demands similar to those asked of Canadian Breweries. The talks are to start here today.

ASKS WAGE INCREASE

The union asks a 15-cent-hourwage increase, a 40-hour work week, standard store hours, certain vacations, pensions and other benefits. Retail stores in Windsor, London, Hamilton, Kitchener and Toronto are now open from noon to 8 p.m. The union wants hours from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. to conform with hours in the rest of the province. Saturday night's settlement came after retail stores restricted sale of beer to quarts or two or 24 pints to a customer.

The strike which started Wednesday midnight closed 60 per cent of the province's brewing capacity. Canadian Breweries operations at Ottawa and a small Carling plant in Ottawa were not affected because workers there signed a new two-year contract several weeks ago.

The contract gives them a five-cent-an-hour wage increase and other benefits which the company said are equal to a gain an hour the first year and 23 cents an hour the second year.

Doctors, Patients Must End Excess Use of Service

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. J. C. C. Dawson of Peterborough, president-elect of the Ontario Medical Association, said Friday night doctors and patients alike must stop misusing and demanding unnecessary medical care.

He told association members at a meeting of the OMA's District 14 here that unnecessary care must be curtailed if prepaid medical plans are to continue their present coverage.

He said the OMA's prepaid plan Physicians' Services Inc., is faced with rising costs due in part to unnecessary services, patients over-utilization by some patients.

"We must be prepared to provide a reasonable schedule of fees and render only the amount of service that is necessary for the patient to be treated. The subscriber in turn should attempt to limit the amount of service as if paying the doctor privately."

Disarmament Body Rejects Soviet UN Debate Move

Martin Questions Russian Intent in Seeking Meeting

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Russia's move to have a full-dress UN debate on disarmament in advance of the Geneva foreign ministers conference was overwhelmingly defeated Friday.

All members of the 12-nation UN disarmament commission except Russia itself opposed a full discussion at this time. Britain's Minister Paul Martin, chief of the Canadian UN delegation, questioned the Soviet intent in requesting the meeting.

Russia's expressed purpose was to assure the commission an "opportunity to consider the report of its disarmament subcommittee, which adjourned two weeks ago after meeting here for five weeks, and to compile its own report to the UN assembly.

NOT NEEDED FOR STUDY

Western spokesmen were unanimous in their view that time would be needed to assess the sub-committee's report. Its 6,000 pages had only been released Friday morning. They contended further it would not be wise to discuss disarmament until the Big Four, foreign ministers have had a chance to meet with it in Geneva when they start Oct. 27.

However it was predicted that the commission will hold at least one more meeting before the Geneva conference to examine the controversial topic. Russia's Arkady Sobolev introduced the motion Nov. 1 and is expected to call a meeting soon after he takes the floor.

Martin said Friday's session with a statement that it was the commission's duty to report without delay to the assembly. He claimed that a UN disarmament debate would assist rather than interfere with the Geneva discussions.

NO RUBBER STAMP

Canada's Martin said he found it difficult to assess the intention of Russia in calling for the meeting. He agreed with Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand and Anthony Nutting of Britain, who said the commission must not become a "rubber stamp" for the big-power subcommittee.

The 11 members of the Security Council plus Canada are being invited on the disarmament commission. The sub-committee is composed of representatives of Canada and the Big Four.

Martin accused Russia of delaying disarmament progress by refusing to accept President Eisenhower's plan for reciprocal air reconnaissance and exchange of military information.

He said it was his understanding that Russia believes any step toward disarmament must await agreement on a full program, including the prohibition of nuclear weapons.

"This means, in effect, that unless we can agree on everything at the same time . . . we should agree on nothing, not even those things which we are all agreed could be done and which would facilitate progress towards achievement of our ultimate goal."

Police Convicted Hewlett's Killer — His Gunman

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today they convicted the killer of Walter Hewlett is a professional gunman.

Hewlett, 39-year-old clerk, was shot Thursday night in an unsuccessful hold-up of a beer store where he worked.

Police said several facts support their theory: the gunman showed no hesitancy in shooting Hewlett; he calmly stepped over the victim's body; he walked slowly away from the store after the holdup; he apparently did not throw away his gun.

Police said a search for the gunman will be carried without let-up. A $4,000 reward has been offered for the gunman's capture.

CLAIMS TO BE KILLER

A man police said Friday night told them he was the killer. Police said, however, they had no way of telling whether the caller was just a crank or not.

They quoted him as saying, "I didn't want to shoot. I didn't want to kill anyone. I'm scared now and I'm going to give up."

Detectives are concentrating their search for the gunman in the west-central area, where the beer store is located. They think the gunman may live near there since he apparently knew the vicinity.

Man's Ability to Destroy Himself Worries Prime Minister St. Laurent

HAMILTON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Friday night man's ability to destroy himself "seems at times to have outstripped his ability to solve the problems which arise between him and his fellow men."

Mr. St. Laurent, the 128th convocation of arts and science of McMaster University, Mr. St. Laurent stressed the importance of clear thinking and the necessity of universities continuing to nurture the arts and humanities.

Mr. St. Laurent and Mayor Lloyd Jackson of Hamilton received honorary doctorate of law degrees. Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada was installed as university chancellor.

Mr. St. Laurent said the federal government is constantly examining "the best means of providing financial assistance to universities."

Chancellor Kellock warned the academic world itself against the perpetuation of mediocrity.

"Not only must we have to teach the arts and the sciences to a multiplying mass of pupils, they have also to be set to a considerable degree in the place of the family, the church and the community and to be the bearers of the traditions and disciplines of civilized life."

Mayor Jackson said that in honoring him the university was also honoring and recognizing the importance of local government, not only in Hamilton but in 900 municipalities in Ontario and others across Canada.

'Borrowed' Hearts and Lungs Aid in Congenital Heart Defects

NEW ORLEANS. (AP) — "Borrowed" hearts and lungs appear promising as aids in the surgical battle against congenital heart defects in children, a team of University of Minnesota surgeons reported.

They told the annual scientific meeting of the American Heart Association Friday that since March, 1954, 43 children have undergone surgery with the aid of "controlled cross-circulation" — a method in which the patient, in effect, "borrows" the heart and lungs of a donor lying beside him in the operating room. The method was developed by a Minnesota team.

The idea of the technique is to interconnect the blood systems of two persons so that such a way that the blood supply to the patient's heart and lungs can be cut off without endangering his life. This allows surgeons to operate within the heart in a virtually bloodless field.

Dr. H. E. Warden and several colleagues said that two-thirds of the 43 children survived and now have comparatively normal hearts.

Most of the operations were defects in the muscular wall separating the heart's right and left chambers.

National Ballet Comes to City In Fine Program

The music of Chopin and Tchaikowsky, the rousing choreography of Anthony Tudor and all the splendor of Canada's National Ballet Guild of Canada will feature the Guild's evening of ballet in the Belleville Collegiate auditorium Monday, November 14th, at 8.30 p.m.

Sixty-five musicians and dancers, under the sponsorship of the Belleville Theatre Guild, will present "Les Sylphides," "Line Garden" and "Offenbach in the Underworld."

"Les Sylphides" is a romantic ballet to the music of Frederik Chopin. This ballet was first presented in 1908 by the Russian Imperial Ballet and the choreographic material has since been produced in Paris in 1909.

"Line Garden" has been hailed by international critics as a modern classic ballet. First produced in London in 1936, "Line Garden" is a ballet of situations. Carefree, who must soon enter a marriage of convenience, attempts to say a lover farewell at a party being held in her illac garden. The continual interruption of friends and family prevents the parting.

The Yeoman in Caroline's fiance's past further complicates the plot.

SET IN PARIS

"Offenbach in the Underworld," Anthony Tudor's delightful ballet to the music of Tchaikowsky, is set in Paris in the 1870's-in a place where people come to be amused either.

A debutante of good family, accompanied by three friends, arrives veiled in order not to be recognized in a place which is "out of bounds." An operetta star, her admirers, a grand duke and a penniless dancer are among those in attendance.

Night life in a continental cafe is the theme, with the veiled young ladies, a business-like French can-can and a lover's waning fight providing the action and a rousing finale.

All seats for the Guild's performance are reserved.

Tickets at $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50 are now available from The National Ballet Guild, Box 21, Belleville, from Monday, Oct. 24th. The box office opens at the Bridge St. East, Belleville on Monday, Nov. 7th. All tickets are being distributed on a first-come-first-served basis.

Mr. C. B. Morgan, the president, referred to a communication from Mr. Wm. Hollis Park regarding amendments to the by-laws. Discussion and recommendations followed.

A message was read from Mr. R. L. Dafoe, Q.C., Toronto, who is chairman of the committee on investigation of Children's Aid Society, stating the work of the committee is in progress but not yet completed. Mr. Dafoe asked Mr. Peterkin, chairman of committee on "Services to Unmarried Parents," made a similar report. Mr. H. W. Jackson, Q.C., reported he completed report on his committee's work on other services.

The financial statement was presented by Mr. C. L. Hyde was approved by the members of the board.

Mr. Morgan spoke of the campaign for the Community Chest for which the members are working. Several campaigns have already completed their allotment.

Mr. Keyes stated the campaign headquarters have been supplied by his office with information for the campaign.

It has been the practice of the society, Mr. Morgan said, to have a society-owned car each year. This year was no exception and a committee was appointed to look into this.

The secretary, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, read a letter from Mrs. Jean Watson Fisher tendering her resignation from the board, as she expects to be out of town for some time. It was the general opinion of the board members that they should ill afford to lose her valuable service and interest and the secretary was asked to write to Mrs. Watson suggesting she remain on the board. Information of the society's plans is to be sent to her in the hope that she will be able to attend the board meetings upon her return to Belleville.

Radio Auction Program Planned By Y's Men

The 1955 Radio Auction of the Y's Men's Club was planned at the Thursday meeting. Under the auspices of the Y's Men's Club the fund raising committee an ambitious program is to be undertake the club's most ambitious annual project. With the co-operation of over 200 Belleville business firms, who contribute merchandise and cash, committee chairman Vern Flindall and his committee an evening long auction will be held in the Y.M.C.A. through the medium of C.J.B.Q. and telephones.

Plans for a ladies' night in the form of a Hallowe'en Party were discussed by social chairman Hugh Watson and it was announced that prizes will be given for the best Hallowe'en costume.

Jim Pearson announced that the boys' work committee were instituting an award titled "Youth of the Month" to be made to the outstanding boy in the Belleville and community. A panel of judges will choose the award winner each month from nominations submitted.

Park, Recreational Needs Survey Will Be Requested

Thirty citizens, at a meeting in city hall on Friday afternoon, decided upon a city-wide survey to ask for the formation of a committee to survey park and recreational needs and present facilities.

It was proposed that the committee be made up of representatives of the council, parks board, recreation commission, arena board, citizens-at-large, such as architects, horticulturalist and so forth who could contribute opinion and advice to the committee.

The committee's job was broadly outlined as being that of meeting committee to correlate all available information so that recommendations concerning maintenance and expansion of parks and recreational facilities could be presented to council for consideration.

It is felt the committee to approach council to ask for formation of a committee, such as outlined above, were P. C. McGuire, Lou Kelly, Paul Wiegand, Dr. Boyd Upper and J. Morgan and Charles Cawker.

Members of the committee followed remarks by Kenneth Young Hall that it done you could have any sound plan."

Discussing those present followed Mr. Young's remarks with Alderman Enos David moving that a committee be named to ask council to approve formation of a committee to survey parks and recreational facilities.

Council members attending the meeting were Aldermen Forrester, Tice, Keegan and David.

"There is no standard means of coordinating them from the provincial level," said Mr. Young. "Co-ordination is only possible from within the community."

He explained that amendments to existing legislation were passed in 1954 "making it possible to fix the functions of them (parks, recreation and arena management) together by appointing the same people to all three boards."

Besides some entires have a single administrative body with a commissioner in charge and superintendents for each division, Mr. Young said that any such plan locally should be approached warily.

He suggested an alternative in which a co-ordinating committee of two members from the parks board and two from the recreation commission would act as a guiding and counselling body for both agencies.

"A starting point, I suggest, is a survey or assessment of the parks being done by the parks board and the recreation commission. Find out what they've done together; where co-ordination would produce improvement. Until that is done you can't make any sound plan."

Discussing those present followed Mr. Young's remarks with Alderman Enos David moving that a committee be named to ask council to approve formation of a committee to survey parks and recreational facilities.

Council members attending the meeting were Aldermen Forrester, Tice, Keegan and David.

Two closing rallies are slated in the Lorne F. Fox Party Salvation Army Healing Crusade Sunday, in the Collegiate Auditorium at 7.30 p.m. the evangelistic group will conduct the farewell rally of three weeks' of services, which has witnessed the Auditorium's seating facilities taxed beyond capacity.

Complimentary tickets have been issued to cover all but approximately two hundred seats for the closing rally, the tickets being borrowed until 7.30 p.m. The Fox Party Musicale Ensemble will present an outstanding musical program, featuring an original sacred music Cantata written by Mrs. Lorne F. Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

I LOVE THY KINGDOM, LORD

I love Thy kingdom, Lord,
The house of Thine abode,
The Church our blest Redeemer saved
With His own precious blood.

I love Thy Church, O God:
Her walls before Thee stand,
Dear as the apple of Thine eye,
And graven on Thy hand.

For her my tears shall fall;
For her my prayers ascend;
To her my cares and toils be given,
Till toils and cares shall end.

Sure as Thy truth shall last,
To Zion shall be given
The brightest glories earth can yield
And brighter bliss of heaven.

In 1777, a 25-year-old Yankee chaplain—Timothy Dwight—was writing hymns and songs to cheer American soldiers between battles in the Revolutionary War.

Just 20 years later, as president of Yale College, that same Dwight led-in-poet composed a glorious and enduring hymn, "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord", which even today has a precious place in all the great hymnals of the church universal.

Dr. Dwight, who was born at Northampton, Mass., on May 14, 1752, became one of New England's most prominent clergymen and educators. He was one of America's first hymn writers and was a grandson of Jonathan Edwards, famous Puritan preacher.

Entering Yale College as a lad of 13, young Timothy was graduated with honors four years later. He held a tutor's position for a while but resigned it to become an Army chaplain. In 1781, when the Revolutionary War ended, he accepted a pastorate at Greenfield, Conn., and continued this ministry until 1795. Then, he was called to the presidency of the college where, 20 years before, he had begun his studies.

In 1797, at the request of the General Congregational Association of Connecticut, whose members wanted some more suitable hymns for worship, Dr. Dwight made a revision of the Psalms of Isaac Watts. In so doing, he gathered up and included in the volume which he published in 1800 more than 250 hymns of popular English hymnists of the day, adding 3 of his own songs. "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord" was the best of his own compositions.

included answer is the brief one given by Coleridge when he said, "The Bible finds us." Give it time and the Bible overtakes even those who run away from it.

The Bible follows us because it finds and answers the deepest hungers of our natures. However full of food our bodies may be, and however full of activities our lives may be, in our truest moments we experience hungers which surface living does not satisfy.

Daily living is a drain on our strength. Its problems put a strain on our spirits. We must have intake as well as outgo. And that needed nourishment is not to be found in speeded sensations and spiced pleasures, but rather in radiant ideals and godly lives. Nowhere are these given us with such power and profusion as in the Bible. It sets before us the very bread of life.

One of our abiding hungers which must be fed is the hunger for faith. We want to see what is ahead. We crave to know where we are going, and we want the power to keep going. Back in the depression of the 1930's a young man said to me: "The earliest memories I can recall are those of cutting out war pictures as a kid in World War I. Then I was sent to school in the jazz era of the 1920's and graduated from Harvard in 1929. That fall we were thrown into a depression. I have never lived through what you would call normal times. What I need is something to believe in, something to hold to." Well, he found it through the Bible. And I have watched him develop into a fine churchman and community leader.

UNIVERSAL LONGING

We understand the mood of homesick, young John Henry Newman when he wrote, "Lead kindly light, amid the encircling gloom . . . The night is dark and I am far from home." That hymn has become one of the world's favorites because it voices a universal feeling. We are haunted by the feeling that we are far from the true home of our souls, far from the goal God meant for us.

In the hymn Newman said, "One step enough for me." And here the Bible helps. It throws light on the next step of duty. In my pastoral visits, how often I have seen well-thumbed Bibles with many passages underscored in red. Unconsciously good folk have found the Bible "a lamp unto their feet" for daily living.

Also, as the Psalmist said, the Word is a light unto my path. It gives guidance for the long road as well as the next step. The Bible which grandfather kept beside his bed is the book on which the President of the United States takes his oath of office.

I think it was William McKinley who tapped the Bible in the White House and said, "No one will ever sit in this chair who does not believe in God." We might add that no President will ever be a safe guide for the nation without his Bible.

Bulletins from Birdland

DAY MIGRANTS

Although the majority of migrants choose night time for travel because it is necessary for them to feed while light lasts, certain kinds of birds are able to reverse this order. Of course, this is a great advantage for them. But they must be strong-winged, and have feeding habits that will allow them to change the general rule.

Swifts, swallows and nighthawks have small bills and enormous mouths, especially designed for scooping flying insects. Consequently, they can feed as they travel, sailing through the air with breakfast, dinner, and supper taken on the way. The birds fly at a good height for catching insects, and go around large bodies of water. They progress slowly, with a zig-zag course which ads considerably to the mileage. But they have all the hours of darkness for rest.

Birds of prey simply forge themselves when they get the chance, and are quite able to fast for a day now and again. Hawks, therefore, being fliers that are both strong and speedy, like to travel when it is light. On a light day in autumn large flocks of broad-wings, or Cooper's hawks, may be seen leaving eastern Canada.

MOST POWERFUL FLIERS

A very few species are obliged to travel both day and night because they migrate such very long distances. Naturally, they are among the most powerful fliers.

Golden plovers and Arctic terns come into this group. Each fall these plovers cross the wide expanse of Atlantic ocean from Nova Scotia to South America, with little Bermuda the only speck of land on the way. They must fly in both daylight and darkness to cover it. Arctic terns fly via the Atlantic from up near the North Pole to the Antarctic, always keeping over the ocean and sometimes crossing to the coast of Africa and then back to the western world.

Birds that do not go nearly as far as all that but which fly across Caribbean Sea can hardly make that jump in few hours. Hummingbirds cross the Gulf of Mexico, matter of 500 miles, in a single flight.

Ducks, geese, loons; cranes, pelicans, gulls, and a number of other water birds migrate sometimes by day, sometimes by night, because they are able to feed at any hour, and are not accustomed to hide for safety. Some of the divers (as ducks) generally travel over land at night and over water by day, submerging when in danger. Probably gulls, like hawks, are able to forego eating once in a while.

No wonder much preparation, change of clothes, fattening up, and so on, is necessary before migrants start on their fall flight.

A Lift For Living

Bible Is All-time Best Seller

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Last week was known as National Bible Week. No noisy demonstration greeted it. To many it was just another week. Hollywood producers did not compete for the exclusive rights to our best seller.

Once in a great while a book may sell a million copies. Certain plays and films can pack our theaters for a time. And ministers are often advised to copy the methods of the stage if they would draw crowds. Yet even phenomenal dramatic successes can only keep going a few years, while the drama of a Samaritan on the Jericho Road drew its listeners nineteen centuries ago and will be drawing the crowds nineteen hundred years hence.

Yes, the Bible is the book that follows us in time and place. When the Psalmist considered the universal reach of God's care, he sang: "If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall Thy hand lead me and Thy right hand shall hold me."

So amazingly did the writers of our sacred Scripture capture the Spirit of God, that the Bible has come to reach almost every section of the globe. It is estimated that nine-tenths of the people of the world can now hear the Bible in their own tongue.

A QUESTION OF ASSESSMENT

The Public School Trustees' Association wants the law changed to make it impossible for a municipal taxpayer to switch his classification from separate school supporter to public supporter or vice versa annually.

In many areas public schools offer certain specialized services which are not duplicated by separate schools. Most common example is shop training provided by industrial arts classes. Separate school supporters who have a child of kindergarten age frequently desire their child to get the benefit of such training. Very often this is arranged through the payment of fees. But apparently there have been instances where the separate school supporter has had his assessment changed to that of a public school supporter for one year only, while his child is in kindergarten.

It is quite probable that it never occurs to the separate school supporter that by following this procedure he is "short-changing" the public school board. He believes that, by switching his taxes to the public school, he is paying his way.

Public school trustees, however, declare that this is not so and the moment's reflection will serve to convince us that in this contention they are likely to be correct. Much depends, of course, on the value of the property on which the assessment is levied. Speaking generally, though, school taxes paid in any one year do not pay the full cost of educating the children in the taxpayers' family. The deficiency is made up by school taxes received on non-residential property and by school taxes paid on residential property which is not, for the time being, serving as the home of school age children.

The public school trustees apparently believe that it requires eight years' taxes on the average home to pay for one year's schooling in special classes, for that is the time the law to be changed to provide that eight years be the minimum period for which a change in classification of assessment is permissible.

One group sympathizes with the public school trustees' viewpoint and at the same time question any such arrangement.

After the child of a separate school supporter attends kindergarten in a public school, the child's schooling does not stop. It continues, in a separate school. We have all accepted the theory that school taxes should be paid by persons who are not sending children to school, but it does not follow that we should be ready to accept the opposite theory that a child should go to one school while his parents pay taxes to another.

This problem seems one which could best be solved by payment of fees, whether by the parents or by the separate school board, leaving a matter for decision by the separate school supporters.

This, incidentally, may be exactly what the public school trustees have in mind, for it would appear reasonable that to change the law such as they have suggested would be accepted without vigorous protest by separate school trustees.

LAW AGAINST WASTE

An Edmonton hunter has been fined $25 and costs for throwing away seven ducks which he shot. The prosecution was under a section of the game act which makes it an offence for anyone to take or kill any animal or bird suitable for food and then wilfully allow the flesh thereof to be destroyed or spoiled.

This case provides the material for the Edmonton Journal to indulge in some interesting editorial speculation. The Journal wonders, among other things, about the position of the housewife who throws out unwanted game because it is "unfit to handle" or "unfit to eat." Who determines what-is "suitable for food?"

The Journal concludes with the observation that the wisdom of Solomon is going to be tested if this provision of the game act is to be regularly enforced.

The reason behind the law is fairly obvious. It is designed as a conservationist measure, the theory being that it will encourage hunters to bring down more game, or catching more fish, than they can eat.

It is very doubtful, though, whether it has this effect. Those who pose good marksmanship will be loaded with more than he can eat merely gives the surplus away to his friends—who sometimes do not care for game or fish but who certainly cannot think of any way to gracefully decline the gift.

The law carries a strange implication, that men hunt or fish for the pot. This, of course, is not true of the majority of sportsmen or fishermen. They could buy meat, fowl or fish much more cheaply than they can shoot or catch it. Moreover, in many cases the code of a "sportsman" is that the quarry shall not be killed unless a sporting chance. For instance, one should not shoot a sitting duck or partridge.

Perhaps, therefore, considerable moral justification for the law and if we fail to note this it is because the law is too limited in its scope, rather than being too sweeping. In a world where many are starving it is criminal for any of us to wilfully waste good food, whether it be ducks or bread, pickerel or grapes.

It is, however, not always possible, or even advisable, to try to enforce a sound moral law in the courts. One may be tempted to suggest that, since the application of the law cannot be widened to include the waste of all food, it would be advisable to stop it as it applies to game. But if this were done there would always be the danger that some men who-enjoyed hunting, but did not like the taste of game, would merely kill ducks or deer and then leave them to rot. The present law does at least have the effect of forcing them to either eat their kill themselves or locate some person who will do so.

REBELLION

At seventy-four a man should be Allowed a little liberty,
Some freedom from the tightened knot
Of the imperative "must not,"
And be allowed with heart and mind
To disobey if so inclined.

If with a grandchild I step out
As me the mother starts to shout:
"Remember now! No lollypops.
No candy bar," the lemon drops!"
As if not sense enough had I

To know what grandpas ought to buy.
These parent warnings make me
tired.
You'd think no wisdom I'd acquired.
Rebellious? Yes. For goodness sake,
I'm old enough their rules to break.
A candy shop the street across?
I'll show them who is boss.

William B. Northrup, K. C., ex. M. P., died suddenly early today at his home in Ottawa. He was a member of the Conservative Party and represented the riding of East Hastings in the House of Commons for many years and retired in 1917. Eventually he was appointed Clerk of the Senate and Commons and took up permanent residence in Ottawa. He filled this office in highly satisfactory manner and some months ago retired on pension and received a substantial gratuity at that time. Mr. Northrup was for a number of years, having been born in this city on Oct. 19th., 1858. He was the only son of the late Hon. G. Northrup, who held the office of Clerk of Corporate Affairs and Crown Court here for many years. For many years Mr. Northrup personified law in this city; he was a pleasing and eloquent speaker; was married to the wife of the Rev. Dr. George, at one time minister of Bridge Street Presbyterian Church and now residing in the United States. In 1886 Mr. Northrup represented Ketchson Ward in the city council. He was also president of the Y.M.C.A. and served as church warden for several years.

Mrs. S. Benson spent the weekend with friends in Stirling.

The steamer North King which first entered this port many years ago under the name of the Norseman, will be taken from Kingston today by a pilot on her last trip down the St. Lawrence River to Sorel where she will be used as a ferry boat. For a long time the Norseman was a mail boat between Toronto and Kingston. Later her name was changed to the North King and her course was between Kingston and Charlotte, N.Y., and also a run through the 1000 Islands.

As an instance of the mildness of the weather this season the Intelligencer received today a basket of strawberries which were picked yesterday in the garden of Mr. A. McClatchie in this city. Some of the berries were large and deliciously ripe.

Some of the older residents now living here in 1935 will be interested in the following from our file copy at this time in 1895: The first football match this season for the Corby Cup between the Central and City teams was played on the grounds at the J.D & D. Institute (now in 1935 the Ontario School for the Deaf) resulted in a score of 6 to 1 in favor of the City team. The following composed the teams: City,—Collins, Diamond, Hawkins, Latimer, Twining, Jamieson, Faull, Hardy, Cummins, Kelso and Weller; Centrals,— Mackie, Fralick, Boyd, Fish, Carre, Hamilton, McGrath and Lang, Kane, Conger and Chown. The referee was H. Parker Thomas and he handled the game well.

At the regular meeting of Benjamin Loyal Orange Lodge No. 274 a degree team was formed with the following officers: president, F. M. Clarke; vice president, R. GO EASY

Gray paint can be very attractive. A room furnished in gray, or a gray suit or even gray hair may, under certain circumstances, be pleasant to look upon. Yet, of course, gray is just a mixture of black and white. It is really not a color at all.

But for some people there is no other color but gray. They go through life with a paint brush in hand and paint all they see gray paint in the other. "Blessed are the peace makers, for they shall be called the children of God." Yes, but not blessed are the appeasers. Blessed are the people with lots of white paint but not the people who want to spatter everything with gray. Some people's idea on how to settle a problem is to sit down at a table and, after ruling out every moral principle and all of one's plighted word and honor, come to a conclusion which appears to satisfy everybody, except the people who took the squeeze.

Black paint usually shocks the eyes. And the person who goes around with a bucket of black paint, giving a coat to people and situations, is indeed a nuisance. We all cross to the other side of the street when we see the crepe hanger coming. But the appeaser can be just as bad. We may use too much white paint or too much black paint, but most people use to much gray paint.

Go easy on gray.

Community Intelligence

(St. Catharines Standard)

It is sometimes well to remember that when it comes to attracting new industry, there are factors involved other than the usual ones like availability of serviced land, tax agreements, adequate school system, pool of labor, and the like.

Consider, also consider what kind of community life it has, what spirit exists there, what is has to offer that the newcomer will find duty hours. Has the community a good deal of civic pride, an evidence of progressive planning and orderly development? Do its citizens care about their town or city? Are there good recreational and cultural facilities?

We think St. Catharines is a good community, one that is best a good place to live and a good place to work. But we should all remember these other factors, and the impression they make on outsiders or potential newcomers.

The Brantford Expositor quotes Time Magazine: "Employers are also increasingly concerned with the kind of communities into which they transfer workers. A case in point is the example of Sylvania Electric Products, a firm shifting its plant to Sylvania, when scouting for new locations, surveys "the potential intelligence" of a community as well as its ability to provide for standard amenities, roads, roads and sewage plants.

"The 'intelligence' of a community is in so far as it can be measured as expressed in its civic vision and its deeds. And this is the task to be seen in whether it plans essential improvements as a matter of habit, well in advance, or dithers till the problem creeps up and then has to be met by emergency. Or it may be that allowing its park board and city council to function as a kind of a fine open space must not be surprised if a stranger questions his intelligence. And decides that his factory shall go elsewhere.

"Firms are looking for new locations are applying a different kind of yardstick than formerly did. Those communities that wake up to this fact and take steps accordingly will profit by getting ahead in the race for more payrolls, more prosperity and better living conditions."

Bob Edwards' Evened Score

(Ottawa Journal)

A visitor from the West has contributed a new story about the fabulous Bob Edwards, editor of the Calgary Eye Opener, the most outspoken and witty periodical in Western Canadian history.

Edwards had frequent bouts with John Barleycorn and received treatment from a tectotaller doctor whose abstinence principles irritated editor. The doctor had received a case of whiskey from an ill-informed patient and Edwards, in a comment where it remained forgotten until two days, complained and called to do carpentry work there.

The doctor, a candidate for public office, returned home in time to see the carpenters, singing merrily, making away with a bottle he had carried away. He awaited the next issue of the Eye Opener with justifiable apprehension. Its main heading was "Dr. — Is a Hypocrite", and Edwards was in error a story of the debauchery the doctor had permitted in his home.

The doctor didn't win that election.

Photograph Monopoly

(Winnipeg Tribune)

A group of photographers in Quebec province has been formed which it hopes the Quebec legislature will pass a law which would make things cosy — for this particular group of photographers.

The group wants to be set up as a "corporation" whose members alone would be permitted to take photographs in Quebec for a fee or salary. The association would be authorized to control the whole school of photography in the province. Graduates of this school would be forced to serve an apprenticeship to qualify for membership. Moreover, the association would be empowered to set wages, hours and working conditions.

In short, the group wants to set up a tight monopoly. There is no doubt that this particular group wants. It is getting so many cameras around, there is some doubt as to whether it is safe to look for a man to paint his own house.

The reason for setting up professional societies is legal entities and giving them closed-shop privileges is to protect the public. The purpose was to ensure that only qualified physicians, surgeons, dentists and lawyers could carry on practice in the community. This made good sense.

More and more, however, the interests of the public are being submerged and the interests of small groups (whose callings do not require much skill or training) benefit from the creation of such monopolies. And Manitoba is no exception.

Compliment May Be Insult

(The Times of London)

There is sometimes a rich confusion between compliment and insult which it takes some earnest explanations to resolve. An Englishman who has lived for a year in Baltimore recently described it as "a city of well-bred decay, crumbling with a sense of style," and went on hastily to add that he meant the words not as an insult but as a compliment. Baltimore, he implied, failed to take him at his word and is probably reflecting with some complacency on the evidence of progressive planning and orderly development. Do not its people care about their town or city? Are there good recreational and cultural facilities?

We think St. Catharines is a good community, one that is best a good place to live and a good place to work. But we should all remember these other factors, and the impression they make on outsiders or potential newcomers.

Poor Parents Preferred

One of the gruelling features of this absence is having to sit here at my desk mooning over the immediate and remote repercussions likely to occur if I say what I want to say in the way I want to say it—while five minutes away seventy or eighty loafers are happily gamboling on the bowling green, this beautiful, bright, balmy afternoon. This and other thought leads to another, namely, envy.

Why should I have to work, work, work every day like this when all the other old geezers are free to go out and play?

I could lead to still another thought, which runs like this: Are you kidding? You call it work babbling out seven columns a week, 52 weeks a year, in every year since Tonge was a colt?

No, I have to admit, I can't call that part of it anything but fun.

Well, then, just what am I crying about?

I do have three afternoons a week on the green, the year around and there are those weeks on which it rains.

Then I revert to the golden days of boyhood on Chapel Street in Canadaigua — the golden days being the days when Canandaigua was a village. Father was a blacksmith in the shop of Mr. Billings, where I loved to watch him hammering horses. But he fell into an accident one evening while pointing out the big dipper and the little dipper to a group of rads, sustained multiple fractures and never made a good enough recovery to resume horse-shoeing. He had to take a job as railroad crossing guard, which kept him on duty twelve hours a day, seven days a week, with never a day off unless he hired some one to hold the job for him.

Then I feel ashamed for complaining about anything. The reason father slaved like that for $30 or $35 a month was that it was the only job he could get, and he had four sons needed food, shelter and education. We received the education, all right, or as much education as we wanted, but some of us learned as much of history, literature, poetry, biography etc., as father did from three or four terms of school and much reading.

I say I feel a little ashamed because I know father would shake his head sadly and say "My boy, you should thank the Lord that you are in a position to do so much good for so many . . ."

That's what I appreciates would say too.

So I'll keep pounding away, trying to help other parents like my parents—parents whose wealth is measured in the lives are devoted to their children.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR LOVE OF DOGS

I never pass a dog without attempting to say a word. I like dogs, even those that have had their tails cut off to make them look smarter and "type" like they'd like to look upon them as they were born to look. I want them to like all dog, as I have always liked them.

I wish to quote Jerome K. Jerome's tribute to a dog, as published in his famous book, "Three Men in a Boat, Minus a Dog and an Idle Fellow." Here it is: "He is very impudent—a dog is. He never makes friends; he intrudes; he pushes about which they feel strongly, and runs after other dogs. Everyone, neither excruciatingly old fashioned nor unbearably pompous, who have known a dog will, on railway-carriage or other casual conversation by the compartment, ask him that they are familiar with the personalities and stock jokes of that rude comedians. To insult intended, of course, nonetheless, yet, in his life for ever will be—foolish, brainless, soulless dog!"

Stories of dogs are scattered by dozens in my library. Literature is rich with them by Galsworthy, Kipling, Carlyle, Bob Ross, Jr., Brown, John Burroughs, Jack London—Who can not name them. Even those who wrote little about their dog, had one near, and were known as a friend and companion.

Dogs have a wonderful understanding, but their language is limited. They can express a dog's first cousin, and comfort us when we are sad, or in other emergency, they lose no time in getting into action. Their own safety is not their figure upon.

Love for those who feed and care for us is a dog's first consideration. Your dog's eyes are honest ones. They look right into your soul! After years of devotion to lose that best friend of man's is to lose a friend indeed. A whole memory never is obliterated.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Not so many years ago, the pike was regarded as a trash fish by sportsmen generally, except where, in remote parts, it grew to good size. Within very recent years, the pike was elevated to the rank of game fish and included in the list of game laws. Prior to that, you could fish all you wanted to, and not many anglers wanted any.

But with rapid decline in the availability of the more respected game fish such as bass, trout and pickerel, almost over the eastern part of the continent, the common pike slowly rose in respectability. In the United States, some genius of the tackle business changed the fish's name to Great Northern, pike. Now quite generally, the American fish and tackle industries have recognized pike altogether. And many a sportsman is happy to welcome the pike to the list of Great Northerns of about two pounds apiece.

It will be news to sportsmen everywhere that a campaign is already under way to move the carp up from the slums of fishdom into the noble ranks where the pike is newly to be found. The Wisconin Conservation Department has published "Carp As A Food Fish;" and the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests has just issued a three page press release reviewing the whole carp question, and including a plea for the carp's virtues. One of these is that its flesh contains greater food than that of perch or trout. And several biologists have begun to study the carp's game qualities when caught on light tackle using dough bait or corn.

The carp has been anathema to the sporting fraternity for more than half a century. It was first introduced into America from Germany in 1831, as a slow pond fish. Several shipments were distributed by agents for the U.S. Fish Commission between 1880 and 1893.

From these plantings, the fish has spread enormously all over the Great Lakes system. It has lately been reported in Saskatchewan. It creates a ruin of mud and torn up vegetation, and is reputed to have in all the nests of game fish.

The way to curb it, I suppose, is to make it a game fish. Thus it will be pursued, perhaps destroyed.

'Kindergarten In Schools' Topic At H-S Assoc.

CAMPBELLFORD — The October meeting of the Campbellford Home and School Association took place on Tuesday night, in the kindergarten room of the Public School. The president, the Rev. O. Barrow, presided.

The secretary's and the treasurer's reports were read and adopted. A letter in reference to the 'Oratorical Contest' was read and stated that the contest would be held on November 4th in the High School auditorium. The Home and School Association will sponsor the Public School oratorical while the Separate School contest will be arranged by Mr. Vincent Farrell.

It was agreed that the executive should make arrangements for the Public School Oratorical, with Miss Carol Hartwell to convene it.

DISPLAY CABINET

The principal, Mr. William Rothwell, informed the meeting that the School Board had agreed to the building of a display cabinet for the beautiful trophies won by the school children.

Roll call of grades was taken and Grade II, Mrs. Locke's room won the attendance banner.

Mr. Barrow wished the secretary to explain the requirements for each meeting. A grade mother would be selected to convene the refreshments. He would contact sufficient mothers as helpers, with the understanding that no mother should be asked to help the second time in a year.

Mrs. E. MacMillan, program convener, called upon Mr. Rothwell to introduce the guest speaker, Mr. Young.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Young, Inspector of Schools, is an authority on the subject of education. He is in third year as Inspector of Schools in Northumberland. He was principal of the school in Welland, Ontario, for a number of years and holds two university degrees.

He chose as his topic, "The Place of Kindergarten in the School". Kindergarten was first started in Germany and was established in this country in 1902.

Kindergarten accommodates ren of five to six years of age for for half day periods. It is known children of five to six years of ate that children are active and inquisitive. In Kindergarten, children learn to play and work with each other, and get along with others. This is part of a preparation for a more formal education. Nursery rhymes play an important part in language development.

ACCELERATION

On the subject of acceleration, Mr. Young stated that all children do not possess the same ability to learn. It has been proven that four or five children of a class of 40 could accelerate, it must be done continuously, and must not keep the child from leading a happy normal life. Acceleration does not mean skipping a grade, but rather taking a four year course in three years. Its success depends largely on the principle, staff, parents, and children.

Mr. Young was pleased to see so many parents attend the meetings and expressed the hope that there would be more fathers attending, as they also influence the child.

ROTARY SYSTEM

Mr. Rothwell spoke on the Rotary System in Sc. Grades. Each teacher engaged in the Rotary system is an authority on the subject they teach. If a teacher has particular talent for a special subject, the children are getting the benefit of it. Rotary system, is still on an experimental basis in the school.

Congratulations were extended to Mrs. Simpson, art teacher, whose art class won a prize on a mural to the value of $20 at the local fair.

Mrs. Evelyn Connor conveyed votes of thanks to the speaker for his informative speech.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Horsman and Mrs. Watters.

An executive meeting will take place on October 25th at 8.15 at the Rectory.

Along Canadian Trails

Woodstock's Admiral

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by David Ransom

Canada in its early days boasted of many more colorful and romantic citizens than it has today. Perhaps it was a more adventurous age and Canada as a new and wild country thracted men and women who sought excitement and even danger living among the savages instead of in the big and comfortable cities of the world.

Canada's forests also seemed to hold a strange fascination for men of the sea. Captains and admirals who had fought with Nelson and who had roamed all the oceans of the world, settled far inland in Canada but still maintained their ancient traditions. Such a seaman was Admiral Vansittart at Woodstock, Ontario, whose customs and particularly his dwelling place attracted attention far and wide.

When the Admiral first came to this remote part of Upper Canada to settle he did as all the other first settlers did. He built himself a log cabin. But he was deep in the forest on the outskirts of Woodstock and though he still spoke the salty language of the sea, none of his neighbors found anything particularly unusual about him.

LIKE AFRICAN VILLAGE

Then, as he cleared the forest around his cabin he began adding to this home. First one cabin and then another was added, each being a different shape and size. A visitor from England described the Admiral's home as having the appearance of a complete African village with all the huts joined together.

If the outside appearance of the Admiral's home was unusual, what is inside was even more so. It was filled with all sorts of seamen's contrivances, hammocks for sleeping, odd galleries, passages, corridors, alcoves, ship clocks and cupboards. Any old sailor walking through the front door would soon be sure that he had boarded a man of war in the British Navy.

In the drawing room was a huge fireplace that could hold down (20) giant oak logs at a time. Around it was a gallery made up entirely of windows. The house had so many strange devices for heating it or keeping it cool that no insurance company would insure it on any terms. No such house had ever been built in Canada before, nor has there been one like it since.

Late in life, the Admiral added another room to his chateau when his sister came to live with him. Having spent many years in Italy, she decided to rough it in the Canadian wilds and came to her brother's home accompanied by trunkloads of Italian antiquities. Into the home she brought Italian vases and paintings, statues of marble, lava and alabaster. To her brother's naval mementoes and decorations gathered from the Canadian forest she contributed a rare and startling museum of Italian art.

Impressed by the Admiral, the natives were even more impressed by her sister. Her name was Mrs. East and when she died the local inhabitants gave her name to their village, calling it Eastview. Vansittart Avenue in Woodstock recalls the residence of the eccentric admiral.

The Most Famous Poet

By NICHOLAS MIKA
(Article 3)

There is a lovely little town in England, Stratford-on-Avon. It attracts hundreds of thousands of visitors every year from all over the world, not because of its narrow winding streets, its old charming houses or its reputation as an ancient market town. Rather, the magic comes from a little church where a simple tombstone bears a strange inscription:

Good friend, for Jesus sake forbeare
To dig the dust enclosed here.
Blest be the man that spares these stones
And curst be he that moves my bones.

The grave has never been disturbed. The warning words of the man who is buried there have guarded his secret. Although the world knows and honors him today as her greatest dramatic poet, none has ever lifted the veil that spreads over his life.

The world has become accustomed to hearing the most astonishing stories about this man. Some insist that he never wrote a single line, that he did not even attend grammar school. More than a hundred volumes have been penned in an endeavor to prove that he could never have been the author of "Hamlet", "Macbeth" or "Romeo and Juliet". All attempts to find a single page of original manuscript in his handwriting have failed. But yet by some ironic fate, neither has anyone proved conclusively that he was not the poet whom the world worships.

UNHAPPY PERSONAL LIFE

Even his personal life has its queer details. There are many different versions as to how he got married. Perhaps the truth is that his wife persuaded him to marry her, although he was only eighteen and she was twenty six. He gave his promise, but when she heard that he was in love with another woman, she did not hesitate to make a public scandal. Three years after his wedding he suddenly left his wife and three children and went to London. Was it to forget his unfortunate marriage? Whatever the reason, he had now reached a crossroad in his life where his own burning question arose, to be or not to be. He dreamed of the stage. To become an actor he would do anything, even tend the horses of wealthy people while they sat in the theatre.

How he began to write his immortal plays nobody knows. It is hard to believe that his success as an author came easily to him. To read his works, is to meet a manifold variety of characters. Like a colorful mosaic he put them together, and when they are appearing on the stage, past and present melt into one. They are as eternal as good and bad in men.

When he died, he was rather wealthy, But strangely he left nothing to his wife. Perhaps he had forgotten that she existed because he did not even mention her name in his original will. As an afterthought he put her name above the line and bequeathed her his second best bed. With trembling hands he signed the document - - William Shakespeare.

William Shakespeare was portrayed on Hungarian stamps in 1948.

The Admiral's chateau and its priceless collection have long since disappeared. The estate near Woodstock became famous as a farm for race horses and not a trace of its original owner or his sister remained. Today modern but standardized cottages and ranch houses occupy the land where once stood the African village with an interior like a ship and containing a collection of Italian art.

GOODNESS! I KNOW THEY PROMISED TO PUT NEW LIFE IN BOB'S BAGGY OLD SUIT, BUT I NEVER EXPECTED IT TO WALK HOME!

Constitutional Experts Will Be In Glory if Herter Nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixty years ago a son was born to a pair of young American art students who had met, were married and then lived in Paris.

They named him Christian Archibald Herter.

Today, as governor of Massachusetts, and with a long record of public service behind him, Herter is considered a possibility for the U.S. presidency. And if he develops into a front-running candidate for the Republican nomination, it's a safe bet the constitutional experts will be in their glory.

For the constitution says, "No person except a natural born citizen . . . shall be eligible to the office of president."

The question is: What does "natural born" mean exactly?

Back in 1790 Congress passed a law saying that children born abroad of American parents are U.S. citizens. But does that make them "natural born" citizens?

Does a person have to be born on U.S. territory in order to qualify as natural born?

The final legal reply has never been made because of a simple reason: Every president and vice-president so far was born on soil that was, or eventually became, a part of the continental United States.

Oddly, a Democrat who occasionally has been mentioned as a young man to keep an eye on is in the same political boat with Herter. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., it has been pointed out, was born while his parents were at their Canadian summer home in Campobello, N.B.

There is no doubt that the constitution has been from the presidency immigrants who become citizens by naturalization. No one seems quite sure today why the framers of the constitution did this. After all, many of them were only a generation or two removed from the old country themselves, and all had been British subjects.

But while the delegates were debating there were rumors of a plan to set up a monarchy and undoubtedly the fear of foreign intervention was great.

Some scholars maintain that the provision that only a natural born citizens can be president really was a slap at one man: Alexander Hamilton, born in the British West Indies and a close friends and sidekick of the first secretary of the treasury.

Weddings

GIBBONS—BAILEY

Assorted fall flowers adorned St. Andrew's Anglican church, Wellington, on Saturday, October 1, at 2.30 p.m., for a lovely wedding when Dr. Cherry of the Heaven, rector of the church, united in marriage Barbara Jane Bailey, of Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bailey, to Frank William Gibbons of London, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbons.

Mrs. Jack McNeil of Wellington, presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Darlene Dalrymple, of Wellington, who sang "Because" and "The Prayer," and "Thru the Years."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Edward Bailey, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of nylon lace over taffeta having a bolero jacket with long, tapered sleeves. Her fingertip length veil was held by a tiara of white seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of bronze mums.

Miss Gena Bailey of Wellington, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, was attired in a gown of misty net and lace in cocktail length over taffeta in mauve. Her mauve lace in cocktail length over taffeta in mauve. Her mauve lace in cocktail length over taffeta in mauve. Her mauve

NEW WOOL JERSEY

By VERA WINSTON

New weaves make wool jersey even more attractive and desirable this season. One new weave that is most pleasing is an imported tweed-like wool jersey and is used for the nice daytime dress shown here. The softly molded bodice is topped by a casual little collar. Below-elbow sleeves are stabbed and are cut in one with the bodice. The bright hue is defined by a fold which ties in a bow-knot centre front. Other details of this gray and black mixture tweed-jersey include deep patch pockets and contrasting buttons on skirt and pockets.

Morning Slow Poke

By NANCY CLEAVES

"Tommy is a slow poke in the morning! He takes ages to get dressed. I despise mothers who continually nag at their children—but what can I do to cure him?" Mrs. Bleek asked her mother.

"Don't worry too much about his slowness in the morning. They're a little fellow . . ."

"But he should have time to eat a decent breakfast—and I don't want him to be late for School. Dawdling over dressing may seem a small fault, but it is terribly annoying!"

Until a child starts to school, the exact time when his dressing is completed does not matter very much to his mother. But once he has that "you've got to hurry" cry for greeting—"Teacher," then dawdling over dressing may be a big problem for a busy mother in a busy household. It is a good plan to establish the earlier breakfast hour for a child several weeks before he or she goes to school for the first time.

Adults must remind themselves that although time means a premium deal to them, to a small child the passing of time means very little. Seldom does he to be hurried. Sometimes one of the simplest ways to overcome tardiness in the morning is to call the child a quarter of an hour earlier than that he is out of bed and thus give him a longer time to put on his clothes. A large chart on the child's dresser with the time marked when he should be starting to get up, to breakfast is useful for some young-stars.

HAVE CLOTHES READY

Choosing what he is to wear and laying out his garments on a chair the night before is also helpful in a practical suggestion. When a little girl is sleepy, it may be comfortable for her to sometimes decide, whether to wear the blue dress with the white collar or the green jumper and yellow blouse. Small socks, shoes and underwear are apt to be misplaced under the bed or in the clothes closet or bathroom in the rush process of getting ready for bed! Make a game the night before of locating these articles of clothing for the next day.

Whether should check on the physical condition of a child who dawdles unnecessarily? Is the boy or girl in a feeling sluggish? Perhaps he needs a tonic or a medical check up? A low grade sinus infection can make him feel very "foggy" in the morning. Usually the person who is signed by those at the tea or reception following a christening. Mannerwalking always is good to record.

In the Guest Books for these social conditions—the signing of formal names . . . "Mr. and Mrs. John Clark" . . . is considered appropriate, incorrect. The best way is for you to write your name first . . . Anne Clark . . . and then your husband writes his name . . . John Clark . . . and then the below yours. Or, if you see that there seems to be a limited number of pages (as occasionally happens) you or your husband may write the names together on one line: Anne and John Clark.

ADVICE TO A MOTHER-IN-LAW

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend is a daughter-in-law, a bride of three months. The other day she walked out of the house because my friend told her the truth and she became angry about it. Now my friend is sorry she has not seen her. Do you think my friend should send her a birthday present, and if so, where in the home? — Reader

Yes, I think your friend should send her son's wife a birthday present, and should also write her a note of apology for the unkind and hurting words she said. And I think she should do anything else possible to show that she is trying to be a mature and wise woman who has sense enough, decency enough, not to say unkind and critical things to a person with whom it is most important she establish a loving and understanding relationship. After only three months of this in-law infatuation, she bargs in excusing her childish behavior by saying she "told her the truth." And now she seems to believe that a birthday present will "keep peace in the home." Well, maybe. But since I am quite sure that she is an amateur in this motherly-advice business, advise that the best way she will "give peace" is by realize that "The Tongue is an Unruly Member."

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

GOOD CIRCULATION ESSENTIAL TO BEAUTY

There's nothing like a brisk walk in the outdoors to stimulate circulation, keep you looking and feeling your best.

It is an impossibility for any woman to feel and look her best if her blood circulation is not up to standard. And there are many things which women do, all unknowingly perhaps, to impair that circulation. Improperly fitted girdles and bras, which bug the body too tightly, shoes which cramp the feet and circular garters all contribute to the slow-up of circulation, yet women continue to wear them.

The fact that so many women take their shoes off in theatres, movies and restaurants has come to be regarded as a thing to joke, but it really isn't funny, at all—not if you realize that the reason they take them off is because they hurt. And the reason they hurt is because they have not been properly fitted and so have not only cramped the muscles in the feet but also in the calves and in the thighs. The sigh of relief that goes up when tight-fitting shoes or tight-fitting girdles are removed is evidence in itself of the misery we wreak. How good one feels when the blood starts flowing unhampered through the veins once more! Gone then is the feeling of numbness in the body; gone then is the taut look of the face, the tied-in-a-knot feeling that always accompanies poor circulation.

It behooves every woman to be constantly aware of her blood circulation. If it is impaired by illness, it is a matter for her physician, of course. But if she is in normal health, she should never wear anything so tight-fitting that it is actually harmful and she should do everything possible to stimulate circulation. Exercise is important, and so is participating in outdoor exercise. Even if you haven't the time to belong to sports, you can always take a good, brisk walk. And isn't this weather for it? No matter the weather, however, try to get outdoors and walk every single day. There's nothing like it for making a body feel good, for bringing radiance to the eyes, plenish and for easing nervous tension.

Massage is also excellent as a circulation builder and, if you can afford it, regular sessions with a masseuse will do wonders for you. But be sure to pick a good one for unless the operator is an experienced one, she can do more damage than good. Massage is an exact science and must be administered expertly.

A brisk rubbing with a Turkish towel after a warm bath is also a good circulation builder, and a tingling one, you'll relax more easily. After your bath. Good circulation and relief from tired, cramped muscles go hand in hand to help you along the beauty path.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T DO ANYTHING IN A HURRY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 18 years old, and, at 16, quit high school in order to go to work to support my widowed mother, my brother and two sisters.

On my job, I met a young man now in the service. We began going together and soon were in neither of us would ever want anyone else. Recently, he was home on a 14-day leave, and during this time, asked if I would marry him. I said I would, but as yet have not told my mother that I said this.

You see, the problem is that my mother feels I have responsibilities at home with her right now, and that if this boy and I really love each other, we could certainly wait awhile to marry. I disagree with her. I have also told her that if we were to marry now, we would move in with her and we would all be happy together. My boy friend's mother feels that, since he will soon be discharged from the service, it would be all right for us to get married, and I am afraid that if this argument continues to relax, it might possibly result in our stopping.

Do you think I should do as my mother wants, or should I marry my boy friend is discharged and then get married regardless of how she feels? — Dear L.F.

What I think you should do is not to rush into marriage as soon as your boy friend is discharged, but to take plenty of time to work out a definite plan for your future. I don't believe that you family responsibilities should be allowed to postpone your marriage indefinitely, as seems to be your mother's idea. But neither do I think that the plan you have in mind for marrying and then moving in with your mother and her other children would prove a wise or workable one. This is a complicated situation, and one that will need to be given much thought before any decision is reached. Certainly you are only 18, and you surely can wait long enough to figure out a solution which will take care of these complications so far as possible.

Your mother has a right to expect to give your mother the support she needs if you married and took on new responsibilities, but you aren't assume that the reason you think of having yourself and your husband move in with her is so you could continue to support her. But, as I have just suggested, I am sure you would find, if you carried such a plan out it would only make the whole thing still more complicated. What you must do is see if you were able to assure your mother that your husband would take care of her, so that you could keep on working as you are now and turn over to her the same money you have been giving her all along. But, on the other hand, your mother is pretty overpatient and had to stop working? Where would you live then, if there were no other way to provide the money on which she depends?

Perhaps it might be possible to arrange things so that your mother could herself go to work and earn the money she needs for herself and her other children. Have you though of this?

My suggestion is that you tell your mother you are willing to wait for marriage until you and she have worked out a practical plan for taking care of the responsibilities you have carrying. If that is her only reason for objecting to your marrying at this time, she will probably agree, and you can then marry with her consent and blessing. Certainly you would be far happier under those circumstances than if you created antagonism between your mother and yourself by eloping.

It might take six months. It might take more, to get all your arrangements made. But if you are willing to do things that way, you will never regret it, whereas you are virtually certain to have regrets if you tear off and get married without making sure that everything thereafter will run smoothly for everyone.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Help wanted: The ladies of the Guild I belong to have given me the job of convening a turkey supper for 400. Never convened anything before. Here is the menu I was thinking of cold roast turkey; dressing and gravy; mashed potatoes, carrots and peas; cranberry sauce; dinner rolls and butter; individual pies (assorted); coffee, cream and sugar. Now could you please tell me how much of everything needed. We thought of ten turkeys, averaging about 25-27 lbs. each. Turkey and dressing to be served on the plates before placing in front of people. Not hot vegetables etc. to be served by the ladies. How many lbs. of coffee needed. We thought of serving cereal cream (or evaporated) with milk and sugar served. Have you any inexpensive way of decorating the tables? I know that this is a lot to ask, but I have seen where you have helped so many others—Mrs. H. L. M.

ANSWER:

Yes it is a lot, but I was grateful because I did not have to do it, for I have just gotten over convening a Dessert Bridge for our local press club.

If you buy 10 turkeys averaging 25 to 27 lbs. you will have 250 to 270 lbs. turkey. What you need is: a 20-lb. dressed turkey will serve 25 people. This allows a 3-oz. serving and 1-2 oz. for 1-2 oz. dark meat per plate. I have just talked to the chef at a large hotel in town and he says for a 25 or 26-lb. turkey weighed undressed with feet and head on if he slices it will serve 30 generously. I have given you those differing figures so you can make your own judgment for you did not tell me if your turkeys were drawn or undressed weight. Roast turkeys of 25 lbs. stuffed at 325 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours, testing for tenderness with a fork in the thickest part of the drumstick between the fingers. If meat feels soft the fowl is done.

MASHED POTATOES

(For 30 people)

Fifteen lbs. washed but not peeled potatoes are required to serve 30, plus 1 1-2 quarts hot milk, 1 cup salt, 1 cup butter. Be sure potatoes are boiled until very tender in salted water. Then drain, individual pies (assorted), coffee, cream and sugar. Now could you please tell me how much of everything needed. We

CARROTS AND PEAS

Fifteen lbs. carrots weighed after washing and cutting off stem end will serve 50. To serve mixed peas and carrots allow 1 pound. Cook carrots in salted water with 1 tsp. sugar. Keep hot but not boiling. Since the number of folks taking cream differs from city to city for sure is that 1 quart table cream and 1 quart homogenized milk and 1 1-lb. can evaporated milk make a good rich mixture and will serve at least 120. At our dessert bridge we had sugar cubes left over which I bought 2 -lb. boxes to serve 200—but there were a lot of female sugar cube lovers.

I certainly hope this helps and that your turkey supper is a great success.

Table decorations—Find a farmer who will let you pick some wheat. Put the straws together perfectly even—enough to fit a table—bind with gold. Scotch tape hold them tightly together top (under grain head) and bottom—a sheaf about 12 or 14 inches high. Stick them in candle holders and then three feet apart on long tables, join them together with bows of shiny ribbon. Use tomatoes and polished green peppers and red apples. Use big bunches of purple grapes as borders around base of each "wheat candle".

Two months ago nobody, broadly speaking, had ever heard of Edna. Now the 20-year-old hazel-eyed singer is still a naval dockyard typist, but thanks to her work on television she's known—to a big audience.

LIVELY PERFORMER

CBC television gingerly poked a finger into the local talent pool and hit the jackpot with Edna, who has a set of lungs that make 'Alexander's Ragtime Band' sound about the way Ethel Merman makes it sound.

G. F. Brickenden, CBC television director here, said he felt she has "a lot of bounce." She's a versatile showman and certainly a first-class find."

There is something about the sight of her whisking away at "It's Later than you think" that makes people—many of them men—want to grab the phone and jam the switchboard at CBHT, the CBC television station.

"I want to sing but I don't want to be typed—there was a time when I thought seriously of giving up this slapstick stuff.

"But when I'm out there, I'm just acting the way I feel. I'm not self-conscious but I went to a school where I used to get beaten up about three times a day and I learned it didn't pay to be a shrinking violet.

She wades through ponderous volumes on astronomy and psychic phenomena and thinks she once saw a ghost. But she also lugs home the odd armload of comic books to go with a 3 a.m. raid on the family icebox.

Edna stands five feet, 9½ inches, which could be a disadvantage if her measurements weren't 36-25-36½.

ESKIMO PUPILS

Annie Adams, 9, (right) gives a lesson to Edward Adams, 7, and Maggie Berthe, 8, in a classroom of the Duke of Edinburgh school at Fort Churchill, Man. They are among 13 Eskimo children studying at the northern military base in part of the federal government's northern affairs department to assimilate the Eskimo into the white man's civilization. (CP from National Defence).

New World Opens to Eskimo Children Attending School

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Twelve brown - skinned children filed into the classrooms of the Duke of Edinburgh school at this northern military base recently and the other pupils stared.

Shyly, the 12 took their places and gazed in awe about them. They sat stiffly in the tiny desks and listened dumbfounded to the teacher at the head of the class.

This was a whole new world to them and they could not understand.

This was part of a new experiment by the federal government's northern affairs department in an effort to assimilate the Eskimo into a white man's civilization.

ESKIMOS AT CAMP

The department has brought seven Eskimo families to live at Fort Churchill, provided them with homes and the men with jobs in the camp.

But it is the children who are the key to the experiment.

"Our hopes will be with the children," said Bill Kerr, northern affairs agent who is guiding the project. "The present generation of the Eskimo—the children's parents—will undoubtedly retain many of their old habits. But the children, through education, will learn and pass on their knowledge to their parents and to other Eskimos."

Since these first few days of self-consciousness, the Eskimo children have amazed their teachers with their ability to learn.

"They have the perfect attitude," said Herbert C. Ray of Pipestone, Man., school principal. "They are very quick to learn and most cooperative. And they mingle nicely with the other children."

TO LEARN ENGLISH

Mr. Ray said the main task at present is to teach the children English. Only one or two of the fathers speak the language.

Seven children, ranging in age from six to 10, were all placed in the grade 1 classes. Five attend kindergarten. They are picked up each morning by an army bus at their temporary homes in abandoned construction huts outside the camp, returned home for lunch and again at night.

For the first three weeks in school the grade-age children attended two-hour sessions with Lois Collins of McCreary, Man., in charge of the adjustment room. Miss Collins normally gives special instruction to backward children and to the youngsters of camp personnel who arrive during mid-term.

Miss Collins said she had to start from the ground up. One of the first tasks was to teach the youngsters how to use the washroom facilities.

She used sign language to identify objects, such as a pencil or a cup.

"They have difficulty in pronunciation," said Miss Collins. "Their language is not harsh like ours."

LIKE BRIGHT COLORS

The children are fond of bright colors and in no time were able to identify most of them.

During the afternoon the children were all placed in the one room, but, said Mr. Ray, this proved a mistake.

Eight-year-old Maggie Berthe, the cleverest of the group could understand two "pretty nearly every thing" the teacher would say, said Mr. Ray.

"Then Maggie would turn around and translate it for the others. It meant the other children didn't think."

The youngsters were spread among the two grade 1 rooms. Maggie, Annie Adams, 7, and the Eskimo twins Edward and Sandy Adams, 7, were placed in the room of Olga Stackiw of Winnipeg. Shirley Ray, daughter of the principal, was given Annie Adams, 9, Willie Adams, 8, and Mary Adams, 8.

The kindergarten teacher, Evelyn Lambert of Winnipeg, is in charge of five—Eva Adams, 5, Susan Adams, 6, Jessie Berthe, 5, Kitty Gordon, 5, and Sandy Gordon, 6.

IDENTIFIED BY TAGS

It took some time to sort out the children as there are three Adams and three Gordon families and some of the names of the children were the same.

However the children were all given identification tags to wear. After the teachers had the young sters straightened out, the children were given a red tag and kept on wearing them for weeks later.

Miss Stackiw said of her pupils Maggie Berthe and Annie Adams showed the greatest advancement. The twins are quite immature.

Miss Ray said her Willie Adams was the most mischievous.

"He is still a little unsettled and is forever out of his desk and throwing things across the room."

The three teachers agreed that the youngsters showed particular talent in art work.

"They do very nice handwork and needed little instruction," said Miss Ray.

Each morning when the classes sing "O Canada" the Eskimo children join in.

"You have no idea what they are saying but they can carry the tune very well," said Miss Ray.

FRIENDSHIPS GROW

The other pupils in the classes presently refer to the new students as "those Eskimo children" but some of them have become quite friendly.

Miss Lambert told of one of her pupils, five-year-old John Mesak, W.C. member and most cooperative. And they mingle nicely with the other children."

TO LEARN ESKIMOS

"I didn't believe him of course but he came out with a few words" she chuckled.

The teachers had two complaints about the children but are seeing to it that they are soon remedied. One is that the youngsters don't know how to use a handkerchief and are constantly sniffing in class.

The other is chewing gum.

"They come to school every day with thick wads of gum," said Miss Stackiw. Miss Lambert said she makes her pupils throw it out. Miss Stackiw and Miss Ray said they "haven't the heart to make them do it—just yet."

Garden Notes

Hindsight on Chrysanthemums

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

While our chrysanthemums are still at their best let us look at them critically and decide whether they measure up to our expectations, or are they a disappointment in one way or another.

It takes a long time to grow chrysanthemums. Whether you buy small cuttings which have been rooted by the nurseryman, or grow established plants in your own garden it is a long season of growth before the final burst of bloom pays for your care. But it is worth it and with a little more care you could have a much better showing of bloom.

To go back to early spring—in buying small plants from the nursery be sure to open the package and get the plants in as soon as they arrive. Just saving one package arrived just before a wedding in the family. The unopened package was placed in the basement and one week later when we got around to planting them eight of the plants had died from lack of moisture. The other have flourished and are now handsome plants with a wealth of green, yellow, or bronze blooms.

SOFTWOOD CUTTINGS

You can take softwood cuttings from plants as soon as the stems measure eight inches long. Make the cutting four inches long.

Dip the ends in small pots in a mixture of perlmoss, sand and sand, or vermiculite and soil. Set the pots in a flat and pack lightly with moss. It will retain moisture and keep the plants from drying too quickly. Keep soil and moss slightly damp, but not wet. When they have formed good roots set them out in the border. They will have a few blooms the first year.

How much plant food do chrysanthemums need? If they are to be grown for two or more years in the same place, feed them with a complete plant food in April or early in May. Supplementary light feeding should be also given in August and Early Sept.

Will chrysanthemums grow in shade? They require at least half a day of sunlight and really prefer a full sunlight.

Do they need much water? Their root system is quite shallow. They should receive a thorough soaking once a week in dry weather. See that the moisture reaches a depth of six to eight inches.

LATE BLOOMING

Why do chrysanthemums flower so late? Seasonal variations are largely responsible for late bloom. A long stretch of sunny weather in August and a cool dark September may delay bud formation and retard bud development. If your plants have late buds artificially replace them with earlier blooming types.

When should they be pinched back? Start by pinching out the terminal bud when the plant has reach six inches high. Two or three later pinchings will be required to keep the plants bushy. Discontinue pinching by mid-July.

What are their mums? Tarnish bug, aphis, thrips and leaf rollers are the chief pests. Regular dustings with a good all-purpose dust will prevent attacks. Dry, lower leaves may be due to lack of moisture, plant food deficiency, leaf spot or mildew.

Abundance of Game Attracted To Salmon Run in North B.C.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The abundance of game attracted to a salmon run in northern British Columbia, as described in a 1923 magazine article recently reprinted, would make any hunter trigger-happy.

"The salmon were running and the birds of the air and the beasts of the field were called to a royal feast," wrote James G. Sinclair, father of the present federal fisheries minister.

The article, published originally in Edinburgh, Scotland, was reprinted in a monthly publication of the fisheries department with a note saying its description of a northern B.C. stream when salmon thronged their spawning is an accurate today as it was in 1921.

PACKED WITH FISH

Mr. Sinclair and a companion identified only as Le Roy had become upon a creek far up the B.C. coast that was filled almost solid with salmon returning from the Pacific to spawn and die. The stench from the dying salmon was terrific.

"As the launch nosed up the creek discordant noises began to greet ears and a confused and nauseous smell kept increasing in power . . ." wrote Mr. Sinclair.

"It was a veritable camp last night. The noise of gull, kittiwake, crow, raven, eagle and duck was terrific, the stench of decaying salmon overpowering, but here was a chance to observe at first-hand that primal struggle —the chance of a lifetime."

They camped beside the creek while bird and animal attacked the massed salmon in the shallow water. As night fell the two companions sat near the fire and tried to distinguish the cries of bird and beast.

CALL OF FOOD

"The eagle had sought his lofty shelf; the crows and the ravens, sated, had heavily flighted to cliff and fir to rest before the labor of the morrow, leaving the gorging to the gulls and the ducks. . . the sing-ing of wings above us told that still they came in from the sea, led by the call of food. . .

"Le Noyr, an oldtimer on the coast—fisherman, hunter, trapper, naturalist — sat broodily, puffing and interjecting: 'That's a raccoon—bear that mink—huh; the bears come now,' until I began to get somewhat scared.

"He smiled his half-Indian smile and said, 'no fear. If all the beasts from 100 miles were here, they would be too busy to interfere with us.' So it turned out."

The next morning the creek was seething with salmon and the feasting wildlife.

"The gull tribe preferred the bibits, pecking out the eyes, as also did the crows on shore. On the far banks eagles awkwardly floundered about, digging their talons into the shoulders of the fish and bolting gobs of flesh. Then a little rest, a flounder and up into the air winged the king of birds.

HAD SPECIAL TASTE

"Wolves were still busy, nosing the salmon over and gorging the shoulders and it seemed to me that they were fastidious in their taste.'

'A big bear came down, looked over the ground, rubbed his nose meditatively, looked into the water "and that deft forepaw with its terrible claws had swiped a fish out of the stream.

Mr. Sinclair, who now lives in Vancouver, added:

"We could have shot eagle, mink, raccoon, otter, seal, wolf and bear, but we did not. Probably in the midst of such appalling destruction we dared not."

The 15-year-old mysterious disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk of North Bay, Ont., is solved as the 1938 car containing the couple's bodies is hoisted from St. Mary's River at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Discovery of the car was the result of dragging operations for a missing Sault man and his automobile. The Kirk car is believed to have backed off the CPR pier in attempting to turn around. The Kirks, motoring from North Bay to Emerson, Man., were last seen in Sudbury, October 4, 1940. (CP Photo).

Canada Marks 20 Unbroken Yrs. Of Liberal Rule

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada marks 20 unbroken years of federal Liberal rule Sunday, easily the longest single stretch any one party has formed the central government of Ottawa since Confederation in 1867.

But only 10 of the men who helped the Liberal party achieve its mid-depression election sweep October 14, 1935, have sat in the Commons continuously since that date.

And only one man — Trade Minister Howe — has been a member of the federal cabinet without interruption since Oct. 23, 1935, the day the late Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and his Liberal government assumed office.

Agricultural Minister Gardiner misses being in the select 10-man group by a whisper. He resigned the Saskatchewan premiership in 1935 and was appointed to the King cabinet Nov. 4 that year but was not elected to the Commons until Jan. 6, 1936.

LIST TWO OTHERS

Two other members of the present cabinet who have sat in the Commons since 1935 are Health Minister Martin and Revenue Minister McCann, cabinet-ministers until 1945. Another, Solicitor-General MacDonald, sat in the House from 1940 until June 1953, when he was named to the Senate and given a cabinet portfolio.

Other members of the 10-man group include Hon. Dan McIvor, Fort William.

Over the last 20 years 59 Liberals have served in the cabinet, which has grown from 16 to 21 portfolios. Five former cabinet now are in the Senate — Hon. C. G. Power, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Hon. William Euler, Hon. James A. Mackinnon and Hon. F. G. Bradley.

Membership in the Commons has increased from 245 to 265, with Liberals now holding 161 seats, Progressive Conservatives 51, CCF 23, Social Credit 15, independents four. There are two vacancies.

Canada Becomes Industrial Giant During Past 20 Years Under Liberal Governments

By JOHN E. BIRD, Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada developed from a relatively unimportant voice in world councils to a leader of the so-called "middle" nations during 20 years of Liberal government. At the same time, it grew into an industrial giant.

However, even the Liberals don't claim all the credit for this country's tremendous expansion in the last two decades. Much of it was aided by events which occurred outside Canada and progress would have been achieved under any administration.

The Liberals were swept into office in October, 1935, near the end of a world-wide depression. They immediately began laying the foundation for what later proved to be a social and economic upheaval.

Canada's population in 1935 was 10,845,000. Now it is estimated at 15,601,000, swelled by the admission of some 1,326,000 immigrants who saw this country as the promised land in the last two decades.

Canada still is relatively small in a population sense, but its vast resources, now being tapped on an unprecedented scale, and its industrial capacity have helped to overcome this deficiency.

One of the best measures of Canadian prosperity is the gross national product—value of all goods and services produced. It stood at $4,343,000,000 in 1935. By 1953 it had zoomed to $24,400,000,000. This year it promises to reach even greater proportions, after a slight recession in 1954 that was not confined to this country alone.

The national income rose from $3,188,000,000 in 1935 to $18,744,000,000 in 1954, the farmer pocketing $1,080,000,000 last year compared with $222,000,000 20 years ago.

On the world's trade marts, Canada boosted exports from $738,000,000 to 23 countries in 1935 to $4,547,000,000 in 1954. This year it exports to 59 countries. The increase in the value of this country's manufactured products kept pace, jumping to $17,497,782,000 last year from $2,653,000,000 in 1935.

Canada's increased importance in the council of nations is closely linked with this country's increased military strength and spending. Twenty years ago Canada had practically no international obligations. Today it is a member of the UN, NATO, the Colombo plan and many other international organizations. An army brigade and an air force division is maintained in Europe under NATO.

Many North American Birds Blown Across Ocean by Wind

By ROBERT RICE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—North America's yellow - billed Cuckoo — occyzus Americanus—might agree that it's an ill wind that blows no good.

So might the olive-backed thrush, the red-eyed vireo and the rusty blackbird.

For these native North American birds are mysteriously turning up in Britain, and one common explanation is that they've been blown across the ocean by the wind. Says a British ornithologist specialist:

"Yes, there is a westerly wind that picks up strength in October and reaches its peak in January. It would take five or six days to blow a bird across the ocean."

Some bird-watchers eagerly nod their heads. Most substantiated reports of North American birds being found in Britain occur in October, strengthening the theory that the warblers got a free ride on an air current.

In the case of the yellow-billed cuckoo, one was reported at Mucking an island in the inner Hebrides, Oct. 3, 1953. Two days later, another cuckoo was spotted in Nairnshire, Scotland. And five years after that, one was sighted near Montrose, also in Scotland.

About the same time, a myrtle warbler, normally at home between northern Canada and Minnesota, flew to a Devon bird table and chased away the resident tits. It died a month after it took to eating English marmalade.

Another storm-blown American migrant, the lesser yellowlegs, visited Wadlaw on a Cu[illegible] farm, and stayed for 18 months.

Two ornithologists studied most of the reports and agreed that some are genuine. North Atlantic land birds can, and do, cross the ocean safely, they declared.

But other experts aren't as certain. Most authors of comprehensive works on British birds have held that small land birds could not possibly cross the Atlantic unaided. Now a weathermindedexpert says a bird can make the dangerous dash with the help of a "continuous downwind drift in the strong westerly airstream of a vast Atlantic low."

If the crossing takes too long, or if the bird lurches on a passing ship, there's a chance it will plunge exhausted into the sea.

Some experts attribute the rash of blown birds to the hurricanes which have become frequent lately over the Atlantic. But it is noted that reports of the yellow-billed cuckoo have been recorded as long ago as 1822.

With more bird watchers than ever before, Britain's ornithologists believe this trend will yield more convincing proof of the wind-blown immigration theory.

ABC ELECTIONS HELD

CHICAGO (AP) — George C. Dibert, vice-president of the Walter Thompson Co., was named chairman of the Audit Bureau of Circulations Friday at the agency's annual meeting. He replaces John H. Piatt of Chicago, who remains on the board. H. H. Rimmer of Toronto was re-elected vice-chairman.

Bones Confirm Death of Three In House Fire

BRANTFORD (CP)—A handful of bones confirmed Friday that a woman and two children perished in a fire which swept a farmhouse near Burford on Oct. 8.

A pathologist's report identifying the bones as those of a woman under 40 and two children under 10 apparently solved the disappearance of Mrs. Phyllis Malek, 27, and her daughters, Barbara, 6, and Patricia, 4, who have been unreported since their home burned.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined. Detectives were amazed at the small amount of remains left if three persons died in the fire.

Inspector D. A. Nichol notified Jan Hanchard, 31, who lived with the Maleks, of the report and he was brought in for further questioning.

The disappearance of the Maleks after the fire touched off an intensive police search. The bones, which had been identified as human earlier in the week, were recovered when investigators sifted the ruins of the building.

Biggest Moroccan Party Will Not Join Government

RABAT, French Morocco (CP) —The possibility of forming a new Moroccan government was clouded in uncertainty today in refusal of the Istiqlal Independence party to give its support.

Istiqlal is the largest and most influential nationalist party in the French protectorate.

Its refusal could make it impossible to form a Moroccan government representative of all shades of opinion—part of the plan of French Premier Edgar Faure to restore peace after two years of bloodshed and turn over to Moroccans a share of government functions.

Some observers say, however, that Istiqlal is merely holding back in order to gain a bargaining position for more and bigger jobs in the new government.

French Election Will Be Sought

PARIS (Reuters) — A cabinet committee today decided to ask France's National Assembly to dissolve itself Jan. 2, it was reliably learned.

The committee was in session drafting a bill to dissolve the assembly and permit national elections. Elections would be held before the dissolution. The dates of Dec. 4 or 11 were still considered likely by some observers.

The normal life of the present assembly does not end until next June. It is believed that the main object of an early election is to cut short the time left for ex-premier Pierre Mendes-France to develop his campaign for economic reforms.

Mendes-France, who was succeeded last February by Premier Edgar Faure, is said to aim at heading a centre-left coalition of progressive forces of all parties.

SLIDE CHASES OUT 400

ZAMBANA, Italy (AP) — Renewed movement of an old landslide on Mount Paganella, in the Dolomite Alps, caused nearly 400 of the 800 inhabitants of this village near the mountain's base to flee their homes today. The huge mass of earth and rock began to slide toward the village last August, then halted. Recent rains started it moving again.

Duplessis Describes Coffin Ruling as Extraordinary At Weekly Press Conference

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis has described as "extraordinary" events leading up to a cabinet order refusing the appeal of convicted murderer Wilbert Coffin back to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Duplessis, in a carefully-worded statement at his weekly press conference, said Friday that normally the Coffin case would have been closed with the Supreme Court's decision not to grant the 44-year-old prospector leave to appeal.

Coffin, convicted of the murder of a Pennsylvania bear hunter, was to be hanged Friday but the order by the federal cabinet brought about a stay to Dec. 2. The Supreme Court will hear the appeal Dec. 5 and a 60-day stay of execution will be granted.

Premier Duplessis said a visit by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin of the Supreme Court to Justice Minister Garson in connection with the case was "another extraordinary act of the Supreme Court of Canada."

Chief Justice Kerwin conferred with Mr. Garson after the judges of the court ruled that they had jurisdiction to upset an earlier decision by Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott refusing Coffin right to appeal.

It was revealed that some of the judges of the court felt they would have been inclined to hear the appeal. The federal cabinet then issued the order for the court to conduct the hearing and return recommendations on the case.

"Coffin was found guilty by 12 of his peers during a trial presided over by a judge whose integrity and competence is recognized by all—Mr. Justice Gerard Lacroix," the premier said.

"Coffin's lawyers took the case to the Quebec Court of Appeals—highest court of appeal—and after the court confirmed the verdict is a unanimous decision.

"At this point 12 jurymen and six judges had ruled upon the guilt of Coffin. Coffin's lawyers went to the Supreme Court of Canada to ask leave to appeal the judgment of the Appeals Court and the verdict of the jury.

"Mr. Justice Abbott, who heard the request, rejected it. Then Coffin's lawyers addressed a petition to the entire bench of the Supreme Court minus Mr. Justice Abbott. All the judges unanimously refused to hear and to allow the appeal by ruling they had no jurisdiction."

Normally, said Mr. Duplessis, who is also attorney-general of the province, all judicial proceedings would have ended with this decision.

OBEDIENT TO LAW

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Prince Rainier, 32-year-old ruler of this postage-stamp realm on the Riviera, plans to leave November 24 for a three-month visit to the United States, unofficial sources say. The picture of health, the prince plans to enter a clinic for a check-up as soon as he arrives. The sovereign is not permitted to enter a foreign country except on invitation of the chief of state or for medical reasons. The prince has no invitation from President Eisenhower.

Four Toronto Policemen Beaten By Teen-Agers

TORONTO (CP)—Four policemen were beaten and kicked by a howling mob of teen-agers Friday night outside a dance hall while trying to break up a gang fight in suburban Toronto township.

The officers fought their way back to their cruiser and reinforcements dispersed the mob. Mack Hills, 19, was arrested and charged with obstruction and creating a disturbance.

AMPUTATIONS CONTINUE

TURIN, Italy. (AP) — Prof. Mario Ponzio, internationally-known radiologist whose left arm and collar bone were amputated July 2, will undergo another operation Monday for removal of his right hand. He suffered radium burns of both hands in his early years of X-ray experiment. The spreading burns already have cost him most of his fingers but he continued his lectures at the university of Turin until early this year.

MARMORA

Teaching Deaf Demonstrated At H-S Assoc.

MARMORA — Marmora Home and School Association had a varied and unusual program for its monthly meeting held in the public schools on Wednesday evening under presidency of Mrs. Frank Bolyea.

Mr. J. D. Dennis, supervisor-in-charge of the School for the Deaf, Belleville, was present, with Miss Cecilia Mooney, teaching member of the senior school and nine female and three male pupils to demonstrate teaching methods.

Mr. Dennis explained that the school had about 300 pupils and that the ones he had brought were of Grade 8 level. The girls were now learning typing and the boys, printing.

Because they came from all over the province, a residential school was necessary and Miss Mooney showed the obstacles the children would have to overcome as she gave a short lesson.

Miss Mooney referred to the little amount of residual hearing that was possible of the pupils who in turn gave the percentage of hearing they had in each case. With the aid of two charts, which gave the percentage of vowel sounds, she led up from words and phrases to sentences and then put the pupils through a short reading exercise.

Beth Hall introduced by W. J. Cottrell and thanked by the Rev. D. J. Cameron for entertaining having opened in the customary manner, the attendance was taken of pupils and grandparents by Principal E. C. Prentice. Mrs. Mordon Sexsmith took the minutes.

Don Marett, chairman of the public school board, presented diplomas to Grade 8 students as follows: Daniel Bissell, Muriel Brown, Mildred Brown, Robert Cook, Jeanette Frost, Bonnie Kelsh, Dean Lavender, Brian McKenzie, John Martin, Robert Orser, Brian Orser, Peter Orser, Wayne Smith, Donald Tandy and Jerome Tinlyby.

After presenting the diplomas, Mr. Marett said that as a result of the survey it was found that three new rooms would be required, in addition to the kindergarten.

New committees were announced as follows: Membership, Mrs. C. Neal; program, Mrs. H. Olsen; publicity, Mrs. Ross Hagerman; social, Mrs. T. Pearce; ways and means, Mrs. A. F. Fraser.

Class mothers were elected as follows: Mrs. L. Youmans, Mrs. W. Graham, Mrs. W. Shorey, Mrs. Earl Birch, Mrs. C. Nichol; Mrs. James Bowers, Mrs. C. McCaw and Mrs. G. McMurray.

MARMORA — Those with a birthday anniversary on Thursday included: Nathan Mumby; John Cooper; Alex McCoy; John Vincent; W. J. Cottell; Mrs. Donald McInroy, and Donna Osborne.

St. Andrews W. A. held a turkey supper in the Church Hall on Wednesday evening catering to an attendance of approximately 350.

RAWDON

Wellman's Women's Institute Observes 50th Anniversary

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

RAWDON—Baskets of mauve and yellow dahlias, fall flowers and various other autumn blooms made a pretty setting in Wellman's United church, when Wellman's Women's Institute celebrated its 50th anniversary and Thanksgiving, October 19.

Mrs. George Watson and Mrs. Charles Dunham welcomed the guests as they arrived from the north, south, east and west, Springbrook, Ivanhoe and Seymour East Institutes. Several former members were also in attendance from Frankford, Stirling, Mount Pleasant and other points.

ATTRACTIVE TABLE

A long table across the choir loft was draped with a snowy linen cloth with streamers, of mauve and yellow. It was set with two silver services and candelabra in Institute colors. The centre piece was a three tiered birthday cake, nicely lettered 1905-1955 and decorated in matching tones.

Across the front of the table sat the lovely ladies and veiled "Ye Hostess and Country". This group of ladies, impersonated by a deceased member, the late Mrs. Fred Sanzi.

The president, Mrs. Tom Hinds, presided for the program which opened with the Institute Ode.

Mrs. Jack Dunham graciously welcomed the guests and voiced the thought of a family gathering to help one of their group celebrate a happy occasion. She also expressed thanks to all who had assisted in the invitation and in the celebration.

Miss Emma Rainie, a charter member, a former president and a former secretary, gave a short history of the Institute.

She said in part that "in 1905 the president of Ameliasburgh W.I. organized Wellman's W.I. in the Orange Hall nearby. The first president was the late Mrs. Andrew Meikljohn."

Only three charter members in attendance today Mrs. W. R. Totten, Toronto; Miss Rainie and Mrs. Wanda Bedford. Later each of these ladies spoke briefly. Mrs. Totten said it was 27 years since she left Wellman's community and she felt it was a real honor to be invited home for this gala event. The three charter members also received gifts of blue and gold.

GOD MEETINGS IN 50 YEARS

Approximately 600 meetings were held in the 50 years. There were 34 presidents and 75 of these attended the anniversary. Three times honors have come to Wellman's to have a district presidency—Miss Rainie, Mrs. Clifford Clancy and Mrs. Carl Clancy.

Perhaps the two outstanding items carried out were "The Renovation of Wellman's Cemetery" which is now a beauty spot with shrubs and new gates and "The War Work", which adhered to the motto "For Home and Country".

All of the secretaries' books beginning in 1905 are now in the possession of the secretary, Mrs. Douglas Clancy and will be valuable in future days.

Miss Rainie quoted an appropriate poem in closing her history which was entitled "One Hundred Years From Now".

MEMORIAL SERVICE

A brief but solemn memorial service for all the members who have passed on, was in charge of Mrs. John Carlisle. She read a poem "Still Going On", and pointed out that each of us was sailing along day-by-day, and would some day reach God's eternal home.

Following a period of silence, a prayer of thankfulness was offered for the lives of these workers, who had contributed so much to the organization which they served.

Mrs. Gerald Clancy presided at the piano for the afternoon and she also contributed a musical number.

Letters of congratulation were received from two former members, Mrs. Hugh Morton and Mrs. Ira Althouse.

Mrs. Burton Morton gave an appropriate reading entitled "Fifty Years of Institutes".

The visitors contributed to the program as follows: Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited "The Story of the Angel Cake", for River Valley W.I.; Mrs. John McInroy, Wanbrook W.I. gave "The Soulful Monologue"; Mrs. John McKeown, Springbrook W.I., read an appropriate poem "I's Always Better with Butter."

Mrs. Louis Rodgers, president West Hastings District W.I., brought greetings from that organization, and on behalf of Stirling W.I., she read a fine poem "The Way We Go", showing how we Institute members, they can share, hopes, fears, ties, friends and especially the golden anniversary of Wellman's W.I. with each other.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Ken Nicol, Madoc, president North Hastings District W.I., brought greetings from the sister branches and expressed appreciation to Wellman's for their 50 years of achievement. She referred to the days of Adelaide Hoodless, the founder of Institutes in Ontario and contrasted it with the Institutes of today and also all over Canada are finding a greater job to do. It is necessary to adjust ourselves to a changing world and today our primary aim is education. Institute women must study and be more conversant with the world's needs.

"Institute mothers must train their children to have tolerance for others, understand world needs, and to respect the customs of other people. Institute women must have an international outlook. . ."

Mrs. Nicol vividly pictured the United Nations' three buildings in New York, which she had recently visited. She told how representatives of 60 countries are trying to promote world peace and said Institute women must give full co-operation to all their agencies in order to provide peace in the world, food for the hungry and the freedoms from want and fear.

In closing she quoted the poem, "The Bridge Builder", and urged each one to build the best she can as they travel the highway of life.

GOOD FOUNDATION BUILT

Mrs. Nicol felt Wellman's W.I. had built a good foundation in their 50 years and now it will be easier for those who follow after to carry on the great traditions of Institute work.

The collection was gathered by Mrs. Douglas Clancy and Mrs. Ken Tompkins and "The Mary Stewart Collect" was repeated in unison; followed by "The Queen".

The cake ceremony was carried out with Miss Emma Rainie cutting the first slice. Mrs. Totten and Mrs. Beckett poured.

The 13 presidents in attendance were grouped in the platform and several flash pictures were taken of this memorable event.

The presidents were, Mrs. Tom Hinds, Mrs. James Chumbley, Mrs. Douglas Clancy, Mrs. Ken Tompkins, Mrs. William Mathews, Mrs. H. Philp, Mrs. George Watson, Mrs. Reg. McGee, Mrs. Lindsay Clancy, Mrs. Carl Clancy, Mrs. Charles Dunham, Mrs. Ray Mrs. Ernest Irwin, Rylstone W.I. voiced appreciation to Wellman's ladies for the enjoyable afternoon and beautiful refreshments.

Those in attendance wish for Wellman's W.I. continued success in its Institute work and the visitors extend their wishes when their 50th anniversary and another home many pleasant memories of the afternoon.

YOUR CAR

New Suspension Provides Smoother Ride

BY EUGENE MILMOR

There seems little doubt that torsion bar suspension is a boon to smoother riding and better roadability.

Basically, this new system (which replaced conventional coil and leaf springs) consists of two steel bars, one on each side of the frame running the car length and connected by pivoting arms to the front and rear wheel. Through torsion, or twisting, these bars act as springs, absorbing road shocks before they can reach the car frame. In addition to special shock absorbers and stabilizers, this suspension system boasts a power-controlled load compensator which keeps the car level regardless of passenger weight or trunk load.

At present, only one manufacturer has developed the torsion bar suspension that seems to indicate, however, that other makers will soon follow suit.

ENGINE RAP

From R.E.: "My engine has developed a sharp rapping noise which, although somewhat irregular, can usually be heard during idling periods. I also find the engaging and disengaging the clutch will affect the noise. A friend tells me that a loose flywheel acts this way. Can that be my trouble?"

(A) It could be, but these symptoms are also evident when the real trouble is excessive crankshaft end play.

H.F. asks: "My 1955 engine has hydraulic valves and one of them has a noisy tappet ever since he bought the car. I was told that it does not mean anything, but I would like your opinion."

(A) If the valve is noisy even when the engine is well warmed up, the plunger may be too tight, or the valve spring might be weak. Hydraulic tappets will often stick because of sluggy, gummy deposits, so be sure you always use a good brand of high detergent oil in the engine.

J.F. asks: "Does the frame construction of a 1955 station wagon differ from other models of the same make and year?"

(A) It depends on the car make. Some have the same frame construction for all models made in 1955. Other manufacturers do show a difference in sedans, convertibles and station wagons.

PRESSURE CAP

From J.D.: "There is a pressure type radiator cap on my 1954 sedan and I would like to know if it should be screwed on very tightly or left a little loose?"

(A) Keep it securely tightened. Otherwise, it may be possible for pressure to be relieved and actually defeat the purpose of the system.

J.B. writes: "Sometimes, when driving at any speed, I feel that the steering wheel shimmy and shake terribly. This happens whether I carry a heavy load in the trunk or if the car is full of passengers. Tires, shocks and springs have all checked out OK. A local mechanic says the extra weight in the car rear can cause excessive tramp—e.g., too much forward inclination of the front wheels.

Million Boxes Of Apples Still On Trees in B.C.

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — A small army of harvesters is racing the first cold breath of winter.

The prize is "most of this city's winter income" and the income of those living in smaller centres throughout the south Okanagan.

About 1,000,000 boxes of apples still are on the trees in the Penticton-Naramata-Kaleden district.

"The orderly sale of the apple crop during the winter months and until next June will provide almost the only source of income for this district," an official said.

Deadline for picking is Nov 5 when growers and marketing officials figure killing frosts will set in.

PROCLAIMS EMERGENCY

H. K. Whimster, farm placement officer, says about 400 pickers are needed in the area.

Mayor Oscar Matson went further this week and issued a proclamation of emergency declaring "a very serious condition."

He was joined by the school authorities, the board of trade, the farm labor office and residents in an attempt to recruit sufficient harvesting force.

The board of trade planned a complete canvass of businesses to obtain a list of employees who will be released for a week of harvesting.

Howard Patton, board secretary, said: "It is wiser to release employees now to assist in the orchards than to lay them off for a couple of months next winter."

The board of trade is having cards printed to be placed in stores that have released employees to the orchards.

APPLES WON'T WAIT

The cards will say: "We are proud to be shorthanded . . . The apples won't wait . . . ."

The farm placement office said: "Transient labor is almost nonexistent because we are three weeks later than usual at this stage of the game. There is no where to look for help except locally."

Harvesters can average $8 a day based on the rate of 10 cents a box and his own initiative.

About 40,000 boxes of apples will be loaded on vessels from Vancouver and New Westminster ports during the next 10 days for shipment overseas.

Manager Hap Day Issues Ultimatum To Leafs—"Get In Condition, Or Else"

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

ALL-STAR GAME

Tony Parisi, Bob Wilson, Keith MacDonald, Vern Goyer and Davy Jones have been selected by Coach Cox to represent the TPT's on the group all-star squad which meets the champion Kingston Goodyears in the Community Centre tonight.

From Whitby comes Bus Gagnon, Bob Attersley, Fred Fletcher and Tommy O'Connor. Brockville Magedomas will send along playing coach Emile Dagenais, who will centre wingh Al Kunis and Hughie Rogelin. Don Thomson, defence star, will also make the safari. There is no word of the Cornwall contingent but likely all-star coach will use Moe Savard, Batten, Bingley and Gould.

Four of the former Petes will also make the trip and like-ly Gus Leonard, Bill McMaster, Chum Fryia and Teodie Greenlaw will get the nod from the Petes' powers-that-be. That, at least, is what Jim Ellis intimated when we were talking with him in Peterborough Thursday night.

All-in-all it looks like the All-Stars are just what the name infers. They pack plenty of power, both on offence and defence and methinks the champion Goodies, unless they can produce some of the luminaries that helped them to a title last year are in for a good old-fashioned shellacking.

Incidentally, Jim told us that there is quite a chunk of Peterborough interest in the TPT's this season, due, naturally to the fact that five Petes will be playing under Belleville colors. The Liftlock laddies will not be without their hometown supporters for Peterborough is still a hot hockey centre albeit has been forced to take a year's respite from puckchasing activities.

THEY LOOKED GOOD!

They may be good enough to win the Stanley Cup or any other big bauble, but the new TPT's satisfied some 1,000 customers with their rugged, fast style of hockey as dished out against the youthful Montreal Canadiens here on Thursday night.

When you take into consideration the fact that the Coxmen have been on skates barely ten days and are barely on speaking terms with a puck, their performance against the beardless flying Frenchmen was all the more creditable.

And at that, veteran hockey observers told this department the Men 'o Cox should have skated off with the laurels. For two periods and a half they matched blade for blade with the speedy younkers from Morryall, but the reserve beid by the better-conditioned Canadiens was the margin and they skated off with a slim victory.

"I'm happy about the club," Coach Danny Cox told this corner yesterday. "I'm satisfied they way they went about the job and I firmly believe Belleville will have a contending club. I let them go for over two periods, then they weakened with the pace, as was to be expected and the kids took advantage of their advantage."

"The TPT's are a hustling aggregation above all things, and I liked the way they went about the business at hand. They have plenty of guts and that is what I like about them. They will be heard from," the coach said.

Apparently Coach Cox favors the rock 'em, sock 'em style of hockey if Thursday's exhibition game was an indication of the brand of hockey the TPT's intend to use this season.

There wasn't a man on the club who didn't throw a few solid checks with Bill McMaster, Bob Wilson and Vern Goyer leading the way. It proved successful, too, as the Canadien forwards were slowing up when approaching the Belleville blueline.

The Peterborough line of Gus Leonard, Chum Fryia and Bert Hill showed to be one of the better lots in the league if they continue their aggressive play. Leonard is a master stickhandler and coolly worked his way through the entire team on several occasions and also boasts a good shot. Chum Fryia needs no introduction. A consistent scorer in past years, he is deadly around the nets and knows what to do with the puck when he gets it. Bert Hill is an opportunist, as he proved in the first period and goes well with Fryia and Leonard.

The homebrew line of Keith MacDonald, Vern Goyer and Dave Jones was held from the scoresheet, but after a few games should hit their stride. MacDonald has lost none of his speed and all-out style of play while Goyer has long been noted as deadly around the net. Jones carries the disc well and along with Leonard is one of the top stickhandlers on the team.

Bobby Taylor is a colorful, speedy edition to the front trenches and certainly looked like a threat to Canadiens on the third line. Taylor is plenty rugged and should be a big assist to the club and can also play defence if the occasion arises.

McMaster and Bill Mulholland teamed as a defence pair combining Sammy's speed and Bill's sock 'em. Mulholland has one of the hardest shots in the league and can rush in on the opposing net and add to the point column at times. McMaster and Wilson, who also played headrop hockey, are two of the toughest boys in the league and you can bet the Belleville net will be kept clear of opposing forwards with Parisi's goaltending always ready. Tommy Rutherford was also hit hard, but looked a little slow on Thursday's play.

Not dressed for the exhibition tilt were Pete Jones, Toody Greenlaw, Jud Semark, George Jacklin and Pat Gilmour. Cox has not settled on his lineup but will have the pick of the crew ready for next Friday's league opener here against the powerful Whitby crew.

No 'Guts, Goals and Glamor' From Leafian Stylish Stouts; Fat Comes Off, Or Fines On

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League is in what a teen-ager would describe as a crazy, mixed-up state.

Who would have thought Detroit Red Wings, first-place finishers for seven straight years, would be in fifth spot in the league race this season? Or that Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and Boston Bruins would be hanging around the top?

And how about those Rangers? Rangers become tough guys and it's playing off. They have spent 80 minutes in the penalty box in five games this year. That's 24 minutes more than during the same period of the 1954-55 campaign.

New York now is in a third-place tie with Black Hawks, three points behind the league-leading Montreal Canadiens.

The Ranger get-tough policy did not come without warning. Goalie Chuck Phil Watson said weeks ago: "The other teams are in for a surprise. We'll win and we'll fight. We're not going to back down from anybody."

Rangers will be trying to move farther up in the standings this weekend.

Toronto Maple Leafs are hosts to Rangers tonight while in Montreal, Black Hawks take on Canadiens. Boston visits Detroit in the other Saturday game.

There is only one Sunday game. Rangers are at home to Black Hawks.

Meanwhile, in the Leaf camp general-manager Hap Day figures he can't get "guts, goals and glamor" from fat men. He has ordered two players to shed a total of eight pounds before them in two weeks—or else. The or else, Day said, would be fines.

"I gave the players an ultimatum to get down to playing weight, and told them how much it would cost them if they didn't," Day said. "It's not too serious, but every player is going to be in condition."

Defenceman Larry Cahan and right winger Ron Stewart were the two chosen to start the lard roll-off. Cahan must lose five pounds to bring his weight to 200 and Stewart has to drop three pounds to 188.

Fiddles With Strings

If Eskimos Play 'Rinky-Dinks' Bombers Have Chance to Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers probably wondered today whether Pop Ivy will change his mind about the rinky-dinks.

Ivy, coach of Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, has said he will play his rinky-dinks — second-string players—against the Bombers in Winnipeg tonight. These regular players, he said, will be given another rest.

Bombers won't mind that because it gives them a better chance of winning and leaves them with a chance to catch Saskatchewan Roughriders in the race for second place. But, if Ivy changes his mind and goes with the regulars, Bombers may have troubles.

Eskimos, who assured themselves of first place two weeks ago, started giving their regulars a rest last Saturday when they played Saskatchewan. Roughriders won 4-3 and lengthened their lead over the Bombers by another two points.

..ONE OF XOUR

The Edmonton-Winnipeg game is one of four this weekend. In another contest tonight, the fourth-place British Columbia Lions take on the Roughriders at Regina. On Monday, it's Lions at Winnipeg and Regina at Calgary.

In the East, the high-powered Montreal Alouettes meet Argonauts at Toronto and Hamilton Tiger-Cats play the Rough Riders at Ottawa.

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen go against the Imperials at Sarnia in the only engagement in the Ontario Rugby Football Union today. Imperials meet Toronto Beaches at Toronto Sunday.

In two other intercollegiate senior games, Toronto Varsity Blues are at Montreal against McGill, while Queen's Golden Gaels of Kingston clash with Western Mustangs at London.

It's a cinch that Argos, smarting under 43-11, 30-28 and 44-23 lickings in three meetings with the first-place Als, will throw the book at Montreal.

At Ottawa, the revamped Rough Riders, with a good chance of overhauling the Tabbies, host Argonauts and capturing the third and last playoff position in the Big Four, will be out to put a halt to Hamilton's hex over them. Ottawa has been unable to whip TiCats this year.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Dick Hillstadt, 18, a tackle on Ohio State's Rose Bowl champion football team last year, was killed Friday night when a car in which he was riding missed a curve near here and he was thrown out.

"I understand he'll be used mostly for blocked kicks and blowing up footballs!"

Charges Boxing Associated With Racket Elements

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — One of Pennsylvania's three athletic commissioners says the blunt charge that "racketeer elements" have a close association with boxing.

Alfred M. Dunn, a Philadelphia attorney, said Friday "there is a much closer association between boxing and the underworld than I ever thought of."

Klein said there was an urgent need for a congressional investigation of nationwide boxing.

Meantime, the Pennsylvania athletic commission is continuing its own probe, he said, even going out of the state to get witnesses.

Professional boxing in Pennsylvania had been suspended most of the summer after it was discovered Lee Savold, a light heavy-weight, had been drugged before a May bout he had in the Philadelphia Arena.

Who drugged Johnson, and how, Klein has discovered but Klein said that the commission — which held hearings on many weeks suspended Johnson and a number of his associates—could still trying to find that mystery—and "some day we'll find out."

NOT THE ONLY ONE

Klein also disclosed that Johnson wasn't the only boxer drugged in Pennsylvania, but he gave no specific details.

"There have been others and we investigated them," he said. "They did not come to Philadelphia. We are endeavoring to find out if any individuals connected with Ed r o l d Johnson were mixed up in the other doping affairs."

Klein, who was associated with Sen. Estes Kefauver when the Tennessee Democrat conducted his nationlwide probe of gambling, said he favored a congressional investigation because it affords subpoena power, Witnesses who decline to testify, he said, can be cited for contempt of Congress and jailed.

Klein said the Pennsylvania commission could reveal a lot of information, but that he is keeping mum.

Cuban Sensation Makes Big Time With Thrilling Victory Over Turner

NEW YORK (AP)—Isaac (Kid) Logart, who once fought a main event for $1.50 in his native Cuba, today was headed for boxing's big money following his thrilling victory over experienced Gil Turner in Madison Square Garden.

The 22-year-old flash from Kid Gavilan's home province of Camaguey not only earned about $5,000 for Friday night's 10-round amazing muscle-and-speed contest a Dec. 2 date in the Garden against an opponent to be selected.

"We may put him in with Don Jordan who beat Joe Miselli in Washington," said Irving Akins, or have him fight Turner again," said Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club. "The Kid made a big hit and we want to use him often."

A 13-10 underdog, Logart won the thrilling slugfest by copping the feverishly-paced last round. The whole fight hinged on the final bout and the earned it by beating his 25-year-old heavier rival in several furious exchanges and with cold left hook to the jaw a few seconds before the bell.

All three officials awarded that frame to Ike. Had it gone the other way, Turner would have won.

"This is the best fight I ever made," said Logart, one of the 17 children of a Cuban soldier. "Now I stay here until I win welterweight title like Gavilan."

"The Kid's good," said the crestfallen Turner. "I should have done more leading. I'd like to fight him again. He punches with me."

Gil, 10th ranking middleweight contender, outweighed his rival 152¼ to 147.

Dutches, Mercs Win Senior Loop Openers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Bobby Bauer of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen apparently realizes how much rest for injured players means.

In one of Friday night's opening games of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A schedule, Dutchmen defeated Chatham Maroons 5-4 in overtime at Chatham. Ken Laufman, who was taken out of the record-shelf area at the end of one because of a back injury, scored two goals for the winner. His second tally was the overtime shot that won the game.

In the other OHA Senior A game, played at Stratford, Owen Sound Mercurys handed the Indians a 4-2 loss.

Laufman took advantage of a Chatham penalty to defenceman Dick Kotanen to fire home the winning goal at 8:15 of the 10-minute overtime session. Laufman's first goal was midway through the second frame.

Paul Knox, George Scholes and Jack McKenzie were the other Kitchener-Waterloo marksmen.

CHATHAM SCORERS

Graham Joyce, George Edwards, Eddie Busch and Denny Schultz registered Maroons' goals.

Maroons on three occasions fought back to tie the game.

Dutchmen went ahead 1-0 on Knox's goal at 7:30 of the second period but three minutes later Joyce knotted the score. Then at the 16:44 mark Edwards and Bob Dutchmen into a 2-1 lead only to have Edwards deduct it at 18:35.

McKenzie and Laufman put the defending Allan Cup champions in front 4-2 early in the second stanza but, once again Maroons bounced back. Busch and Schultz made it even before the period ended and Schultz sent the game into overtime on his fourthing goal of the night.

HELD TO LEAD

At Stratford, Owen Sound took a 2-0 lead in the first period and held on to it as Indians matched single goals by Marcono in the last two frames.

Buck Forsdick, Frank Bergeron, Tommy Burlington and Jack Taylor scored a goal each for the winners. Dinny Flanagan and Art Hurst scored for Stratford.

Stratford had plenty to score in the middle session, when they outshot Owen Sound 15-5, but Bob Gilson turned in a fine showing in the Mercurys' goal. Fifteen penalties were called, eight to Stratford.

White Sox To File Answer To Charges

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Chicago White Sox Friday were ordered to file by Oct. 31 an answer to a $25,000 damage suit filed against the club and its first baseman, Walt Dropo.

Judge J. Mitchell Cockrill issued the order after dismissing Dropo as a defendant in the suit. The judge ruled that "legal service on Dropo is invalid," but didn't operate on his decision.

The suit was filed last spring by Tom Glover of North Little Rock. Glover charged that his 16-year-old son, Tommy, was cuffed by Dropo while attending an exhibition baseball game between the White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals.

Glover contended that Dropo followed a foul ball into the grandstand, where his son was allegedly attacked. The infielder denied the charge.

Coaches Select Offensive Squad

MONTREAL (CP)—The coaching staffs of Big Four Football League teams have chosen seven members of the Montreal Alouettes and five Toronto Argonauts players to their offensive all-star squad.

Results of the poll, conducted by newspaper men here and in the other Big Four cities, were announced today.

The defensive team was made up of four players from Montreal, three each from Ottawa and Hamilton, and two from Toronto.

Three players guard Bill Albright and tackle Bill Stowe of Toronto and centre Tom Hugo of Montreal—were chosen to both squads.

The offensive team was made up of Joey Pal, Montreal, flying wing; Dick Shatto, Toronto, fullback; Pal Ashburni, Montreal, and Corky Sharp, Toronto, halfbacks; Albright and Herb Trawick, Montreal, guards; Tex Coulter, Montreal, and Shipp, tackles; Red O'Quinn, Montreal, and Al Pfeifer, Toronto, ends; and Sam Etcheverry, Montreal, quarterback.

Junior Canadiens Blank Hamilton

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens scored two goals in the second period and banged home four more in the third to blank Hamilton Cubs of the Ontario Hockey Association 6-0 Friday night in Laurier Trophy play.

The win was the second for Montreal in two Laurier Trophy starts.

A strong second period in which the Canadiens fired 21 shots at Dennis Riggin in the Hamilton net produced goals by Claude Laforge and Andre Pronovost.

The Canadiens wore down the Cubs in the third period and Bouchard, Rutel, Bonin and Laforge netted goals to settle the issue.

Riggin was sensational in the Hamilton nets, turning back 46 shots in addition to the six that got by him.

Five Ontario teams and the Canadiens are competing for the challenge trophy.

Chicoutimi Trims Shawinigan 4-1

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Chicoutimi Saguenens snapped the Shawinigan Falls winning streak at five Friday night by downing the Cataracts 4-1 in a Quebec Hockey League game.

Georges Roy, Cressman, Jacques Locas and Gerry Glaude counted for the Saguenens while George Faulkner got the only Shawinigan Falls goal.

U.S. Football

NEW YORK (AP)—The deadlocked Eastern and Western conferences of the National Football League can be unscrambled Sunday when all 12 teams see action.

Pittsburgh and Cleveland, tied for the top rung in the eastern section with three victories and one defeat each, face strong opposition in New York Giants and Green Bay Packers, respectively.

In other games, Detroit is at Los Angeles, Chicago Bears are at San Francisco, Philadelphia at Baltimore and Philadelphia plays the Cardinals at Chicago.

Brown, with the advantage of a home field, rule seven-point favorites over Packers who are in a triple tie with Los Angeles for first place in the Western Conference. Each has a 3-1 record.

Pittsburgh, for the fifth straight week, finds itself the underdog, by three points, for the game in New York. Philadelphia is a 7½-point favorite to beat Cardinals, Los Angeles is the same over the Lions, Detroit is over Redskins and 49ers are four over the Bears.

CANUCK SPELLS FINIS TO TURPIN'S CAREER

GORDON WALLACE

RANDY TURPIN

Labelled a cinch to beat Canadian boxer Gordon Wallace, Britain's Randy Turpin suffered a fourth-round knockout at the hands of the Canuck in their scheduled 10-round middleweight bout at Haringey arena, London, England. 24-year-old Wallace, a native of Brantford, Ont., thus spoiled Turpin's plan to meet world light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore in January. Instead, the dazed Turpin, 27, who holds the British Empire light-heavy title, announced his retirement immediately after the knockout. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Aggies Tie Baby Blues

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph OAC-VC Aggies scored two touchdowns in the first four minutes of the second half here Friday night to gain an 11-11 tie with Varsity Baby Blues in an intermediate intercollegiate game.

Toronto quarterback Larry Joynt opened the scoring early in the first quarter on an 11-yard jaunt around end. The play culminated an 80-yard march by the Blues.

The second Varsity touchdown came off an attempted field goal by Joynt. Aggie Bill Wilson fumbled the ball inside the goal line and Bill Hunter fell on it.

Two Bill Webber-to-Bill Sproule passes on the opening plays of the third quarter put the Aggies behind 11-6. Paul Bilton converted. Aggies scored again three minutes later when quarterback Webber went over on a sneak from the right. The convert was blocked.

PARIS (AP)—Hans Mueller of West Germany, Friday was named world champion speed motorcyclist in the 250 c.c. class. The International Motorcycling Federation gave the top honors to Mueller after disqualifying W. A. Lomas of Britain who had been the leading competitor in Europe's many Grand Prix races.

Burlington, Rams Reach Feather Football Finals

TORONTO (CP)—Four top Ontario high school teams, operating under the banner "Play that They May," treated nearly 18,000 fans Friday night to two fast-moving games in the opener of the two-night Red Feather annual football classic.

Quarterback Cal Connor ran and passed 30 yards for a 33-3 win over Woodstock Red Raiders in the first game.

Etobicoke Rams exploded in the final quarter of the second game, travelling almost the length of the field on two ground plays for the touchdown which gave them a 10-7 victory over Hamilton Cathedrals.

The golden rule award will be presented after the last game Saturday night. The winning team will be chosen on the basis of: Statistics, 30 per cent; sportsmanship, 25 per cent; and field generalship, 25 per cent.

SET THEM UP

Burlington's flashy quarterback set up two touchdowns with passes, intercepted a pass to run for a touchdown himself, and converted two touchdowns with passes in the first half to build up a 22-0 lead.

Tom Moulton sparked Woodstock when the COSSA representative team got moving for the first and only time in the third quarter, countering alternately with Bill Sanders, Joe Cassone and Dave MacKenzie. They moved the ball far enough into Burlington territory for Moulton to kick their only point.

Connor's passing featured a strong fourth-quarter drive for two touchdowns by Gary Smith and Bill Hines. Burlington scorers in the first half were Paul Bryant, Hines, Adam Jackpenck and Connor. At the other end of Connor's two convert passes were Rudy Gall and John Wilson.

Several bands and 200 cheerleaders doling their half between games rounded out the extravaganza.

Gate receipts for the two nights are expected to net $15,000, all of which will go to Toronto Community Chests. The tournament is sponsored by the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations.

Merry Mixup Features Rich Chase Race

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's richest steeplechase, the $12,500-added Grand National Jumping Handicap, was won Friday at Belmont Park by Mrs. Jean Phipps' Neji in a nightmare of tumbling horses and falling riders during which French jockey Albert Poel suffered a brain concussion and a possible skull fracture.

Neji, carrying top weight of 167 pounds, closed with a rush in the final eighth of a mile of the tough 2¼-mile affair and barely edged Mrs. Richard S. Walsh's Rythminthim at the wire.

Neji consolidated his claim as the French jumper of 1955 and the photo-finish camera disclosed a three-quarters length winner. The Brookmeade Stables' Neji boosted his seven lengths back of Rythminthim.

Four of the 11 starters either went down or lost riders in the spectacular event before a crowd of 16,814. One was the 8-to-5 favorite Shipboard, who crashed to the turf with Poel the next-to-last fence in the 16-jump race.

Notre Dame Meets Illini

NEW YORK (AP)—A week ago a sodden Saturday produced the biggest wave of upsets the U.S. college football season has seen. Four teams were knocked out of the Associated Press ranking lopped on all sides.

Half-dozen or so prominent winners of these games today will join a dwindling group of teams undefeated, untied, seven lengths in an effort to restore some sort of order to the 1955 scramble.

Last week's losers pose some of the biggest questions in the football campaign game. They include Notre Dame, a team that has finished in the first 10 ten times in any other in the 20-year history of the Associated Press ranking poll and Wisconsin.

It's a matter of record that when a high-flying team is beaten once, it's likely to tumble again in the next week. And today Notre Dame, whipped by Michigan State, encounters Purdue, which got a great lift last week by tying Iowa on Len Dawson's last-play pass.

Wisconsin, sharing the Big Ten lead with Michigan but trounced by Southern California, runs into Ohio State, upset victim of Duke last week.

Michigan State meets first-enjoying Illinois in what figures to be the top game on the Big Ten slate.

HOLDS FLYING FISH

Fisherman Heath Jewers holds a flying fish which he caught on Nova Scotia's eastern shore near Ecum Secum. Scientists at the fisheries experimental station at Halifax identified this catch with its 10-inch wingspread as exocoetus volitans, a variety rarely seen north of the Virginia capes. Jewers spotted the fish on the beach and clamped a bucket over it. (CP Photo).

Catching Flying Fish on N.S. East Coast is New Experience

ECUM SECUM, N. S. (CP)—When cod fisherman Heath Jewers caught a flying fish on Nova Scotia's eastern shore, it was a new experience in nearly 50 years of fishing but then all sorts of strange things are happening in this part of the Atlantic.

Rays, tarpons and turtles, native to semi-tropical waters, have been caught off Nova Scotian shores. Two years ago a 25-foot killer shark, rare in these waters, caused a fisherman's death by upsetting a fishing boat.

Jewers caught his flying fish when he saw it skimming over the waters of Jewers' cove near his home. When it lighted on the beach he clamped a bucket over the specimen.

Jewers got an explanation when he took his flying fish to the fisheries experimental station at Halifax. Scientists identified his catch as its 10-inch wingspread as exocoetus volitans, a variety rarely seen north of the Virginia capes.

They told him that Nova Scotia's coastal waters have warmed up by an average of two degrees in the last 10 years. The warming waters have been accompanied by an invasion of semi-tropical and tropical fish species. At the same time, the cod fish, native to colder waters, appears to be moving north.

The scientists say there still are enough cod fish in these waters for economical fishing, but eastern shore fishermen like the 57-year-old Jewers are wondering just what will happen next.

Upland Hunting Without Dogs

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

Among my friends is a man who not only is an enthusiastic upland gunner but also a wealthy to indulge himself in his chosen sport without having to concern himself about time and money incidental to the enjoyment of that sport—in an enviable situation.

Time was when this man spent what most of us would call prospect ant money for his bird dogs. Good grouse and woodcock dogs are not easily come by, and he spent much time and many hundreds, yes thousands, of dollars in acquiring the best dogs he could find. In his kennel he had several outstanding performers in the grouse and woodcock covers.

Then one season he invited me to come and shoot with him. Imagine my surprise when I learned that he had disposed of all of his shooting dogs. He and his friends had gone in for "walk-up hunting" for grouse and woodcock and they were having a real time of it. Most of them assured me that never again would they use dogs for grouse and woodcock. Walk - up hunting was more fun and much more thrilling, they averred.

At the present time I am blessed with the ownership of the world's best woodcock dog. He is a big setter name Spot—one of those one-in-a-lifetime dogs. Actually I believe that Spot knows more about woodcock and their habits than we do.

However, before I owned Spot, I did a great deal of walk-up hunting. We hunted, usually, in groups of three or four, and we developed some great teamwork.

The first thing we remember . In walk-up hunting (and this is a common error) is that it is a mistake for a group to hunt with all men abreast. Take ringneck pheasants, for example, with four guns in the party. If you walk four-abreast, the birds simply run ahead of you, then take off to the side and are gone.

If the field is not too large, space four guns so that one is at each edge of the field. Then have the two wing men maintain a distance of 25 or 30 yards ahead of the center of the field.

A ringneck is reluctant to run across open ground. Thus, he will usually hide in the grass or brush at the end of the field. The wing guns.

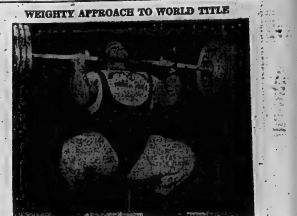
If the field is a large one, then the system is to have the four guns maintain a line that is about 45 degrees to the line of travel. This forces the birds to one side of the field. Then the return drive, done in the same manner, moves the birds to concentrate in the corner of the field. That is where you get your shooting.

If you have enough guns (we are allowed five to a group here in Pennsylvania) it is always a good plan to have at least one gun to "head-up" the drive at the far end of the field. A man can do a lot of work and forth, making all the noise he wants, to discourage birds from running out of the field, ahead of the drive.

In grouse shooting, much the same tactics can be employed. Usually a grouse will fly uphill. At night, place the wing man 30 yards or more ahead on the uphill side. In a tight valley, it is a good plan to have two wing men, one on each side.

HARD WORK

Woodcock shooting, as you know if you have done much of it, is done in heavy, brushy cover. Walking up woodcock is hard work, particularly for the guns in the wings in the center. Woodcock center. Woodcock covers, as a rule, are not large, and it is possible for the wing men to keep to the edge in fairly open going.

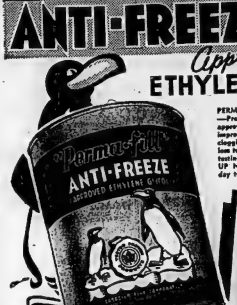


Generally, a woodcock will angle off to the right or left when flushed. Thus, the wing men get most of the shooting. We make it a rule that a wing man can keep his place only until he misses a bird. Then he goes to center position and plays bird dog until somebody else misses one. It puts a high premium on good shooting.

With quail, the walk-up system operates much the same as with ringneck. Quail will run ahead of a drive, all right, and the wing men ahead to keep the birds in front of the center guns.

In walk-up shooting, the element of surprise is always there, much more than it is when you use a dog. You have no warning before a bird flushes. I like good dog work as well as the next fellow but, lacking a good dog, you can have a lot of sport by the walk-up method if you follow these simple suggestions.

man, at the end of the field, simply moves in toward the center and the birds are boxed in between four



WEIGHTY APPROACH TO WORLD TITLE

Putting all of his heft into the effort is Paul Anderson, 22-year-old student from Toccoa, Ga., who competed in 17-nation weight-lifting championships in Munich. Anderson holds the world's weight-lifting title, but the team championships were won by Russia. Anderson lifted a fabulous 1,130 pounds to better by 66 pounds the official world record held by another American, Norbert Schemansky. (Central Press Canadian).

'Scott Frost' Wins Feature

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — If any further proof was needed, California's Scott Frost showed himself to be a great trotting champion in his debut race at Hollywood Park.

The three-year-old Hambletonian winner staged a gallant drive in the stretch to win the mile feature Friday and break the track record in the process.

The time for the mile was 1.59 2-5. The old mark was 1.59 3-5, set in 1951 by Pronto Don, all-time big money winner in harness racing.

Geo. Gobel Appears Likely To Break TV Sophomore Jinx

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On his television program last Saturday, George Gobel was in a crack about whether he could break the sophomore jinx.

This was a jibe at the critics, commentators and others who have been keeping a close eye on lonesome George's second year in the big time. The saga sounds like a soap opera.

Will George keep his popularity? He will be the fads, like Red Buttons and other unfortunates? Tune in next Saturday and try to find out.

My guess is that George will make it. This is based on his own great and diverse talents, not on his showing thus far this season. The shows have been far from the high standard he set lah is freshman year.

MOM IS DISTURBING

Aside from the lack of bright sketches, there's another disturbing factor about the new Gobel show, it's Mom.

Now I have nothing against motherhood, is its place. But the device of having "Mom Gobel" interrupt the program is irritating and unfunny. I am also alarmed about what it does to the character of George Gobel. It makes him a pantywaist.

I have a theory about TV comedians: They must be manly.

Some comedy historians will dispute this. They point out that the father of modern comedy was Charlie Chaplin, the little fellow who always got kicked around. So were other greats of the silent screen — Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton, Harry Langdon, etc.

But even though they were willful, they could also fling a brick now and then.

TV DIFFERENT

TV comedians are different from the movie kind. They are seen every week occasionally at a movie, To remain popular, TV comics must be really liked and admired by the viewers, who see the funny men as often as they do most of their friends.

I feel that this dwelling on the "little fellow" concept is what has eclipsed the TV careers of Red Buttons, Alan Young, Wally Cox and Dennis Day. Even Jack Carson, though big in size, allowed himself to play the patsy.

All of these are good performers. Perhaps they would still have regular shows if they had been allowed to kick the boss or talk back to their wives and girl friends now and then.

So watch it, George. Don't let Mom push you around.

WARN OF TROUBLE

NEW YORK (CAP)—The world's airlines were warned Thursday of trouble ahead because navigation aids and ground facilities are failing to keep pace with aircraft development. The technical committee of the International Air Transport Association said the facilities upon which airlines operations are completely dependent are lagging behind the airplanes they serve.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, October 23, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Do not hurry needlessly; neither be dilatory. Take someone to church with you if possible, and feel the better for it. Don't listen to rumors, but do gather helpful information.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Where there is a will, there is sometimes stubbornness! Be sure you are on the side of righteousness, fair-mindedness and tolerance.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — The aspect of your Sign's major planet, Mercury, suggests that you be careful in interpreting things; also be mindful of the "little" obligations and niceties that really build happiness.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — To be able to listen calmly and with open mind, even though what you hear disturbs your sense of proportion, means that you can be a fairer judge. Start the day with prayer.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — There are some indications that you could run into fresh difficulties, encounter obstacles unless you are strong in purpose and action. Church service will put you on the right track.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Fewer hazards and irritations for you than for others today, but you will have your share — and more — if you are careless about methods or how you approach discussions and plans. Deliberate carefully.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Ventu-more favorably aspected than many other planets, urges you forward, but with a cautious step and an awareness of the possible results if you are inattentive or too opinionative.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — When mental problems and minute matters press, stop to contemplate your many blessings. Life is wonderfully interesting today.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter's position suggests that you take time to think before acting or deciding. There may be small, but important, details to be changed. Don't hesitate to say, "Sorry," or "You are right."

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — An old yet never-more-important adage says, "The noblest task is to command one's self." And, with a good start at church, and sincere prayers, you can have a satisfactory day.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Take time to make the right start and this day will please. Look on the bright side; pray with faith, remembering the old Hindu saying, "Do not neglect your own field to plough your neighbors."

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — True genius never despises labor. And the Pisccan is one who values honest work and those who apply themselves. Find the satisfaction in your work, however, for the sake of your health.

You born today are a combination of characteristics from the waning Sign Libra and the oncoming Scorpio. You are strength in weakness, sometimes vice versa. How you develop your inimitable talents is important. You can manage well, improve upon others' notions, ideas; are practical yet also capable of highly artistic achievement. Get enough fresh air and sleep. Abstain from overindulgence in highly seasoned foods, stimulating drinks, anything in excess. You tend to wear down vital forces when accomplishing. Pray, have faith in God's goodness. Invest carefully. Birthdate of: Gen. Sainsbury, man of letters.

RUSSIAN-ARAB "UNDERSTANDING" SEEN IN U.N.

The hammer and sickle, many U.N. diplomats believe, is reaching into an Arab states, as indicated by apparently co-operative voting in the U.N. by the Russian and Arab blocs. Whether "work together" action was formed when Russia agreed to sell arms to Egypt. Whether understanding when the Arab states shown supported Russia's announcement she would insist on only political committee discussion of the disarmament question, which western powers feel should be left till after the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva this month. At root of all this is Russia's desire for a foothold in the Middle East, and Arab leaning to "neutralism." (Central Press Canadian).

European Status Plan for Saarland Rejected 2 to 1

Premier Johannes Hoffmann Announces His Resignation

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar (AP)—French Premier Edgar Faure and German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer moved swiftly today to counter a crisis brewing between their two nations as a result of the Saar's 2-to-1 rejection of the plan in Europeanize the rich industrial valley.

Faure and Adenauer exchanged telegrams expressing their confidence that the outcome of the Saar plebiscite Sunday must not be allowed to upset relations between France and West Germany.

But already the vote had toppled the Saar's pro-French premier and heightened demands from the pro-German leaders for return of the German-speaking coal and steel territory the Reich had held before the Second World War.

A whopping 96.57 per cent of all Saar landowners voted Sunday to turn down the European status plan. 422,434 cast their votes in 201,973 (32.3 per cent).

There were no incidents during the balloting after a turbulent three-month campaign. The bonds between France and Germany were sealed by personal appeals from both leaders to voters.

Within minutes after the final returns were reported early today, Premier Johannes Hoffmann announced he was resigning "out of respect for the will of the people." He promised immediate parliamentary elections, similar to set up a new government pledged to work for speedy reunion of the Saar with Germany.

Hoffman said he would serve until a new government is elected but he called the German leaders met this morning and said they would not accept him as a member of any kind of government. Instead, they proposed Heinrich Welsch, former chief of the executive board of the Saar railroads, as interim government chief.

Hoffman, 58, has been premier since 1947.

By defeating the Europeanization statute—which had taken five years to work out in Paris and Bonn—the Saar electorate inflicted a bitter humiliation on the French and raised the possibility of a new era of French-German relations.

The Europeanization plan would have put the Saar's defence and foreign relations under a neutralized international body of the new-country Western European Union while guaranteeing the customs and currency union with France. The statute was signed by West Germany Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Paris a year ago as the price for French recognition to West German rearmament.

LINKED WITH FRANCE

The 951-square-mile territory, occupied by France after the war, now is linked in an economic union with France and the French control its foreign relations and defence.

France previously has said rejection of the Europeanization plan would maintain the present alignment, but a French spokesman refused to speculate on future relations with West Germany on the Saar issue. He said it is necessary.

"We are first of all democrats and we have to abide by the will of the people," one Paris official said.

Leaders of all political parties in Bonn—except the ailing Adenauer, who had predicted the agreement to be hit—hailed the result of the plebiscite as a "vote for Europe." They left no doubt they expect the French to hand over the territory scrupulously.

EISENHOWER SAYS DULLES 'SPEAKS FOR ME' AND U.S.

Unqualified Support Voiced on Parley's Eve

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower's declaration of unqualified support for State Secretary Dulles in advance of the Geneva conference highlighted today the start of his busiest work schedule since he was stricken a month ago.

The President put Dulles on his feet again, at least for the purpose of conferring with the whole world know that Dulles "speaks for me with authority for our nation," as he told Democratic listeners meeting opening Thursday.

While statesmen and politicians conjured with this declaration, Gabriel Hauge and Dr. Arthur Burns started a parade of official visitors to Fitzsimons Army Hospital for a conference on economic problems.

CABOT LODGE, TOO

Burns, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, and Hauge, Eisenhower's personal economic adviser, will precede Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., into Mr. Eisenhower's room. Lodge is chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations.

The scheduled schedule of callers followed weekend physical checkups which Mr. Eisenhower going well enough to go ahead with plans to fly to his Gettysburg, Pa., farm between Nov. 5 and Nov. 12.

Mr. Burns' heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White couldn't say at this time whether there will be complete recovery from the heart attack. "We will have to wait another two or three months to make sure of the completeness of his recovery," Dr. White said.

That was on Saturday when Dr. White met reporters to give them what he called the "good news" about the president's condition.

STROOD BUSY

The president was well enough Sunday to stand upright unaided and sing songs at the piano. They showed he had dropped to 172½ pounds, less than when he entered the hospital.

Afterwards, the president made public a letter to his cabinet spelling out Dulles' role of full authority in Geneva. Dulles was criticized for the full support of his colleagues in the administration, including Vice President Nixon and read to the cabinet in person Monday.

In order to help strengthen the U.S. position at Geneva, the president will follow up his letter with a public statement in connection with the opening of the meeting.

Bridegroom Is Arrested At Wedding Party

PARRY SOUND (CP) — A 23-year-old bridegroom was arrested at his wedding reception Saturday and charged with criminal negligence and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Police took Raymond Monette into custody about an hour before he was married to Anita Gagnon and charged with in connection with the death Friday of Mrs. Tommy Heidman, 31.

The boy was killed when he was knocked from his bicycle by a car which did not stop.

Monette was released on $8,000 bail after appearing before a justice of the peace, who remanded the case until today.

Charge Company Directors With Keeping Bawdy House

TORONTO (CP)—Three directors of the Inglewood Construction Company were arrested today and charged with keeping a common bawdy house.

Stephen Fron, Charles Iaygor and Linus Coghlin, alleged kingpins in the Jarvis district slum "empire" here were arrested after several days' investigation.

As heads of Inglewood Construction, the three allegedly operated 87 properties which police described as flophouses and "nightlies."

Police said that in addition, 25 houses in the depressed south Jarvis street area, part of the Regent Park slum, were raided and the names of all occupants taken.

The raid was said on orders of Crown Attorney W. O. Gibson, following police investigations that began last June.

Police said a continuous but quiet campaign has been waged by building inspectors, fire inspectors, sanitary and health inspectors to try to force Inglewood to raise its houses up to standard.

Last week income-tax officials moved in to force Fron to tell several properties to raise $50,000 to meet the tax bases.

Still enveloped in mystery is Johanna Fernuik, documented as owner of the Inglewood properties. Police thought at first Miss Fernuik was a fictitious name in a New York cousin of Charles Iaygor.

Duplessis Says Quebecers Will Get 'Best Positions'

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

JONQUIERE, Que. (CP)—Premier Duplessis said Sunday his "irrevocable decision" to give Quebecers the "best positions" in the development of the province's vast natural resources.

Mr. Duplessis, on a four-day warm up electoral campaign in the industrially important Lake St. John northeastern Quebec, placed unusual emphasis on the statement he made here Sunday before some 2,000 persons.

"It is irrevocable decision—they call me a dictator you know and it is going to be the best positions in the development of our natural resources," he said.

It was Mr. Duplessis' only remark about the development of natural resources in this region rich in lumber and hydro-electric power, a subject interesting the contributions of his Union Nationale government to the working class.

Mr. Duplessis struck up again the issue of provincial rights in the taxation and education fields, but he fired no broadsides at the four groups.

He said a joint policy in sessions today and federal government in his new policy of cooperation within the respect of Quebec's taxation powers.

On the federal-provincial taxation issue, he said there were still "some shocks."

"But they appear likely to evaporate under the kinds of discussions we will have in the morning."

ALL EXPRESS CONFIDENCE

For the first time in years all candidates here are campaigning with confidence to the outcome of the election. Toronto Spadina has been considered a Liberal stronghold. Mr. Croll was first elected in 1945, John Tolmie in 1949 as Liberal, represented the riding for the previous four years. In the last general election, August 10, 1953, Mr. Croll received 15,-676 votes, enough to defeat both the Progressive Conservative candidate, 5,277 votes, and CCF and I.L.P. candidate, 1,253.

The present House standing: Liberal 105, Progressive Conservative 52, CCF 23, Social Credit 15, Independent 2, Labor-Progressive 1.

A win for Mr. Salsberg would again give the Communists representation in the legislature. Their last member at Queens was Fred Rose, espionage ring. The 52-year-old Montreal labor-organizer, who went to prison for his associations with a Russian

PROSPERITY FOR ALL

Mr. Godfrey, 36-year-old president of the wool-dealing firm of S. Godfrey Ltd., has campaigned as his party's candidate for MP on a platform of prosperity for all. He has asked for a vote of confidence for the government. He has said that he will be confident the prosperity we have enjoyed is to return a Liberal MP here.

Mr. Rea also is a former member of the legislature. He was MP for Toronto St. Patrick. He has been in the insurance business here since 1934.

Mr. Waisglass, 34-year-old socialogist and economist, is campaigning for some votes from the trades unions that once favored Mr. Croll personally but now are "coldly behind the CCF. The ethnic groups are behind us in a body that just hasn't taken place before."

VOTERS TO NAME SUCCESSOR TO SENATOR CROLL

Toronto Spadina In Liberal Fold 25 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Voters today chose a successor to David Croll, a Liberal who held the constituency of Toronto Spadina in the House of Commons for 10 years.

The four candidates will choose either success or failure shortly after 8 p.m. EST, when ballot counting begins in the 74 polling booths opened at 8 a.m.

Contesting the seven left vacant last July when Mr. Croll was elevated to the Senate are Samuel Godfrey, Liberal; Charles Rea, Progressive Conservative, Harry Waisglass, CCF and Joseph B. Salsberg, Labor - Progressive (Communist) party.

Despite interest shown among the 45,000 eligible voters during the lively campaign, the weatherman looked at the affair with a farfrom-kindly eye. He forecast cloudy skies with rain in the morning.

Federation Wants All Boards To Accept Schedule

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation said Saturday it will advise all 10,000 members to accept a schedule for school boards that fail to recognize its new salary schedule.

The federation's executive council met at a meeting of the federation executive and delegates from the 34 districts in Ontario of the federation.

The schedule calls for $2,600 a year salary for a first-year teacher with an interim first class certificate and greater emphasis on qualifications in determining salary.

The plan would give a public school teacher with the same qualifications as a high school teacher a similar salary.

Believe Princess Has Made Up Mind About Townsend

Spent Weekend With Queen Presumably Talked of Love

LONDON (Reuters) — Group Capt. Peter Townsend tonight called for the fourth time on Princess Margaret at Clarence House, her London home.

The princess had returned earlier in the day from a weekend with Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle, where she and her sister presumably talked over Margaret's romance with the 41-year-old divorced air attache! and the problems that would arise if she decided to marry him.

It was the first time Townsend had stayed from his borrowed London apartment since visiting the princess Saturday week.

Asked if any announcement about himself or Margaret was expected now, he said: "I'm afraid I cannot answer that." This afternoon when he returned from Windsor the princess was smiling happily and waved to crowds who greeted her outside Clarence House.

Margaret Mother Elizabeth had returned to Clarence House 15 minutes earlier from a brief stroll in the country with her brother, Hon. David Bowes-Lyon.

The princess stayed home all morning in the apartment in Lowndes Square, Belgravia, that she is welcoming here on leave from Belgium.

Observers believe that, after sowing the divorced commoner almost out of her life, she returned to England on leave Oct. 12, the princess may at last have come to some decision about her future plans.

FIRST PRIVATE TALK

The weekend at the 900-year-old Crown estate was the first time that the sisters had met in private since Margaret's reunion with Townsend.

Parliament, which would have to discuss the constitutional aspects of any decision in favor of marriage, is due to reassemble Tuesday after the summer recess.

The Queen, the princess and the Duke of Edinburgh attended the morning church service in the royal chapel in Windsor Great Park.

In another Sunday service, at St. Paul's Episcopal church of Scotland, Edinburgh, the fashionable Scottish churchman told his congregation that he heard divorced Group Captain Townsend, she would be acting contrary to the law of God and the Church and against the known views of the Queen.

Douglas Lockhart, 51-year-old bachelor rector, said that as a well-instructed Anglican communicant he could not receive her there, thereby openly committed herself to the sweeping doctrine of Christianity which forbids a divorced person, such as Townsend, from being remarried during the lifetime of his first partner.

Mr. Lockhart's move proved to be the slightest foundation for the suggestion put forward in the Scottish press that the service would be taken in Scotland by a Presbyterian, that would be considered something like the sin of apostasy to violation of Christ's marriage law."

Western Europe Views Saar Vote With Misgivings Verging on Anxiety

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe today viewed the pro-German vote in the Saar with misgivings verging on anxiety.

There was a feeling that the 726,-000 people of the Saar—France - German border has emerged once again as the powder keg carrying the seeds of possible spot carrying the seeds of possible international discord. A sense of foreboding and unrest sounded in France.

British newspapers especially showed concern over "Nazi style" campaign tactics of Johannes Hoffmann who led the campaign against Europeanization of the territory.

Though the election result was widely unexpected, it apparently affected the shock felt in the British lines and revived memories of the days when Adolf Hitler marched into the Saar 20 years ago "on his first triumphant march."

The News' Chronicle called the result "a hard knock for Franco-German relations" and said "it is really a vote for Germany."

Under the headline "ex - Nazi wins the Saar vote," The Daily Mail said: "One thing alone is certain. Yesterday's vote will poison Franco-German relations on the eve of the Geneva foreign ministers' conference."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, which opposed the Western policy of rearming the Germans, said bluntly:

"If the French are disappointed they must blame themselves. They should never have agreed, to a choice between nationalism and Europeanism."

British newspapers emphasized that Johannes Heinrich Schneider, leader of the pro-German group in the Saar, was an ex-Nazi storm trooper.

The influential Times, while expressing regret, found no complaint about the Saarlanders right to reject the European statute.

"Nonetheless, many years' work on reconciliation between France and Germany is now jeopardized. The Saar plebiscite has given the German nationalism have been heard again, and that in the Nazi style."

West German newspapers tended to play down the "nationalism" issue raised by some of the British papers.

Die Welt (the world) of Hamburg said the vote was "true to the fatherland, to the mother tongue and to the homeland—that is an elementary human feeling and has nothing to do with nationalism."

Eastern Half Of Pictou County Again Connected

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — The eastern half of Pictou county was connected by telephone with the rest of the world Saturday after being cut off four days because of a feud between three brothers and the Maple Leaf Telephone Company, a rural line.

It started when Maple Leaf disconnected the phones of John Will MacDonald, Liberal member of the Nova Scotia legislature for Pictou East; his brothers, Frank Merigomish county councillor and A. J. MacDonald. The MacDonalds and the company are in dispute over an unpaid bill.

The Nova Scotia public utilities board stepped into the fray, ruled the dispute insufficient cause for such drastic action, ordered service restored and said the disputants could settle the issue later in court.

Eight Employees Of Queen's Hotel Hold Ticket

The "Silent Seven" should really have been called the "Silent Eight."

"Silent Seven" was the pseudonym used by the purchaser of an Irish Sweepstake ticket which was drawn on Geomon in the Czechoslovakian race, October 23.

Word has been received that Geomon will not start and the holder of the ticket will receive £100 or $280.

The holder of the ticket turns out to be eight employees of the New Queen's Hotel: Nick Kendrelis, Henry Johnston, Gil da'g Soules, Martha Asselstine, Maude Parker, Thelma Foster, Ruth Place and Geraldine Menne.

Eight shares were sold on the ticket, the last in the weekend book. The salesman, who wanted to sell the last share of tickets suggested that shares be sold if one person did not want to take it all.

Last year the wife of an aircraftsman at RCAF Station Trenton won $56,000 in an Irish sweepstake ticket when her horse finished second.

Dick Fitzpatrick And Hunter Pal Get Five Geese

Dick Fitzpatrick, former well-known Belleville athlete and more recently of Picton, who leaves tomorrow for a new home in the United States celebrated his impending departure from Canada with a literal "bang."

In fact it was a series of bangs, for Dick with hunting pal Don Trumpour stumbled upon a resting flock of Canada geese, laid down a barrage of six rapid fire shots and came up with a bag of five of the handsome birds.

Dick, who has been associated with the Brewers Warehouse Ltd. both here and in Picton for a number of years, has resigned his post and will join an uncle in a business venture in Buffalo, New York. He was manager of the Picton branch of the Brewers' Warehouse at the time of his resignation.

Dick, who is an ardent duckhunter, left with Trumpour Saturday morning in quest of his favorite "dinner." Walking across a farmer's field near Picton, they suddenly heard a flock of some 25 Canada Geese that had settled down in a distant field to feed and rest.

Fitz and Trumpour went down on all fours and crawled and stumbled some three hundred yards over the corn-covered fields so as not to disturb their quarry.

The six geese rose and flew suddenly treated to the roar of shotguns. Four of them as Fitz and Trumpour blazed away at the legal "quota" of three cartridges in each gun.

The frightened flock surged into the air with the exception of one that was badly wounded and could not rise.

"He was making good time, though," said Dick recounting the hunting adventure to his friend him and the race was fairly even. In the meantime I reloaded and brought him down with the first shot."

BCI Cafeteria Is Nearly Ready For Equipment

The new cafeteria in the basement of the Belleville Collegiate will soon be ready for installation of equipment and authorization for purchase of the required equipment was given at last night's meeting of the Bay of Quinte District high school board.

School Principal E. Orr and J. B. Durnford, chairman of the property and supply committee, were authorized to purchase the necessary purchases of equipment.

Little further routine matters came under discussion at the meeting of the high school board.

Clifford Twiss, music teacher at the Collegiate, was authorized to go to Toronto to purchase instruments for use by the school orchestra.

Retired members Harold Seldon, J. B. Durrant and Mrs. R. Morden were named to committees to discuss health services with health committees of the boards of high schools. Plans are underway for re-instituting health services at the Collegiate and Vocational schools in the department.

PLAN WINTER FAIR TRIPS

As has been customary in other years the school board will assist financially in sending students to agricultural students to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto.

The old Belleville Secondary School for a meeting of the Secondary Schools' Headmasters' Association was granted.

Board members expressed their appreciation to the Acting Chairman of the I.O.D.E. for the gift of framed reproductions of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, which now hang in the hall in the Quinte Secondary School.

The usual scholarships awarded by the school board for high school vocational students were authorized in readiness for commencement exercises at the Collegiate Friday evening.

Landscaping at the Quinte Secondary School to the amount of $485.50 was done by Bowmanville Nurseries of Bowmanville, was authorized.

Electric wiring for the new arc welding room at the collegiate will be done by tenders. Space used by the former arc welding classroom has been taken up by the new collegiate cafeteria.

In the future funds of school student organizations at Belleville Collegiate will be handled by the school vice-principal instead of by the school secretary. This has been the policy at Quinte Secondary School since the school was opened.

Extend Deadline For Use Of Small Envelopes

The Post Office Department announced today it has extended the deadline for the use of small-sized envelopes to Dec. 1st, 1956.

Envelopes smaller than 4 x 2¾ inches were earlier slated for the Dec. 1st, 1955 effect as of October 1st, 1955, but the extension has been granted to give suppliers a chance to exhaust their stocks.

The regulation against the tiny envelopes, usually used for greeting cards, invitations and announcements, puts into effect a convention of the Universal Postal Union at the last congress in Brussels. Increasing mechanical complexity in the handling of mail necessitating a more uniform sized envelope was the reason given by the Post Office Department for institution of the new regulation.

One of Wealthiest Men in America Dies in Indiana

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — George A. Ball, 92, last of the five brothers who made the mason jar a fixture in household canning, died in his home Saturday after a three-week illness.

One of the wealthiest men in America, he became even more famous than his family glass company for a business venture in 1925 which, for years, made him the chief owner of a huge railroad empire.

George Ball was 74 before he became nationally known as the main figure in a huge financial venture that left him in control of four major railroads — Chesapeake and Ohio, Nickel Plate, Erie and Missouri Pacific, which had been constructed by the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland.

Ball turned over his stock to the Ball Brothers Foundation for religious, charitable and educational enterprises.

The foundation later sold the rail securities for $6,375,000 to a group headed by Robert R. Young, now head of the New York Central system.

$135,000 Worth Of Jewelry Stolen In Three Weeks

TORONTO (CP)—Three thefts in the Toronto district during the weekend brought to nearly $135,-000 the amount of jewelry stolen in Ontario during the last three weeks.

Police said thieves got $20,000 worth of jewels from a salesman Friday, $5,000 worth from an east end jewelry store early Sunday and another $10,000 from a jewelry store in nearby Ajax.

On Oct. 3 a Toronto jewelry salesman was followed to a Windsor motel where his room was entered and $70,000 worth of jewelry stolen. Oct. 10, $30,000 worth was stolen from a store in Belleville.

A $5,000 packet of jewels was reported missing from the customs office in Hamilton, but police said they don't think the theft has any connection with the store robberies.

Frank Johns, a diamond salesman, told police Saturday that $20,-000 worth of jewels had been stolen from his sample case. He said the thefts might have occurred while his car was parked Friday. Police said he was in Waterloo Friday and only stopped once on his way here, for gasoline.

Supplementary Grant of $4 May Be Given

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — School boards throughout the province may again receive a supplementary grant of $4 per pupil next year, Harold W. Wagner of Waterloo, president of the Ontario trustees council said here Sunday.

Addressing the annual London district education conference of separate school trustees, he said he felt that this year's supplementary grant to school boards given by the provincial government "might not be an isolated case."

He said later that he was expressing his own opinion on the matter and not that of the Ontario Trustees Council.

Nearly 200 trustees representing about 75 separate school boards in western and southwestern Ontario were present.

TRAINING SUGGESTION

Speaking from the floor, J. Bourke McDonnell, separate school representative on London board of education, suggested the department of education should set up teacher training colleges attached to every university in Ontario.

"It seems fantastic that university students should have to go down to Toronto for an extra year's training."

A. F. Brown of St. Thomas was elected president.

Vivian committee: J. Bourke McDonnell, London; W. E. Prentice, Sarnia, Bob Butler, Stratford, Norman Langford, Windsor and Henry Ternoy, Blenheim.

Marysville Margarine Ban Motion Defeated

GUELPH (CP) — A resolution seeking to have the sale of margarine banned in Ontario was thrown out today by delegates at the annual convention of the Ontario Farmers' Union meeting in Guelph.

Introduced by a farmers' union local at Marysville, near Belleville, the motion urged the Ontario government to follow the lead set by Quebec government in banning margarine.

Union president Albert V. Cormack of Arthur, urged delegates to be practical. Farmers were solidly against the sale of margarine but few farmers in Ontario thought they could get rid of the product.

"This union is connected strongly with labor unions," said Mr. Cormack. Many factory workers had small incomes and large families and they could not afford to buy the farmers' butter. Rather than ban margarine, the farmers' union was going to seek a program of parity prices from the federal government which would allow farm products to find their own price level.

FIRST OIL WELL

Col. H. B. Harkness, considered the leading authority on Ontario's pioneer oil fields, points to the depression in the ground which is believed the actual site of North America's first oil well. The spot is at Oil Springs in Ontario's Lambton county. Col. Harkness, former natural gas commissioner for Ontario, says there is evidence that James Miller Williams sank the first oil well here in 1857. That was two years before Edwin L. Drake's famed well was drilled at Titusville, Pa. The Drake well has often been hailed as birthplace of the North American oil industry. An extreme left is Ontario Mines Minister P. T. Kelly. Butler Faces Big Challenge On Extra Budget

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler faces the strongest challenge of his cabinet career Wednesday, when he brings down an out-of-season, anti-inflation budget.

A hostile Labor party is waiting to pounce on Butler's budget as proof that concessions he made in the regular budget last April were mere vote-catchers for the Conservative party in the May general elections.

Conservatives reply that Butler granted mild tax relief in the April budget because he believed the British economy could stand it.

Butler's case is that the country is not facing an economic crisis, but that a new budget is necessary to put the brakes on a British spending spree. He claims over-spending is offsetting gains from high production and full employment.

BEHIND OTHER MEASURES

That also was the idea behind anti-inflation measures taken by the government last February.

Government supporters contend those measures have been effective. They point to the slower drain on the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves, and the smaller monthly gap between spending on imports and earning from exports.

Butler is known to have the full confidence of the cabinet.

Mountbattens In Canada For Short Visit

MONTREAL (CP) — The tall, handsome Canadian listened intently as a reporter said:

"There've been many stories about the royal romance and. . ."

"And you want me to tell you all about it?" said Earl Louis Mountbatten of Burma, Britain's first sea lord.

"No comment. Now, really, what did you expect me to say?"

The warrior-hero stepped from a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane at dawn today for a brief visit to Canada and the United States, accompanied by his wife, Lady Mountbatten.

SPEAKS AT KINGSTON

It is the fifth visit to Canada for both the Mountbattens, who immediately left by automobile for Ottawa where they will be guests at Government House.

The Mountbattens leave for Washington early Thursday after a busy round of social events and speeches in Ottawa and Kingston, where the earl will speak at the national defence college, the army staff college and inspect the Royal Military College cadets.

Admits Setting Fire

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP)—A five-year-old boy has admitted setting a fire which destroyed a midtown building here in an $80,000 fire Wednesday, police said Sunday.

They said Richard Pielacz of Val d'Or told them he found a box of matches behind the restaurant and set fire to some kindling in a woodshed adjoining the building. Four girls corroborated the boy's statement.

Three firemen were injured fighting the blaze.

85 Per Cent Would Decline To Officiate

LONDON. (AP)—The Sunday Dispatch said a survey among Church of England clergymen in 50 towns of England and Wales showed 85 per cent would decline to officiate at a marriage ceremony for Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

The paper said 85 of the 100 it questioned declared they would not conduct the service, 13 said they would and two were undecided. The church frowns on the remarriage of divorced persons whose first mate is living, as Townsend's former wife is.

FIREMEN BECOME SAILORS IN FLOOD AREA

Volunteer firemen of Derby, Conn., go about in a boat as they make a systematic check of all buildings and homes for residents who might be marooned by floods that followed a series of hurricanes. Three days of incessant downpour caused the Housatonic River to spread its waters over the city, driving thousands of people from their homes. (Central Press Canadian).

"The Regiment"

War Exploits of Hasty Pees Masterfully Told in Book

Most regimental histories while factual are generally pieces of mechanical literature, interesting in the main part to the men who formed the regiment, or those indirectly associated with the unit.

"The Regiment" (McClelland, Stewart, $5.00) the official record of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, written by Farley Mowat stands out in its class like a Verey flare on a dark night.

"The Regiment" is written by a man who not just derive his facts and figures from sometimes dullish records of those who served with the "Plow Boys," as the Hasty Pees were dubbed by other regiments, no doubt because the most of them hailed from the farms and villages of the counties after which the regiment was named.

Mowat wrote from actual experience. The drama, heartache, disappointment, defeat and triumph of untried soldiers who blazed a golden page on Canadian historical archives are pictured with lyrical splendor.

His picturesque description of the life of the regiment during the three years of hard, tough training in England, the bloody glory of the Sicilian campaign and the triumph of Italy and above all the regiment's glorious survival from almost certain defeat to ultimate victory are portrayed in a style that far removes "The Regiment" from the run-of-the-mill military histories.

Indirectly "The Regiment" is not the story of the gallant Hasty Pees" alone. It gives a true dramatic insight into the rigors of military life in action, and in reserve, of those gallant units that made the Canadian infantryman one of the most feared fighters in World War II.

Mowat tells with true army "lingo" the humorous and tragic sides of life with his regiment. He has wrapped into marvellous entity the exploits both in and out of action of the Hasty Pees. It is a triumph of military literary genius, a book that will be read by Canadians as a whole with a feeling of pride, and as one reviewer put it, "with a little shame."—G.H.C.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

MR. LOUIS MARASKAS, GENERAL CAMPAIGN CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMUNITY CHEST SAYS:

The Children's Aid Society of the City of Belleville, the County of Hastings and the Town of Trenton is providing care for 283 children. The cost of this care to citizens of this community is in excess of $100,000 annually. The law of the land makes adequate provision for these neglected children, but shame of it all is that they must be neglected before there is any provision for their welfare. Silly isn't it —putting a lock on the door after the horse is stolen. To provide all other services that tend to prevent children from becoming neglected, the society must depend on the Community Chest, Municipal Grants, Donations, etc. The Children's Aid Society has but one objective — to make the world a better place in which to live for those children, who by reason of neglect, have no one else to care for them.

MARRIAGE MUDDLE

Early marriages are hazardous, according to an editorial in the Owen Sound Sun-Times.

There will be those misguided souls who will view this statement as another example of verbosity and enquire scathingly what possible use the word "early" serves in this sentence.

We can, however, quote our contemporary in defence of our use of the word. The Sun-Times says: "The maiden who takes her time about marrying is usually happier than the one who enters matrimony early in life." To support this statement it quotes conclusions drawn by sociologists from a study of 604 young women, single or married. Single girls, these scientists discovered "had better emotional adjustment, greater self-reliance and a greater sense of personal freedom" than married girls.

The Sun-Times, being a family journal with a deep concern for the finer things of life, interprets this statement to mean that a woman should not marry until she is emotionally mature.

(Will the gentleman who blew the foam off his lips just long enough to remark that the universal adoption of this principle would ruin the market for diamonds please keep quiet?)

The fact that single girls enjoy better emotional adjustment, greater self-reliance and a greater sense of personal freedom than married girls poses an important question: Is Sex Necessary? Two American humorists, James Thurber and E. B. White, have this self-same question, quite profitably it may be mentioned, in a book by that title published a quarter of a century ago. However, they did little constructive work on the matter and the question remains as much a puzzle today as it did when the pangs of hunger drove them to their pens three decades ago.

Now the sociologists who questioned 604 young women, single and married, appear to have supplied an answer, an unhappy one. Apparently sex is not necessary for an emotionally mature, self-reliant life. Those who retort that, while sex may not be necessary, it is certainly pleasant will please not interrupt a serious discourse with frivolities. If we are going to encourage things which are merely pleasant, life is practically no limit to the goings-on which we shall permit.

No, in the interest of emotional adjustment, greater self-reliance and a greater sense of personal freedom, marriage—and therefore sex—must go, or at least be postponed.

(The woman washing diapers who enquires plaintively whether self reliance and personal freedom were ever compatible with, or even desirable in, marriage will please join the foam-blowing gentleman in silence. The very idea of suggesting that marriage ought to bring each other or ought to abandon personal freedom in the interest of family solidarity.)

Those who feel that we are judging sex—and marriage—too harshly when we rule them unnecessary are referred to the conclusion of a sociologist quoted by the Sun-Times. He points out that the young women to postpone marriage until they are emotionally mature do not always followed, because, he says, it is the immature and emotionally insecure young woman for whom marriage has the strongest appeal.

That ought to settle the whole question of marriage.

BIKE-PATHS ADVOCATED

Light-surfaced pathways for bicyclists paralleling all national highways are being advocated in the United States.

Whether or not the proposal will be seriously considered seems problematic. The idea is the "dream-child" of a Chicago lawyer, Morris Wulbert, who has interested Representative Yates, Illinois Democrat, in the scheme. Mr. Wulbert says that cycling would consume a lot of teen-age energy that now finds an undesirable outlet. The difficulty with all these proposals to provide harmless outlets for youthful energy is that even when the outlet is provided the teen-ager often shows as much reluctance to get off energy in this approved fashion as the horse shows aversion to drinking after he has been led to water.

Be that as it may, the proposal is an interesting one and if Mr. Wulbert ever succeeds in making bicycling popular once again his pathway plans have much to commend them. The Chicago Daily News apparently thinks otherwise. "Before the debate opens on Mr. Wulbert's proposal," it says, "we should like to have somebody explain why a path on a $75 bicycle wouldn't be entitled to as much consideration on the road as another on a $59 jalopy."

Unfortunately this sentence is ambiguous. It is possible to interpret it as support for Mr. Wulbert's idea, but the Chicago paper's reference to consideration "on the road" suggests that it feels that cyclists would be short-changed if they were pushed off the highways onto bike-paths. This view would only be advanced by a man who had never ridden a bicycle on a busy highway, at the risk of life and limb, and who had never driven an auto on a road cluttered with cyclists bicyclists. A revival of the cycling craze of yesteryear without special bike-paths for the cyclists would quickly make motorists as extinct as the dodo. The poor car-drivers would be either in court or in an institution recovering from a nervous breakdown.

JUST FOLKS

THE EX-HELPER

I used to dry the dishes and I used to make the toast.
I've often pulled an apron on and even turned a roast.
I've dusted chairs and tables and
I've swept the parlor floor,
But helpful little tasks like those
I don't do any more.

I wasn't very skilful, but a willing aid was I.
I used to bathe the children and their bodies I could dry.
But they've grown up and married, and I've settled in my chair,
And when I drop my paper I just leave it lying there.

Time was into the furnace I could deftly shovel coal.
And to another corner the piano
I could roll.
I've beaten rugs and carpets with a cape or club or slat,
But no one ever asks me now to do a job like that.

It's not that I'm complaining,
I'm just thinking of the past.
The chores I gladly learned to do were never meant to last.
But when the children's over, "yes"
I'd cheerfully reply
Should the hostess ever ask if the dishes I would dry.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"He made a lot of money," said the clergyman sitting next to me in the railway car, "but all he did was save it."

The clergyman was on his way home to another city after having officiated at the funeral of an old parishioner.

"He never had any fun," went on the clergyman, "unless collecting money is fun. I suppose it is; like stamp collecting, eh? It is a solitary kind of fun. For his wife and children saw no fun in it at all. They could see the accumulation. Year after year, as it grew and grew, they never could get at it. never could travel, never bought a farm where they could raise horses like other wealthy people. Never put on any dog. Never had a sport car. They all tried so hard to outlive him . . . .

"Ah," I murmured.

"But his wife died a good fifteen years ago," said the clergyman, "and died in the war, another son went to the bad and died of pneumonia. A daughter died in a sanatorium; of frustration, I suppose, for she was a mischievous, reckless sort of girl who would have been less harmed by having the money than she was by being denied it."

I thought these were pretty liberal views to be entertained by a clergyman, and I suggested something of the sort. He laughed.

"Well, I'm not one of these modern social-conscious clerics," he said. "All that interests me are the soul of my people. I have been this tight fisted old man's soul to rest. And I can't figure what sort of soul it is to be. For he lived a mean and unrelenting life, slowly surrounding himself with disaster in all things save his investments."

"Who gets his money?" I enquired.

"Charity. Every cent of it," said the clergyman.

"Well, that's something!" I protested.

"I'm not sure," said the clergyman," pulling a small black book out of his hip pocket. "I took First Corinthians along with me today. In the Greek, see? And in Greek, the word charity does not mean almsgiving."

"It means?" I asked.

"Love," said the man in black.

On Waiting For Doctors

(Pittsburgh Post-Gazette)

A public relations consultant has reported to the Pennsylvania State Medical Society that patient's chief complaint against the medical profession is the long wait he is subjected to in the doctor's office.

The consultant, James E. Bryan, says a survey made by the American Medical Association showed that patients "complain more often about waiting than about fees."

Too many doctors, or their receptionists, arrange for patients to pile into the office at one time. This is the so-called "catch all" method of making appointments, which Bryan, with more hope than justification, says "is outmoded today as spats, dodos and dusters." If it is outmoded, then an awful lot of doctors have got the word.

Common experience works this way: You phone Dr. Screwsore for an appointment. His receptionsays, "Come in Friday at 1 o'clock." When you arrive the waiting room is filled with 10 other people. The receptionist asks you to take a seat (though, with this crowd, you may have to sit on a radiator cover instead of a chair), tells you that you were scheduled for 1 o'clock, but that Dr. Screwsore is busy this afternoon—you have a stat now." Sometime after 3 or 4 o'clock you implies that you are a hypochondriac.

So you sit. And you read Judge the Pathfinder, the Compleat Autobiography and Mrs. Wiggs, and it is now 2:30. The doctor nodded to you the first time he came out to summon a new victim, but then—after he skillfully avoided your imploring eye. You read on—you must.

By now you have smoked a dozen cigarets and your head aches. You begin to think you will never explain your absence to the boss, or, if you are a woman, that you will ever manage to shop and get dinner for the family in time.

Then at 30 minutes to 4, the heretofore frozen faced receptionist smiles at you for the first time, a master might smile at a nasty but chastened child: "The doctor will see you now."

If you are new at this doctor going business, you will ask the receptionist a very stupid question. Never lowering that "But, nurse, why didn't you tell me to come at 1:30 instead of at 1 o'clock?" You will never ask such a question again. Doctors' receptionists are artists at humiliating the patient by word and look. Hereafter, you will be docile. You'll wait hours, in silence.

Price Prop Progress!

(Detroit Free Press)

A quarter century before the American Revolution, the colonial government of Virginia bought and operated an ore mine in order to keep prices from going down. Two hundred years later, the United States Government is doing propping prices.

Instead of destroying surpluses, however it stores them at a fantastic cost of $967,000 a day. That's progress!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I WISH I HAD!

There is probably nothing so useless as the phrase, "I wish I had." or "I wish I had" folks there are in the world! If it is a good idea why don't you get busy and start saying: "I wish I had thought of it!" And if it is another "I wish I had his money," or, I wish I had his talent." And so on.

Every day we come in contact with such people, to all of us at times, I believe, it is natural and right to roost about us, but we had better subdue our pride, and our lost opportunities, and our envy of men and think things out that are better than the ideas of the other fellow. Then we go ahead and get the honest results ourself.

I recall having a very happy afternoon with the late Col. W.H. Nelson, founder of the Associated Star, on one of his last visits to New York City. He gave me some wise advice, but here is one thing that he said: "I have always been a leader, and not a follower. As to ideas, no matter how good the idea may appear, it has never been original for me!" It's the better ideas that make all progress possible.

It serves no purpose to want something that another has. There isn't a single human being who doesn't have some trait, or talent, that the other has. But people suggested that each one of us is genius. I believe it would be grateful to God for all that He has given each one of us, and continually thank Him for them, and ask for the happiness that is reserved for all who have gratitude, courage and the will to do.

Recently I read a statement by Ernest Breech, chairman of the Board for the Ford Motor Company, he said: "We are building ahead toward a future that is rich with the promise of better things to come. I think forward, we will go forward!

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RESISTING MATURITY

Psychologist tell us today that one of the great factors hindering our growth is our unwillingness to grow up into adulthood. Throughout the world, and even today, all of us who call ourselves Christian believers are suffered from the blight of constricted vision. We struggle and protest against growing up, against fulfilling the spiritual destiny God intends us to have.

Great men like St. Paul, the Christian martyrs, and leaders in every branch of the Christian church since the days of Christ are tiually been sounding the alarm and attempting to shake us out of lethargy. On the cross, Jesus gray-

BBC Owns 500 Tons of Music

(BBC London Letter)

Thirty thousand records in the permanent sound recording library, 500 books and 250,000 illustrations in the picture library, more than 500,000 commercial records in the gramophone library, 500 tons of printed music and manuscript in the serious music library alone . . . many more in the light library . . . all these things belong to the BBC, the biggest organization of its kind in the world. Every day, a staff of more than 13,500 people, in London and the provinces or chestras.

The BBC television produces other impressive set of figures, with 15,000,000 feet of film cataloged and filed. Every year, again in the film library, a stock of 200 miles of film is sold, varying from the back end of a horse to a smoke machine, and 4,000 cockroaches. The BBC sound effects studios use three hundred-weight tins of thunder, more than 200 pairs of false eyelashes every year, and 1,000 recording scenery the BBC uses annually 1,000 miles of timber, 700,000 square feet of canvas, 200,000 feet of hessian and 45,000 pounds of distemper.

The BBC's 1,000 news reporters produces many thousands of sound and television programs each year and broadcasts in 44 different languages. The BBC's monitoring stations pigs 13 full-time foreign correspondents, and there are also special correspondents in the commercial, industrial and air correspondents. The central flow of news into BBC newsrooms amounts to about 300,000 words each day, nearly the length of "The Pickwick Papers," although the average length of a BBC news broadcast bulletin is less than 2,000 words.

Liberal Chance

(Montreal Gazette)

If the Liberal Party of Great Britain ever had an opportunity for revival, it is now. The Conservatives have won decisively in power and their prospects are good. But the uncertainty of the Labor Party as an Opposition presents to the Liberals an opening towards achievement.

Automation For Red Dean

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the "red" dean of Canterbury, is bragging that Russia has had a complete automatic factory working, full blast for more than two years.

That's half mistake," he said, "there is turned out a box of three inch platons for motorcars, that is packed at a 10,000th of an inch, oiled and put in wax paper."

We do wish that Russia would invent a completely automatic machine which would revolve Dr. Hewlitt Johnson at one end and turn him out the other so completely covered with waxed paper that no one ever again would have to listen to his nonsense.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Father Wasn't Rehabilitated

Father had more fractures, all at one time, than I have had in all my life, but I feel competent to tell what I think was wrong with the treatment of father's fractures. Although my fractures were comparatively light as injuries — one a mere chipping of the tip of my shoulder in an automobile accident and an impacted Colles fracture (wrist) in a fall off a slippery porch, as father stepped off the sidewalk to point out the North Star and Little Dipper to a group, of boys one night and fell into an excavation.

I'm at a loss to account for the extent of the injuries he sustained in such a fall — less than five feet. He was only about 36 years old. Yet he came up with some broken ribs, broken collar bone, broken leg.

Anyway such injuries should disable a man fifty or sixty years old three months at the least.

Not father. He was down and out for a year or more — but he never was rehabilitated. That is to say, he never got back at his old business. He became a shoeing. Not strong enough or heavy enough for such work.

I remember how the doctor would pay his daily visit to father but his hypodermic syringe- and medicine-case a close call. I guess it was morphine and strychnine. Later afterwards father would carry on deliriously for a while, and then quiet down until the next shock.

Aside from adequate practical training of his doctors, doctors in those days were still directly into practice from medical school, without the finest possible post-graduate course — a year or two in (of course) internship. I think that the doctor hadn't the faintest notion, in those early days, that nutrition, particularly calcium metabolism, had anything to do with the fragility of bones or with the healing of broken bones and the restoration of function.

In the light of our present knowledge of calcium, it is conceivable that a healthy young man might sustain a broken rib or two, even a broken leg, falling into a five-foot hole in the ground, but three separate fractures in such a mishap today would or should strongly suggest calcium deficiency — a precarious state which is widely prevalent but seldom recognized.

Besides the everyday complaints which are ascribe to calcium deficiency, retarded or unsatisfactory bone healing of fractures and incomplete rehabilitation after such injuries are commonly due to calcium deficiency. It is not surprising if by any chance you ever crack a bone that doesn't hear the imprimatur of the A M A brain that governs your thinking, you may learn that in any illness or injury that necessitates prolonged confinement to bed or inactivity there is inevitably a steady loss of calcium from the body, unless the patient receives an adequate daily ration of calcium and vitamin D to implement its deposit. This explains not only the susceptibility of such patients to fractures from slight injury in the first days or weeks of convalescence, but also explains why bones heal so slowly, discouragingly slow convalescence and rehabilitation.

Reasons Why Women Work

(Windsor Star)

The federal Department of Labor is conducting a study into women working outside the home — a subject that is almost certain to result in a lengthy and emotional argument in any mixed company.

A recent but comprehensive figures covering the causes that have brought women into the labor market, the increasing number in the last 15 years or so are not available in Canada. However, some research into this subject has been made in the United States, and as much the same influences prevail in the two countries, the results of the U.S. study are pertinent here.

From answers given by 8,300 U.S. women workers in 344 organization locals many facts emerged, some of which are: About 98 percent of women without husbands work to support themselves, or themselves and others; much the larger proportion of married women work because they have living expenses and help to buy homes and educate children; only a few work solely because they enjoy holding a job.

The U.S. survey confirms the fact women work outside their homes largely because they have helped their mothers and grandmothers before them. Women have always worked to provide their families with most of the necessities of daily living; they prepared all the food, made both the clothing and materials and produced most of the household commodities. Today they perform work outside their homes to pay for the clothing, food and commodities now produced in factories from machine-made goods, and to acquire the labor-saving devices which have removed much of the drudgery from housekeeping. Right or wrong (we don't propose here to deal with any of the social questions) these are the reasons for women working as determined by the U.S. survey.

Again Mixing Metaphors

(Edmonton Journal)

British politicians and writers used to be famous for mixing metaphors in their more impassioned moments, late the member of Parliament who told the House of Commons "I smell a rat; I see it floating in the air; but I shall nip it in the bud."

In recent years, with the decline in the grand style of speaking and writing, this sort of thing has become rare. Lately, however, there appears to have been a minor revival.

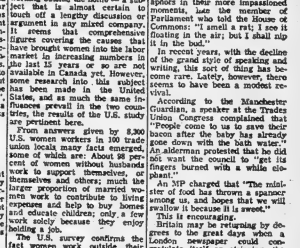
According to the Manchester Guardian, a speaker at the Trades Union Congress complained that people expect him to save their bacon after the baby has already been thrown out with the bath water. An alderman protested that he did not want the council to "get its head buried in the sand like an ostrich."

An MP charged that "The minister of food has thrown a spanner among us, and hopes that we will swallow it holus-bolus."

This is encouraging.

The Manchester returning by degrees to the great days when a Member of Parliament cried the gratuitate fiasif on stripping the mask from an opponent and exposing the cloven hoof, and when as explorer could write home from Africa that he had traveled in regions where the hand of man had never set foot.

American Oaks Go to Britain



(Calgary Albertan)

The wheel has come full circle. Robin Hood and his beloved Sherwood Forest were immortalized in a favorite theme) by Hollywood from the heart of England. Now Sherwood Forest will be restocked back by England.

The acorns of old English oak trees have finally succumbed to the English climate. They cannot take the foul atmosphere of the industrial Midlands. So Sherwood Forest will be replanted with red oak from North America.

Israeli, Syrian Forces Exchange Border Raids

JERUSALEM (AP)—An Israeli army spokesman said Syrian forces opened fire today on the Israeli settlement of En Gev along the sea of Galilee. He said there were no casualties.

His report came as the UN truce chief for Palestine flew toward UN headquarters in New York to report on the tense situation existing along Israel's borders with her Arab neighbors. An Israeli raid Saturday night in which three Syrians were reported slain and five were captured added urgency to his mission.

Israel complained to the Security Council that Syria was guilty of persistent violations of her border.

Sunday Sports Debate Rages At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG. (CP)—The controversial question of Sunday sports shapes up as the main event on the card for this year's civic elections. A dull campaign has relegated the contests for aldermanic and school board seats to the role of preliminary bouts, and there is no mayoralty contest. The mayor's term runs two years.

The sports issue is posed in a referendum. Voters will say Wednesday whether they want the city to seek provincial legislation which would enable the city to pass a by-law authorizing commercial sports on Sunday afternoons. Under present laws, Sunday sport are allowed but backers must pass the hat to defray expenses.

The referendum has resulted in a battle of words from the pulpit, public platform and in newspaper advertisements and pamphlets, but there is a question of whether the provincial government would agree to the necessary legislation should the vote pass.

Raises Question If Operation Is Justified

QUEBEC (CP) — A Halifax professor of obstetrics has raised the question of whether an operation for cancer of the cervix is justified in view of the "dull despair" which often overcomes women following the operation.

Dr. Harold B. Atlee, professor of obstetrics and gynaecology at Dalhousie University, asked delegates to the annual convention of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada:

"It is all very well to do an operation that will prolong life, but is it entirely justified if the life prolonged is not worth living?"

Dr. Atlee was one of two lecturers Saturday during closing sessions of the college's convention. Dr. Ronald V. Christie, professor of medicine at McGill University in Montreal, spoke on dyspnoea or difficult breathing.

Dr. Atlee said that until fairly recently gynaecologists in this country had used radiation therapy almost exclusively for treatment of cancer of the cervix—the neck of the womb.

JAPS SEE U.S. ROCKET IN ACTION

The U.S. army's "Honest John" rocket was given a public review at Camp Drake, near Tokyo, recently to allay Jap fears, misapprehensions and exaggerations over the fact that the device can deliver an atomic warhead. Some 400 representatives of the Japanese press and government watched as the rocket was mounted on its launcher. Later they witnessed an actual firing demonstration.

San Francisco Rocked by Quake Sunday Night

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—San Francisco and the east bay area was rocked Sunday night with the second damaging earthquake within seven weeks.

Windows were shattered, telephone lines went dead, statues fell from niches in a chapel, dishes fell from shelves and overhead lights swayed dizzily back and forth.

At Oakland an apartment house fire started soon after the quake and burned to death an 85-year-old woman, Ora Bell. Tom Dolan, a battalion fire chief, estimated damage at $25,000 and said the fire was "definitely caused by a gas explosion."

JUMPED FROM WINDOW

Ruth Aldinger, 49, jumped out of a second-storey window during the fire and suffered serious injuries.

Oakland firemen also blamed the quake for a $3,000 house fire. Battalion chief Bernard Dooley said it either cracked gas pipes or extinguished a pilot light, causing an explosion. Manuel Ortega was hit by flying glass.

BUCKLEY—BOWLER

White and yellow chrysanthemums and ferns formed an attractive background in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, on Saturday, October first, at ten o'clock when the marriage of Sheila Margaret Bowler, Point Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Bowler to William Patrick Buckley, Belleville, son of Mrs. Timothy Buckley and the late Mr. Buckley, was solemnized by Rev. J. J. Buckley, brother of the bridegroom, officiated.

Clara Boothe Luce One of Best Known Women in Public Life

By STAN SWINTON

ROME (AP) — The U.S. ambassador to Italy is blonde, fragile-looking and controversial. Clare Boothe Luce is also one of the best known women in U.S. public life.

When President Eisenhower sent her to Rome 2½ years ago it was a daring and disputed decision. Italy was of critical importance to the Atlantic alliance. It had 2,000,000 Communist party members, nearly 2,000,000 unemployed and was quarrelling angrily with Yugoslavia over Trieste.

This hot spot was no place for a diplomatic novice, said the critics. Latin Italy would never take a woman seriously. Mrs. Luce's own Roman Catholicism might prejudice her judgment in a Catholic country with the Vatican close by. Mrs. Luce came anyway.

"The most difficult part of this whole 30 months was just getting here," Mrs. Luce recalled recently. "That first week, particularly those first few days while President Einaudi was ill and I had to wait to present my credentials. After that it was hard but pleasant."

FORMULA FOR SUCCESS

Mrs Luce believes there is one universal formula for success: "Vitality and persistence in the face of criticism and disappointment". Whatever the formula, repeated achievement has marked the life of the blonde girl born April 10, 1903. Her failures have been few; important among them a divorce at 26 from hard-living clothing heir George T. Brokaw.

Even marital failure she went on and up. At 29, Clare Boothe Brokaw was an editor of a smart magazine, and known as a wit and a beauty. In 1923 she met Henry R. Luce, millionaire publisher of Time and Life. Their 1935 marriage continues.

Mrs. Luce turned playwright in the years after the successful second marriage and a succession of witty hits came from her pen. Her interests grew broader, particularly in international affairs, as the world moved into war. In 1943, she was elected to Congress in Connecticut as an anti-Roosevelt Republican.

LIFE ALTERED

Two deeply personal events now profoundly influenced Mrs. Luce's life. Ann, her only daughter, was killed in a 1944 automobile accident. The other was conversion to the Roman Catholic faith.

Those who know her well say Mrs. Luce emerged from these introspective years much changed.

"Seven years ago she was like a diamond—beautiful, brilliant and hard," said an old friend. "Now she is beautiful, brilliant and compassionate."

Energetic Club Enjoys Films

The Energetic Club of Holloway St. United Church met on Friday evening.

The president read the call to worship. Scripture was read by Ann Hitchon, and the meditation by Dorothy Forward. Amos Brisco led in prayer and closed the worship service.

Peter van Everdingen sang a few numbers which were greatly enjoyed. Peter was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hubbs.

Two interesting films were shown.

Cam Hitchon led in a few amusing games. Refreshments were served by Eileen and Amos Brisco and their group.

The Friendship Circle closed the evening.

It was decided that the next meeting be held on the 7th of November.

A friendly welcome is extended to any Christian teenagers interested in joining this AYPA.

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Holds Euchre Party

An enjoyable evening was spent on Thursday when the Catholic Women's League of St. Joseph's Parish held a euchre party in the School Hall. There were 18 tables participating. Mrs. P. F. Halloran was at the door.

O'Connor; lone hand, Marian Mundrey; door prize, T. Campbell. Mrs. J. Anton was in charge of the raffle on a basket of groceries which was won by Ray VanAlstine.

Convening the refreshments were: Mrs. O. L. Dubrow, and Mrs. R. Chipman, assisted by Mrs. C. Ford, Mrs. M. Fanning, Mrs. H. O'Neill, Mrs. E. Labelle, Mrs. W. L. Goyer, Mrs. H. Carr-Brait.

It's harder than ever to make money
... To print your own, that is. The Bank of England has made the counterfeiter's lot an even unhappier one by pressing a thin strip of aluminum foil into the paper used for making bank notes. Seems the do-it-yourself enthusiasts find it virtually impossible to duplicate.
It is nice to think that them will probably be a little bit of Canada wherever this new paper currency circulates. Great Britain imports 80% of her aluminum from Canada, and in turn represents one of the major markets for Canadian aluminum.

Shapely Suit

By ALICE ALDEN

This is the season for a new suit. Suits, there have been, of course, and brasuties, too, during the past few seasons, but seldom has there been such variety, such charm, such a selection at every price level. Ben Reig is one designer who is showing the short jacket as well as the tunic or riding habit. This dark design is carried out in smoke blue soft woollen, the jacket nicely shaped, the collar high. The skirt is cluster-pleated, gracefully setting off the trim jacket. With the suit is a matching sleeveless blouse banded around the neckline.

Cookies for Carried Lunches

By Mary Moore

Phyllis W. wrote saying "I was concerned about my carried lunches when your article appeared for which I send you my grateful thanks. . . I pack four lunches — hubby's, daughter's in office, and high school, and my little lady just seven—could you send me the recipes for the cookies suggested in the menus? . . . am enclosing a recipe for your file which is very good for lunch pail or snack with milk after school—not too sweet."

So—first I will give the recipes Phyllis asks for and then the one she gave me.

BUTTERSCOTCH BRAN COOKIES

Sift all-purpose flour and measure 1 3-4 cup (you may need a little more), 1-3 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-3 cup half and half butter and shortening. 1 cup well-packed brown sugar, 1 well-beaten egg, 1-2 cup bran, 1-2 cup chopped nuts, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder and salt. Cream the butter-shortening until light and gradually cream brown sugar into it until very light. Add egg and beat well. Beat in bran and nuts. Sift in the dry ingredients one-third at a time and mix well. Dough should be soft but not sticky—if it is sticky add a very little more sifted flour. Chill dough 1 hour. Form dough into a long roll 2 inches in diameter and wrap in wax paper and chill. When cold cut with sharp knife into 3-16 or 1-4 inch slices and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes.

DATE OATMEAL SQUARES

One and one-half lbs. date, 1 1-2 cups water—boiling hot, 1 teaspoon, vanilla, 2 cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon baking soda, 2 1-2 cups rolled oats, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 1 cup shortening. Add boiling water to pitted dates, and cook gently until thick. Cool, beat, add vanilla. Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and soda. Add rolled oats which have been put through grinder, add brown sugar. Cut the fat into them finely. Spread one-half of this mixture in buttered pan 12x12 inches. Spread date mixture over it evenly. Pat on evenly remaining dry mixture. Bake 1 hour at 350 deg. Fahr. Cool in pan and cut into squares. If desired, to prevent crumbling, 2 tablespoons water may be added to one beaten egg and brush over top of filled pan before baking.

COCOANUT MACAROONS

Three egg whites, 3-4 cup fruit sugar, 1 1-2 cups shredded cocoanut, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff, add gradually 1-2 cup sugar and continue beating until mixture holds up in peaks. Sift remaining sugar over top and fold in lightly. Fold in cocoanut and vanilla. Drop from teaspoon on buttered baking sheet and bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 30 minutes until tinged with gold.

ORANGE-RAISIN GEMS

(Courtesy Phyllis)

Makes 1 dozen 2-inch gems. Dry: 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3-4 teaspoon baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup sugar, 1-2 cup raisins. Liquid: 1 egg well beaten, 1-3 cup orange juice, 1-2 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 1-3 tablespoons vinegar and sweet milk to make this up to 2-3 cup, 1-4 cup melted shortening. Combine egg, orange juice and rind, vinegar and milk and melted shortening. Add to dry ingredients and stir only until dampened. Fill greased muffin pans 2-3 full. Bake at 425 deg. F. (hot oven) for 20 minutes. (Phyllis adds: "When these are ready send for me.") Send for me too and Phyllis and I will help you eat them.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHOULD SHE GIVE HER MOTHER A BRIDAL SHOWER?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My widowed mother is to be married next month. Would it be wrong for my husband and me to be witnesses in a civil ceremony? (I am 25 years old.) Or would it be proper for Mother to ask a friend to be a witness?

2. Also some of my friends have suggested giving Mother a shower. Would it be proper for me to give it? Or would it be better taste for me to give a tea in her honor, inviting about ten or twelve of her women friends? — Daughter

1. I am quite sure that it would be permissible for you and your husband to be the official witnesses at the civil ceremony. But, to be absolutely sure, I suggest you (or the prospective groom) ask the authorities at the local marriage bureau. (Suggestion: you might be one witness, and the groom might request his father or other relative, or a friend, to be a witness.)

2. You shouldn't give a shower for your mother. But an intimate relationship basis would give an unattractive impression of a bid for gifts. But Mother is twice wed, and her women friend" you speak of would. I'm sure, have a good time getting together to give a simple, merry shower for your mother. But best of all, and in the best taste, would be for you to give the tea you speak of for your mother. On it would be charming for you and your husband to give a tea for your husband's new wife. Your mother and her bridegroom-to-be say on a Sunday afternoon . . . this would be particularly nice if there is to be no reception after the ceremony.

WHO ENDS THE TELEPHONE CALL?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Who is supposed to end a telephone call? Just the one who called up is the one who ends the call. My husband insists that the one who called up waits for the person called to end the call. Who is right? — Mrs. M.

You are right. Although it should not be added that this does, and should, depend on circumstances, and so isn't always a must.

WIDOW'S DAUGHTER, WIDOWER'S SON—THEIR WEDDING ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, in my middle years. I am to be married soon to a widower who has a son in his late teens. I have a dear and endearing little daughter aged ten. My fiance would like to have his young son (his only child) as his best man at our very small chapel wedding, and I would so very much like to have my daughter (my only child) as my only attendant. My father is to give me in marriage as he did at my first marriage. Do you approve of these plans of ours? — W.F.L.

Perfect plans, these . . . and I heartily approve. And I send you every good wish for your happiness, always.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

CARE OF THE BACK AND SHOULDERS

A long-handled brush, well-soaped, will help keep back and shoulders beautiful.

With the vogue for strapless formals it has become increasingly necessary to give the same amount of attention to shoulders and back as to the face and neck. So, if the skin on these areas is still patchy from last summer's sun or has become roughened from the constant irritation of harsh fabrics, it's time to do something about it. There's no use concentrating on having a lovely complexion, then having the whole effect ruined by a dingy-looking skin on your back.

Start by getting a long-handled brush—the longer the handle the better—and use it daily, and vigorously, while in your tub. And be sure that it's well-soaped. A bland soap is best for this purpose just as it is for your facial complexion. After your scrubbing rinse well and thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. This, in addition to the brushing, will help to stimulate circulation and give a nice "complexion glow" to your back.

Try to remember that your skin is constantly shedding. Every single day of your life some of it sloughs off and the layer beneath takes its place. That's why the brushing routine is so important to get rid of the sloughed-off skin and let the new layer breathe as it should. Flaky skin is not pretty skin. You don't like it on your face, so you must know that it's equally unattractive on your shoulders and back.

Lubricating creams and lotions are also helpful in keeping the skin on these areas smooth and soft. And, if you haven't used one of the allover body lotions, this is the time to start. There are many fine ones on the market, but for a back that's troublesome, and even just where skin texture is not as smooth as it might be, those which are rich in lanolin are particularly effective. Whichever you use, smooth it on evenly and well into the skin. Leave on overnight and you'll be surprised at how quickly your skin will show improvement. But be consistent in your care of the skin on these areas. Don't work like mad for a week trying to get your back in good condition for a "formal" and then neglect it until another occasion arises. The skin on your body, just like the skin on your face, requires constant and daily attention.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LET YOUR HUSBAND MAKE THE DECISION HIMSELF

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a 45-year-old, average-looking wife. My husband is 43, nice-looking and good. We have been married 28 years, and have seven children, all grown except one boy who is 14.

While I was back home on a three-weeks trip, my husband went to dances and met a woman in whom he became interested. I have never seen her, but my oldest son thinks she is 60. Now my husband has moved out, and wants a divorce. He says he can't get one without my consent, without committing perjury, which he doesn't want to do.

I told him I loved him and just couldn't bring myself to give him one. There has never been any one else for me, and I was married at 17 and a half. We have always got along well and don't quarrel, but there has been a sex problem for the last 19 years.

I want to do what is right, so please tell me if you think I am wrong. — A.W.W.

Dear A.W.W.:

I perhaps you know, it is, unfortunately, not an unusual thing for men of your husband's age to feel restless and bored, to look outside their homes for romantic adventure. What is hard to understand in your husband's case, however, is that he should have chosen a woman so much older than himself. Do you think your son might have been mistaken in his estimate of her age?

Be that as it may, however, these amorous middle-aged adventures on which men often embark are apt to be temporary, and, in time, the husbands—if they have been happily married, as I gather you and your husband have been—return to their wives, penitent and ashamed. So it often happens that the wife who has had the courage and the patience to wait until the romantic wanderlust wears off gets her man back in the end.

All this, of course, is not quite as simple as it sounds, for I am not overlooking the fact that, while she waits, such a wife goes through dreadful heartbreak and disillusionment. Nor am I condoning the husband. What I am merely trying to do is to suggest that, if you can summon up the fortitude and the understanding to carry on alone for awhile, the problem may solve itself eventually.

It is true that if, as you say you and your husband have had a sex problem, this may be an important factor in the situation. What you should do here, if you have not done it already, is to talk the matter over in detail with your doctor, and get his advice.

I think you are right, at this point, to refuse to cooperate in a divorce. For the day may come—as it often does, in these cases—when a man is very thankful that he did not get the divorce he once thought he wanted.

What I believe you would be wise to do is to suggest to your husband that any decision about the divorce be made immediately; that you feel it would be wise to wait awhile to make sure that this is what he really wants. You might name a definite period—six months or even a year—during which, if he wishes, you would live apart and he could do as he pleases. Then, you should say, if at the end of that time he still wants the divorce, you will give it to him. For there is certainly no happiness to be found in hanging on to a man who wants to be free. But I think there is a great chance that he will come back of his own accord before the time is up—and I also think he is much more likely to come back if you don't try to force him. Things will work out much better if you let him be the one to make his own decision.

All-Bran and milk is a wholesome, good-tasting dish—a safe, natural way to improve "intestinal tone"—so essential to comfortable elimination. All-Bran, made from the outer layers of whole wheat, contains natural food bulk. It is also an excellent source of niacin (necessary for normal body functioning.)

There is only one All-Bran, Kellogg's. Famous for nearly 40 years as the original natural laxative cereal. It is milled for maximum effectiveness. We'll prove to you that All-Bran with milk will give gentle relief from constipation within 10 days or double your money back. Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

RIBBON elastic from strap to strap across your child's back may help in two ways. It prevents annoying slipping over small shoulders, and—if the straps originally had been crossed—it adds an inch or more to the length of skirt or overalls.

3 Bull Moose Die in Forest

GOGAMA, Ont. (CP) — Three bull moose died in a northern Ontario forest for the love of a cow moose.

The bulls, one a veteran of 1,500 pounds, the others a couple of young bucks, locked horns in a death struggle over the affections of the femme fatale.

George Campbell, a pilot with the department of lands and forests and Ben Trotter, senior conservation officer, said Sunday they recently found the victims of the love battle.

The bulls took up their fight near a muskeg creek. The large bull apparently killed the two smaller ones but the struggle left it so exhausted it couldn't get out of the muskeg to claim its prize.

It sank in the muskeg until its head dropped into the water. It was found that way, still standing. The front leg of one of the smaller beasts was broken and almost gored off at the shoulder. The second had been gored through the chest. Both were floating in the creek.

The cow, without a mate, trotted off to other adventures.

FOUR CRITICAL YEARS

PARIS (Reuters) — Lt.-Gen. C. V. R. Schuyler, chief of staff of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, said Friday it will be another four years before the North Atlantic powers can reasonably assure defence of western Europe. He told leaders of the anti-Communist "Crusade for Freedom" that if war should come immediately it was unlikely that Western armies could prevent Soviet forces from overrunning most of Europe.

Senators Spurn Special Planes

PARIS (AP)—Two U.S. senators Sunday spurned a special four-engine air force DC-6 sent from the United States to fly them home from Europe.

The senators, John Stennis, Dem. Miss. and John McLellan, Dem. Ark. travelled from Madrid to Paris Sunday and left from here on a regular military air transport plane.

"We are going home exactly the way we planned it in the first place," said McLellan.

The defence department in Washington announced Friday that two special planes were being sent to Madrid and Paris at a cost of $20,000 to bring home McLellan and Stennis from Spain and Senator Dennis Chavez Dem. N.M., from France.

The three, members of the Senate appropriations committee, have been inspecting U.S. defence aid efforts in Europe. As senators on congressional business they are entitled to air force transport. But all three denied asking for special planes.

Premier Diem Landslide Winner Over Bao Dai

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem, landslide winner in a popularity plebiscite over absentee Chief of State Bao Dai, will proclaim South Viet Nam a republic and himself its first president it was reported today.

Diem, one of Asia's most resolute anti-Communists, dug Bao Dai's political grave with a referendum Sunday in which the Vietnamese overwhelmingly rejected the playboy ex-emperor and chose the premier as chief of state.

Authoritative sources said Diem would proclaim Wednesday a holiday, announce the official election returns, and in the presence of the cabinet, diplomats and a large throng preside at the formal birth of the republic with himself as president.

He will remain premier as well until after the election of the first National Assembly expected before the end of this year.

GETS HUGE MARGIN

Returns from six provinces and the capital indicated about 98 per cent of those voting wanted Bao Dai eliminated from the political scene.

In Saigon, the capital, Diem received 434,126 votes to Bao Dai's 5,036. The city of Tourane gave Diem 47,712, Bao Dai 5.

For the first time in modern history the Vietnamese were given the chance to vote in a national election and nearly 2,000,000 turned out. No major violence was reported anywhere.

Another referendum probably will be held next month to approve a constitution. The United States has already said it will recognize the election outcome. Britain and France are believed certain to do likewise.

But new trouble between the Western big three and Russia loomed as a result. The overwhelming vote of confidence in Diem appeared to rule out any possibility of unification elections in North and South Viet Nam next July, provided by the Geneva armistice and vigorously opposed by Diem as long as the Communist North cannot guarantee free and unfettered voting.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

THE TRAINING STRETCH

Coach Danny Cox inaugurated the final week of training for the TPT's with a brisk 1½ hour workout yesterday afternoon. Parisi and Wilson were absent, being away to pick up their "digs," while Bill McMaster (ER Bert Hill were the only Petes on hand. Greenlaw, Fryia and Leonard rested after their "do" in Kingston Saturday night.

The TPT coach will send his charges through heavy drills every night this week, readying for the important opening date with the Whitby Dunlops. Incidentally, the "Dunnies" officially open the senior "B" season against the Goodyears in Kingston on Wednesday night. Then "away they go."

The "surgical operations" probably will start tonight. Coach Cox said at yesterday afternoon's session. From then on he will concentrate on the "varsity" and put them through stiff paces readying for the opener.

ALL OVER!

It has been said by many people and written by the experts, too, that the baseball season, officially and otherwise ends with the world series, with the exception, of course, of the tortillas, cornhuskers, coronaries and double zombies, where they chase the ball the year round.

Talk as some of the brass may, the fact that this department inadvertently published the Major League All-Stars-district game as starting at 2.30 instead of two o'clock, did not affect the attendance to any extent, if at all. Except for a frosty fang in the breeze, it was good baseball weather, with clear skies and a warmish sun. There was a definite lack of interest in the game and even such stars as Labine, Drop, Feirsali, Donovan and such failed to pull in a screed.

The stars came through with some scintillating plays. Labine held our side to a pair of hits, one a triple by Don Gilmour and a single by Keith MacDonald. Bobby Bunton starred on the mound, whiffing Dropo, Feirsali and Donovan. Picton's Heydon stole the fielding thunder, with a sensational catch after galloping a hundred feet, swimming part way and splashing the rest to pull off an Amorosian catch. The outfield was almost submerged in spots.

MADOC'S NIGHT

Bancroft can have its uranium and Marmora its iron ore. Right now the village of Madoc has a juvenile softball squad that is the talk and toast of the town. Saturday the youngsters defeated Wingham 10-6 in Toronto to win the OASA juvenile championship, the first softball title to be registered in the village archives. The village burghers were wild with joy over the exploits of their softball youngsters—and who can blame them. The kids played heads-up softball all season to win their group and go on to remove playdown roadblocks to the title. They won the titular bauble the hard way, winning and losing a game to the stavey Wingham kids to come through handsomely on Saturday for the all-important third-game victory and the title. Congratulations to a fine crew of sturdy sportsmen on an outstanding achievement.

ALL-STARS WIN

If the Kingston Goodyears-Group All-Stars' game Saturday night proved anything, it brought out the fact that the White Dunlops pair of high-scoring stars, Bob Attersley and Bus Gagnon, who finished in that order atop the scoring lists last year, have picked up where they left off. The Dunlop aces scored three and two respectively, while teammate Fred Eicher helped on all. Brockville's Thomson scored the sixth. Walker, a Goodie newcomer, pilfered the hometown screenlight with Duke Doran, formerly of this city, each having a pair. Gabby White and Samalenko had one each.

The All-Stars held a 4-1 lead at the end of the second period, and observers stated, their defence wobbled severely in the third heat when the Goodies poured on the pressure and the goals.

NOT SURE!

The meeting of the Thousand Islands Hockey League scheduled for yesterday was cancelled when it was learned that Point Anne is not certain of its status. A definite answer as to whether the Ox Pointers will play in this loop will be given OHA vice-president Lorne Cook on Wednesday. It seems that like any other club, finances is playing an important part in the seasonal future of the Point Anne club.

Pupil Wallops Teacher's Pets In Dismal Chicago Weekend; Three Shutouts Feature Fare

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A National Hockey League student gave the teacher a rotten ripple during the weekend. Toe Blake was the pupil and Dick Irvin the teacher. It was that way for eight years while both were with Montreal Canadiens as player and coach. But times have changed.

The rotten apple in the affair was the 6-0 shellacking Blake's Canadiens gave Irvin's Chicago Black Hawks Saturday. It was Dick's first return to Montreal Forum since he left to take over as Hawk coach this year. Blake succeeded him as Montreal coach.

In other games Saturday, Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins fought to a scoreless tie at Detroit and Toronto Maple Leafs dumped New York Rangers 3-2 in Toronto.

NEW YORK WINS

Rangers climbed into a tie for second place with Detroit by piling more misery on Irvin with a 5-4 victory over Chicago at New York.

After the four weekend games Montreal still leads the league race with 13 points. Rangers and Bruins are deadlocked with eight points each in second spot. Detroit and Chicago are tied for fourth place, two points behind Rangers and Boston. Red Leafs remain in the cellar on two wins and a tie in eight games.

A crowd of 13,815 jammed to watch an NHL game this season, turned up at the Chicago-Montreal game. Henri Richard, Canadiens' new scoring gun, helped make Irvin's lot miserable. He scored two goals. He scored two goals. Big brother Maurice got one. Dickie Moore, Bert Olmstead and Floyd Curry were the other Montreal scorers.

It was the third shutout in seven games for Jacques Plante, Canadiens' goaltender. Hawks fired at him 40 times. Al Rollins kicked out 35 Hab shots.

Moore opened the scoring at 5:50 of the first period while Hawks were shorthanded. Henri Richard slapped in the rebound. Richard's second's pass at 8:15 and counted again at 10:22 of the middle period with a backhander off another Olmsted pass.

EYE HAND AHEAD

Maurice Richard took Moore's pass at 9:25 of the third period to put Montreal ahead to stay. At 11:06 Olmsted scored on Henri Richard's rebound, Curry ended the scoring at 19:40.

Tod Sloan was the sparkplug for Leafs with two goals. Right winger Eric Nesterenko was the other Leaf marksman. Jean Creighton and rookie Andy Hebenton gave Rangers their two tallies.

Nesterenko scored a 20-foot shot past Ranger goalie Lorne Worsley to put Leafs ahead at 6:50 of the first period before 12,947 fans at Toronto. Creighton evened the score at he backhanded Evans' rebound into Leafs' net four minutes later. Both teams were shorthanded a man at the time.

Sloan circled New York's net to fire home a waist-high shot at 11:37. There was no scoring in the middle period.

Sloan scored his second goal at 1:27 of the final 20 minutes before Hebenton closed the gap for Rangers midway through the period.

FIRST SCORELESS TIE

Goaltenders Glenn Hall of Detroit and Boston's Terry Sawchuk were unbeatable at Detroit. It was the first NHL scoreless tie this season and 12,771 customers sat in on it. Hall made 19 saves and Sawchuk 28.

Play became more orderly after referees Jack Mehlenbacher handed out four penalties in the first 18 seconds. He sent only six men to the penalty box after that.

Rangers kept their undefeated record at home intact as they turned back a stubborn Chicago team.

Wally Hergesheimer led the winners with two goals. Danny Lewicki, Creighton and Tom Murphy added singles for Rangers. Nick Mickoski scored twice for Chicago, with Tony Leswick and Jack McIntyre getting one each.

Hergesheimer wrapped up the game at 12:40 of the last period to break a 4-4 deadlock. His first goal came at 11:50 of the opening period. Creighton's goal at 12:17 of the same session boosted him into a first-place tie with Jean Beliveau of Montreal in the individual scoring race. Each has 10 points.

American League Rookies Dominate All-Star Team

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The American League, for the first time in four years, dominated the 1955 rookie all-star team selected Sunday by The Sporting News.

The junior circuit placed eight of its players on the squad in a poll of sportswriters conducted by the baseball weekly. It was the first time since 1951, when Mickey Mantle, Minnie Minoso and Gil McDougald broke in, that the American League won more berths than the National.

The squad lineup:

Norm Zauchin, Boston, first base; Hector Lopez, Kansas City, second base; Jose Valdivielso, Washington, shortstop; Ken Boyer, St. Louis, third base; Elston Howard, New York Yankees, left field; Willie Mays, St. Louis, centre field; Carlos Paula, Washington, right field; Hal Smith, Baltimore, catcher; and Herb Score, Cleveland, Frank Lary, Detroit and Jack Meyer, Philadelphia, pitchers.

Sports Writer Named to Quebec Upper House

QUEBEC. (CP) — A 51-year-old Montreal sports writer has been named to Quebec's legislative council, the provincial upper house.

The appointment of Jean Barrette, a free-lance writer, and sports statistician for the last 30 years, was announced Friday by Premier Duplessis at his weekly press conference.

Mr. Duplessis said the government wishes to have as many phases of social activity as possible represented in the 24-seat upper house. Sports until now had had no representative.

Mr. Barrette, who will represent Sorel constituency in the council, was named to the seat held by the late Senator Pamphile DuTremblay, who besides being a member of the council and of the federal Senate was president of the Montreal dailies La Presse and La Patrie until his death two weeks ago.

Mr. Barrette has been sports columnist at La Patrie for more than 30 years.

Standing in the council now is: Liberals, 13. Union Nationale, 11; vacancies, none.

Steelers Win Rams Trim Lions

NEW YORK (AP)—Pro football fans in Cleveland and Los Angeles can be glad Otto Graham and Crazy Legs Hirsch aren't the retiring type.

The two old pros called it quits at the end of last season, then changed their minds and today their respective clubs are atop the National Football League's conference standings.

True, the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers are keeping pace with Cleveland in the Eastern conference with the season nearing the half-way point, but they were far less impressive Sunday in a 19-17 victory over New York Giants than the Browns were in walloping Green Bay 41-10.

Graham, completing seven of 12 passes for 187 yards, guided the Browns on touchdown marches of 71, 97 and 71 yards and scored once himself.

HIRSCH TOOK PASS

The rapid Los Angeles fans, 68,690 strong, saw Hirsch take a pass from Norm van Brocklin for the winning touchdown in Los Angeles' 24-13 victory over the toothless Detroit Lions. By winning, the Rams emerged from a three-way tie for the Western Conference lead as the Packers were beaten and Washington edged Baltimore 16-13 on Vic Janowicz's field goal and conversion kicking.

Chicago Bears won their second straight game, after a miserable start, as Ed Brown ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third—in a 34-23 victory over San Francisco with Gern Philadelphia, the September choice to battle Cleveland for the eastern crown, was left with a 1-0-1 mark after a 24-24 tie with Chicago Cardinals. Cleveland and Pittsburgh are 4-1 with 7 games to go.

MADISON Ind. (AP — Danny Foster of Detroit drove Guy Lombardo's Tempo VII to its fourth straight 1955 victory Sunday in the eighth annual Madison regatta but yielded the national unlimited hydroplane championship to Gale V, owned by Joseph Schoenith of Detroit.

Finishes in the two final heats were the closet in Gold Cup class history.

Tempo VII bestyGale V by three feet in the first 45-mile heat on the three-mile Ohio river course, with Bill Cantrell of Detroit driving the lower. Lee Schoenith, son of the Gale V owner, took over for the second heat and Foster beat him by one length.

By picking up 900 points for second place, Gale V finished the season with 2,050 to Tempo VII's 1,727, including 1,200 Sunday.

Pat Abbruzzi Runs Wild For Larks; Sets New Canadian Touchdown Mark

Hefty Halfback Scores Four In Alouetes' Rout of Argos; Cats Scramble by Ottawa

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The football glory belongs today to Pat Abbruzzi, a hefty halfback who runs with the speed of a sprinter and the power of a ramapaging bull.

The five-foot-nine, 205-pound import shattered a Canadian touchdown scoring record that had stood since 1952 as Montreal Alouettes routed Toronto Argonauts 42-12 Saturday to maintain their slim grip on first place in the Big Four race.

The win kept the Alouettes two points in front of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who came from behind to beat the rejuvenated Ottawa Rough Riders 22-12 in a hard-fought game in the capital.

In Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior action Saturday specials had two games. Saturday Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen ran into top spirits in the first half at Sarnia but went on to win 22-5. On Sunday at Toronto Balmy Beach took their first game of the season by shellacking the second-place Imperials 25-0 before 150 fans.

Abbruzzi, playing his first season in Canada after coming unheralded from little Rhode Island State College, registered four touchdowns to increase his total for the season and break the old Big Four and Western Conference season-total mark of 16.

The hefty halfback backfielder set the record in his 30th game with the Alouettes and in that time he was equalled in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game by Regina Rider Jim Carpenter of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Carpenter rolled up his total in 34 games and both he and Abbruzzi have two more regular season games in which to increase their record.

Three players held the old mark at 15. It was set in 1952 by former big star Virgil Wagner in a 12-game season and by Tom Casey of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 16 games. It was matched last year in 14 games by Alex Webster of Montreal Alouettes and now with a New York Giants of the National Football League.

The Argos played dismally and showed nothing in the way of a defence to stop Sam Etcheverry's passing and the running and plunging of Abbruzzi, J. C. Caroline and Jacques Belec. Their pass defence has been practically non-existent all season but in Saturday's game their defensive line was shoved around and the ALs' backfield had a field day.

Montreal scored seven touchdowns, wrapping the game up early with three in the first quarter, two out in the second and two more in the third. They also counted a second quarter single by Tex Coulter and led 31-0 before Argos scored their first of their two converted touchdowns. They were ahead 43-6 until the second-last play of the game when Argos got their second touchdown.

Abbruzzi, galloping away from tacklers in amazing fashion, went over for his touchdowns on runs of 11, 26, 22 and 10 yards. Etcheverry, guiding the ALs' ground and passing attack, in a daredevil manner, passed for the Als three other touchdowns.

Hal Patterson caught two touchdown passes, the first on an 8-yard play and the second on a gain of 55 yards. Joey Zuger gathered in a 27-yard pass for the other Montreal touchdown. Bud Korchak converted all scores.

The 385 yards Alouettes gained on the ground established a Big Four rushing record. Etcheverry completed 19 of 28 passes for 295 yards but this total was considerably below the league passing record of 386 yards he set last year against Hamilton.

Halfback Dick Shatto threw a 23-yard pass to John Sopinka for Argos' first touchdown and their second came on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Tom Dublinski to Bucky Crabtree. Al Pfeifer converted both touchdowns.

The Riders' loss to Hamilton was in direct contrast to their win. They showed tremendous improvement over their previous performance and they now have high hopes they can sweep their final two games of the season against Eastern rival the Toronto club for the third and last playoff berth.

The Riders trailed 9-8 at halftime and 16-12 after the third quarter but in between they held 5-4 and 12-9 leads. Bucky McElroy scored the winning touchdown in a 12-yard minute of the third-quarter and Hal Waggoner set the Cats up for their reach late in the final session when he burst over for a touchdown on a short end sweep.

Lou Kusserow also scored a touchdown for the Tiger - Cats, crashing over from the six-yard line in the second quarter. Besides the three touchdowns, Hamilton got a 21-yard field goal from Steve Oseachuk, two converts by Ray Truant and a single by Cam Fraser.

Ottawa racked up two touchdowns. Bernie Custis took a short pass from quarterback Jack Scarbath for one of them and Scarbath went over for the other himself on a quarterback sneak from one yard

Eskimos Get Bye Into Finals
Riders, Bombers Clinch Berths

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The men have been separated from the boys in the Western Interprovincial Football Union after 36 scheduled games.

For all practical purposes, the play-off finals has been settled. First-place Edmonton Eskimos get a bye into the final, second-place Saskatchewan Roughriders play Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the semi-final and British Columbia Lions and Calgary Stampeders wait until next year.

Eskimos defeated Blue Bombers 12-0 in Edmonton Saturday, ending the Winnipeg club's last slim chance to make second place. Roughriders trounced the Lions 35-7 in Regina.

British Columbia could still tie the third-place Bombers in points, but are on the short end when it comes to a comparison of points for and against and have an almost non-existent chance of changing the situation, needing a 130-point win.

The Eskimos have the edge on Saskatchewan has nine, Winnipeg six, British Columbia five and Calgary three. Each team plays 16 games. Edmonton and British Columbia each have one outing left and the other teams two.

Records were the order of the day in Saturday contests.

Halfback Ken Carpenter of the Roughriders set a WIFU record for touchdowns scored in a season and equalled a Canadian mark set by Pat Abruzzi of the Montreal Alouettes only a few hours earlier. The Regina player now has 17 touchdowns to his credit for the 1955 campaign, one more than the previous record in both conferences. The WIFU mark was set by Tom Casey of the Blue Bombers in 1952.

In Edmonton, fullback Normie (China Clipper) Kwong set a league record for yards gained rushing in a season when he picked up 27 yards in his plunges. Kwong now has 1,058 yards rushing, eclipsing the 1,055-yard mark set in 1954 by Howard Waugh of Calgary Stampeders.

Besides the most yards gained record, Waugh also held the best one-game mark with a total of 1,043 yards for the 1954 season. Kwong has also surpassed this mark. Waugh now is in the U.S. army.

Another record believed to have been set in the game between Edmonton and Winnipeg was end Rupe Andrews' mark of nine interceptions so far this season.

Edmonton coach Frank Ivy used practically all of his stars, at least some of the time, as the Eskimos avenged their first loss of the season at the hands of the Blue Bombers. Quarterback Jackie Parker showed he hasn't forgotten how to run by carrying 23 yards to set up the only Edmonton touchdown, scored by Kwong in the first quarter.

Saskatchewan scored five converted touchdowns, two of them Carpenter's, and a field goal. End Joe Aguirre collected all the kicking points.

Besides Carpenter the touchdowns were scored by Bobby Marlow, Tom Ford and Pete Thodos.

Dutchies, Mercs Tied for Top In Senior Loop

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Schertzi is a defenceman who can fill the gap offensively when the need arises. The time came during the weekend and Joe scored three goals.

The veteran blueliner with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League led his team to a 7-1 victory over Windsor Bulldogs at Kitchener Saturday before 3,000 fans.

It was Dutchmen's second win in as many starts in the young OHA season and left them tied with Toronto Sound Mercurys atop the league standings.

In other weekend games, Mercurys scored their second straight win, defeating Chatham Maroons 3-1 at Owen Sound Saturday and Stratford Indians spoiled Hamilton Bulldogs' home opener Sunday with a 7-6 win.

WENT AHEAD

Dutchmen went ahead 3-0 in the first period and increased the lead to 6-0 during the second. Schertzi scored the third goal of the first period and the second and third tallies of the middle frame. Other Dutchmen scorers were Jim Logan with two goals, Howie Lee and Pete Kowalchuk with one each.

Eddy Warchol saved Bulldogs from a shutout defeat when he poked the puck behind goaltender Denis Brodeur in the third period.

Chatham Maroons made their fans at Owen Sound a trifle unhappy in the first period as they took a 1-0 lead but Mercurys were out in front 2-1 after two periods and scored the only goal of the final frame.

Buck Forslund, Jerry Reid and rookie Ray Leckie scored for Mercurys while George Edwards was the Chatham hero.

A tripping penalty to Maroons' Eddie Burch proved disastrous. He was sent off at 5:01 of the second period and within seven seconds Forslund and Reid scored Owen Sound goals.

END HAND-IN-HAND

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Four members of the Niagara University cross country team crossed the finish line hand-in-hand Sunday as Niagara defeated the University of Toronto 19-36.

Finishing the four-mile race together were Don de Lotis, Elmer Cavelli, Lou Elwood and Bruce Cragucci. Their time was 21:49.2. Bill Hughes of Toronto finished fifth.

Major League Baseball All-Stars Blank District Team by 12-0 Count

BY GARRY ALEXANDER

Spec Shay's touring major league all-stars walloped the Eastern Ontario all-stars 12-0 before a small crowd of rabid baseball fans at Exhibition Park on Saturday. The visitors were dissatisfied with the wet outfield and would play only six innings.

They opened the scoring with three runs in the first, added five in the second, three in the fifth and finished with one. The locals threatened in the second when Pettitt and Mulholland walked with none down but both were stranded while a lead-off triple by Kingston first-sacker Don Gilmour in the fifth was the only other local opportunity.

World Series star, Chen Lebine of the Brooklyn Dodgers toed the rubber for the victors and had little trouble in locating the catcher. A lead-off single by Keith MacDonald in the initial frame and Gilmour's triple were the only safeties. He whiffed seven and passed two while firing a terrific curve.

Catcher Helder Jim Piersall sparked the major leaguers with the wood, hammering a triple, double and single. Doyle Lepcio poked a long triple with Don Hoak and Negro pitcher Satchel Paige Lepcio and Ed Fitzgerald each aided with a single.

Coach Vern Geyer used four pitchers. Art Wright worked one inning allowing two runs on one hit with four walks and one strikeout. Billy Richards of Kingston gave up two runs off two hits while walking two and fanning one. Bob Bunton fired the fourth and fifth frames, allowing three runs on four hits. He looked good while whiffing Hoak, Donovan and Dropo. John Mowatt threw the final inning, touched for a run on one hit while fanning one, passing two and hitting one batter.

Denny Hayden of Picton, in left field pulled the fielding gem of the game in the first inning when he ran a country mile through puddles of water to haul in Zauchin's long foul fly for the third out. Don Hoak at shortstop showed plenty of class for Shay's Stars.

A pair of walks and Dropo's long triple plated their first two runs with the third run scored on Pettitti's error. An error, three walks followed by Hoak's double and Piersall's single made it 8-0.

A triple by Piersall, Zauchin's double and singles by Fitzgerald and Lepcio counted three in the fifth while Piersall's double, stolen base by the fleet centre fielder and a passed ball completed the scoring.

20 m.p.h. HOCKEY NEEDS ENERGY

When hockey players break away at speeds of 15-20 m.p.h., they use up plenty of energy and between periods, they need a fast, safe pick-up. A recent survey made by Lloyd Percival of Sports College, showed that over 80% of the leading international athletic trainers recommend tea with added lemon or orange and honey as the best and safest way to pep up energy.

Tea can be used as an effective pick-up by anyone whose work calls for intensive physical or mental effort.

Big Four Brass Upholds Protest Cats Won't Play

OTTAWA (CP) — The executive of the Big Four Football Union Sunday upheld a Hamilton protest, but the Tiger-Cats declined to replay their Oct. 19 game with Toronto Argonauts in the league standings retain their status quo.

Big Four secretary Wes Brown of Ottawa told a reporter after the meeting that it unanimously agreed Hamilton's protest of a ruling by referee Hap Shouldice in the game at Toronto was valid.

Toronto won the game 16-15 and at the meeting gave Hamilton the right to have the contest played over, but Tiger-Cats officials decided not to take up the offer.

Toronto and Ottawa Rough Riders had the biggest stake in the Hamilton decision. Had Tiger-Cats accepted the option for a replay, the game would have been thrown out. The lost Toronto victory would have pushed Ottawa into a third-place tie with the Argonauts. And third place is the last playoff position.

VOTE BID DOWN

Ottawa moved to have the disputed game played over despite Hamilton's decision not to replay it—if it affected standings at the end of the season. But the Rough Rider bid was voted down.

The protest grew out of a penalty levelled against Toronto for tangling Hamilton's Ron Howell on a third-down kick. Shouldice penalized Toronto 15 yards from the point at which Fraser's kick was received.

Hamilton claimed it should have been given the down over again and that Toronto should have been penalized from the line of scrimmage for the repeated third down.

The meeting Sunday agreed with Hamilton's view.

Redmen Score Upset Victory Golden Gaels Topple Mustangs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The longest unbeaten streak in Canadian senior football crumbled Saturday in Montreal under the fumbling intercollegiate league's most devastating one-two aerial punch.

Quarterback Dick Carr tossed two touchdown passes to end John Bennett to direct McGill Redmen to a 16-9 upset over the league-leading University of Toronto Blues before 8,500 fans.

The loss not only halted Blues' unbeaten record at 11 successive league games—including three exhibition engagements—but it was the first league win by McGill since the final game of the 1953 season. Since then the Redmen had gone through one without a win.

Queen's University Golden Gaels held off a strong last-half attack by University of Western Ontario Mustangs in London to take a 25-17 victory and move into a first-place tie with Varsity.

Queen's meet Varsity in Kingston next Saturday for what probably will be the league championship. The Blues defeated Gaels 11-6 in their first meeting in Toronto and both teams have six points from three wins and a loss. Western Ont. is third with three points and Mustangs are last with one.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Redmen's losing streak ended in a furious fourth-quarter in which they came from behind with a pair of touchdowns to overcome a three-point deficit. Then they battled grimly to hold off two Varsity marches late in the game. They scored the first one on the five-yard line and the second on the 18.

Carr's passing was the deciding factor in the win. In addition to his touchdown passes to Bennett, he tossed a 17-yard pass to Sam Yuzko to set up Ricky Adrian for Redmen's third touchdown.

Adrian carried over from the one.

Blues blocked two of Bob Holland's three convert attempts but the third was good.

Blues played their sloppiest game of the season but came up with a 49-yard pass play from Harry Wilson to Gerry Lansley for a touchdown. A field goal by Pete Maik and a single by Ed Skrzypek completed their scoring.

RAN OUT OF STEAM

Mustangs came within one-point of catching Gaels' 18-5 half-time lead in the fourth quarter but they ran out of steam in the closing minutes. Gaels pulled ahead with a single and a converted touchdown.

Mustangs took a 5-0 lead early in the first quarter on an unconverted touchdown by Ralph Simmons, but Gaels' hard-charging halfback, Ron Stewart, went wild and scored three touchdowns before half time. Jock Thompson converted all three.

Western scored in the third quarter when Neil Desborough went over for a touchdown and then Simmons got his second touchdown for Mustangs in the fourth. Bob Lebbett converted both touchdowns for Mustangs.

Redmen's losing streak ended in a furious fourth-quarter in which they came from behind with a pair of touchdowns to overcome a three-point deficit. Then they battled grimly to hold off two Varsity marches late in the game. They scored the first one on the five-yard line and the second on the 18.

The bidding was easy, it went like this:

South	North
1 Club	2 Clubs
2 Spades	3 Spades
4 Spades	Pass

An opening one bidder shows five tricks; an additional trick for each raise in number. His second bid was a raise. But his third bid was. Thus did he show six tricks.

Partner of an opening one bidder may raise once for each trick in excess of two. South showed a total of four tricks by his two raises. Their ten tricks belong in a contract of four.

Opening lead from west was heart queen and three tricks in that suit went at once to opponents. In the lead at the fourth trick, east sent forth his jack of diamonds.

It would be stupid to lead diamond jack there if he also held the king. Which south should have considered. But he did not and ducked. West king won and the contract was down.

With this play, so obviously a killer, south should have tried the only other alternative. Jump up with diamond ace, cash a trump and club ace, enter dummy with a trump, and lead clubs.

Dummy can always get in again with a trump. So, ruff club king when it covers. Stuff south diamonds when it does not.

Kingston Goodyears Defeat Eastern Group All-Stars 7-6

KINGSTON (Special)—A tried and tested front line for the all-stars and a "third" line for Kingston Goodyears provided most of the action Saturday night as the defending Ontario Hockey Association senior B champions came from behind to decision the powers packed all-star 7-6.

By its performance Whitby's sharp-shooting attacking trio, of Bus Gagnon, Bobby Attersley and Fred Etcher scored nothing, not only on the Goodyears, but on all the other teams in the league, that the Dunlops were out to recapture the title they lost last year.

They accounted for five of the six all-star goals and picked up eight of the 10 assists to account for 13 of the 15 points. In the first 30 minutes of the game they were the whole show as Attersley managed a hat-trick and Gagnon scored once to erect a 4-1 lead at the half way mark.

Kingston's third line composed of Duke Doran, Bob Vallier and Val Walker failed to match the Whitby contribution in total points but in the vital goals-scored department it was on a par.

Returning native son Val Walker sparked the attack with three goals, two of them unassisted. The crew-cut right winger, back after two years with Toledo of the International League, scored the locals first goal of the game, picked up assists on a combination play in the second to close the gap to 4-3 and then won the game with less than two minutes to play when he picked up the puck at centre ice, broke in all alone on Tony Parisi, picking the lower left corner with a bullet-like shot.

Doran's second period third goal early in the second period to make the score 4-1 veteran Duke Doran had his turn. He beat Parisi cleanly after taking a pass from Vallier and then set up Walker for Kingston's third counter.

Jack White, assisted by Joe Maracle tied up the game at 3:40 of the last period and then Doran, with the second goal and ex-Oshawa star George Samolenko put Kingston two up.

The all-stars with the Whitby players leading the way, fought back and Steckville's Don Thompson, aided by Attersley and Gagnon, deflecting in Attersley's shot, scored to tie the game with five minutes remaining.

Walker then crossed up the visitors when he broke away from a ganging attack to score the winning counter.

The all-stars collected seven of the 11 penalties called by referees Art Casterton and Keith Flanagan but weren't hurt by the sentences in fact scoring two of their goals while they were short-handed.

All-Stars: goal, Donlevy (W), Parisi (R); defence, Sinden (W), Redmond (W); centre, Attersley (W); wings, Gagnon (W), Etcher (W). Madoc Juveniles Win Ontario Title Defeat Wingham 10-6 in OASA Final MADOC (Special) — Madoc Juveniles, in their initial year of competition, captured the OASA Juvenile "C" softball championship of Ontario on Saturday when they downed Wingham 10-6 in North York. Madoc dropped the first game of the series but came back for the next two and to take the title in true championship style.

This is the first Ontario championship for Madoc and the village is very proud of its young ball players. The team never played together until the OASA playdowns started. They were organized by coach Len Empey and manager Harry Tutte in August and came up with a fine brand of ball. They were greeted by a noisy reception when arriving home from North York with bands and fire trucks leading the parade. They will be honored with an banquet and gifts from the village at a later date.

GAME FROM BEHIND

Wingham took the lead on Saturday with three runs in the third to go ahead 3-1. Madoc then took command with two runs in the fourth to tie it and four in the fifth to go in front to stay. Two insurance markers in the top of the ninth put the decision beyond doubt.

Wayne Shaw, who pitched every game for Madoc, again went the route, allowing nine hits. He fanned only one but his control was good as he issued but one free ball in the last. Fox was his battery mate.

Lancaster pitched the game for Wingham, rapped for 13 safe blows while whiffing six and passing five.

Whiteman was the batting star for Madoc, slamming two home runs. One came with a single runner on base, while the other was a grand-slammer in the fifth inning and provided the margin of victory. Shaw also greeted by a single, Demille two singles and Burnside a double to aid the cause.

Hodgkinson paced the losers, hammering a three-run homer in the third frame and also hitting two doubles.

Errors were plentiful with the losers bobbing six times and Madoc booting four times.

Bloor CI Wins Red Feather Grid Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's Bloor Collegiate Institute senior football team registered a decisive 28-0 win over Timmins Buzz Saturday night and won the seventh annual Red Feather football tournament.

With the championship goes the Golden Rule award for exhibiting good sportsmanship in the two-day, four-game series.

Eleven thousand fans in CNE Stadium saw another outstanding performance in the first game Saturday when St. Patrick's College from Ottawa walloped East York Collegiate Institute 27-1.

Play Friday night saw Burlington district high school easily defeat Woodstock 26-7. 33-3, and Etobicoke CI eke out a 6-5 win over hard-playing Hamilton Cathedrals.

Judges chose Bloor as the team which best carried out the players' and coaches' code of sportsmanship, with showing a high standard of football.

All four winning teams received Red Feather bowls.

Tournament proceeds went to Toronto Community Chests, bringing them a sizeable step nearer their goal.

Cheerleaders 300 strong, several bands, majorettes and fireworks helped make this Red Feather tournament one of the season's most colorful events.

Five of coach Bing Caswell's Bloor Bombers scored for one touchdown each. Fleet Rich Mazur, who later in the game suffered a broken leg, carried Bloor's first one over in the first quarter and kicked a single point in the third quarter.

The team caught fire in the fourth with Neil Christensen, Bill Lundy, Fred Tasker and Steve Pasternak all scoring touchdowns. Lundy, who played a deft game in the quarter slot, kicked two successful converts.

Timmins was lead in its tough defensive fight by quarterback Rae Stanton.

U.S. Football

NEW YORK (AP)—Texas A. and M. won't play in any bowl game this year, but no matter what happens between now and the end of the season, the amazing Aggies certainly will go down as the surprise of the 1955 college football season.

Bear Bryant's lads were penalized by the conference for recruiting too vigorously and one of their punishments was being barred from post-season competition this year. That didn't bother Bryant because even he thought his team was a year or two away.

The Aggies will have the Southwest Conference games left on their schedule. Nothing is certain, of course, in this upsetting loop, but as George Sauer, whose Baylor club took a 19-7 pasting Saturday, said:

"I don't see who can stop them."

Here's how the other major conferences stand:

Pacific Coast—UCLA, the choice, is riding high, the only unbeaten, untied team in the loop' play. The UCLANS have been beaten only by Maryland, and have clear sailing until Nov. 19 when they play Southern California in a game that could decide the title.

Big 10—Michigan, another favorite, is out front, but its 14-13 upsetter over Minnesota Saturday gave a measure of encouragement to Ohio State, which all but eliminated Wisconsin 26-16. Michigan and Ohio State meet on Nov. 19, and that could decide the crown.

Big 7—Oklahoma took care of Colorado, the only team figured to give it a run, 56-21. The Sooners now have won 24 in a row and the end isn't in sight.

Atlantic Coast—Maryland seems certain to sail through undefeated and untied and play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Saturday's scores included:

Junior Canadiens Beat Cubs 6-2

QUEBEC (CP)—Forbes Kennedy scored once in each period Saturday to lead Montreal Junior Canadiens to a 6-2 victory over Hamilton Cubs in a Laurier Trophy game here.

The victory was the third in a row for the Canadiens in trophy play this year. Hamilton has been the victim twice, losing 6-0 in Montreal Saturday.

Andre Pronovost scored two goals and picked up an assist for the winners, while Bob Marquis rounded out the scoring.

Sullen and Sawchuk were the Hamilton marksmen.

Five Ontario junior teams and the Canadiens are in competition for the challenge trophy.

Weightlifting

The YMCA weightlifters continued their training for the October 28th meet over the past week with some fine totals being racked up. Keen rivalry between the local lads brings improvement each week.

The top totals for the past week were as follows: Len Furnie 405; Bob Lapp 405; Jim Smith 330, Joe Cox 535; Len Yanke 545; Ken Carr-Brairt 560; Don Cherry 650.

Gazouette and big end Rick Tennant in company with Myro Matysiak, Bob Leroux, Pete Woodruff and Ray Paterick.

AT THE CAPITOL — Frank Lovejoy and Peggie Castle in a tense scene from Allied Artists' "Finger Man", a drama of alcohol highjackers and the man who turns them oved to the law. The picture is having its first Belleville showing tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program is Technicolor "The Iron Mistress" starring Alan Ladd and Virginia Mayo.

AT THE BELLE — Richard Todd co-starred with Michael Redgrave in "The Dam Busters". If you enjoyed "The Bridges of Toko Ri", you will like this one.

AT THE MacCARTHY — America's fighting men of World War II are shown enroute to the battlefield in this scene from Universal-International's "To Hell and Back" production "To Hell and Back", starring Audie Murphy. Murphy emerged from World War II as America's most-decorated war hero. The feature is currently playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Reds, Bisons Crowd Barons In American Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Providence Reds and Buffalo Bisons are two American Hockey League clubs that believe in going for the BIG period. And it paid off Sunday night as both came through with victories to move into a tie for second place, a point back of the league-leading Cleveland Barons.

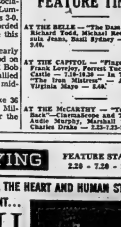
Reds shut out Springfield Indians 5-0 with three of their goals coming in a second-period outburst. Bisons turned back the cellar-dwelling Hershey Bears 7-3 with four of their goals going into the net in the opening period.

Jim Bartlett, rookie left wing, paced the Providence attack with two goals as goalie Johnny Bower, former New York Ranger, turned in his first shutout of the young season.

Both Lou Kankowski and Chuck Blair counted twice in Buffalo's win.

Pembroke Wins Over Soo 3-0

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP)—Goalie Cliff Hicks showed Sunday night why he was voted the most valuable player in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association last year when Pembroke Lumber Kings defeated Soo Indians 3-0. It was the first shutout recorded by a goalkeeper in the league this year.



Pembroke broke into an early two-goal lead in the first period on goals by Bert Giesbrecht and Bob Hamwell. Lawrence Giesbrecht tallied the final goal for the winners mid-way through the last period.

Hicks was called on to make 36 saves to earn his shutout. Al Millar scrapped 17 of 20 shots for the Indians.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — ued talents, like hoarded money, do not produce. Donate your efforts to worthy causes. A display of dignity and a discerning program best bets today. Stay close to your job.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your associations can make or break you. Choose the right ones. Use logic, reasoning. Join the doers. Things move swiftly these days; keep pace — you are able.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Use care in finances and employment matters. Interchange of ideas with associates, plans for future action favored. Give your best. Don't take all at "face value."

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Promote new, clever methods when the opportunity presents itself. Lost time is never regained. Don't be temperamental or you will destroy your effectiveness.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Don't dwell on past disappointments, and don't let anyone persuade you to wrangle over it. Be enough forward thinking to promote more progressive action. Spend from time cheerfully.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — There may have been some changes made during the past few weeks that generally affect your business or finances. Review carefully; study new possibilities; retrench where you should.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — People can be aggravating, you say at times — but then we all are people, so we all fit into the bother-about-fellow category occasionally. Recognizing your own shortcomings is important.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Why not enjoy the benefits of this day fully? You will if you go about doing things enthusiastically and also enjoy the pastimes. You like to relaxation. Keep on an even keel.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Trust others as you wish to be trusted. Also remember to investigate where there could be deceit or even witless errors. Do not overlook details, no matter how small.

You born today have a variety of assets for a variety of fields. But you may tend to spread your activities or interests too thin and thus defeat the excellent gains your talents could produce for you. Concentrate on one or two things at a time, and you will feel less rushed, better fit for bigger things. You could do well at law, and military life, science. You have unusual energy and recuperative powers. Birthdate of: Georges Bizet, famous Fr. music composer; Thomas Babington Macauley, noted Eng. essayist, statesman; Richard Byrd, aviator-explorer.

Sgt. B. Arluck Wins $50,000 In TV Contest

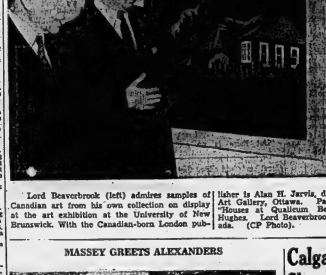
NEW YORK (AP)—Sgt. Barney Arluck, 43-year-old Brooklyn policeman and lawyer, won $50,000 for answering two questions about fury selection Saturday night on the CBS-TV program, "The Big Surprise."

Next week Arluck can try for $100,000—the top prize on the show. But under the rules he can keep the $50,000—half of which he would go for taxes—even if he misses the next question.

When Arluck missed the $50,000 question last week, an electronic calculating machine was used to select a "duplicate" of Arluck—a man with a similar background.

This was Maj. Philip Reynolds, also 43, until weeks in the Signal Corps of U.S. army chief of psychological warfare at Bethesda, Md. Reynolds was asked one question: "What former eastern governor is a presidential aide?"

WON $1,000



He answered correctly—Sherman Adams, former governor of New Hampshire—and won $1,000 for himself to be given to charity. Arluck another chance at the $50,000 question.

Arluck was asked to give three types of challenges of jurors under New York state law and to list five of the eight provisions under which challenges are allowed.

His answer to the question were: The three kinds of challenge are peremptory, for actual bias, and for implied bias.

He listed provisions for implied bias: A relationship by family; a relationship by employment; party to civil action or previous criminal action involving the defendant; juror served on the grand jury which found indictment; and scruples against punishment.

Calgary Youth Shoots Brother, Murder Charged

CALGARY (CP) — A high school student who walked gun in hand into the Calgary police station has been charged with murdering his 14-year-old brother during a Sunday outing on a municipal golf course.

Detectives said they were led by Joseph Henry de Barathy, 17, to a hollow just off the 13th fairway where they found David de Barathy.

The boy, with one bullet wound in the cheek and another in the top of the head, was still alive but died in hospital about an hour later.

Eric de Barathy, the father, a watchman for a construction company, said the boys had asked him to go shooting, too—they were after gophers on the tail - but deserted course—but that he was unable to accompany them.

FATHER BEWILDERED

"There must be some mistake," he said when he first heard of David's death. "They wanted me to go shooting with them. Just today they asked me."

Police said Joseph walked into the police station at 7:15 p.m. carrying a .22-calibre repeating rifle and told officers his brother had been shot.

He was escorted to the golf course by detectives sergeant Ken McIver.

Detectives said the boys went to the course at about 5 p.m. and that they had only one gun with them.

No motive has been advanced. David was in grade nine and Joseph in grade 12.

Four Escape 30-Foot Plunge Over Embankment

HAMILTON (CP)—Four youths escaped a 30-foot plunge over Chedoke falls Sunday when their car crashed into the bridge abutment above the falls.

Warren C. Liberty, 21, and George Mitchell, 21, in the front seat of the car, suffered minor head injuries. Herbert Cooley, 20, and Robert Scobbie, 16, were unhurt.

Liberty told police he was forced to the edge of the road by an oncoming car. Officers said Liberty's car would have dived into the rocky stream bed below the bridge had it not hooked the abutment with its front end.

What's funny about it? pop said and I said, Who said there was anything funny about it?

Everything has its humorous side, all the fillosophers are agreed on that, pop said, and am said, Well of course. There's a way to look at everything, if you only look at it the way. For instance while the other boys are trudging to school you'll be trudging to the dentist and wishing you were trudging to school for a change. Isn't that rather a funny thought? she said.

Maybe it might be to other people, I said, and maybe said. Oh now come, you must see something funny in trudging some other direction while all the other boys are trudging to school.

Maybe I would If I was trudging to the park without a pane in my face, I said, and pop said, Well, just to take one more trudge, won't it be rather cheering, even if not positively funny, to reflect how much worse you would feel if this were still vacation time and you were trudging to the dentist while the other boys were trudging to the park?

Well, that might seem like a kind of a consolation if I could imagine it without actually having a toothake, but I bet it wont seem that way now, I said.

Which it didn't and I went to the dentist feeling fellis of all the other guys going to school.

'The Tontine' by Thos. Costain Makes Publishing History

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—Thomas Costain, who celebrated his 70th birthday in May, made publishing history this fall: His two-volume, 350,000-word novel, "The Tontine," was launched with a first printing of 100,000 copies.

The sheer size of the first printing—a publisher usually is relieved and almost happy if a book sells more than 10,000 copies—plus the fact that the new Costain is a double-decker selling for almost $8 are matters of considerable discussion in literary circles. They also are a sort of climax in an oft-beat success story.

The white - haired, blue - eyed, Canadian born in Brantford, Ont., turned author when he was 57 and has been spinning a succession of best-selling historical tales ever since. In the last 13 years, he's written 13 books which have sold 9,000,000 copies in England and more in translations in 18 foreign languages. "The Black Rose," published in 1945, remained at the top of popularity lists for more than a year; "The Silver Chalice," in 1952, was on the lists for 50 weeks.

HAPPY, BUSY YEARS

Meanwhile, Thomas Costain has been spending the happiest and busiest years of his life, roving all will through history, roaming the world as his fancy dictates—through the Palestine of the days after Christ; through the France of Joan of Arc; through the England of James I; through the Europe of Napoleon.

"Some writers I've known have run into tragedy," he remarked in an interview. "I've seen so many young writers who started in full and running over with ideas suddenly go dry, suddenly unable to say anything, or get anything published. I'm inclined to believe that you have just so much productive ability in you and that when you use it up, you dry up."

At a time when he was one of the most respected, well-known editors in the publishing business, Costain laid down his blue pencil and, figuratively, picked up his pen. This was after he had passed a birthday at which most men start thinking seriously about annuities and developing hobbies.

"I'd wanted to write—to tell stories—always," he explained, "and it suddenly occurred to me that if I was ever to do it, I'd better start right away. That decided, I thought about what I wanted to write. For years I'd been advising young writers to write about the things they knew best—the towns they grew up in, the businesses they had worked in. So I decided to take my own advice. The thing I knew best was history. I've read history—any history—all my life."

Gentle-voiced and scholarly, Costain makes it sound as simple as scribbling a postcard to the folks back home. The first book, "For My Great Folly," published by Doubleday where he had been a senior editor, sold 20,000 in hard covers and then went on to handsome sales in pocket books. Reassured, he went ahead with "Ride With Me," which did much better. Then, with "The Black Rose," Costain book sales really went through the roof, the movies bought it (and made, Costain thinks, a stinker) and the transition was complete from editor to writer.

Away from his work, Costain's hobby is antiques, particularly those of the elegant (and expensive) Queen Anne period.

Flood Victims To Be Assisted By $300,000

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal contribution of about $300,000 will be made to help reimburse Saskatchewan and Manitoba victims of last spring's floods, federal officials report.

The money will cover the central government's 50-per-cent share of "disaster" relief to pay for roughly 90 per cent of private property damage from the extensive flooding of prairie rivers.

Officials, disclosing plans for the current federal allocation Friday, said it will not cover damage to roads, bridges and other municipal and provincial public utilities.

They said provincial requests for federal aid towards flood control measures, repairing roads, bridges and the like, will be considered at a future date.

DOUGLAS COMMENT

In Regina, Premier Douglas commented that the federal assistance "will not be much help" in Saskatchewan. He said the provincial cabinet now is studying the offer and further comment will be made next week.

On the other hand, Premier Campbell of Manitoba said in Winnipeg that the federal offer is generally "acceptable."

He described the federal plan as a move to "standardizing" disaster relief payments on a hurricane at $50,000,000 for the province.

Jap Editor Explains How He Can Guess U.S. Secrets

TOKYO (AP)—"Do you think we're farm hands? Have you forgotten the Zero?"

Kazuo Baba, editor of the intriguing Japanese aviation magazine "Aireview" waved his hand toward the tiny, design-cluttered editorial office just off Tokyo's crowded Ginza.

He was explaining how Aireview manages to keep startling the U.S. defence department and other places month after month by publishing highly accurate designs, drawings and cutaways of the latest super secret American jet planes.

Some of Aireview's designs have been rated from 80 to 95 per cent accurate.

CREATE SENSATION

"But there is no secret, no miracle," Baba explained. "We just study the photographs—U. S. counterpart hand out so many—and figure the rest out for ourselves. When we can't get the photos we gather all the information we can. After all, there are only so many ways to build an airplane and Japan has aeronautical engineers too."

Easy or not, Baba and his boss, publisher Jin Imai, 41, gave the same explanation to two "representatives" of the United States Air Force who visited the office in plain clothes. That was after the magazine's cutaway of the North American F - 100 Super Sabre created a sensation in Washington.

"The Super Sabre might have still been classified secret in Washington," Baba said, "but we had plenty of data to work on that was made available during the year.

"The F-100 was unveiled in October, 1953, and its picture was made available to the public immediately. In the following January we carried an analysis of the plane by Prof. Hidemasa Kimura of Nippon University."

Actually he says, there is nothing even new about Aireview's system.

"The British aviation magazine signed them are still around."

Hazel basis nuff added that "in all fairness to the federal government and subject to final consideration by the Manitoba cabinet it is likely to be acceptable."

But, he added, that is no guarantee of approval.

Estimates of prairie damage have varied widely. No official estimate was made for Manitoba. Saskatchewan, harder hit of the two, estimated its loss at $35,000,000 not including anticipated crop losses. Forecasts last spring put the over-all figure, including crops,

New Mario Lanza Is Trim, Docile

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Warner Bros. have unveiled the new Mario Lanza — trim of figure, docile as a kitten and singing better than ever.

Of this previous history of temperament, the controversial tenor commented in an interview Friday:

"I guess I'm facing up to reality now. Before, my great zest for living made me always look at those situations as a boy. You know, I love living. When I love, I love; when I eat, I eat and when I sing, I sing."

The 32-year-old tenor credits studio boss Jack L. Warner with the change for the better. When Warner signed Lanza to star in 'Flight' was doing the same thing long before we got started," he said. "Flight published its own cutaway of the Super Sabre the same month we did. I didn't hear any U. S. reaction on it.

"Frankly, we can't understand why the Americans made such a fuss about Aireview. Japan isn't exactly a primitive country. We used to make some pretty good airplanes, and the people who de-

"Serenade," the film version of James M. Cain's novel about the great singer who hits the skids, most of Hollywood shook its collective head.

It was Lanza's first picture since MGM had to sub Edmund Prudom's face to go along with Lanza's voice for "The Student Prince." That was three years ago.

Conservative Wins Riding Held By Liberals 25 Years

Toronto Spadina Captured By 600-Vote Plurality

Truck Hits Car, James W. Cleary Fatally Injured

James W. Cleary, 29, of R.R. 4, Belleville, was fatally injured early today when his car was struck from behind by a highway transport and crushed against a bridge abutment on the four-lane highway east of the city.

The accident occurred shortly before five o'clock as Mr. Cleary was on his way to work. He was a fireman with the CNR and had left home to report for duty as a crewman on an outgoing freight.

Police said that Cleary was westbound, alone in his car, when a following transport, driven by Garfield Buchanan, 378 Kennedy Road, Toronto, slammed into the rear of the car and drove it against the concrete bridge abutment.

Police were unable to state the cause of the accident. An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto. Provincial Constable McKenna and Oliver investigated the accident.

TORONTO (CP) — The federal constituency of Toronto Spadina, liberal stronghold since 1930, fell to the Progressive Conservatives Monday in the second by-election defeat for the Liberals in a month.

Charles E. Rea, insurance man and former member of the Ontario legislature, captured the seat on a late surge of strength in votes piling up in an election called to fill the vacancy left by the appointment of Liberal David Croll to the Senate.

Samuel Godfrey, Liberal candidate, conceded defeat at about 8 p.m. hours after the polls closed and said he would lose by about 500 votes. At that time official figures had him 400 votes in front and it was another two hours before the last ballots were in.

Mr. Rea polled 6,708 votes to 6,108 for Mr. Godfrey. Joseph Salsberg, Communist Labor-Progressive who sat in the Ontario legislature for 13 years, ran a distant third and Harry Waisglass, CCF, 2,938.

HOUSE STANDING

Standing in the 265-seat House of Commons after the Spadina vote: Liberals 167; Progressive Conservative 51; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; Independent 4; vacant 5. Liberals lost to Dr. John Aiken-Bellerville-Napierville through death last Aug. 7 and Spadina through Croll.

The loss was the third for the Liberals in 15 by-elections since the 1953 general election. On Sept. 26 they lost Restigouche-Madawaska to the Progressive Conservatives and a year ago they were beaten by the CCF in Selkirk, Manitoba. In the other 12 votes, the Liberals retained eight seats, Progressive Conservatives three and CCF one.

The Spadina vote was light, possibly due to the threat of weather. Intermittent rain fell through the day and there were high winds toward poll closing time. The total of 19,091 compares with 27,258 in 1953. There were 43,000 eligible voters.

Mr. Rea's winning total was only slightly larger than the 6,554 polled by the losing Progressive Conservative candidate in 1953. The CCF candidate got 2,370 and the Social Credit 1,832.

MR. GRIMSBY, IN NORTH

A 52-year-old native of Brandon, Man., Mr. Rea went to school at Grimsby in the Niagara peninsula. In 1929 he bought an insurance business in Spadina and in 1934 won Ontario and in 1934 founded his business in Toronto specializing in life, sickness and accident insurance. He represented Spadina in the Ontario legislature from 1945 to 1951.

Mr. Godfrey, 37, travels a wool-and-waste firm. Mr. Waisglass, 34, is a sociologist and department head with a big textile in the trade union movement. Mr. Salsberg, 52, has been a labor organizer for years. He held Toronto St. Andrew in the Ontario legislature from 1943 until now.

Sam Factor, now a lodge, won for the Liberals from the Conservatives in 1930 and held it for 15 years. Mr. Croll, former mayor of Windsor and former Ontario cabinet minister, was its member 20 years.

WEST'S PROPOSAL WILL GIVE RUSSIA NOTHING OF VALUE

Expect Reds to Reject Germany Unity Deal

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP) — In a few days the Western powers will offer Russia a package deal for unification of Germany on Western terms. In exchange, they will offer Moscow security guarantees against any new German military adventures.

The Western proposal is designed to remove Russia's fear of uniting East and West Germany. But it is not designed primarily to give Russia anything of value in return for agreeing to German unification.

The West hasn't the slightest idea of agreeing to a setup which would facilitate moves by a United Germany to sever the ties so laboriously forged between the Bonn government and the West, or to undermine the West's Germany's membership in NATO.

Not all of the Western powers have any intention of meeting what is considered Russia's basic demand—dissolving NATO itself.

RUSSIAN 'NO' PREDICTED

Western diplomats believe deal seems sure to get the currently polite response the Russians are accustomed to giving first firmly as in the old days when the word became fighting talk for harsh rejection.

The prospective bargaining every many is already known to be the fundamental point about the present state of relations between the two Germanys.

Neither side is prepared yet to give up any power, interest, or territory of great value just for the sake of improving East-West relations or easing tensions.

Communist - governed East Germany has a strategic and political holding of enormous importance to the Soviet Union. Bulganin and Molotov have made clear that Russia does not intend to yield that to the West at this time.

JUST AS VITAL

West Germany is just as vital to the political and military strength of the West. Much as they say they want unification, the United States, Britain, and France are not interested in a merger of the West German Republic with the populous West Germany.

This creates a stalemate condition on the German issue in advance of the Big Four meeting. The four foreign ministers' conference here, despite the appearance of the "summit" meeting here in July, The agenda is expected to continue long after the ministers' conference ends.

Police Shootings Too Numerous Says Lawyer

TIMMINS (CP)—G. T. Evans, northern Ontario criminal lawyer said Monday night there are too many police shootings in Canada.

Some day, an aroused public will demand that police officers will register a conviction against a policeman, thus destroying public confidence in relations now existing between police and the public, he told the fall session of the Porcupine and district police school.

Mr. Evans said the officer not only guilty of careless use of firearms but also the disturbance the officer was called to quell.

British Labor M.P. Asserts Third Man Warned 2 Traitors

LONDON (AP) — A Labor member of Parliament today accused a former member of the British embassy staff in Washington of tipping off spies Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean that they were under investigation.

Lt.-Col. Marcus Lipton named Harold Philby, former first secretary of the embassy in Washington, as being the "third man" in the case.

Burgess and Maclean, high-ranking British foreign office officials, disappeared in May, 1951 and now are presumed behind the Iron Curtain. A recent government white paper accused them of spying for the Kremlin for many years.

Shortly after Parliament reconvened from its two-month summer recess, Lipton tangled with Prime Minister Eden on the floor of the House.

Eden rejected a demand by the Laborite for the appointment of a special parliamentary committee to investigate the case. The prime minister added:

"The government themselves take the view that it is desirable to have a debate on this subject, in which I personally as prime minister shall be glad to take part."

Burgess and Maclean disappeared while Herbert Morrison was foreign secretary in the old Labor government. He extended through Eden's tenure as foreign secretary under prime minister Winston Churchill and also runs into posts.

Combines Investigators Probe Familiar Products

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's combines investigators have turned their attention to many commodities familiar to every Canadian household.

Milk, cigarets, gasoline, auto insurance, refrigerators, fertilizer and various items studied during the 1954-55 fiscal year's drive against restrictive trade practices were dropped because of changed circumstances or insufficient evidence, its several study continues.

In his annual report, made public Monday, Combines Investigations Director T. D. MacDonald said 14 investigations were carried under way at the end of the fiscal year last March 31, bringing to 18 the total investigations resulted in reports to Justice Minister Garson.

Probes can be started by Mr. MacDonald, Justice Minister Garson or by a minimum of six citizens who complain in writing of persons signing allegations. Of the investigations carried during 1954-55 were all initiated by Mr. MacDonald.

The milk probe was undertaken in an undisclosed community, believed to be in Ontario, where milk distributors were charged by businessmen and dairy farmers' groups with combining to withhold price discounts even though they received large amounts of milk.

When one distributor tried to reduce the price, he was forced to withdraw the reduction, it was reported, the president of the local Milk Distributors' Association said the price war ended "because it was business might break out.

The cement industry was fully withdrawn when two dairies made independent and competitive bids before the industry's association.

A resident of another Ontario community complained that gasoline prices were "abnormally uniform and high." Mr. MacDonald found the retail prices were uniform, except for one outlet which sold at less popular, a lower grade gasoline. Prices tended to move uniformly and not always in relation to changes in wholesale prices.

Evidence, taken before a restrictive trade practices commission, showed a "considerable" amount of consultation among the telephone equipment retailers concerned. . . ." But evidence was not strong enough to prove conspiracy to combine. The inquiry was dropped to be taken up later if further evidence should warrant it, Mr. MacDonald said.

Elsewhere in eastern Canada, retail tobacconists protested what they said were signs by manufacturers to fix wholesale prices and eliminate discounts.

The inquiry was dropped because the evidence was "inconclusive."

The whole automobile insurance business continues. The combines director said investigators found differences in buying prices of large and small wholesalers.

Practices "examining "tied-sales" whereby a gasoline company persuades service stations to carry only accessories supplied by a distributor or manufacturer and refusing to give gas company a commission for exclusive outlets.

The report said branch also studied the eastern Canadian fertilizer industry. The fertilizer investigators found no evidence of a combine in the industry.

Another study was one of the major producers appeared to be subsidizing chemical weed killers, natural market areas, competition appeared to exist in the industry dealer-to granting dealer-and early-delivery discounts and in an extensive demonstration by the reports said. "It also appeared that new mixers entered the field with reliable reasonable means and effort."

Mr. MacDonald suggested Canadian telephone companies which order "legitimate" telephone equipment should be obliged to buy their equipment on the open market basis.

The branch investigated allegations that an unidentified telephone company was buying telephone equipment from associated companies at lower prices and monopoly prices. The result was higher rates for telephone users and dividends to shareholders.

He said the inquiry was dropped because no representations were made nor information received to indicate there were any collusive arrangements among the companies manufacturing and supplying telephone equipment.

The husky Irish contractor and Progressive Conservative member for Renfrew South since 1945 lost the support of his party after it was disclosed he accepted and failed to make public $151 campaign contributions of $6,000.

Although Premier Frost and the party withdrew confirmation, party members in Mr. Dempsey's own riding backed him as an independent Conservative and he was re-elected in the June 9 provincial general election.

Mr. Frost stuck to his decision and when the legislature held a special session Sept. 8 Mr. Dempsey was listed in the official seating plan as a PC (U)—the U for unendorsed.

AFTER PHOTOSTATS

Premier Frost withdrew support of the former lumber company owner after he was shown photostats of cheques given by Mr. Dempsey by James Drohan, a Barry's Bay, Ont., lumberman in 1951 and 1952.

Mr. Dempsey told the amount was $6,000 but insisted the money was given as a campaign contribution to help defeat the Liberals.

The standing in the legislature now is: Progressive Conservative 83, Liberal 10, CCF 3, Liberal-Labor 1, vacant 3. Total: 98.

After his election, Mr. Dempsey said: "I am elected as a Progressive Conservative. There's nobody can make me anything else."

The controversy, which also involved federal Revenue Minister Nowlan, resulted in the Renfrew South Progressive Conservative Association last almost May. Dempsey was official candidate. Later, at a second nomination meeting, delegates voted to support a candidate. He was unopposed for the nomination.

ADMITTED INDISCRETION

He told his supporters: "I must admit that I committed the indiscretion of taking party funds with out advertising I had received them.

"I am not the first in the world that has done that and I am not going to ask for your support."

Mr. McCann later disclosed that he was the man who showed Premier Frost the photostats.

Mr. McCann was a director of the Guaranty Trust Co., which administered the Dempsey estate.

He declined to say whether he received the information from the executor of the estate or the trust company. Dr. McCann subsequently resigned as a director of the company.

NATO Ministers Back Big Three's Parley Policies

Endorse Proposals Drafted For Presentation to Russia

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — Foreign ministers of the Atlantic alliance today gave their general agreement to the Western big three's proposals for easing world tensions.

The ministers from other member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization heard a statement from U.S. State Secretary Dulles; British Foreign Secretary Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Pinay explaining the joint memorandum which the West will present to the Soviet Union Thursday in Geneva.

At the end of a three-hour session, a NATO official said, "there was general agreement on the basic proposals."

Dulles spoke for almost an hour on the first and key section of the memorandum covering Western views on Germany's reunification and a general European security pact.

Macmillan spoke briefly on disarmament proposals and Pinay on that thin problem now being handled by a UN sub-committee, the London talk at Governments have to be to improve the atmosphere to help the actual work in the UN itself.

GREEK ASSURANCES

Pinay presented the big three's views on progress in this field depends on a development of the Soviet attitude in general particularly on the progress the Big Four might make in the key question of German reunification.

The new Greek foreign minister, Spyros Theotokis, made a statement on behalf of his government saying it wished to reaffirm its attachment to the Atlantic alliance. This was the only reference in the session to the recent Greek-Turkish tension which at one point had prompted Athens to withdraw a Greek contingent from a scheduled NATO military maneuver.

Officials said the current situation in the Middle East, particularly the threat of conflict between Israel and the Arab states in the Gaza Strip, Czechoslovakia sale of arms to Egypt, has not yet been discussed.

Macmillan and Pinay reached "complete agreement" Monday night on the memorandum with which they will confront Russia at the post-summit meeting opening Thursday in Geneva. They will discuss it again on the day before for discussion:

1. German reunification. Real progress in Europe is impossible unless the German people are permitted to come together under a free government, of their own choice, which can negotiate a peace treaty acceptable to all Germany. Hence, Germany must be reunited by free elections brought out the divided country.

2. European security. To reassure Russia that no attack against another aggression, the West is proposed a European security pact to replace the United States, Canada, Britain, France, Luxembourg, Belgium, Netherlands, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal, Italy, Norway, Turkey, Greece, Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. The West is willing to join German unification and a European security pact together so both are achieved in parallel stages.

3. Disarmament: The West is prepared to accept Russia's proposal for "open sky" proposal made at the
